

CEO's Unexpected Wife by Charlie

Chapter 2

Chapter 2

Then, without waiting any longer, he walked quickly in the direction where Elaine had just left.

This scene was seen by a noble and elegant man from the booth not far away.

Soon, the man put down the goblet and said something to the person next to him. Then he got up, left his booth, and walked straight to the exit of the bar.

"Thomas, where is Issac going? Didn't he just come back? It's not easy for us to get together, but he just remained silent."

Someone in the booth came over and asked.

Thomas put his arm around a sexy girl and shrugged helplessly. "He said he had something to do and he would take a rain check. He's now the new president of the Prosperous Group. He's super busy!"

There was retching from the bathroom of the bar.

Elaine, who was already drunk, lay awkwardly against the sink and vomited.

She kept washing her tear-stained face with water until she became sober. Then she stood up straight and walked out with the wall holding her up.

As soon as she got out of the bathroom, the young man who had been waiting outside for a long time immediately greeted her with an evil smile. "Are you okay? I'll take you back."

Before Elaine could react, the young man put his arm around her waist and walked quickly to the exit of the bar.

Elaine felt weak all over. Her head became dizzy, and her consciousness began to blur. Her struggle was futile and she was taken out of the bar by the man.

Looking at the beautiful woman in his arms, the man swallowed lewdly and impatiently walked to the roadside to take a taxi.

The wind was cold at night, and Elaine shivered unconsciously. She opened her eyes and looked blankly at the busy street.

Suddenly, she felt nauseous and vomited up everything on the young man.

“Damn it!”

The young man quickly pushed Elaine away and looked at the filth with disgust.

Elaine held the street lamp and continued to vomit uncomfortably. Her clothes and shoes were also stained with some vomit. She was so wasted that she could not stand steadily and she did not know what kind of dangerous state she was in.

Soon, the young man successfully stopped a taxi. He opened the door and turned to pull Elaine.

The next moment, a long figure quickly blocked the young man and made him feel some pressure.

The young man raised his head and looked at the man who suddenly appeared in front of him with a guilty conscience. “Who, who are you?!”

This man’s height and looks made him feel ashamed!

“I’ll take care of her.”

After these words, Issac turned around and hugged Elaine to another car on the side of the road.

As soon as the young man saw that Issac was taking Elaine away, he quickly caught up and grabbed Elaine’s wrist. “Hey! I got my on her first!”

As soon as he finished speaking, four men in black suits and sunglasses rushed out of the dark and began to rub their hands in front of the young man.

E Iman.

Seeing this, the young man took a few steps back in fear and finally turned around and ran away.

In a black Maserati, Ian, who was driving to a nearby hotel, looked up at the rearview mirror silently to watch Issac in the back seat.

He had been with Issac for so long, and it was the first time he had carried a drunk woman into the car.

Was this girl the one Issac asked him to find in Z Country before he returned?

Thinking of this, Ian did not dare to observe her carefully. He could only stifle his curiosity and continue driving.

“Chris...

The girl in his arms murmured in a daze. Her cheeks flushed with drunkenness, and her small mouth opened slightly, looking tempting.

Issac looked at her quietly, reached out to brush away the hair on her forehead, and gently rubbed the tears on her small face away. There was something indefinable in his long, narrow eyes.

Soon, the car arrived at the hotel and Issac helped Elaine into a room. As soon as she lay down, she suddenly opened her eyes and stumbled to the bathroom to vomit.

Issac took off his coat and followed. It was not until she finished vomiting that he poured a glass of water and handed it to her.

It was a strange but slender hand. Elaine looked up in confusion and saw a handsome face.

“Who... are you?”

The girl propped herself up and her clear with blurred eyes.

Issac set his mouth in a grim line and did not make a sound. He just looked at her silently.

For so many years, he was now a complete stranger to her. Even if he had told her about what happened back then, she might not have remembered it.

Elaine didn't get the answer. But she didn't care at all. In fact, she was so wasted that she began to grin foolishly with a hurt look in her eyes. “Haha, Chris, you're such a jerk! Get out of here together with that bitch!”

After saying that, she turned away and did not look at Issac again. She staggered to the bed and lay down. Somehow, she had a burning sensation all over her body, and her breathing unconsciously became rapid.

She began to tug at her clothes restlessly, with a flushed little face and misty eyes.

When Issac walked come out of the bathroom and saw this, he suddenly stopped at the door. His adam's apple moved and his eyes were fixed on the slender figure on the bed.

It was not good! He was always frigid. Why did he get turned on just by looking at her?

Issac walked over quickly and covered her with the quilt. His breathing became a little quick.

“I'm so thirsty...”

Elaine struggled to sit up, wrapping one hand around Issac's neck, and her whole body was pressed against him. She panted and whispered in his ear, "Chris, why is the room so hot..."

Issac's body tensed up in an instant, and a warm breath sprayed into his ear. His eyes were like bottomless brown pools. But when he felt her breath, his heart gave a sudden leap.

The next moment, he came to his senses and quickly pushed Elaine away. He stood up straight and asked coldly, "Elaine! Do you know what you're doing?"

After that, the person on the bed curled up in pain and stared at him with innocent eyes. Her face and body were abnormally flushed.

Was she... drugged?!

Damn it! He shouldn't have let that man go!

Thinking of this, Issac took out his phone and was about to leave the room temporarily.

"Chris, don't go..."

Elaine, who had lost her mind, got out of bed and staggered after him.