

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 181

Chapter 181 She couldn't Leave

It didn't stop pouring and cars on the street began to slow down with their emergency flashers operating

Zac was struggling to keep the car moving. Aurora glanced at him and suggested, "Why don't you pull the car over and let me drive for a bit?"

She got concerned about her safety. Concerning Zac, it didn't cross her mind.

"I think I can handle this," Zac insisted.

Aurora let out a sigh, straightened herself, and reminded him to be cautious about the space on the road.

Zac didn't listen. He drove the car as fast as he could and rushed out.

Aurora gripped her seatbelt for safety concerns. After reckless driving through the downpour, they safely arrived at the villa.

Aurora dared to let down her guard when they approached the doorstep.

She could not hold her anger anymore, "Do you have any idea how dangerous it was? Why do you have to speed up while it is raining so hard? What the hell were you thinking!"

An expression of fury appeared on her face. She slammed the car's door and rushed inside.

Alma was relieved to see them return home safely. She said, "I'm so glad you guys come home safely. I got worried about you guys driving on a rainy day."

Aurora forced a smile at Alma's words.

Zac was not there when the dinner was ready.

Aurora said something in a low voice and walked toward the car to see if he was there. The lights were on. She felt something went wrong.

She screamed, "Alma, come and help me!"

It seemed that Zac was in a coma. His eyebrows were tightly knitted and sweats covered his palms and temples.

The family doctor arrived. Zac was lying there as if he was asleep.

"How long does Mr. Buchanna be like this?" the doctor asked.

"About half an hour," replied Alma. "Is it serious?" Alma asked concernedly.

Once

"We don't know yet. Let him go to the hospital and do a thorough check."

Aurora stood beside him wearing a long face. She was planning to leave after he got his pills.

"Ms. Bennet, why don't you stay?" Alma called out to her.

"Well, even if I stay, I can do nothing for him. Besides, I think he will be fine," Aurora replied as she put on her coat.

Alma wanted Aurora to stay but it was hard to come up with a possible reason. She hesitantly said, "What should I do if his condition gets serious in the middle of the night without you?"

"I think you should call Wenny for help. I didn't sign up for this," Aurora said.

Aurora came here not for him but to visit Alma, who was discharged from the hospital today.

Sensing the disappointment on Alma's face, she got regretful about her tone.

A noise came from outside when they were discussing.

"Who would come in the late of the night. Let me go out and see. Ms. Bennet, please keep an eye on him while I am away."

Aurora had no choice but to stay for a while.

Her cold eyes were fixated on the man in the bed, her mind was wondering whether she would be charged with murder if he suddenly stopped breathing in the room.

It was a luminous night. The room they were in was quiet and peaceful.

Aurora couldn't remember when was the last time she looked at him like this.

There were a lot of people talking in the living room downstairs. They were asking about Mr. Buchanna's whereabouts.

Alma was convincing them to leave him alone.

"We won't leave if we can't see him face to face," one man said.

Another man cut in, "Let us see him. We have questions about his decision on the Cosmos Group!"

Aurora glanced at the living room through the crack of the door.

Several board members were sitting on the couch with furious countenances. It seemed like they wouldn't leave that easily.

"We have to meet Mr. Buchanna in person, don't push us to leave," they confirmed.

"It is so weird. We saw his car just now. Where did he disappear?" someone said.

Aurora frowned.

It became clear to her now why he drove the car hurriedly.

She closed the door cautiously.

In that instance, a figure appeared behind her.

Zac looked at her, lowering his head. He held the door and whispered, "Don't go outside."

Aurora dismissed his words, "Why not? They are looking for you, not me. I have nothing to hide."

"I know, but think about me." There was a hint of compromise in his voice. His hands fell on her shoulders, heavy and hot.

She found it too heavy to endure and leaned back.

She hit herself on the wall and let out a painful sigh.

She was about to blame him but she couldn't. He was pale and weak.

Aurora gritted her teeth and said some cursing words in a low voice. She tried to put him into bed.

But he was holding her tight.

The only option here was to fall together.

"Zac, don't play dumb with me okay? I won't let you take advantage of me." Aurora closed her eyes and came near to the bed.

They fell to the luxurious bed.

Aurora asked him, "You can go down to the bed, but can't move yourself to bed, can you?"

She knew he did it on purpose, but there was no reason to do so.

She thought it would be okay if she made her appearance to the board members.

From her perspective, she would declare the ownership of Cosmos Group which was equal to the Bennet Group. And all these estates belong to the Bennet family.

She found it unreasonable to let others manage her own family business.

In the end, she thought better of it, because once she picked some quarrels with these people, it would be difficult to make the business thrive again with Cosmos Group.

She thought, these people only care about money and their interest. If they get upset, they will do something heinous.

Is he aware of that?

Aurora freed herself from his arms with effort.

She frowned again, stared at Zac who was lying on the bed, and said, "You are a game player."

She made her pace toward the bathroom.

He heard the noise of the bathroom and opened his eyes, which were desperate and cold.

He glanced in the direction of the bathroom, and he was relieved to know she was not away.

No one knew the fact that he transferred the Cosmos Group to Aurora. He wondered why the board members came to him.

Aurora came out of the bathroom. Zac was lying on the bed half-conscious. People downstairs had no signs of leaving.

She sighed in frustration at the fact that she probably wouldn't be able to leave tonight.

She shifted her attention to the man on the bed. If she had known earlier, she wouldn't have put in so much effort to move him onto the bed. She should have thrown him on the ground so that she could sleep on the bed now.

Aurora sat on the couch, but it was not comfortable to lie down.

She had no other options. Besides, she was exhausted and fell asleep instantly.

When she woke up it was a new day.

Aurora rubbed her sore neck and got up. There was no one on the bed. She covered herself with a blanket, which was covered with the same smell as the room.

Aurora opened the door and detected the voice coming from downstairs.

She found out that a woman was standing in the living room instead of these board members.

Wenny is here? She kept wondering.

She stood on the stairs and looked down. It was Wenny. She was wearing a nude-colored dress. Her hair was pulled up. Her outfit was nothing like her usual self.

Instead...

It was more like the way Aurora dressed up in the past.

Aurora narrowed her eyes and just stood there, observing.

Wenny didn't put any make-up on, and she looked not as glamorous as before, but her skin was white as crystal. Her eyes were smiling while she put the soup on the table.

"My father told me you have been busy lately and encouraged me to take care of you. I thought I might be helpful in your efforts," Wenny said.

Zac kept an expressionless face and said, "I remember your father said no to our wedding."

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 182

Chapter 182 Don't Blame Her

"He was too angry that day. That wasn't what he meant." Wenny quickly explained, "He felt we had delayed our marriage for too long. As a father, he's naturally worried about me."

Wenny reached out and slightly pulled Zac's sleeve. "You can understand him, right?"

Zac glanced at her.

He secretly pulled out his hand.

Zac answered with something unrelated, "who told you to dress like this? Go change it."

Wenny bit her lips.

"But I didn't bring any clothes." Zac's words stunned her. Last time, she followed Saul's instructions of imitating Aurora's dressing and Zac was gentle to her.

But now...

"Then go back to the Swon's home." He stood up and prepared to leave.

"Zac, if you don't like me, we'd better break up. I will abort the child this afternoon." Wenny had no choice but to use her last move. "Although this child has never seen this world before, I think that it's doomed to be unhappy when we continue fighting."

She cried and wiped her tears while putting pressure on Zac.

“I don’t want our baby to be born in such a family.”

These words were not wrong at all.

Any man would feel sorry for her tears and apologize for his attitude.

However, Zac was an exception.

“Okay, I will find you the best doctor.”

This was not what she wanted.

But Zac’s reaction was natural. All of a sudden, Wenny was stunned.

Just as she was about to say something, she caught a glimpse of a figure upstairs. Someone was looking in her direction.

“Why is she here?” Wenny raised her head.

Zac also glanced upstairs, his eyes deep and dark. It was impossible to tell what he was thinking.

“Aurora, you are shameless!”

Aurora ignored Wenny and walked down the stairs step by step. She walked straight past them and saw a bowl of soup on the table. “No one’s gonna drink it?”

“I cooked this for Zac. Don’t even think about it.” Wenny hated Aurora to her guts, but with Zac here, she had to be calm and keep her dignity.

Her father had told her about Aurora’s family.

Zac had been on bad terms with the board because of the Bennet Group. Perhaps Aurora wanted to pester Zac to achieve her goal. Maybe she would even voluntarily offer herself.

Thinking of this, Wenny had a plan in her heart.

“Will he drink the soup? Besides, I don’t like it.” Aurora chuckled.

Alma had brought out the breakfast. “Ms. Bennet, have breakfast.”

“Thank you, Alma.” Aurora ate in front of Wenny.

“Zac, why is she living in here again?” Wenny couldn’t stand it anymore. “Because of her, you’re on bad terms with the directors. If this goes on, your reputation will be ruined due to her.”

Zac’s eyes turned cold as Wenny said this.

He had not mentioned the coming of the directors last night to Wenny.

She knew it so clearly.

The coldness on Zac’s face gradually deepened, and the atmosphere in the restaurant quietly changed. The only one who was not affected was Aurora.

Wenny was so angry that she gritted her teeth.

She came to see Zac early in the morning to make up with him, but it ended like this.

It was Aurora’s fault.

She was the reason that Wenny’s relationship with Zac had become worse.

Aurora ate breakfast and had no interest in their quarrel. After saying goodbye to Alma, she walked out of the villa.

She stepped out of the door and saw the familiar black business car from afar.

She curled up her lips into a faint smile.

Did Zac know he was cheated on by Wenny?

She hadn’t decided on how to use this secret for the time being. If Zac had known earlier, it would be boring

Thinking about it, she walked along the slope towards the downtown.

In the villa.

Wenny muttered in grievance and with tears, “Zac, don’t mind what I said just now. I have been under a lot of pressure during this period.”

“So what?”

“That’s why you join the meal with those directors, right?” Zac asked.

“I... It’s only meals and nothing else!” Wenny turned her eyes and suddenly thought of something. “I saw that Aurora was very close to Mr. Lynn. She must have said something behind my back. Otherwise, Mr. Lynn would not have invited me several times.”

There was no way for Wenny to cover up the lie.

She blamed others so boldly.

“Wenny, what you said just now makes sense,” said Zac, who was tired of listening to her lies.

Wenny’s eyes lit up, thinking that she had persuaded him.

“Zac, I knew that you still love me in your heart.”

“No, I meant you should think about whether to keep this child. I will be responsible for the child, but it won’t leave in a happy family,” he said with cold eyes.

He didn’t love Wenny.

He kept giving her chances because Wenny was the mother of his son.

But she had used up all his patience.

“Zac, how can you...” Wenny cried anxiously.

Zac got up, grabbed his coat, and walked out.

Alma knew that Wenny was pregnant. Afraid that she would get hurt, Alma went forward to support

Wenny.

But she was pushed away by Wenny.

“How dare you touch me!” Wenny cursed. She stood up and chased after Zac.

As soon as she went out, she saw that Zac had turned around, staring at her coldly.

Wenny trembled.

She suddenly realized Zac had watched what she did. "I, I didn't push her on purpose. I..."

How could she know that Zac values this servant?

This time, Zac was too lazy to even speak. With a cold face, he bypassed Wenny and helped Alma up.

He then closed the door.

Wenny stood on the steps, tears streaming down her face.

At the entrance of the Buchanna Group.

Aurora wore a cap and held the morning newspaper in her hand.

"The internal division of the Buchanna Group is serious. The stock price has dropped by one percent."

"The development project of the western New York might be temporarily suspended."

She looked up at the cloudless sky that would refresh people's moods.

Soon, some cars drove into the parking lot. On the cars were a few directors of the Buchanna Group.

Aurora spotted some cars. Last night, they forced her to stay out of her home. Since they cared so much about the Bennet family, they couldn't blame her for being cruel.

Aurora looked around, passed through the underground, and went straight to the Buchanna

Building on the opposite side.

"Which department are you from?"

The security guard called out to her.

Aurora immediately raised her head, revealing a pure and harmless smile, "I'm Aurora from the Publicity Department."

Her tone was natural. She knew a small path that only late employees would take. She entered the building after several turns.

The security guard took her as an employee. He walked over and patted the face-identification machine. He took out his walkie-talkie and shouted, "B2 machine is broken again."

Chapter 183 Not Accepting His Help

Aurora walked into the cargo elevator wearing a cap and entered the Buchanna Building.

No one stopped her.

Aurora glanced around and saw a short stout man with barely any hair. It was him.

Yesterday, in Zac's villa, she had seen the man's head, which even reflected light.

She had investigated the layout of the Buchanna Group and the meeting room was on this floor. In other words, there might be a board meeting today where these old guys would gather together to scold Zac.

Aurora lowered her head, walked over, and saw the door of the break room open. She curled up her lips. Well, what good luck I have!

"Mr. Buchanna, someone sneaked into the company." When Carter received the report, he came to the office immediately.

"Tell me more."

Zac frowned when he saw Carter hesitate.

"Two executives, Mr. Austin Lester and Mr. Joseph Woods were sent to the hospital because of food poisoning. I've checked the surveillance videos and found that before the meeting, someone had sneaked into the break room and exchanged their drinks."

Carter had sent people to investigate the negligence of the security.

The investigation efficiency of the Buchanna Group had always been good. But Carter couldn't make a decision about how to deal with the person who sneaked in.

A cold light flashed across Zac's eyes, He asked, "Is it Aurora?"

"Yes." Carter lowered his head.

Zac quickly read through the documents in his hands, a hint of helplessness appearing between his brows. "Ask someone to check on them at the hospital. For now..."

Austin's assistant knocked on the door.

"Mr. Buchanna, Mr. Lester has woken up. He said that he saw the suspect. It was your ex-wife, Aurora." The assistant didn't dare to look at the gloomy expression on Zac's face.

The assistant was still holding his phone in one hand, talking on the phone.

Zac knew who he was calling without asking.

He put down the pen and raised his hand.

Before the assistant could react, Carter had turned around and handed the phone to Zac.

"You must tell Mr. Buchanna. I saw that woman's face. She must have taken revenge on me because of the Cosmos Group! I will not let her go. I will teach her a lesson."

He didn't know that the person he was speaking to had changed. He was still cursing in exasperation.

"Does that bitch still think she can make a comeback? I won't allow her to continue staying in Clouston."

"Mr. Lester, have you finished?" Zac asked with a cold voice.

"Mr. Buchanna?" He was stunned.

He started begging Zac. "Mr. Buchanna, you have to help us. We can't stand food poisoning. The doctor said that our situation was very dangerous."

Was he urging Zac to conduct a thorough investigation?

Zac turned to look at the city scenery outside the window. "Mr. Lester is full of energy. You don't seem to be weak at all."

"I was..." he replied with a slight cough, "I was just angry."

"Rest well in the hospital. Don't have to worry about anything else for now." Zac's eyes were as cold as ice.

"I don't suppose you have anything else." The phone was instantly hung up.

Zac threw his phone over and walked out of the office.

The assistant was confused. He followed behind Carter and asked in a low voice, "Mr. Bacon, what does Mr. Buchanna mean?"

"He was asking Mr. Lester to stay in the hospital for a few more days and not worry about anything else," said Carter, glancing at the assistant's ignorant face.

"Anything else?" The assistant blinked.

"Other than being hospitalized, he must not show up for anything else."

If a reporter went to interview him, he must shut up.

Whether the Cosmos Group would be returned to Aurora had nothing to do with him.

Anyway, Zac wanted to shut them up.

When Zac entered the elevator and saw Carter follow him in, he asked, "Has she left?"

"Probably not yet." Carter's answer was rather weak.

Carter was confused. Why was Aurora still staying in the Buchanna Group after doing such a thing? Was she waiting to be caught?

Zac adjusted his bow. "Open all the exits in the parking lot and turn off the surveillance for the time being."

Carter immediately nodded.

Zac was letting her go.

At this time, Aurora was hiding in the side door of the parking lot. It was a blind spot for surveillance.

She was waiting for the chance for the shift change of the security guards. When the time came, she could slip out.

In fact, she could have left long ago, but she wanted to see how the executives left in a panic.

After another five minutes, two security guards walked into the building together. Aurora clapped her hands, knowing that the opportunity had come.

The doors of the parking lot all opened.

She looked back. The surveillance cameras were all closed.

Aurora immediately frowned. Zac knew she came and even released her.

She didn't want to accept Zac's help. She turned around and wanted to take the elevator upstairs. She planned to out of the building through the lobby.

Just as she was about to move, a car stopped beside her.

The car window was rolled down and a cold voice sounded, "Get in."

Aurora didn't move.

"They might have called the police. Why aren't you leaving? Are you planning to go to prison?" He cast a cold glance at Aurora.

Aurora frowned awkwardly and lowered the brim of her cap. "Don't pretend to be kind," she said.

She walked out. Zac's car was following behind her, neither too far nor too close. It was as if he had predicted that Aurora would take back her words. The moment Aurora opened the car door, she clearly saw the smile on the man's face.

"I just want to hide from the reporters ahead."

Before leaving the parking lot, they could see the reporters surrounding the entrance of the Buchanna Group

Aurora closed the car door and said with a cold face, "What big news do your company have? There came so many reporters."

"You should be clear."

Zac turned the steering wheel and drove out from the side entrance while the reporters were focusing on the front door.

Was she clear?

Aurora thought for a moment. Perhaps it was because of the Bennet Group.

Zac returned the company to her under a lot of pressure. Those greedy executives would try their best to pressure him.

Aurora looked out of the window and asked slowly, "You can tell them that I took back that company by threatening them with Saul's reputation. If Saul had not colluded with Mr. Lynn, I would not have won so easily."

Zac looked in front and didn't say anything.

Aurora saw that she could find out anything, so she shut up.

Zac probably didn't know about the affair between Saul and Wenny. Aurora tilted her head, looking forward to the day.

Soon, Zac parked the car in front of the apartment.

"Is this Terry's place?" Zac asked as Aurora opened the door.

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 184

Chapter 184 There Are No Secrets

"No." Aurora subconsciously denied it.

She didn't want to affect Terry again because of her.

Aurora didn't know if Zac believed her, but Zac looked deeply at her before he closed the car window and drove away.

Aurora stood on the spot and then slowly walked upstairs.

There was only one thing in her mind. Zac knew that she was causing trouble. Why didn't he stop her?

After thinking for a whole night, Aurora figured it out. She was on a whim and went to teach the two board members a lesson. However, she also helped Zac to clear the obstacles.

"What a profiteer."

The Buchanna Building.

"Mr. Buchanna, the company's security system has been upgraded and the original loopholes have been removed. Now even a mosquito can't fly in." Carter said confidently after a thorough investigation.

Zac raised his eyebrows and did not speak.

Austin and Joseph were sitting on the sofa. They had just been discharged from the hospital and were called to the company.

They sat nervously on the sofa. "Mr. Buchanna, we are the victims. You must help us."

When Zac heard this, he looked up at them, "I already said that you should not interfere in this matter anymore."

"But Aurora was clearly challenging the dignity of the Buchanna Group." Joseph held back for a long time before he finally said this.

They figured it out.

Zac was really just like the rumors. He was still thinking about his ex-wife, so he wouldn't help them.

For a moment, it was very awkward in the office.

Zac kept a long face since they arrived.

"If you hadn't refused to return the Cosmos Group to her, things wouldn't have gone this far. If it weren't for the public relations department's quick actions, the scandal of the Buchanna Group were

would have been a laughingstock in the city. Do you understand?"

His eyes suddenly became sharp and intimidating.

"I warned you before. Don't get involved in this matter."

The two board members lowered their heads in guilt.

They wanted to use the connections that they had over the years to pressure the Cosmos Group and use public opinion to make Zac withdraw his order.

It turned out that Zac had seen through them.

Even if Aurora didn't make such a scene, they would still be severely punished.

If they had to choose to be punished by Aurora or Zac, they would rather choose to be poisoned by Aurora!

If Zac made a move, would they still be alive?

"Mr. Buchanna, let's not talk about this anymore. We will not pursue this matter in the future."

They promised and left the office together.

They seemed to be running away in a panic.

"Mr. Buchanna, should we continue to send people to keep an eye on them?" Carter asked.

"There's no need for that," Zac said indifferently.

He did not have time to do that.

When Dalwin heard that Aurora had made a scene at the Buchanna Group, he immediately came over to watch the drama. Only Dalwin dared to tease Zac in Zac's office. "Your ex-wife is really amazing. No one knew she..."

"Are you done?"

Zac narrowed his eyes in a bad mood.

Dalwin immediately stopped smiling, "I have something important to discuss with you. The day after tomorrow, there is a meeting. Do you want to give up the land in New York?"

"No way."

Zac did not even think.

Dalwin was not in a hurry as if he had expected this response. He took out some documents. "What if Aurora wants it? Will you give it to her?"

This time, Zac did not make a sound. He looked at the documents.

He rubbed the paper with his fingers and his eyes turned cold. The next second, he called Carter.

No matter how hard they tried, there were no secrets.

Aurora watched from afar and knew that the security system had been improved in Buchanna Building. She smiled in satisfaction. She accidentally helped Zac, but she still made the Buchanna Group suffer.

Just as she was about to turn around and leave, someone stopped her.

"Ms. Bennet, our boss wants to see you."

"I don't know your boss."

Aurora frowned. Was she so complacent that someone was targeting her? She subconsciously took a step back.

However, they seemed to have seen her through. He stepped forward and surrounded her.

"Ms. Bennet, please."

Aurora could only be brought to a coffee house near the Buchanna Group.

Before entering, Aurora had a premonition in her heart.

She saw that person's face and frowned. She glanced to the side, trying to find someone.

"Ms. Bennet, you don't have to be so nervous. Sit down please." Vernon smiled kindly.

But after all, he was a member of the Buchanna family and Zac's uncle.

Aurora was calm on the surface, but she was vigilant in her heart.

"No matter what, we used to be family. I know you better than them. You just want to teach them a lesson. You won't do anything evil."

Vernon poured a cup of coffee for Aurora.

For a moment, the fragrance of coffee filled the air. Hearing the classical music in the shop, Aurora gradually calmed down.

Vernon tasted the coffee in his cup, took out an invitation, and handed it to Aurora.

“In fact, I support returning the company to you. After all, it was your father’s hard work. You can take this invitation as a gift.”

Aurora took a look and saw that it was an invitation to the summit conference.

It was held once every five years, and all the business elites of the surrounding four cities would attend the conference. With the current debt of the Bennet Group, Aurora was not qualified to attend the conference.

Aurora was not a greedy person.

“Why do you want to help me?” Aurora didn’t take the invitation but asked.

Helping her was equivalent to going against Zac, and Zac was his nephew.

Moreover, she was standing on the opposite side of the Buchanna Group. Vernon should not help her.

“I am old, and my thoughts may be different from those of young people. It is better to take a step back than to go against each other. If you and Zac can turn the hostility into friendship, I will be relieved. The coffee tastes good. Try some,” said Vernon.

Aurora watched him walk away and looked at the invitation.

Should she take it?

She was not hesitant because of this great opportunity but because this was given by the Buchanna family. She was afraid that if she took it, someone might speak ill of her.

But if she went, she might be able to find a better opportunity to make the Bennet Group rise again. This was what Aurora needed the most.

In the end, Aurora gritted her teeth and put the invitation into her pocket.

In any case, she had nothing to lose.

Two days later, Aurora attended the summit conference in the morning.

When Aurora got out of the taxi, she saw many luxury cars parked outside the building. The people who attended the conference were all high-class businessmen.

Aurora looked down at her black jeans and short coat. She didn't fit in.

No wonder people were looking at her from time to time.

She slowly sighed. Since she had come, she could not chicken out.

"If that Zac's ex-wife? Why could she attend the conference?"

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 185

Chapter 185 The Daughter-In-Law of the Walton Family?

Aurora heard some even more unbearable discussions.

"I heard that she went to the Buchanna's home to live for a few days. She is so shameless!"

"So did she come here today because of Zac?"

"How is that possible?"

"So she tried every method to get here! What a joke."

Aurora arrived at the reception at the entrance.

"The name of your company!" The staff member asked.

"The Bennet Group."

Aurora replied firmly. Her eyes were calm. She did not need to explain anything to these people. What she needed to do was to tell everyone that the Bennet Group was going to make a comeback!

However, things were far more difficult than she imagined.

After registering, she walked into the venue with her number tag.

Someone stopped her.

"Can anyone attend the summit conference now? The Bennet Group? After the tax evasion two years ago, it went bankrupt. I heard that someone died afterward. Why did she come out of nowhere?"

“Mr. Jarrett, let’s not talk about it. Maybe she has a strong backer. After all, she came from the Creek Club.”

“That’s true...”

They said as they glanced at Aurora with bad intentions.

Their eyes were full of humiliation.

He was Sara’s older brother, Henry Jarrett. He had long heard from his younger sister that the marriage between the Jarrett family and the Walton family was canceled because of Aurora.

He had to teach Aurora a lesson.

Unfortunately, Aurora was no longer the rich young lady they remembered. She was not as timid as they expected, nor was she angry. She just stared coldly at them and said word by word, “I also did not expect that the people who are qualified to attend the summit conference would bark.”

“Excuse me? What are you talking about?”

Lise

“You know what I’m talking about.”

It was quiet, and there was no hesitation in Aurora’s voice.

“A rich young lady shouldn’t have said that,” someone whispered.

However, they had to admit that Aurora’s words shut Henry’s mouth.

In the distance, two men were looking over.

“What should we do?” Dalwin said in a low voice, “Henry represents the Jarrett Group today. The people around him want to curry favor with the Jarrett family. They won’t do good things when they are together.”

They were all playboys. Moreover, the Jarrett family and Aurora indeed had some disputes.

It had something to do with Terry.

“What does it have to do with me?” said Zac coldly. His eyes turned dark.

Dalwin suppressed his laughter and elbowed him. "Don't say that. You will embarrass Henry in public and avenge Ms. Bennet."

Dalwin saw through Zac, and Zac turned his head.

Dalwin suddenly noticed that those men approached Aurora, "Mr. Buchanna, I think you shouldn't wait..."

Before he finished, Zac walked over quickly.

Zac had only taken a few steps before stopping.

Because someone went to protect Aurora before Zac.

Zac could not help but frown. He was late.

He slowly clenched his fists, and his handsome face looked a little frustrated.

"Terry?"

Aurora looked at the familiar yet unfamiliar figure in front of her and recovered from the shock.

In her impression, Terry rarely wore a formal suit. Moreover, he had changed his hairstyle.

Terry was no longer so carefree. He looked mature and steady.

"Let's talk about it later."

Terry ignored the gazes around him and held Aurora's hand.

"Henry, how dare you touch my woman?" Terry said. He narrowed his long and sharp eyes.

"Mr. Walton..."

The few rich young men behind Henry hesitated. After exchanging glances, they all took half a step back.

After all, the Walton family was much more powerful than their families. Moreover, they all knew Terry's nickname.

Terry was so crazy that no one could stop him. They would better not offend Terry.

Henry looked left and right, gritted his teeth, and rushed forward.

“I’m going to touch her. What can you do about it?” He smiled. “What’s the relationship between you two? Why do you protect her? Besides, the summit conference is about to begin. If you hit me, can you still attend the conference?”

He did not believe that Terry would lose his mind because of Aurora and hit him in public.

“Come on, hit me. At most, none of us can attend the conference.” Henry laughed provocatively.

Aurora was worried.

“Terry, forget it. Ignore them,” she said as she tugged at Terry from behind.

“Piss off! You are not allowed to speak!” Henry shouted at Aurora.

The next second, Terry grabbed Henry’s collar.

Henry panicked. His mouth twitched. “Mr. Walton, so many people are looking at you. If you hit me, I will sue...”

“The Jarrett Group is fighting for the joint development rights of the Buchanna Group’s land, right?” Terry lowered his voice, and only Henry could hear it.

After Terry said a few more words, Henry was immediately stunned.

Terry let Henry go, and Henry stumbled back a few steps.

“Let’s go.” Terry turned around and took Aurora’s hand.

“What did you tell him just now?” Aurora nodded and followed.

Terry raised his eyebrows but did not tell Aurora. Instead, he said, “Do you think I was awesome just now? Do you think I was very charming?”

“Maybe just a little! You said those words. It turns out that you didn’t change at all.” When Aurora heard his joking tone, she smiled.

They walked side by side into the conference room.

The people who were watching the drama also left.

"I heard that Terry was managing the Walton family's business. The Walton family only has one son, and he is quite competitive." Dalwin muttered thoughtfully.

"Competitive?"

Zac glanced at him coldly.

"He is young and powerful. He is also quite handsome. Previously, the daughter of the Jarrett family had a crush on him." Dalwin raised his eyebrows, "I don't know if the Walton family will accept Aurora or not."

Zac's face immediately turned dark. He quickened his pace and entered the venue.

He looked cold. After entering the venue, he was brought to the first row by the staff.

Aurora's seat was far behind. Terry refused to go to the front, so he sat with her at the back.

"Don't you need to go to the front?" Aurora asked softly.

"No." Terry shook his head.

"Then..."

"Did you have breakfast? Of course not. I brought you some snacks. Here, take them." Terry turned his head.

Aurora stretched out her hand and a few snacks fell into her hand.

"I've prepared them for you," he said and blinked mysteriously.

Aurora was amused by his expression and thanked him softly.

They were talking and laughing, completely different from the first row which was depressing.

"Could it be that she's going to become the Walton family's daughter-in-law?" someone muttered in a low voice.

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 186

Chapter 186 She Is Still in His Hands

Zac heard those words.

Did Aurora deliberately show her love in public to make him the focus of everyone's discussion? Or did she change her mind and want to marry Terry?

Zac clenched his fists and couldn't suppress his anger.

When Carter came forward to report, he dared not to look at Zac's face. "Mr. Buchanna, these are the documents that you need later."

Zac slowly closed his eyes and tried to calm down. When he opened his eyes again, his eyes were deep and cold.

Who Aurora was with had nothing to do with him!

"Both the Walton Group and the Jarrett Group want the development rights of this land, right?" Zac asked casually

"Yes, it is confirmed." Carter adjusted his glasses. The Buchanna Group could easily get the commercial information.

"Don't give it to them."

With one sentence, he could determine how things were going.

"Then..." Carter didn't quite understand what Zac meant.

Zac raised his hand. Carter immediately bent down to listen to his instructions. Although he was surprised, he still nodded. "I'm on it."

Then, the summit conference officially began.

All the processes were done in a fixed order. Aurora worked hard to learn, and this opportunity was rare.

But some people seemed to be much more relaxed. For example, many people would occasionally come to talk to the man sitting in the first row. Aurora could not see his face, but from his back and posture, she could feel his unruly and relaxed movements.

Zac was able to develop the Buchanna Group to the current scale. He was so extraordinary.

The people present were big shots in the business world, but they still had to soften Zac up. There was a huge gap between Zac and Aurora, Aurora felt unhappy in her heart. Only at this moment did she truly realize the gap between herself and Zac.

“Aurora, the auction is about to begin.” Terry reminded her when he saw that she was absent-minded.

“OK.”

Aurora spirited up and watched the president of the Chamber of Commerce walk straight to Zac. After asking a few questions, he said in a clear voice. This time, we will bid for the joint development right of the project in New York. The Buchanna Group didn't want to hurt everyone's feelings, so they will choose a partner by drawing lots.”

The Buchanna Group didn't want to hurt everyone's feelings!

Aurora frowned. Was Zac someone who cared about other people's feelings?

“Are you kidding me? Then we will have a chance too!” The person sitting in the back row said excitedly, “If that's true, I might be lucky too.”

“What if I get lucky, but I'm not qualified enough to take this project? After all, not everyone has the ability to cooperate with the Buchanna Group.”

Everyone knew Zac's power. If the cooperation did not go smoothly, it was likely that the small company would be directly flattened.

“In fact, the Buchanna Group doesn't need a partner to finish that project. It is just a part of the process.”

Listening to these words, Aurora looked at Terry beside her, “The Walton Group is also interested in this project, right?”

She had done her homework before coming.

The Walton Group had sent a proposal to the Buchanna Group several times, but the attitude of the Buchanna Group had always been unknown.

“There is something fishy about this.” Terry nodded and his lips moved slightly.

Why did the predetermined process suddenly change?

“Mr. Buchanna, please come up on stage!”

Zac slowly got up and buttoned up his suit. He was tall and charming in his suit. He went up the stage and turned around.

His gaze was sharp and intimidating. He looked around coldly.

For a moment, all the discussions stopped.

Aurora looked up and met his eyes.

She saw a smile on his face.

He looked so unruly as if he looked down on everything. Aurora panicked.

His eyes instantly turned cold, and under the guidance of the staff, his hand reached into a box.

“Mr. Buchanna, may I ask who your partner is?” The president of the Chamber of Commerce asked with a smile. This was Zac’s request at the last minute. Although they had some doubts, they could only comply.

Zac looked at the note and moved his lips. “The Buchanna Group!”

This sound shook Aurora’s heart!

What was he saying?

“Oh my god, isn’t that his ex-wife’s company?”

“This is fate.”

What fate? It wasn’t fated at all. Zac was so powerful that he designed it.

“Ms. Bennet, please come here.” A staff member came to invite Aurora.

At that time, Aurora was very confused and did not know what to do.

“Don’t be afraid. I will be there for you.” Terry frowned and got up.

Aurora slowly nodded and could only go to the stage. Even though Zac was powerful, he couldn’t do anything to her in public.

But this was just Aurora’s thought before going onto the stage.

When she stood on the stage beside Zac, the feeling of oppression was completely different from what she imagined.

She felt that her heartbeat was racing.

All the sounds in her ears became hazy.

It was not that she had not experienced such a big scene, but for some reason, everything today made her feel like she was dreaming.

The staff handed over two contracts, "Mr. Buchanna, Ms. Bennet! After signing the contracts, you will be partners for the construction project in New York. I wish you smooth cooperation."

Zac was three feet away from Aurora. He looked over, "Sign it and the Bennet Group will survive."

Aurora's heart skipped a beat.

She felt frustrated.

She was still in his hands. The Bennet Group had gone bankrupt because of him, and now the chance to rise again was given by him.

Zac still controlled Aurora, but Aurora thought that she had won before. In the end...

Zac saw Aurora's hesitation. He said indifferently, "Or are you going to give up this opportunity because of your insignificant dignity?"

Aurora gripped the pen tightly.

"This is not cooperation at all. It's charity!"

Aurora stared at him fiercely, but no matter how angry she was, Zac remained cold.

"Aurora, you don't have your father's courage. Even if I return the Bennet Group to you, you can't make it better." As he spoke, he signed his name on the contract.

Someone whispered.

"What is going on? Why doesn't she sign?"

"She doesn't even want such a lucky thing. Is she out of her mind?"

Aurora felt countless mocking gazes. Everyone fixed their eyes on her.

Terry wanted to rush to help her.

But Carter stopped him. "Mr. Walton, you should know how valuable this opportunity is for the Bennet Group"

In other words, Zac was saving Aurora. The price was that she had to give up on her dignity and pride.

"This choice should be made by herself."

Terry put down his raised hand.

On the stage, Zac handed the contract that he had signed to Aurora, but she still did not sign it.

"Ms. Bennet, are you going to sign it or not?"

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 187

Chapter 187 It Is Not Necessary

"Ms. Bennet, please make a decision quickly. We still have to continue the process." The staff member kindly reminded her. Aurora could not keep everyone waiting.

Zac's face was very cold.

"If you are afraid, go out. From now on, there is no place for the Bennet Group to survive." Aurora couldn't tell the emotions in Zac's deep eyes.

Every word he said pierced into Aurora's heart like a knife.

She kept saying that she wanted to revive the Bennet family, but did she really have that ability? Even though it was a chance that Zac gave her, she seemed to be unable to grasp it.

Aurora's hand that was holding the pen trembled slightly.

"Aurora..." Terry wanted to rush over but Carter stopped him.

"Mr. Walton, you can't help her with everything."

There were more and more discussions below the stage.

Aurora held the pen and heard Zac's words. "It was you who didn't want this opportunity. In the future, don't beg me."

"I'll sign it!"

Aurora said through gritted teeth and signed her name as fast as she could.

"You can't go back on your word," Zac said with a smile.

He once again won the revenge game.

However, Aurora only panicked for a few seconds before recovering. She handed the signed contract to the man and said, "I will never regret what I did. I'm not like someone who treats marriage as a game and a bargaining chip for revenge."

Zac's eyes suddenly became sharp.

Aurora's eyes once again lit up, "I hope that you won't regret this, Mr. Walton."

After signing, Aurora got up and left the stage, leaving everyone with a determined back.

She entered the bathroom, closed the door, and slowly sighed.

Her palms were sweaty.

She didn't know what Zac was up to. Why did he give the Bennet family a chance to make a comeback?

Did he want to destroy her life again or put a target behind the Bennet Group's back so that he could make the Bennet Group disappear again without any effort?

No matter what his intention was, it did not seem to have any benefits for Aurora.

IV

But if she didn't accept it, she would give up on the profit that she could easily get, and everyone would laugh at her for being a coward.

It turned out that Zac's decision forced her into a dilemma.

Aurora turned on the tap and used ice water to wash her face.

"There is nothing to be afraid of.

"As long as I can hold on." She bit her lips.

Sooner or later, the situation would be overturned.

She returned to the venue again, and it was break time. Everyone sat in their seats, and when they saw Aurora walking in, they gabbled.

“How dare she sign it? Does the Bennet Group have the ability to take the project? I heard that she is the only one in that company now.”

“Isn’t the Bennet Group making money without giving out anything? She is so lucky!”

“She thought about it for so long on the stage just now. Is she out of her mind?”

“Maybe she is thinking about how to use this opportunity to get close to Zac so that they can get back together.”

In their eyes, since the Buchanna Group got Aurora’s back, even a fool could make the Bennet. Group rise again.

Aurora listened, and there was no hesitation on her fair and beautiful face.

“Are you alright?” Terry came to Aurora and was worried about her.

Aurora shook her head and smiled. “You don’t have to worry about me. You should worry about yourself now. The Walton Group didn’t get this project. Are you alright?”

“My dad didn’t expect the Buchanna Group to change the rules.” Terry frowned.

Everyone present knew that Zac did it on purpose.

Zac wanted the Bennet Group to be chosen.

Even if everyone was doubtful in their hearts, they dared not to question Zac. They didn’t want to cause trouble.

Therefore, everyone would shift the jealousy and dissatisfaction toward Aurora.

For a long time in the future, her days would not be easy, and once there were any problems with the project, Aurora had to take the blame.

If she was not careful, she would lose everything.

“He did it on purpose.”

“He just wanted to see me beg him for mercy,” Aurora said softly.

Terry’s heart skipped a beat. He was even more worried about her.

“Don’t worry. Since I signed it, I have thought of how to counterattack.”

“You...” Terry wanted to ask.

Meanwhile, Carter walked over. “Ms. Bennet! Mr. Buchanna is waiting for you in the conference room upstairs. There are some details of the cooperation that you need to discuss face to face.”

Aurora was mentally prepared. “Sure!”

She stood up and followed Carter. When she opened the door, she saw that there was only Zac in the conference room.

The smile in her clear eyes gradually deepened.

“Mr. Buchanna, it has been so troublesome for you. Aren’t you tired?”

“We are in the middle of a game. How can I be tired?” Zac turned around, and his eyes were even colder than the wind outside the window. “The Bennet Group has nothing left now. You can’t take this project.”

He said arrogantly, waiting for her to beg for mercy.

Although Aurora’s reaction just now was a bit remarkable, it could not change the fact that she could not hold on any longer.

The Buchanna Group could sue her at any time.

Aurora looked up at him and slowly moved her lips. “Mr. Buchanna, you are wrong. How do you know that the Bennet Group does not have the ability to take this project? Moreover, the Buchanna Group changed the rules. I guess that no matter what, the Bennet Group would get the project. Everything is under your control.”

Aurora said with certainty as she stared at the man in front of her.

She reminded herself several times in her heart that she had to keep her mind clear so that she could find a way out.

Zac was not a god. Even though he was powerful, there were still things he would miss.

Aurora straightened her back even more.

As long as she didn’t give up, she wouldn’t lose.

After a long confrontation, neither of them spoke.

Zac had to admit that Aurora was braver than most of the people he had met.

He was suddenly interested in continuing the conversation.

Zac didn't want to torture her. He wanted to listen to her response method.

The door of the conference room was closed.

Carter stood guard outside the door. Not long after, someone rushed over.

"Where is Zac?" Wenny furrowed her thin eyebrows and was about to break in.

"Miss Swon! Mr. Buchanna is having a meeting now. Please wait outside," Carter said responsibly.

"Do you want me to wait? Get out of the way!"

"Zac, come out. I know you are inside, and I know that Aurora is also here. Why did you close the door and be alone with her?" Wenny smacked the door anxiously.

In the conference room, Aurora smiled.

She revealed the news to Wenny.

It was an anonymous message. Aurora did not expect Wenny to come so quickly.

"Is this the ability you mentioned?"

Zac said coldly, and his eyes were filled with anger.

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 188

Chapter 188 Engagement?

Aurora played dumb and smiled, "Mr. Buchanna, I don't know what you are talking about, but it seems that our conversation can't go on. You should think about how to explain it."

Zac could easily think of a way to push her to the forefront.

She could also use the Swon family to make him restless.

Zac gave such a good project to the Bennet Group. Davis was not a fool. When he heard the news, he asked Wenny to come over and ask about the truth.

In the business world, Aurora was much inferior to Zac.

But Aurora understood women much better than Zac.

“Zac, open the door,” Wenny shouted persistently. She almost smashed the door.

Faye, who came with her, pulled her carefully. “Come on! Keep your voice down. There are so many powerful people outside.”

“So what? What tricks did Aurora use to make Zac give her such a big project? How shameless is she! I have to...”

Before she finished speaking, the door opened from the inside.

Aurora looked up at Wenny, “Miss Swon, watch our tongue. Slander is a crime. Moreover, the lawsuit on your body isn’t over yet, right? Take it easy. Otherwise, the police will come to you again.”

Wenny was so angry that her face turned pale.

However, she was not as smart as Aurora and she was not good with words.

She could only watch as Aurora left.

Wenny turned around and rushed straight into the conference room. “Zac, why did you do that? Not only did you return that damn company to her, but you also gave her such a big project. Do you still have feelings for her?”

“Are you done?” The coldness in Zac’s eyes deepened.

Zac didn’t take the threat of the Swon family seriously.

However, Wenny was pregnant with his child after all. She was so noisy in front of him all day. He was sick of it.

“Zac, I don’t want to make a scene either, but if you get too close to Aurora, what will others think of me? Can’t you consider me?” Wenny lowered her head and shed tears.

She looked so vulnerable that Zac could not say any harsh words.

“It’s just business, nothing else.” He walked over and his tone was still calm.

Wenny sobbed a few times. She looked up at him shyly. “Really?”

Zac did not speak again.

“That’s good. On my way here, I heard that Aurora was about to be engaged to Terry. If there is any scandal between you and her, it will affect your reputation.”

“Is she getting engaged?”

Zac slowly clenched his fists.

Wenny leaned in his arms and murmured, “Yes! When I came, I happened to meet Mrs. Walton. She said that she wanted to pick up Aurora to try the wedding dress.”

Zac was silent for a long time, and Wenny gradually stopped sobbing.

No man wanted to be with a woman that another man was sick of.

As a proud and outstanding man, Zac was the same. Aurora was not worthy of him.

Outside the entrance to the venue...

Terry pulled Aurora to Kate’s front.

“After Terry left the hospital, his dad and I missed you very much. You always said that you were busy. Why didn’t you come and visit us?” Kate took Aurora’s hand and said with a smile.

Aurora looked at Terry as if she was asking for help.

She rejected Kate’s invitation several times. It was mainly because she did not know what to say after meeting them.

After thinking about it, she decided not to see them.

She didn’t expect that Kate would come here today.

“When will the conference end? I will wait for you here. You have to have dinner with us tonight!”

Kate liked Aurora even more.

Ever since the car accident, Terry began to focus on taking care of the family business.

This was what Terry's parents wanted to see the most.

Perhaps everything was because of Aurora, so Kate liked Aurora so much.

Kate hoped that Terry and Aurora could get married as soon as possible.

The rumors outside were not important. The most important thing was that her son could work hard. Moreover, she heard that when Zac married Aurora, Zac hadn't returned home at all.

That marriage was invalid.

"I..." Aurora smiled and elbowed Terry from behind.

Terry grinned. "Mom, Aurora got a big project today. She will be very busy. We can have dinner together next time."

In the distance, Zac sent Wenny off. The moment he came out, he saw them standing outside the door and chatting happily.

Wenny raised her chin. "See! I wasn't lying! Zac, you shouldn't get involved with her in the future."

She stirred things up.

There was no warmth in Zac's eyes. After sending Wenny into the car, he turned around and walked over.

"Ms. Bennet, our conversation wasn't over just now."

His face was as cold as an iceberg, and his tone was very pushy.

Aurora knew that he was coming for her. She frowned. "Mr. Buchanna, you are a workaholic, but I have to rest."

She talked back unkindly.

However, Zac reached out to pull her away.

Zac was always so domineering.

Terry instantly blocked his hand. He took two steps forward, separating Zac and Aurora. "Mr. Buchanna, you heard what she said. She doesn't want to talk about it now."

Even though it was business, Zac should give Aurora time to rest.

Moreover, Zac didn't intend to talk about business at all.

"It has nothing to do with you."

Zac furrowed his brows, and his tone was filled with anger.

"I'm Aurora's friend, so it's my business."

Seeing that the atmosphere between them was getting weirder and weirder, Aurora hurriedly said, "Alright, Kate, let's meet later."

"Forget it," she said and patted Terry.

Zac wanted to make things difficult for her, so he found different methods to torment her.

"Send Kate off first," Aurora whispered and pushed Terry aside. When she turned to face Zac again, she put on a cold face. "What do you want to talk about? Let's go."

"You changed your expression so quickly," Zac said through gritted teeth.

Aurora treated the Walton family and him so differently.

Aurora muttered something in a low voice. She turned around and went into the venue. According to the meeting process, they would stay at the hotel for four days and three nights.

The companies with the intention to cooperate would arrange a time to understand each other and push forward the progress of the project.

Even though Aurora did not want to see Zac, she would at least have to endure it for the next few days. She wanted to hire a few suitable employees to see what to do next.

She was thinking about this matter, so she ignored the cold pressure of the man beside her.

"Why is the Walton family looking for you?"

As soon as he entered the elevator, he asked coldly.

"It has nothing to do with you." Aurora pressed the button and said in a bad mood.

“Are you really going to get engaged to Terry?” His eyes were full of scrutiny as he stared at her.

Aurora really didn't know what he was thinking. Kate came to see her, and he was imagining such a drama.

However, she didn't bother to explain it.

She didn't need to say anything. Anyway, no matter what she said, Zac wouldn't believe her.

She acted so indifferently, so Zac became even angrier.

“Aurora!”

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 189

Chapter 189 He Does Not Have That Power

No matter how he lost his temper, Aurora's expression remained indifferent, “Mr. Buchanna, you chose the Bennet Group as your partner. Indeed, you can take up my work time, but you have no right to ask about my personal life.”

Zac stared at her confident and determined face and clenched his fists.

“ ... ”

Before he could finish his words, Aurora had already walked out of the elevator and headed straight for the meeting room.

Carter stood at the door with a stack of documents in his arms. When he saw the cold faces of the two, he did not dare to make a sound.

“Give her all the documents. Don't let her leave this meeting room until she finishes memorizing them,” Zac ordered fiercely. Then, he turned and left.

Whenever Aurora went against him, he couldn't suppress his anger.

Especially when he saw that she had a completely different attitude toward him and the Walton family..

Zac pressed the spot between his eyebrows and felt that he was really crazy.

After Dalwin finished his work, he heard the news and rushed over. "You gave such a big project to the Bennet Group. Those old men from the Buchanna Group will definitely not be able to sit still."

Zac coldly raised his eyes. He knew that there were several factions within the Buchanna Group. Some of them had received benefits from the Walton Group, and some of them were close to the Jarrett Group. Then, he could not let them get what they wanted.

"I can control it after I gave it to the Bennet Group. This project will determine the position of the Buchanna Group for the next three years. No mistakes can be made."

He was determined to get what he wanted.

No one was allowed to interfere with his goals.

Dalwin nodded, but he could not help but say, "I'm afraid that you will be soft-hearted when you see Aurora. After the project is completed, the Bennet Group will get a lot of benefits."

Perhaps, Aurora would take the opportunity to revive the Bennet Group.

Then, wouldn't the revenge that Zac had planned a year ago fail?

"Then consider it as me making it up to her after I let her down," Zac said slowly.

Outside the door, Aurora, who came over with the documents to finalize the details, clearly heard these words.

The joints on her fingers were pale, and her fingertips almost pierced through the paper.

He made it up to her?

What kind of compensation could make up for the injuries she had once suffered!

"Ms. Bennet?" Carter came over with a cup of coffee. He saw Aurora standing at the door with a strange expression.

"Tell Zac that there are too many documents. I definitely won't be able to remember them today. Moreover, he doesn't have the right to control me." Aurora hid the emotions in her eyes. "If he breaks the contract unilaterally, I will definitely sue him until he goes bankrupt."

With that, Aurora left.

He didn't want her to be on good terms with the Walton family and couldn't stand her being with

Terry.

Aurora took out her phone and was about to dial Terry's number.

But in the end, she hesitated.

She didn't want to use Terry.

If she did, then what was the difference between her and the unscrupulous Zac?

"Aurora."

Terry had been waiting for her outside for a long time. Seeing her from afar, he quickly walked over and asked, "Are you done?"

He was afraid that Zac would bully her and looked at her carefully.

"Yes, we're done." Aurora hesitated.

"What did he do?" Terry frowned. "I'll go and find him!"

Although his current status and influence in the business world were far less than that of Zac, he would not cower and must give Aurora a chance to get back at him.

"Terry, ignore him. I'm hungry." Aurora tugged at him, her eyes clearly showing a bit of exhaustion.

"Alright, let's go eat." Terry frowned.

The two of them got into the car and left.

From the window upstairs, a pair of cold, dark eyes stared at them.

Even Dalwin could not stand it anymore. "You have already avenged. Why control Aurora's every move? Even though she said that she wants to take revenge on you, with her current strength, it is almost impossible."

Curl

It was not that Dalwin looked down on Aurora. It was the reality.

It was even hard for her to pay the debt she owed.

In Dalwin's view, Zac didn't need to target Aurora all the time. Aurora was no threat to him.

"But this is the only way I can think of," said Zac, standing by the window with his hands tied and his eyes cold.

"What?" Dalwin did not understand.

He could clearly feel Zac's unwillingness.

Being friends for so many years, he had never seen Zac like this.

"Forget it. Let's go," said Zac as he rubbed the spot between his eyebrows.

Tonight was the birthday banquet of Dalwin's grandma, and Zac would go with Dalwin.

But halfway through, Zac suddenly thought of something. "Did you also invite the Walton family?"

"Well, I think so." Dalwin held his phone and saw Zac's eyes deep and dark. "Why?"

Zac stepped on the accelerator and said coldly, "Just asking."

"There's no need to drive so fast!" Dalwin clutched his seat belt tightly and swallowed.

If he had known this earlier, he would not have said anything.

Who could stop Zac from going crazy?

Aurora was only halfway there when she realized that she was going to celebrate the birthday of Dalwin's grandmother. She thought for a moment and said, "The Walton family is going to celebrate her birthday. It would be inappropriate for me to join you. I'd better get out of the car in front."

However, Terry ignored what she said.

"We're almost there."

"Terry, 1..." Aurora frowned.

"I've already told my mother. If you don't go, she will ask all sorts of questions." Terry said as he held the steering wheel, "It's just a meal anyway. You've participated in this kind of meal before."

With that being said, Aurora's eyelids twitched a few times, and she had a bad premonition.

Pushing open the car door, she suddenly realized something.

Tonight, Zac should also come!

Aurora wanted to retreat, but Terry saw through her thoughts. "You have to start a new life. Do you have to avoid him wherever you go?"

Aurora sighed. "Then let's go in."

Terry was delighted and even took the initiative to stretch out his arm.

Aurora thought for a moment and reached out to hold it.

This was just a normal form of social etiquette.

The two of them walked in side by side, attracting many people's attention.

Kate was sitting among a group of rich ladies, waving at them from afar.

"Mom, we're late. There was a bit of traffic on the road." Terry immediately led Aurora over.

All of a sudden, the rich ladies who had just been chatting became silent. They widened their eyes, pondering the relationship between Aurora and the Walton family.

They also heard some rumors that the Walton family seemed to have accepted Aurora and given up on the marriage with the Jarrett family.

Kate knew what these people were thinking. She smiled, held Aurora's hand, and introduced Aurora to the people around her kindly just like introducing her own daughter. "This is Aurora Bennet, my son's..."

"Kate, I'm going to the bathroom," Aurora said and retreated her hand as her eyebrows twitched.

With that, she turned and fled.

Kate only thought that Aurora was worried about embarrassing the Walton family, so she gave Terry a look.

Terry was about to follow her when someone called out to him.

“Terry, it’s been a long time.”

Sara was wearing an aristocratic dress. Her slender waist was set off, and her long curly hair was over her shoulders. She looked quiet and cute.

As soon as she said that, everyone around looked over.

“Who on earth is Terry’s girlfriend?”

CEO is Chasing Ex-Wife Back Chapter 190

Chapter 190 Don’t Make Me Misunderstand

“I heard that the Walton family has refused to marry the Jarrett family.”

“But Sara seems to like Terry quite a lot. The Walton family should not give up such a good opportunity for Aurora.”

No matter what, the Jarrett Group’s financial resources could more or less help the Walton family.

Only by joining hands would the two families be able to walk further.

The Walton family must know this well.

Terry immediately frowned and avoided Sara, wanting to walk to the back.

Sara walked over slowly and pulled him in front of everyone. “I think there is some misunderstanding between us. Let’s find a place to sit down and clarify things. What do you think?”

“Misunderstanding? There’s no misunderstanding between you and me.” Terry retreated his hand and said coldly, “But today, let me tell you clearly that I will not marry you. I do not like you at all. If you get me, stay away from me.”

Sara couldn’t believe it.

“Terry, are you really going to treat me like this? Am I not as good as Aurora?” Sara’s eyes reddened.

She was not afraid of losing face, so she might as well make it clear.

“The person who originally was going to date you was me. Kate also likes me. It was Aurora who interfered. She was the other girl.” In order to save face, Sara dared to say anything.

She kept slandering Aurora.

At the door, the man who had just walked in glanced behind and saw Aurora standing at the door of the bathroom.

No matter what, Sara was the Jarrett family’s daughter.

In addition, she had never been married before. Everyone thought that the Walton family would choose her. Now it seemed that Aurora had used some dirty means to pester Terry, which destroyed the marriage between the two families.

“I heard that Aurora also got the cooperation project of the Buchanna Group today. She is really amazing,”

“What’s so amazing about it? It’s nothing more than relying on her face and the skills that she learned in Creek Club.”

“Shut your mouth!” Terry stared at Sara fiercely. “Don’t think that I can’t do anything to you just because I don’t hit women. I’ve known Aurora for many years. It’s not your turn to criticize her.”

Kate also came over and comforted her son while saying to Sara, “I have already talked to your parents. You and Terry are not meant to be together, so you don’t have to hold on to him.”

Sara bit the corner of her lips. Even Kate was won over by Aurora!

A scheming light flashed across her eyes.

“Kate, did you also misunderstand me? When Terry had a car accident, I was going to the hospital to take care of Terry. But Aurora told me that she and Terry had already been in a relationship, so I left temporarily.”

Terry was already very impatient.

“Aurora would never say something like that.”

“You’re not a woman. You don’t know her. She wants to date you and Zac in the meantime. Otherwise, how did she get the project of the Buchanna Group? You’ve all been tricked by her. She’s using you.” Sara said with certainty, “My brother already said that she stayed alone in the conference room with Zac for a long time today.”

“So what?”

A voice was heard before Terry said anything.

Sara was shocked. She turned her head and saw that Zac was standing not far away. The person standing behind him was Aurora.

“Aurora.” Terry immediately went over.

However, Bob, who had rushed over, pulled him. “Alright, don’t make it worse. After all, today is the Villson family’s birthday banquet.”

“But...”

Terry frowned. He really wanted to go to Aurora and tell her that he didn’t believe Sara at all.

“Aurora is smart. Even if you don’t say it, she will understand. Now, don’t speak again, lest the situation gets even worse.” Bob was also dissatisfied with Sara’s behavior. Sara was slandering the Walton family in public.

However, considering that he still had to cooperate with the Jarrett Group in the future, he did not want to fall out with her.

Terry froze and lowered his head weakly.

At this time, Aurora followed Zac and came to them.

Aurora raised her head, her voice cold. “Ms. Jarrett, when did I say that to you?”

Sara, relying on the Jarrett family’s support, spoke without caring about the consequences, “In ... in the hospital.”

As long as she insisted, Aurora could do nothing.

At that time, she knew that Terry might need an amputation, so she took the initiative to leave him.

Both Aurora and the Walton family knew about this.

But at this moment, they were concerned about the opportunity to cooperate with the Jarrett family and would not say anything.

Aurora had to take this ridiculous accusation. In any case, no one would care about her reputation.

Aurora glanced at Terry, the emotions in her eyes complicated.

She also knew that it was reasonable for the Walton family to do this, but in this case, Aurora had to face those doubts alone.

"I have no interest in other things, but you just said that I was alone with Aurora in the conference room for a long time. What do you mean?" Zac glanced over with a threatening gaze.

"I ... I'm just telling the truth. I don't mean anything." Sara awkwardly avoided his gaze.

"Really?" Zac blocked Aurora's way.

The next second, his voice suddenly turned cold. "Tomorrow morning, a lawyer of the Buchanna Group will come to you. At that time, you can think about what is the truth."

Sara was stunned.

She just said a few words. There was no need to make it this big!

"Mr. Buchanna, I didn't say there's anything between you two. You don't have to argue with me, do you?" Sara bit the corner of her lips and made an aggrieved look.

She even subconsciously hid in Terry's direction.

However, Zac was not a person who would show mercy to women.

He curled his lips and said disdainfully, "You didn't say anything, but didn't you mean that? I'm not afraid of making it big, nor am I afraid that the Jarrett family will embarrass me. You have to pay for ruining my reputation."

With that, he turned and left.

Seeing that Aurora was still in a daze, he took two steps back and tugged at her with a frown. "Are you still waiting for her to slander our relationship?"

Before Aurora could say anything, he had already brought her out of the mess.

"I don't need your help." Aurora frowned awkwardly.

"Who said I was helping you? She slandered us, and it will affect the reputation of me and the Buchanna Group." Zac's eyes were colder than his voice. He stared at Aurora's face and said word by word, "Also, you clearly saw the Walton family's attitude toward you. Do you still want to be so humble in front of them?"

Aurora's eyes darkened.

She could not understand the meaning of his words.

She was indeed upset, but it was not his turn to say this.

"I've always been blind. Otherwise, I wouldn't have married you back then. Mr. Buchanna, don't do anything that will make me misunderstand. Otherwise, I might be as ignorant as I was back then and believe in the wrong person."
