

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 121

Chapter 121 What's Wrong With Him?

Hearing Aurora's name, those rich ladies were obviously less excited.

"Her? Seems that Malon doesn't have good taste."

"I heard that she and her ex-husband..."

"I seem to have seen Wenny just now. Is Zac also here?"

Such kind of gossip could easily arouse people's curiosity. As the catwalk show had already half finished, Wenny was so anxious that she was about to cry in the toilet.

"Zac, I beg you! Come pick me up! I have abdominal pain."

This was not the first time she had taken advantage of the fetus.

Zac had just finished his meeting and was walking out of the company. When he heard the voice from his Bluetooth headset, he furrowed his eyebrows as he put on a gloomy face.

"I'll have the driver pick you up."

"No, Zac! Can you come personally?" Wenny was almost begging him. Her tone was extremely humble.

Suddenly, she heard footsteps outside and hurriedly hung up the phone.

Zac frowned as the phone call was suddenly cut off.

Dalwin had made an appointment with Zac early in the morning. At this time, he had just driven over. Seeing that Zac was wearing a long face, he asked casually, "What's the matter?"

"Come with me. Carter, you are off duty now."

"OK, Mr. Buchanna."

Then, a super sports car drove out of the car park of the Buchanna Group. The sound of the engine swept across the street.

As soon as they arrived at the entrance of the show field, they saw the photos and names on the publicity cards.

"Aurora is also here?" Dalwin felt that something must be going on.

Zac frowned and walked up the stairs.

Dalwin shook his head. "It's already been more than a year. She should just be obedient."

If Wenny was more observant and knew to make up to Zac, she would have already taken the position of the proprietress of the Buchanna Group.

But she just had it in for Aurora.

Dalwin followed Zac in. The catwalk show was coming to an end, and all the designers and models went on stage together.

The entire audience was filled with applause since Malon's show was so good.

"I like the bracelets. They are so creative"

"Aurora is indeed talented".

Zac paused as his gaze was attracted to the figure on the stage she was standing in the spotlight with a gentle smile on her face. Her eyes were glittering

That was truly who Aurora was
She was such an eye-catching girl! Even among those female models and female stars, she was not inferior at all.
Their gazes met in that instant.
Zac raised his eyebrows slightly, only to find that Aurora did not quickly look away, but glanced at him with indifferent eyes.
The fists under his sleeves slowly tightened. Someone walked over from the side to the stage to deliver flowers to the designers. The one walking in the front was Terry!
Terry took off his baseball cap in public and gave Aurora a bunch of flowers with a smile. "Aurora, congratulations."
Aurora's hand paused in mid-air. Then she couldn't help but reveal a pleasantly surprised smile. "Why are you here? You didn't even tell me!"
"Sorry, I am late." Terry was referring to the matter of explaining to her.
Aurora did not speak. She would make it clear to Terry, but that was not the proper occasion.
"Thank you, all designers and models. Please have a break. The auction will begin immediately! Tonight, we will auction five masterpieces from the jewelry designers..."
As all the designers stepped down the stage, Terry followed Aurora.
Zac found it quite irritating as he stared at the backs of the two.
"Zac."
Then, Wenny came over with a happy expression. "Zac, thank you for coming to pick me up."
Zac glanced at her and slowly pulled his hand out. "I told you to stay away from places with so many
As a pregnant woman, Wenny should be careful about the safety of the fetus.
However, Wenny was too eager to achieve quick success. She insisted on showing off her identity as Mrs. Buchanna everywhere. Zac knew it clearly. He just didn't stop her.
Wenny pursed her lips and said delicately, "I'm sorry, Zac. I...".
"You have abdominal pain, right? Let's go now." Zac turned around and was about to leave.
But how would Wenny let go of such a good opportunity?
"Zac, they just said there was an auction. Can we stay and watch for a while?" The corners of Wenny's mouth curled into a smile. "Just a while."
At the moment, even Dalwin could feel Zac's displeasure.
However, Wenny stubbornly refused to go and kept Zac until the auction began.
Dalwin watched as Zac was pulled to a seat by Wenny. Dalwin helplessly held his forehead as he thought that even a friend of Zac like him could tell that Zac did not like Wenny at all.
If Wenny was not pregnant, maybe...
When this thought came out, Dalwin immediately coughed. He thought, since when I have become so gossipy like others?
The designers came out from backstage. Terry was still following Aurora.
He had been looking for an opportunity to explain to Aurora.
But Aurora paid no attention to him. Her attention was on the stage. So Terry could only remain silent.

“How about we sit here?”

Aurora nodded. As soon as she sat down, she felt a sharp gaze. She turned her head and saw that Zac was staring at her.

Aurora was stunned. Had she offended him?

Aurora frowned and turned around. She was still having a distant attitude.

Zac’s fingers tapped on his knees, which was the action he would often do before he got angry.

Dalwin noticed it, but Wenny was full of satisfaction as she thought about how to show off their love and let everyone present know that she was the real wife.

She did not notice the change in Zac’s mood at all.

“Ladies and gentlemen, thank you for waiting. Now, please take out our first auction item. It is the work of the Malon Company’s chief designer, Hale. It is such a pity that he did not participate in the show today!”

“It is a diamond necklace...”

“The starting price is 50 thousand dollars.”

Just as the host finished speaking, someone started bidding.

Soon, the necklace was successfully auctioned.

“The next one is the bracelet that Ms. Gill just showed us. It perfectly explains our theme tonight. It is comparable to the shining eyes of the queen. Although it is not as expensive as King’s Heart, it is also a proud work from our company.”

“The starting price is 100 thousand dollars.”

Only then did Aurora realize the reason why she felt familiar with the bracelet. It turned out that it was also a piece of work by the designer of King’s Heart.

“You are responsible for this part, right?” Terry suddenly leaned over and asked.

Aurora nodded.

The next second, Terry immediately raised his bidding paddle. “110 thousand dollars.”

Aurora was shocked. “You want to buy it?”

“Yes, it’s for you,” Terry said firmly.

“I don’t want it.”

Terry sighed, “Other than money, I don’t know what else you lack. Moreover, to you, I don’t seem to have any other advantages.”

Aurora was amused by his deliberate expression. “If your mother knows that you are such a spendthrift, she will hit you.”

“Not angry anymore?”

Before Aurora could answer, a voice came from behind. “120 thousand dollars.”

It was Zac!

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 122

Chapter 122 Not Worth the Price

Terry gritted his teeth. “125 thousand dollars!”

Aurora sighed helplessly, “Just give up.”

She didn’t want it at all. What was worse, Zac was deliberately competing with them on the price. Even if the bracelet was the work of a famous designer, it was not worth that price.

Wenny, who was beside Zac, was excited.

Zac, on the other hand, had a cold expression on his face. His eyes were so deep that it was like one could never tell his emotions.

Aurora only glanced at him before looking away.

“150 thousand dollars,” said Zac, holding the bidding paddle.

“150 thousand dollars? It seems that Mr. Buchanna is determined to win! Are there any other buyers interested in this bracelet?” As the host spoke, he smiled and looked in the direction of Terry and Aurora.

Terry still wanted to bid but was stopped by Aurora.

“No need.” To save face might be important to others, but not to Aurora.

She had seen enough of those people throwing away their money for the sake of face.

She didn’t want to be that kind of person who kept sinking in the whirlpool of greed.

Moreover, Terry would definitely lose when compared to Zac

O

“Aurora, I’m sorry,” Terry said.

Aurora cracked a smile. Her smile was unprecedentedly relaxed and bright. It was only at this moment that she realized that she was not eager to the circle of rich and famous people, but to prove herself.

She could win without the Bennet family.

As for Zac, Aurora didn’t care about him anymore.

When the host delivered the bracelet to Zac personally, Aurora and Terry had already left.

Someone began to whisper, “Zac’s choice is Wenny anyway.”

“Aurora is really stupid. No matter how powerful the Walton family is, they still can’t compare to Zac.”

“Although the wedding was not completed, it is a fact that Wenny is pregnant. Sooner or later, she will be one of the Buchanna family.”

Hearing these words, Wenny smiled more and more happily. “Zac, thanks.”

Unexpectedly, Zac just got up and walked out. “I am fed up.”

Wenny didn’t get that bracelet.

She was a little disappointed, but she had got what she wanted. She pursed her lips and quickly followed Dalwin clicked his tongue. He knew well about Zac. This matter was not over yet.

Aurora went to the office backstage to retrieve her things. When she came out, Terry waited for her in the street.

She hesitated for a few seconds before walking over.

“Don’t apologize to me. It’s none of my business. I don’t care about how you get along with Sara.” Aurora looked peaceful. She was not blaming Terry.

They were not boyfriend and girlfriend.

“You...” Terry failed to speak. The words he had prepared for the past few days were stuck in his throat.

He clearly understood the calmness in Aurora's eyes.

The night wind blew the hair in her ears. She smiled easily and broke Terry's heart in an instant.

"You are right. Apologizing is my business. Explaining is also my business." Terry forced a smile and determined that he would end all those messy relationships so that Aurora wouldn't be criticized.

From afar, Aurora saw Zac and the others walk out.

She felt uneasy when seeing them.

"Let's go. I'll treat you to a meal." She patted the bag in her hand. "I got my salary today."

Terry nodded. He thought that at the very least, they could still get along as friends. He found him very happy already. If Aurora pushed him away, or never saw him, he could not imagine what would happen to him by then.

They walked forward side by side. Zac's driver also drove over and took him and Wenny away.

The night was cold. When Dalwin was about to leave by car, he happened to meet with Aurora and Terry.

"Ms. Bennet, how have you been?"

"Mr. Villson." Aurora nodded and greeted him.

Dalwin's gaze fell on Terry, who was aside. Then he smiled faintly. "Mr. Walton, you'd better stay far away from the people that you can't afford to provoke, lest it affects your family business."

There was business cooperation between the Buchanna Group and the Walton Group.

Terry was very clear about this,

He frowned and was about to retort when he was stopped by Aurora.

"Mr. Villson, we still have things to do. Excuse me."

Aurora forcefully pulled Terry away.

Terry was annoyed, but he would not do anything Aurora disliked.

Dalwin watched them leave, and his eyes narrowed. "Interesting."

While Aurora and Terry were eating, Terry was called off by the Walton family.

"Mr. Walton, Mrs. Walton is not feeling well with her heart. She has been calling your name," Connor said, "If you don't have any important dates, you'd better come back for her."

They had already played this trick once.

"I have something to do..."

Terry said, about to hang up.

However, Kate's voice came from the phone. "If Terry is busy, just let him be. I'm fine."

It sounded like she was really weak.

Terry frowned as he agreed to go back. Then he hit the hang-up button.

Aurora had already finished paying the bill and walked out of the restaurant. "Let's just go our separate ways."

She smiled and did not look unhappy at all.

"Sorry, I wanted to celebrate with you today."

Aurora smiled and said, "Have you ever calculated how many times you apologized to me today?"

There was no need for that between them.

In her most difficult time, Terry was like a beam of light that shone into her life.

In her most difficult time, Terry was like a beam of light that shone into her life.

But no one would want to hug the sun in their arms, because it was too hot and they would not be happy.

Stopping damage in time was the most important thing that Aurora learned after coming back.

"I had already hailed a car just now." Aurora looked at the black car by the roadside in the distance.

"That should be it. See you later."

She didn't want to become a conflict between Terry and his family anymore.

She waved with a smile and quickly walked across the road.

But halfway, Aurora found that something was wrong.

It was not right the right license plate number.

Aurora looked back. Terry had just gotten into the car and had not left yet.

She slowed down and waited for Terry to leave before stopping.

However, when the window was rolled down, it turned out to be Zac in the car.

Aurora suddenly stopped and turned around to walk back.

But halfway through, her phone rang.

le

"Get in the car and 1,500 less."

Aurora was so angry that she gritted her teeth. How will I be tempted by 1,500 dollars?

Aurora frowned deeply, but she still opened the car door and sat in. She was not a greedy person, but now, she had to compromise.

The car drove forward, and Aurora turned to stare at Zac's profile.

"Why are you still here at this time?"

Hadn't he gone with Wenny just now?

They should be at home now.

Or perhaps he had just escaped from Wenny?

The more Aurora thought, the more disgusted she felt.

"I was just passing by and want to remind you not to foolishly think that the Walton family will accept you. It won't do you any good messing up with Terry," said Zac calmly.

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 123

Chapter 123 After the Race

Aurora frowned.

"Mr. Buchanna, mind your own business. I decide who to interact with," Aurora said with a cold face.

With their relationship now, Zac had no right to tell her what to do.

No matter how terrible she was, it had nothing to do with him.

"If you got me in the car just to tell me that bullshit, Mr. Buchanna, please, let me off."

Zac took out the bracelet box and threw it to Aurora.

“Consider it as a reward for helping me deal with the Oconnell family.” Then, he ordered the driver to stop the car.

Aurora glanced at it and then got out of the car with the bracelet.

Nothing comes for free in this world, but she didn't have many choices at the moment.

Even if Zac set her a trap, she had to readily jump into it.

This was how the world functioned.

Aurora took a few steps and looked back at the car, thinking, he didn't lose his temper!

Three days later, the night before the race of the Thunder Cup.

Aurora had received a call from Abel.

“The person who was supposed to be Black Rider's passenger had a sudden accident.

Tomorrow is the competition, and we really can't find a replacement. If you have time, would you please help?

“Don't worry, you'll get paid. How about 30 percent of the bonus?”

Abel was afraid that Aurora would reject him, so he added, “Terry didn't want me to bother you, but it is too urgent. I couldn't find anyone else.”

Tomorrow was Saturday, and Aurora had nothing to do.

“Alright, I will help, but don't stop looking for someone else. I might not be the most suitable...”

“You are the most unique candidate! No one can compare to you. You are the goddess of victory.” When Abel heard that Aurora agreed, he happily slapped his thigh. “I think we can book the celebration banquet now.”

The next morning, Terry drove to pick Aurora up.”You are the most unique candidate!

No one can compare to you. You are the goddess of victory.”

When Abel heard that Aurora agreed, he happily slapped his thigh. “I think we can book the celebration banquet now.”

The next morning, Terry drove to pick Aurora up.

That day, Terry was kind of reticent, which was weird.

Aurora supported her chin with one hand and turned her head to look at him. “Are you nervous?”

Terry gripped the steering wheel and shook his head.

“Is the race team in trouble again?”

Terry sighed without saying anything.

“If you have something on your mind, you'd better not go for the race.” Aurora was very rational.

Once they got on the racing track, there was no way to turn back. If something happened in the middle of the game, no one could bear the consequences.

The car stopped outside the competition venue and they could hear the rumbling sound of the engine. Terry suddenly smiled, his dark eyes shining. “Aurora, after this competition. Let's talk. Give me a chance, okay?”

Is he distracted because of this? Aurora wondered.

She nodded and agreed.

They registered and went to the locker room respectively to get changed.

When Aurora was trying the helmet, she heard two staff members talking next to her. “I heard that Black Rider quarreled with his family because of the funding of the race team. Is it true?”

"I heard about it too. It seems that his family forced him to get engaged to a girl from a rich family. But he had fallen in love with someone else. That was why they quarreled."

"The one that Black Rider likes is the one he proposed on the podium last time..."

"Shh, be quiet!"

Aurora slowly walked out after they left. She looked at herself in the mirror and sighed. She and Terry indeed needed to talk.

The auditorium on both sides of the track was full of people.

Zac, one of the investors, also presented. He did not sit outside, but instead in the VIP room.

Zac looked up; his eyes focused on the screen. His eyes were deep, emotionless.

Early this morning, the Buchanna Group officially announced the cancellation of the contract with the Walton Group. It was not because of his grudge against Terry, but because the quality of the products supplied by the Walton Group was not satisfactory to him.

The previous cooperation was nice. This time, Zac intended to reorganize the atmosphere of the company from the inside, thus cutting off the relationship with some old partners.

The Walton Group was one of them.

Ten minutes before the match, Terry received a call from Kate in the locker room.

"Terry, your dad invited the Jarrett family to dinner tonight. You must come after the competition. Do you understand? Your dad's company had come across big trouble. It's all because of Zac..."

Terry was sick of hearing things about the company.

"Mom, I need to go on the track now. Let's talk tonight."

Kate was a little unhappy over the phone. "Is your car more important than your father and I? You know the company has been facing great challenges recently. You must engage with Sara. That's the only way to save our family!"

"Black Rider, it's time to go up."

Terry lowered his head and said in a low voice, "Mom, I'm begging you. Let me finish the race first, and then I'll listen to whatever you say. Is that okay?"

Terry was the only child of the Walton family. He had to take responsibility.

Hearing Terry's words, Kate finally let out a sigh of relief. "That's more like it. I believe that you will make the right choice." She smiled on the other side of the line and spoke.

Terry put down the phone helplessly, got up, put on his jacket, and walked out.

Is it the right choice?

The stadium was filled with cheers from fans and spectators.

"Black Rider, Black Rider!"

Aurora, who had already gotten in the car, teased with a smile, "I didn't expect you to be so popular."

"Aurora, I must win this time," Terry said as his lips twitched.

Both on the racing track and the business field.

Half an hour later.

"My son! You must be alright!" Kate cried out of the operating room.

After asking the nurse about the situation, Connor came over to help her up. "Don't worry. Mr. Walton is in surgery. We have informed Mr. Reed to come over."

"I told him not to race cars anymore. He just wouldn't listen! It was all for that woman. She is going to kill my son!"

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 124

Chapter 124 The Situation Is Not Optimistic

Across the door, Aurora had just woken up in the ward.

The doctor held the flashlight, "Look to the left, look above... What is this? I am your attending physician. My name is Fabian Ray. Now, can you hear my voice?"

Aurora saw him wave his hand in front of her.

She could see the doctor's lips moving, but she couldn't hear any sound.

She looked blankly at the nurse who was recording her data, at the medical instruments, and at the shaking trees outside the window.

Aurora grasped the quilt and shook her head slowly. but she could not hear it.

She could hear nothing at all.

The doctor glanced at the nurse and said, "Try to inform her family members. She needs further checks."

"Okay, Mr. Ray."

Aurora vaguely saw many people outside the door.

She was too tired, plus the effect of the medicine, she quickly fell asleep.

When she opened her eyes again, it was already late at night. She still couldn't hear anything,

Aurora opened her mouth, grabbed the nurse who was changing her drip, and asked slowly, "How is the person who came with me?"

"You mean Terry?" The nurse opened her mouth but then realized that Aurora could not hear, so she took out her phone, typed a few lines, and then handed it to Aurora.

Seeing the words that the nurse typed, Aurora felt her hands begin to tremble.

On the first curve, Terry found out that the brake was not working.

It was urgent. They couldn't stop even though they called the repair man. He could only cooperate with Aurora and slowly reduce the speed by changing the way.

But this method did not work on the racing track.

In order to get a chance to live, Terry made a bold decision.

He asked Aurora to hold tight to the seat, then rushed to the low slope on the track...

He knew that there was an obstacle in that place, and the moment the car knocked on it, he blocked

Aurora with his body.

That scene was still lingering in Aurora's mind.

She should never forget what Terry said in her ear in this life.

A tear fell from the corner of Aurora's eyes.

"Terry has injured his leg and spine nerve. He had an operation and is now in observation, but he is not out of danger yet."

Spine nerve?

Aurora had a very bad premonition.

Before she put down her phone, the door of the ward was forced open.

Then, Kate rushed in with a group of people!

“Bitch, why did you wake up so quickly? You should die...”
She shouted. There seemed to be invisible knives in her eyes that were going to cut Aurora into pieces at any moment.
However, Aurora could not hear a single word.
She looked blankly at Kate, who reached out and grabbed her hair.
The pain caused Aurora’s thoughts to become clearer.
Something happened to Terry?
“Madam, please calm down.”
There were also many people trying to stop Kate.
Kate shouted and collapsed on the ground, crying.
“Terry, what’s wrong with Terry?” Aurora reached out her trembling hand and grabbed the nurse.
Her voice was trembling and her eyes were unfocused.
Why couldn’t she hear?
What were they arguing about?
Aurora almost collapsed.
But looking at her innocent look, Kate became even angrier. She stood up and rushed over, giving Aurora a hard slap.
“So, how is Terry?” Aurora rubbed her ears and breathed rapidly.
Her eyes were red as she stared at Kate in a daze.
“Mr. Walton’s spine has been damaged. The doctor suggests amputating his limbs to save his life.” Connor held Kate and spoke.
Aurora stopped in her tracks. She pushed everyone away and ran towards Terry’s ward.
Her mind was blank as she looked at the unconscious man on the bed.
When Zac left the director’s office as an investor, he saw her standing barefoot and staring straight into the ward.
Behind her was Kate, who had been cursing non-stop.
“Mr. Buchanna, should we stop them?”
Zac raised his wrist and personally walked over.
“There were only the two of you in the car at that time. Tell me, what happened?” Kate continued to drag Aurora.
She hated it so much. Why is the person lying inside not Aurora but my precious son?
As her mother, she knew very well how much Terry liked Aurora.
Therefore, seeing that Terry was injured so badly, but Aurora was only lightly injured, Kate could not accept it.
She raised her hand to hit Aurora again.
Aurora didn’t dodge.
But someone stopped Kate in time.
“Mrs. Walton, it was an accident. You shouldn’t have blamed her.” Zac’s voice was deep.
“Accident? How is that possible!”
Kate widened her eyes, wanting to say something, but was stopped by Bob.
“Alright, the most important thing now is for Terry to wake up. What’s the use of hitting her!” Bob’s eyes were also red.

Terry was their only son.
Behind him were Sara's parents. They protected Sara behind them and said politely, "Bob, everything is gonna be alright. If you need us to do anything, just tell us. Since you guys are busy, I
If she was not in that car, Terry wouldn't use his body to protect her.
And he wouldn't be so badly injured!
These words touched Bob's heart at that moment. Even Kate, who kept crying, looked at Aurora with a complicated look. The next second, she said fiercely, "Enough! If it wasn't for you, how could my son..."
Halfway through her words, she fainted.
"Doctor, doctor!"
Aurora knelt there without moving.

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 125

Chapter 125 The Walton Family Will Not Pity You

She did not go back on her word. In the next dozen or so hours, besides going to the toilet, Aurora had been kneeling in front of Terry's ward. She had not eaten anything except some water.

"Ms. Bennet, it's pointless doing so. Mrs. Walton won't forgive you for that." Connor walked over and said, "You should leave."

Aurora lowered her head and did not respond.

"Alright, as you like."

When Aurora heard the door open, she looked toward the doctor and nurse.

However, the doctor shook his head regretfully. "If the patient doesn't wake up tomorrow morning, we plan to undergo amputation surgery."

Aurora felt as if she fell into a cliff.

"He can't amputate. How can he drive without his legs?" She murmured. She knew better than anyone that Terry's greatest dream was to become the world's top racer.

"Did you hear that? If you don't wake up, you'll lose your legs," she said softly, her tears flowing down her cheeks.

Aurora knelt there for the entire night. Her legs went numb.

She didn't know the time, but she had been paying attention to the sky outside the window, hoping that the sun would rise a little later, hoping that Terry would open his eyes quickly.

"It's pointless. The Walton family will not pity you."

Zac stared at her back and said with a sneer, "You should pray for yourself. It might work."

Aurora hid the emotions in her eyes and said nothing.

"If he lost his legs, would you really take care of him for the rest of your life?" asked Zac, looking at her quietly.

Aurora slowly turned around and looked at him. "I keep my word. If you are here to mock me, please go away."

Her eyes were devoid of spirit.

Zac thought to himself, is she sad because Terry was lying on the bed?

He pursed his lips, saying, "If you go back on your word, I will capture you for the Walton family and tie you to Terry.”

After saying this, he turned to leave.

However, he did not leave the hospital. Instead, he went to participate in the operation meeting on the fifth floor of the hospital.

Because the accident happened during the race, in addition to Zac, two other investors were also invited to the hospital.

“Mr. Buchanna, is Mr. Walton really going to have amputation surgery?”

“I know some well-known neurologists. I can invite them over!”

Zac’s eyes were dark. He thought the same.

His mind was filled with the determined face of Aurora. He clenched his fists and shouted at the doctors, “Is there no other way? Amputation is not a choice. Think of other solutions!”

“Well...”

The meeting lasted for two and a half hours without reaching an agreement.

The attending doctor looked at his watch and sighed, “There is really no other way.

Prepare for the operation. If we delay, I’m afraid we will miss the best time for the treatment. Contact the patient’s family and inform them...”

At that moment.

Aurora pushed open the door of the operating room, her pale face smiling with tears.

“He’s awake. He’s awake...”

She ran up from downstairs barefoot.

The doctors immediately went out to check on Terry’s condition.

Aurora was panting heavily, her hands and legs were shaking violently, and her eyes were filled with tears.

This scene broke Zac’s heart.

t

“Are you that worried about him?” he asked, walking slowly.

Aurora sobbed, her hand still shaking.

The next second, Zac grabbed her and carried her up.

“Let go of me!”

“Aurora, your life is mine. Without my permission, you cannot die.”

Does she know that she was injured in the accident too? Although not as bad as Terry. Yet she needs

She had been on her knees for so long without eating. That’s insane. No one could take that.

When Zac carried her down the stairs, Aurora fainted from exhaustion.

She was not thrown down but gently placed on the bed.

“Please, check on her.”

In order to prevent the Walton family from making things difficult for Aurora, Zac took her to the inpatient department downstairs.

“Your wife is very weak. As her husband, you must pay attention to her nutrition,” said the doctor after an examination.

Family?

Zac frowned. "We..."

"Also, do you have children?" The doctor pushed up his glasses and said, "You must pay attention to sex. If you want a child, you must hurry up. Her physical condition..."

With a cold face, Zac went to the pharmacy to get the medicine.

"It will be very difficult for her to get pregnant. You must understand her more and spend more time with her." The doctor's words circled in his mind.

"Did she have a miscarriage in the past?"

"Her body was damaged by that."

The nurse stuck her head out and asked, "Are you here to get the medicine?"

Zac came back to his senses and handed over the prescription.

He had never been so absent-minded.

The nurse handed the medicine over. "Three times a day. It's all written on the medicine box. Come back again for a check in one week."

Zac took the medicine over. The coldness between his brows grew stronger. At this time, Wenny called Zac frowned and answered.

"Zac, where are you? I had a nightmare. Can you come and stay by my side?"

"Take care of yourself," Zac said as he gripped his phone.

After finishing speaking, he hung up directly.

Wenny felt angry as Zac hung up.

She had called Zac at an early hour in case he said he was busy at work.

But now, he didn't even bother to reject her under excuses of work.

And he seemed to be in the hospital.

Wenny furrowed her brows, "Is he taking care of Aurora?"

Thinking of this, Wenny could no longer sit still. She immediately changed her clothes and was about to rush out.

Davis stopped her downstairs.

"Where are you going so early?"

"I'm going to have breakfast with Zac." Wenny made up a random reason.

If it was in the past, Davis would like her to please Zac, but now, his relationship with the Buchanna Group was very stiff.

"You're not allowed to go. You haven't even married. Is it appropriate for you to walk around the streets with him with a big belly?" he said harshly.

"Dad!"

"Zac already said we'll register at the bureau. And the wedding is just a formality, no?"

Wenny said, acting spoiled.

She couldn't reconcile either. But what could she do?

She had two weddings and they were all ruined by Aurora.

She had to go to the hospital and stop them from being together.

Davis slammed the newspaper in his hand. "I said you are not allowed to go. If you dare to go out of this door today, never go back again. Let Zac take care of you."

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 126

Chapter 126 Realizations

Wenny was so angry that she wanted to cry.

Faye walked over, "Wenny is in her pregnancy. She just wants to go out for a walk. It is very normal. Why are you yelling at her early in the morning?"

As she spoke, she poured a cup of tea for Davis, then stood behind him and massaged his shoulders.

This worked for most of the men. In an instant, Davis's expression eased a lot.

He snorted, "If Wenny was half as sensible as you, I wouldn't have to be so angry."

Wenny was still sobbing, and when she saw Faye, she did not have a good expression.

Faye seemed to not care at all, and she kept speaking for Wenny, "I think it's good for Wenny to go see Zac. Business is business. Don't bring it home. You won't want other people to think that we are neglecting the Buchanna family."

Faye's words reached the bottom of Davis's heart.

"Don't spoil her," he said with a frown.

Faye smiled and walked over to pull Wenny out.

"I heard that Mr. Walton had a car accident with Aurora. This has nothing to do with you, right?"

Wenny's heart skipped a beat. "Of course not. The accident happened on the race track!"

"Alright. Don't worry. I'm just asking. Go, talk with Zac."

Faye saw Wenny off in the car and turned back.

Wenny sat in the car, biting her lips. She got off the car before reaching the hospital.

Then, she got into another business car.

In the car, Saul was already waiting for her.

As soon as he saw Wenny, he started to touch her.

"Don't touch me. Are the people you found reliable? They won't give me away, right?"

When Faye asked her, she was a little panicked.

Saul smiled contemptuously. While touching her back, he said, "Don't worry. I have already sent them abroad. No one else will know that they did something to Terry's car. Moreover, the Walton family was in a mess because of Terry's hospitalization. No one suspects it was a man-made accident."

"That's good..."

Wenny breathed a sigh of relief. The next second, Saul held her in his arms.

She let him kiss her and then felt his hand go down

Wenny quickly grabbed his hand. "I am going to see Zac. Don't mess up my clothes."

"Do you really want to marry Zac?" Desire appeared in Saul's eyes.

Wenny chuckled, "Of course I did everything to marry him."

Wenny tidied up her clothes and looked in the mirror After making sure that she looked fine, she opened the car door and walked into the hospital

Saul slammed the steering wheel

A shrill whistle sounded.

Why is Zac always better than me?

Better than me in the business, and even when it comes to women

“Sooner or later, I will make everyone respect me,” Saul said as he gripped the steering wheel.

Wenny asked around, but she didn't find Aurora's ward, so she had to go to Terry's ward first.

Terry wasn't in the ward. Kate was making the bed for her son

“I can't find Aurora. Even your son is not here!” Wenny was a little impatient

Hearing her tone, Kate had her face turn cold, “Please leave. You are not welcome here.”

If Wenny had not told her that she was going to target Aurora, she would not have told Wenny about the venue of the race.

Kate stared at Wenny's face. She knew very well Wenny might be responsible for the accident.

But she had no evidence.

Looking at Wenny now, she could only vent her anger in her heart.

Wenny seemed to have seen through Kate's thoughts, “So rude. That's good. Do you want me to tell everyone that your son's accident is related to you? I want to see what your husband will think when the time comes.

PV

“Is his son or his vicious wife more important?”

“Shut up!”

Kate rushed up, grabbed Wenny, and glared at her, wishing she could tear her mouth apart.

Wenny struggled. “What's the point of arguing with me? The one who caused all this is not you or Kate released her hand and stood there in a daze. In the end, she covered her face and cried.

It was her fault, and she was possessed...

re

Wenny snorted and patted the wrinkles on her clothes. “If you dare to talk nonsense, I don't care. Anyway, I have the recording of our conversation here. At worst, we both die.”

“You slut, get lost!”

Looking at Kate's flustered and exasperated appearance, Wenny turned her head away in disdain, opened the door, and left.

Kate sat alone in the ward. She reached out her trembling hand and touched the bed in the ward. “Terry, I'm sorry ... As long as you can wake up, I can do anything. You can like whoever you like. I won't force you anymore. Please...”

Outside the ward, Wenny saw Carter rushing over.

She hurried forward. “Where is Zac?”

“Miss Swon! Mr. Buchanna is busy.” Carter subconsciously looked at Terry's ward behind him.

“Busy with what? Explain.” Wenny could not stop him. So, she followed him back to Terry's ward.

When Kate saw Wenny come back with Zac's assistant, a bad idea popped up in her mind.

“Is my son...” She covered her mouth and her tears kept falling.

"Mrs. Walton, Mr. Walton is awake. The doctor is having a consultation upstairs. He will be sent back to the ward soon. Don't worry." Carter went up and supported Kate. Kate was finally relieved. She felt dizzy.

Carter and the nurse helped Kate calm down. When he looked back, Wenny had already disappeared.

His eyes darkened and he quickly walked out.

Wenny went around the inpatient department, but she could not find Zac and Aurora. She was almost sure that Zac must have been in this hospital with Aurora after the car accident.

Thinking of this, Wenny gritted her teeth.

Those people are useless. They only made her suffer light injuries.

Wenny looked around the empty corridor and then left the hospital in a sulk.

Behind her, Carter took his phone and recorded what Wenny had just said to herself.

Then he entered Aurora's ward with the other evidence he had gotten.

Kate sat alone in the ward. She reached out her trembling hand and touched the bed in the ward. "Terry, I'm sorry ... As long as you can wake up, I can do anything. You can like whoever you like. I won't force you anymore. Please..."

Outside the ward, Wenny saw Carter rushing over.

She hurried forward. "Where is Zac?"

"Miss Swon! Mr. Buchanna is busy." Carter subconsciously looked at Terry's ward behind him.

"Busy with what? Explain." Wenny could not stop him. So, she followed him back to Terry's ward.

When Kate saw Wenny come back with Zac's assistant, a bad idea popped up in her mind.

"Is my son..." She covered her mouth and her tears kept falling.

"Mrs. Walton, Mr. Walton is awake. The doctor is having a consultation upstairs. He will be sent back to the ward soon. Don't worry." Carter went up and supported Kate.

Kate was finally relieved. She felt dizzy.

Carter and the nurse helped Kate calm down. When he looked back, Wenny had already disappeared.

His eyes darkened and he quickly walked out.

Wenny went around the inpatient department, but she could not find Zac and Aurora.

She was almost sure that Zac must have been in this hospital with Aurora after the car accident.

Thinking of this, Wenny gritted her teeth.

Those people are useless. They only made her suffer light injuries.

Wenny looked around the empty corridor and then left the hospital in a sulk.

Behind her, Carter took his phone and recorded what Wenny had just said to herself.

Then he entered Aurora's ward with the other evidence he had gotten.

It was a suite. On the sofa outside the suite, Zac was reviewing documents.

"Mr. Buchanna, we got the news."

"Who is it?" the man asked coldly.

"Miss Swon."

Carter placed all the evidence in front of Zac. "When the accident took place, Miss Swon was not presented, but she bribed two staff of the maintenance stations and did something to the car brake. We caught the two guys at the airport. They were about to go abroad.”

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 127

Chapter 127 Heartless Woman

If Zac sued Wenny, he could get her into prison now.

Wenny had committed the crime of homicide. No matter how many lawyers the Swon family hired, it would be useless.

“Suppress this matter for the time being,” Zac said as he closed his eyes slowly.

On the hospital bed in the suite, Aurora opened her eyes at some point. She was still wearing an oxygen mask, but she could clearly hear the sound.

Hearing Zac’s words, she thought, Zac, you want to protect Wenny?

Haven’t you always hated evil as your enemy?

Just because it was Wenny, you choose to be merciful again and again?

How about Terry?

He’s just an innocent person who was implicated, and now...

Tears fell from the corners of Aurora’s eyes again, and she clenched tightly on the bed sheet.

That afternoon, Aurora restored quite a bit of physical strength. She sat on the bed and had three bowls of porridge and several pieces of bread on the table.

“Won’t you be stuffed?” Zac watched from the side.

He also handed a few tissues to Aurora. However, he and his words were both ignored by Aurora.

Zac became unhappy and said coldly, “I was the one who brought you down from upstairs. And I pay the money for this ward. Aurora, are you that heartless?”

Zac had also stayed in the hospital for a few days. Although he was not guarding Terry, he had taken the responsibility that he should take.

Zac complained in his heart, why does she treat me so coldly?

Aurora suddenly put on a fake smile. “Then Mr. Buchanna, I have to thank you for not letting me die in the corridor.”

“Do you have to be so sarcastic when you speak?” Zac rushed forward and grabbed her wrist.

But in the next second, he met Aurora’s cold and fearless gaze. There was nothing in her eyes.

Zac’s heart skipped a beat as if it was touched by something.

Aurora seemed to have experienced death. When Terry was unconscious and had a risk of amputation, she might still be like a human and had some hope in her heart.

Aurora seemed to have experienced death. When Terry was unconscious and had a risk of amputation, she might still be like a human and had some hope in her heart.

But now, it was as if her soul had been lost and her body was empty.

No matter how hard Zac gripped her, he couldn’t grab the soul in her body.

He murmured, "Are you so into him?"

Zac couldn't control the complicated emotions in his heart. His strength was also out of control.

Aurora's wrist was gripped more tightly, and she was in pain. But she gritted her teeth and answered word by word, "Yes, I love him so much that I don't care about my life."

Aurora could not remember how Zac left.

She only remembered that when she was thrown to the floor, every bone in her body was hurting.

Zac slammed the door and said, "Even if Terry is fine, he won't want you."

Aurora gripped the floor with her fingers, and she slowly closed her eyes.

She did not really love Terry, but she could not forget that he had saved her life, and she did not dare to forget.

Three hours later, Aurora saw Terry again.

The Walton family stared fixedly at Aurora as she walked in as if they were about to dig a hole in her body with their gazes.

Terry leaned against the bed and stretched his hand toward Aurora. The first thing he did was to ask

Aurora, "Are you alright?"

Aurora smiled bitterly, the tears in her eyes falling again.

She thought, in such a condition, is he still worried about me?

"Let's go out and leave them alone." Kate stood up absent-mindedly. For the first time, she did not criticize Aurora

Kate staggered to the door and looked at Terry who was staring straight at Aurora. Kate sighed helplessly

The door was closed.

The entire ward was filled with the smell of disinfectant, which was very pungent.

Terry's face was still a little pale. The anesthetic had just lost its efficacy, and he felt that even his bones were in pain. But when he saw that Aurora was safe and sound, he finally forced a smile.

"You..."

"Don't say that I'm stupid. I'm not stupid. If the same thing happens another ten thousand times, I will always make the same choice." Terry's eyes were filled with determination that Aurora had never seen before.

"Aurora, do you remember that before the competition, I told you that we had to talk after the competition?"

Aurora nodded. "What do you want to talk about?"

Terry swallowed his saliva. He gathered his courage and grabbed Aurora's hand. His grip slowly tightened. "I won't get engaged to Sara. I will continue to pursue you. Even if you don't like me, it doesn't matter..."

He seemed to have been saving up his words for a lifetime and kept talking.

For the first time, Aurora did not interrupt him or avoid him. Instead, she stared at Terry's face. "Are you sure?"

Terry was stunned.

"I am Zac's ex-wife. If you are with me, everyone will laugh at you."

"You know I don't care about this." Terry frowned.

Aurora lowered her eyes and said, "Then after your discharge, let's go on a vacation together. Don't you want to go to the seaside?"

After that, she stood up and left.

Terry's smile gradually became brighter as he sat on the hospital bed. "You agree? Do you?"

His excited shouts came from the ward. Aurora slowly closed the door and found that everyone was looking at her.

"Ms. Bennet, Mr. Walton, and Mrs. Walton wish to talk to you alone," Connor stepped forward and spoke.

"Alright."

Then, Aurora was taken to the next ward.

As soon as she entered, Kate stared at her. "Don't think about getting any benefits from our Walton family. Terry became like this because of you. No matter what you promise him, you deserve it!"

Aurora nodded.

She stood there quietly.

Bob grabbed Kate. "You clearly didn't think that way. Why are you throwing a tantrum at her? The results of the appraisal have already come out. It's normal for Terry to be heavily injured. After all, he is the main driver and has the right to decide."

"Then..." Kate covered her face and cried, unable to say a word.

Bob was still calm. He hesitated for a long time before asking Aurora, "After the consultation, the doctor said that Terry's nerves were seriously damaged. Perhaps, there is still the risk of amputation. Do you know it?"

Aurora nodded. "I heard it from Mr. Reed this morning."

Her voice was clear without any excess emotions, making people feel at ease.

"Then are you ... still willing to be with him?" Bob said cautiously.

Kate also looked at Aurora with scrutiny, as if she was about to rush over and tear Aurora apart once Aurora said the wrong word.

Aurora did not hesitate or retreat. "I said before. No matter if Terry needs someone to take care of him or not, I am willing to stay by his side. I won't change my decision even if you don't like me, and I hope that you won't refuse me."

Her life was already broken.

But Terry was different.

He originally had a bright future and a marriage contract with a daughter of a rich family. But because of her, everything was ruined.

To Terry, what she did was not different from Zac destroying the Bennet family.

"Good," Bob did not know how to thank Aurora. The Jarrett family drew a clear distinction the moment the accident happened. Aurora's promise was particularly precious.

"Ms. Bennet, please take good care of Terry." Bob had Terry later in his life. At this time, he solemnly held Aurora's hand.

"Thank you."

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 128

Chapter 128 Can You Take Responsibility?

Aurora did not say a word and left after listening to Bob's instructions.

Kate sighed as the door closed.

"Will Terry really be happy about what Aurora does? If he knows that Aurora is with him just because of his amputation, he will be upset." Kate had always been worried about her son's life these days, and she seemed to have aged.

She had seen what Aurora had done and how determined Aurora was.

She had to admit that she had indeed been biased against Aurora because of the Bennet family.

"Then do not let him know!"

Bob said coldly, "It was not easy for Terry to save his life from the gates of hell. As long as it is what he wants, we have to keep it by his side. In the future, we can compensate Aurora with other things. Right now, the most important thing is Terry's life."

Kate muttered, "You are right. Terry is our only son."

Even if the sky collapsed, nothing could happen to Terry.

The reporters rushed over upon hearing the news and blocked Zac in the hospital corridor.

"Mr. Buchanna, did you investigate the accident that happened during the Thunder Cup?"

"I heard that it could be man-made. What do you think?"

"I heard that your ex-wife, Ms. Bennet, has a close relationship with Terry, and they might become a boyfriend and girlfriend. They were all in that car at that time. Was it a coincidence?"

The reporters raised harsh questions in front of Zac.

"In addition, the Buchanna Group is the biggest investor of the Thunder Cup. With such a scandal, your company has suffered great losses. Will you continue to invest in the racing competition?"

Zac's eyes turned cold. The reporters' ignorance made him unhappy.

But just as he was about to speak, a voice suddenly came from behind the crowd.

"Whether Aurora and Terry are together or not, it is their private matter. It has nothing to do with the Buchanna Group! Moreover, what happened was just an accident. If you want to interview, go find Aurora."

Wenny appeared behind the reporters with a frown.

When the cameras were aimed at her, she said irritably, "We have nothing to say. In such a kind of risky race, anything can happen. Now, the results of the appraisal have not come out yet. It is

With her words, the responsibility of Zac and the Buchanna Group was removed.

Aurora came out of the elevator with the nurse and clearly heard those words. She also saw Wenny standing side by side with Zac and refuting the reporters.

There was no problem with their stance and speech.

But the accident hadn't been investigated clearly. Why were they in such a hurry to shirk the responsibility?

Aurora gripped the medicine bottle in her hand and thought, Zac, you are indeed becoming more and more useless.

When Wenny saw that the reporters were stunned by her words, she became more and more complacent. She held Zac's arm and said, "Zac has been in the hospital for several days due to his sense of responsibility. He has already taken all the responsibilities that he should take. If someone else gossiped, it would be their problem."

She was secretly mocking the Walton family and Aurora.

Zac glanced at Wenny. Those words were not what he wanted to say.

However, the reporters were all holding their cameras and recording. Since Wenny had said them,

Zac could not change them anymore.

When Zac was just about to stop Wenny, he caught a glimpse of Aurora's back as she walked by. He could even vaguely sense her cold gaze.

Zac suddenly felt uneasy.

But Wenny held him tightly and said in a low voice, "Zac, besides me, Vernon is also here. Let's go pick him up."

"Vernon?"

Zac suppressed the emotions in his eyes. He had clearly instructed that no one was allowed to disturb Vernon.

Vernon had just returned to the country not long ago, and Zac hoped that he could have a good rest.

Unexpectedly, the news spread so quickly.

"Zac, the reporters are watching," Wenny reminded Zac in a low voice. She deliberately leaned against him and acted as if they were a couple deep in love.

Zac glanced at her. He did not push her away in public but strode toward the first floor. In the ward, the nurse changed the fresh dressing for Terry's wound and told Aurora the precautions.

"We have to change it again at eleven o'clock at night. When the time comes, just press the bell."

Aurora nodded and noted it down one by one. In the past few days, she had become familiar with these things.

Kate saw all of that at the side. Aside from Aurora's current debt and her previous failed marriage, even someone as picky as Kate had to admit that Aurora was a perfect daughter-in-law candidate.

"Mom, don't look at Aurora like that. She'll be shy." Terry deliberately made a joke with a smile. He did not know what had happened, but after waking up, he found that his mother and Aurora could actually coexist peacefully.

Moreover, his family had cut all ties with the Jarrett family. The matter that troubled him for half a month was resolved just like that.

Other than the fact that his body was still aching, Terry felt happy every day as if he was in heaven.

“Do you want to eat apples?” Kate smiled and changed the topic. Aurora sent the nurse out and happened to see the reporters coming over. Each of them was holding a microphone and looked imposing. Her eyes turned cold. Terry had just finished his first operation. He had not fully recovered and needed to rest. Aurora didn’t expect Zac and the others to be so shameless to send reporters over. “I’ll deal with the reporters. Don’t come out,” Aurora turned to say to Terry and his mother. Then, she closed the door. Terry was worried and immediately asked Kate to help him out. “She told you not to go out. Your injuries have not healed yet!” Kate pressed Terry down and did not allow him to move. ‘Terry struggled. “Mom, you don’t know. Aurora has always hated dealing with reporters. After something happened to the Bennet family, she lived a hard life in prison. Now, she has to bear the pressure of public opinion for me. How can I stand it?” Kate slowly lost her strength as she pressed Terry. She didn’t know how to tell Terry. Aurora was more guilty than fond of him. But no one could be so calm as to give up the rest of her life as Aurora...

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 129

Chapter 129 There Was No Point in Apologizing

“Then do you have any evidence? Miss Swon just said that it may be caused by your incorrect operation.” Aurora took a deep breath and gazed at the reporters coldly. “Can she drive a race car? Why do you believe her words?” The reporters fell silent. They didn’t know how to retort. However, one of the reporters didn’t give up and pressed, “Ms. Bennet, the biggest investor of this Thunder Cup competition is the Buchanna Group. It will be a big blow to them because of this accident. How do you feel now?” Aurora had an impulse to punch this reporter in the face when she heard the question, but she held it back. “I am a witness. We found that there was something wrong with the brake when we made the first turn,” said Terry. He sat in a wheelchair and was pushed out by Kate. He stopped in front of Aurora. “Ask me if you have any other questions.” Aurora felt warm and called, “Terry...” Terry held Aurora’s hand and tightened his grip. His hand was a little cold. Aurora looked down and did not refuse. The reporters’ eyes lit up. They immediately raised their microphones and pointed them at Terry. “Mr. Walton, are you dating Ms. Bennet? It’s said you are going to be engaged to the daughter of the Jarrett family. Is it fake news?"

Terry said with a smile, "What you see is real. We only want to wait for the result from the Racing Association. Please go back after taking the photos. After all, we are in the hospital. I don't want to disturb other patients."

Since the reporters got what they wanted, they left away. Soon, the ward returned to peace.

Aurora and a nurse helped Terry get to bed. Only then did Terry release her hand.

Terry acted like a teenager who fell in love the first time, his eyes riveted to Aurora.

Aurora frowned and muttered, "You haven't recovered yet. Why did you get out? What if..."

"I'm worried about you." He said his thoughts directly, even with Kate by his side.

Kate cleared her throat and said, "Just now, the doctor said that Terry's examination result came

Not long after Kate left, someone knocked on the door of the ward. Aurora thought it would be a reporter again, only to see Sara.

Sara ignored Aurora but walked straight in with a bag of fruit in her hands. "Terry, I come to see you."

Terry had learned from Kate about what had happened when he did his surgery, so his attitude towards Sara changed completely.

After seeing Sara's arrogance toward Aurora, Terry said coldly, "No need. I can't accept your kindness."

Sara's smile froze and her lips twitched in embarrassment. She turned to Aurora and said, "Aurora, I want to talk to Terry alone. Could you..."

However, Terry interrupted, "No."

He pulled Aurora to his side and said, "I can't leave her for even a second now."

Sara put on a sad face and said, "Terry, are you going to be so heartless to me? I have been worried about you since the accident and couldn't sleep for a few days. Mr. Walton didn't allow me to see you, so I really had no way."

Tears trickled down her face as Sara said.

Terry said impatiently, "Get out if you come here to cry."

Sara went on, "Terry, I really miss you. I know you must have misunderstood me. I ... I will go back first. I won't disturb you. We can have a talk after you are discharged."

After finishing her words, Sara walked out pitifully.

Aurora frowned and said, "If she goes out in this way, she will definitely be surrounded by the reporters."

Terry still did not let go of her hand and said, "I don't care. I expected this situation on our competition day. Abel and the others had definitely checked the car carefully before the game started. They couldn't make such a mistake."

Aurora didn't say anything.

She had thought about this for a long time and also talked with Abel who told her that although there were many accidents during a car race, it is rare that the brakes went out.

It was almost one in thousand which was a very small number.

“Although the Racing Association will investigate the whole thing, I don’t think they can give a good result.” Terry smiled at Aurora and added, “So, don’t blame yourself for this.”

Terry did not want her to be guilty.

Aurora’s heart skipped. She looked down at the kettle and said, “There’s no hot water. I’ll go get some.”

Terry watched Aurora walk out of the ward and sighed slowly.

Aurora had just walked around the corner when she was stopped by Sara who was waiting there.

“Get out of my way.”

Aurora was a little impatient.

She had no time to argue with Sara.

Sara said arrogantly, “I heard that you’ve been taking care of Terry these days. You should do that because you made him get injured. However, you don’t need to appear since tomorrow.”

Aurora said calmly, “It’s up to Terry and me. It’s none of your business.”

After finishing her words, Aurora was about to leave away.

However, Sara grabbed her and said, “My parents were too hasty to break off the engagement between Terry and me. I come here today to tell Mrs. Walton that I still love her son, so...”

“Ms. Jarrett, who do you think you are to order me? Where are you when Terry needs you the most?” Aurora looked at Sara coldly.

If Sara really liked Terry, she would not say anything and would definitely stay away from him.

But Aurora knew Sara and her family just wanted to take advantage of Terry.

Sara’s expression froze. “You have no position to judge me! Terry wouldn’t have had the accident if you weren’t in the car. You should be clear that can’t be a normal accident.”

Perceiving Aurora’s expression change slightly, Sara felt gloating and went on, “You should be grateful that his family doesn’t blame you for this. How could you stay by his side every day? Do you want to kill him?”

“Ms. Jarrett, you should be responsible for your words. Do you have any evidence?” said Kate. She just got the paper and heard their conversation.

She walked straight to Aurora and looked at Sara coldly, her attitude towards Sara completely different from before. “I already know what your family is like. I don’t think my son is good enough for you. Please leave away.”

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 130

Chapter 130 You Can Forge a Bond Slowly

Kate held Aurora and solemnly said to Sara, “From now on, the friendship between our two families is over.”

With that, she pulled Aurora towards Terry’s ward.

Aurora was stunned for a moment. When she recovered from the shock, she saw that Kate’s eyes were red.

She asked hesitantly, "Mrs. Walton, are you okay? Would you like a tissue?"

Kate was stunned. She looked at Aurora and sighed, "Why didn't you retort when Sara said that to you just now? During this period, we all saw how much you have done for Terry. What you do is much more than what you say!"

After hearing this, Aurora smiled and handed the tissue to Kate.

"There's no point in talking to her about that."

Aurora only wanted to spend her time on people worthy of her efforts. She didn't care about those criticisms and accusations.

Aurora looked at Kate and asked, "What is the result of the examination? Does he must..."

Aurora did not finish her words. She knew that Kate had always been worried that Terry would have to have his leg amputated.

Kate smiled with tears in her eyes. She held the report and said, "The doctor said that Terry had recovered well these two days. He needn't be amputated. The previous treatment plan has been canceled. Although he still needs two more operations, the odds of success are very much. He only needs to slowly recover..."

Boom!

There was a huge sound from the ward.

Aurora quickly rushed in.

Terry fell to the ground in a sorry state. His hands were covered in broken glass pieces. He looked at Aurora in a daze and asked, "What were you talking about with my mother just now? Amputation?"

"You are injured." Aurora frowned as she grabbed Terry's hand. She shouted, "Auntie, call the nurse over."

"Alright. I'll go now." Kate quickly ran out.

Terry stared at Kate as if he didn't notice that he was injured. He said, "You haven't told me who is going to do the amputation!"

Everyone was hiding this matter from Terry.

When Terry was drinking water, he heard what they said at the door. He panicked for a moment and then fell down.

Aurora gritted her teeth. She knew that she couldn't hide it anymore.

"Terry, that was just a treatment plan given by the doctor. Now that it has been overturned, you don't have to worry. You can definitely race in the future."

Aurora did not know how to encourage Terry.

Her words were of little comfort in the circumstances.

Aurora lowered her head and took out pieces of broken glass stuck in Terry's hands. She gently blew on his wounds, wanting him to feel more comfortable.

But...

Terry grabbed Aurora by the shoulder and asked, "You agreed to date me because you felt guilty that I could no longer race and could no longer walk, right?"

He suddenly laughed and said, "I'm really stupid. I've chased after you for so many years, and I know about you the best. How can you agree to date me so easily?"

"Terry."

Aurora held Terry's wrist and looked up at him.

The two of them looked at each other, and neither of them spoke again. Aurora had too many words to say but she did not know how to express her feelings. Perhaps, she did feel guilty. There was no more struggle in Aurora's heart. She seriously said, "If you were me, you would make the same choice as I did when you see a person willing to risk his life for you. I am an adult. I know what I am doing." Hearing the sound of the door opening, Aurora let go of Terry's hand and quietly walked out. Aurora felt that she once had a failed marriage, and she would never fall in love with a man again. Whether it was Terry's family conditions or himself, Terry was a good man to marry. Aurora felt perhaps the heavens had let them experience this together to let her understand that she was not qualified to disappoint Terry again. Watching Aurora leave, Terry was sad.

When the nurse finished bandaging Terry, Kate looked outside. "Why is Aurora gone for so long? I'll give her a call." Terry stopped Kate and said, "Mom. Don't let her come again. I don't want to see her." After hearing what Terry said, Kate was very puzzled and asked, "Did you quarrel with her just now? Aurora is a good woman. I have also reflected on myself recently. If you two get along well, your dad and I will not object." "No." Terry felt his mind was totally a mess and did not know what to say. Kate saw Terry fixing his eyes on the examination report. She then said, "You can forge a bond slowly. You still have a long way to go." "I don't want her to date me out of pity." Terry lowered his head, his hair covering his eyes, and his tone filled with frustration. Originally, Aurora wanted to go out to get some air. After she sorted out her feelings, she could talk to Terry properly. But after she received a call from Abel, she rushed out of the hospital. Aurora took a taxi and headed straight to the Buchanna Group. She wanted to personally ask Zac why he interfered in the investigation results of the Racing Association! They actually publicly admitted that Terry's injury was an accident! After Aurora rushed into the company, she was quickly stopped by the security guards and receptionists. "Ms, Bennet, you don't have an appointment. It is impossible for you to meet Mr. Buchanna." "Get out of the way!" "If you don't let me in today, you will regret it." "Ms. Bennet, please don't make things difficult for us." "Aurora?" A man came from the back and recognized Aurora. The man was dressed in a neat handmade suit with a kind smile on his face. His round eyes were bright and spirited, and he did not look like he was in his fifties at all. The man was dressed in a neat handmade suit with a kind smile on his face. His round eyes were bright and spirited, and he did not look like he was in his fifties at all.

Vernon Buchanna, Zac's second uncle, was now the vice president of the Buchanna Group.

However, even though Vernon was the vice president, he actually did not have any power. He had only been transferred back to Clouston last month.

Aurora had an impression of Vernon because he was one of Zac's few relatives, and his relationship with Zac was not bad. When Aurora and Zac had their wedding, Vernon was also present.

They only met once at that time.

When Vernon saw Aurora turn around, he smiled and said, "It really is you."

Then, he frowned and looked at the security guards holding Aurora's hand, saying, "Let go of her!"

The employee explained, "Mr. Vernon, Ms. Bennet doesn't have an appointment. We can't let her in."

Vernon frowned and immediately helped Aurora out of the situation. He said, "I've made an appointment with her. Alright! I'll let you go!"

He waved and gave Aurora a look.

Vernon took her into the elevator.

Aurora frowned and asked, "Why do you help me?"

Vernon said with a smile, "No matter why you and Zac were divorced, you were once his wife. You don't cherish each other. You'll regret it in the future. Alas..."