

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 1

Chapter 1 Funeral

In Berchun City's Cemetery, a funeral was taking place. Dressed in black, Aurora Bennet stood in the middle of the crowd silently, receiving her father's friends' condolences.

"Ms. Bennet, my condolences." Someone said in a low voice.

Aurora wiped her tears and thanked the guest,

A month ago, the Bennet Group was broken, and Shawri Bennet, Aurora's father, died from a sudden heart attack.

The once glorious Bennet family was gone,

Everyone was surprised, but they dared not look down on Aurora.

Because she was not only the daughter of the Bennet family but the wife of Zac Buchanna, CEO of the Buchanna Group, who could shake the world with a finger.

The funeral continued until noon, but no one saw Zac. When it was almost over, a Bentley slowly drove into the cemetery.

The driver opened the back door and Zac got out of the car. A pair of shiny leather shoes appeared, then a well-ironed handmade suit. Zac had a handsome face with sharp edges. His expression was very cold.

This was the first time Aurora had seen Zac after two years of marriage. How ironic! It was at her father's funeral!

All the guests had sent flowers, but Zac came empty-handed!

"Zac," Even more unexpectedly, another car door opened and a pretty woman in a little red dress came out. She put her hands on Zac's arm naturally and asked, "Do I need to go in?"

Zac's face warmed up a little as he looked at the woman. He pulled his arm away. "Wait for me here."

"Okay," The woman smiled and tiptoed to kiss him.

This scene was no doubt a slap on Aurora's face.

This was her father's funeral. The woman not only wore a red dress but also kissed Aurora's husband in front of all the guests!

Aurora pinched her palm, unable to maintain calm. However, Zac had already walked toward her.

After a moment of silence, he turned his head and caught her eyes. He was much taller than Aurora so his shadow covered her. "Long time no see. When do you become mute?"

"What do you want?" Aurora knew that he had come with ill intentions.

"What do I want? I just want to pay my respects to my honorable father-in-law." Zac's eyes were even colder than the wind and snow outside the window.

He looked down at Aurora who was in front of him.

Aurora was more beautiful and charming than two years ago. Her long hair reached her waist. If she was not the daughter of Zac's enemy, maybe they would have had a happy marriage.

No, they wouldn't get married at all.

Zac married her to take revenge on Shawn the son of bitch.

"Everyone, get out."

Hearing Zac's words, all the people at the ceremony left, because no one dared to go against him and the Buchanna Family.

After the last person left the field, Aurora suddenly felt an acute pain in her wrist. She was dragged in by Zac, and then the door closed.

An hour later, Zac adjusted his suit and left the hall expressionlessly.

The woman who had been waiting outside the door immediately went up to him, grabbed his hand, and said gently, "Zac, how is it? Has the trouble been solved?"

"Yes," Zac responded calmly, held her hand, and walked down the steps, leaving behind a few words.

"Everything is over."

Wenny Swon heard the forbearance in his words, but she dared not to ask. She only looked back with lingering fear.

Hopefully, everything was over.