

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 18

Chapter 18 Serve Wine

Wenny was wearing designer clothes. She was standing behind Aurora with a few girls who were also dressed gorgeously.

Wenny looked surprised as if she had seen something that should not be there.

Aurora did not expect Wenny to be here.

Besides Wenny and her pretentious friends, there was another person.

He was a good friend of Zac, called Dalwin Villson.

Aurora had met him a few times in her two years of marriage with Zac but was not familiar with him.

Dalwin frowned and looked at Aurora, who was wearing a sling dress. He hesitated before asking,

“Aurora, are you ... working here?”

He deliberated over his words, but he still hurt Aurora’s feelings.

Yes, the young lady of the Bennet Group was reduced to that.

It was all because of Zac.

Seeing that Aurora did not speak, Dalwin made up his mind and stood between Aurora and Will.

“Aurora, does Zac know that you are here?”

“Mr. Villson, I have divorced him now. Does my ex-husband have to know where I am?”

Dalwin paused. Everyone knew what had happened between them.

Wenny interrupted Dalwin when he wanted to say something more.

“Aurora, you can’t work here. I can borrow you money if you need it.”

“Miss Swon, I have a decent job. Why can’t I work here??”

The manager interrupted Wenny.

If Aurora didn’t work here, the Creek Club would be in trouble. Many men came for Aurora.

Aurora sneered

“There’s no need for you to pretend. Didn’t you recommend me to work here, Miss Swon?”

Wenny did not expect that Aurora would say that out aloud.

A few of Wenny’s close friends looked at each other when they saw that Wenny was defeated.

“Okay, since Ms. Bennet is working here, how about we order her?”

But Will was not willing to give up Aurora.

“First come first served. Mr. Lawson, please be reasonable.”

“Mr. Wanda, of course, we know the principle of first come first served. We don’t want to steal your Clindy, but we can share her...”

A meaningful look flashed across the faces of those women.

Mr. Wanda paused, then a look of excitement and greed appeared on his greasy face.

“That’s great!”

Mr. Lawson did not expect these people to have such thoughts. He looked at Aurora pitifully.

How could Aurora not understand the thoughts of these people? It was clear that they were humiliating her.

“Are you crazy? Don’t regret it when the matter blows up!” Dalwin choked, “Aurora, you let Zac down...”

Dalwin looked at Aurora angrily, turned around, and left.

When Wenny saw that Dalwin had left, she knew that she had achieved her goal. She wanted everyone around Zac to look down on Aurora!

She no longer pretended to be concerned and looked at Aurora mockingly.

“Isn’t it good to get two sets of income at the same time? Think about it carefully. Oh, maybe you don’t have the right to refuse. The customer is God. Isn’t that right?”

Will laughed and looked at Aurora from head to toe, wishing he could start right now.

“Miss Swon is knowledgeable! Come, Clindy.” He wanted to pull Aurora over as he spoke.

“Mr. Wanda, don’t be in such a hurry. Let’s have Clindy drink with you first.”

Wenny reached out to stop Mr. Wanda with a smile hinting at something.

Will was stunned before he got Wenny’s meaning.

“Yes, yes, yes. Clindy still owes me a glass of wine!”

Aurora was sitting in a wheelchair. Seeing this scene, she sneered in her heart.

She knew exactly what these people were thinking and how much Wenny wanted to make a fool of her.

She would give them what they wanted.

Aurora stood up shakily from the wheelchair. Her speed was very slow, but she walked resolutely towards Mr. Wanda.

Everyone present was stunned.

“Mr. Wanda, a toast to you.”

Aurora walked up to Mr. Wanda, raised the champagne in her hand, and clinked the glass in Mr. Wanda’s hand with a crisp sound.

Will was stunned and did not react for a while.

Aurora did not want him to react.

“Miss Swon and you, I have to thank you for recommending me here.”

The golden wine directly poured down from Wenny’s head.

“God!”

Wenny shrank her neck and opened her mouth wide. Her nose was full of the smell of alcohol.

No one had expected that.

Aurora returned the empty glass with a faint smile.

Aurora wouldn’t let Wenny bully her.

Wenny was in disbelief at first, then she screamed angrily and picked up a glass of wine from the side to smash it towards Aurora!

“Aurora! How dare you! I’ll kill you!”

Aurora dodged and subconsciously picked up the closest thing at hand and smashed it towards Wenny!

Wenny’s eyes flashed with resentment. Something flashed and disappeared. The wine bottle in Aurora’s hand couldn’t have reached Wenny face, but in the next second, it directly smashed into Wenny’s face!

Wenny cried out weakly, then fell to the ground. She was lying in her blood.

“Murder!”

The scene was a mess.

Everyone else left for the fear that they might get involved in it.

Someone called the ambulance and the police.

Soon, the scene was under control.

“What happened? Who did it?”

The policeman looked at the people who were being controlled with blazing eyes.

“This woman hurt my friend! I don’t know whether my friend could survive this...”

Wenny’s friend pointed at Aurora. She wanted Aurora to be in big trouble.

The police officer frowned, took out handcuffs, and came to Aurora.

“Miss, please follow us to the police station.”

Aurora frowned. The police arrived at the scene so quickly?

She subconsciously glanced at Wenny, who was covering her head. Wenny raised her eyelids and gave Aurora a strange smile.

Aurora felt something was wrong.

The cold touch on her wrist reminded her that she had fallen into Wenny’s trap again.

She couldn’t save herself.

After the board meeting, Zac rubbed his eyebrows tiredly and sat in the back seat of the car.

Carter’s phone rang.

“Hello? What? Okay, I got it ... Well, I’ll tell Mr. Buchanna first.”

Zac frowned, opened his eyes, and looked at Carter without much warmth in his eyes.

“What happened?”

Carter didn’t know how to describe what had happened. “Mr. Buchanna, it’s ... about Ms. Bennet.”

Chapter 20 An Old Friend

“Didn’t I ask you to help her pay off the debt? What, she still wants to stay in that kind of place?”

“No, we wanted to tell Ms. Bennet about this, but the police took Ms. Bennet away...”

Zac was surprised

“What did you say?”

Carter shivered. He didn’t dare to hide anything and told Zac everything in detail.

“Miss Swon is in the hospital. The Swon family have already informed their lawyer and wanted to sue Ms. Bennet for murder...”

Zac's back stiffened. There were many things in his eyes.
The police station
When Aurora was brought down from the police car, her heart was cold and she did not say much, only leaning against the cold wall of the detention house.
She heard sounds of resentment.
"Bad luck! Encounter such a thing in the middle of the night."
"She dared to kill rich people. God!"
"Alright, the trial is about to begin. We still don't know about the condition of the victim. But the superior told us to be strict with this case."
Soon after, the iron gate was opened.
"Come out. The trial will begin soon."
Aurora was brought into a small black room. A whoosh, a dazzling light hit her face. Opposite her was a stretch of darkness.
It was a black one-way glass with an expressionless female police officer sitting opposite the glass with a pen in her hand,
She had only seen that on TV series but now it happened to her.
"Name, age..." The police officer asked through the microphone.
Aurora answered one by one.
When she learned that the Swon family had sued her for murder, Aurora sneered. It was a trap set up by Wenny
"I didn't kill anyone. It was just self defense. If you don't believe me, you can check the surveillance."
It was Wenny who made the first move and deliberately bumped into the bottle Aurora threw.
A check at the surveillance cameras, everything would be clear.
But the police officer looked as if she did not hear her and continued to record her statement,
Aurora could not bear it anymore and patted the desk.
"Did you hear that? I did not kill anyone!"
Aurora was on the edge of a breakdown. Why couldn't Wenny leave her alone? What she didn't know was that on the other side of the one-way glass, Zac was also there.
Zac looked through the glass at the thin figure.
Even though she was about to be jailed, she wouldn't put down her pride.
Franco came after hearing the news, rubbing his hands. "Mr. Buchanna, I wonder what brings you here?"
Zac suppressed the strangeness in his heart and glanced coldly at Franco.
After seeing his look, Franco knew that things would be difficult to handle.
The Swon family had told Franco to be harsh with this case. He didn't know what Zac wanted.
On his way here, Franco also heard that the suspect was Zac's ex-wife.
Such a drama!
"Franco, how are you doing? I came here for a small dispute."
Small dispute?

Franco was shocked.

He thought Zac came to speak for the Swon family.

Unexpectedly...

However, he quickly reacted. "Understood, understood. I just finished watching the surveillance video. It was just a small farce."

Franco had felt that this matter was troublesome, but after Zac said this, it became easier..

"But... may I ask who she is?"

"Just an old friend."
