

Chapter 1062

"Because..."

Nangong Jin paused and turned to look at her, "Because I'm not even from the same era as you, I'm from a thousand years ago."

If another person were to say this, Jenny would definitely think that they were making fun of her.

But now, looking at Nangong Jin's serious look, she couldn't help but believe a few points.

"A thousand years ago?"

Just by reading these words, Jenny felt a palpitation, and his face couldn't help but become more and more ugly.

"What do you mean? You mean, you're ancient? Then how can you still be alive? And I don't think you're more than thirty at the most, you..."

Nangong Jin smiled, and that smile was actually a little cold.

"Yes, I look like I'm stuck in the year of my thirtieth year forever, but I've really and truly been alive for thousands of years, and the world says I'm mellow and humble, but in reality only I know that I'm an immortal monster, an antique that should have never survived in this world long ago."

When he said the last sentence, his tone was suddenly tinged with a few hints of gloom.

Jenny was shocked to hear it and forced himself to calm down, "I still don't quite understand what you mean."

Nangong Jin gave her a look.

"It's normal that you don't understand, you're the third person to know about this, and the first two refused to believe it when they first heard about it."

He laughed as if to himself, then said slowly, "But it's okay, you'll believe it sooner or later, because it's the truth."

He said, raising his cup again and taking a sip of tea with his ancient ritual.

At this time, Jenny couldn't care less if he would poison himself.

Because of the shock, my throat was as dry as if it were on fire.

She took a sip of her tea as well.

After finishing the drink, Fang asked, "So what did you mean by what you told me before and how could I save you? Also, you just said something about someone wiping my memory, what's up with that?"

Nangong Jin smiled faintly.

"Don't worry, since I've promised you, I will naturally tell you all this slowly, so just listen to me..."

Next, Nangong Jin told Jenny slowly about the events of ten years ago.

Only then did Jenny realize that Nangong Jin really was an old monster who had lived for a thousand years.

A thousand years ago, in the land where Lin City is now, an ancient dynasty that existed in the beginning was called the Great Lin Dynasty.

The Daelin dynasty had always been ruled by the Empress, and the two great State Masters on the left and right.

The empress is equivalent to a totem in a dynasty, a symbol of the divine right of kingship, but in reality, holds no power in her hands.

The right and left two great teachers of state have also been recommended by all the ministers of the court together.

Later, as time gradually progressed, the two Grand Masters, slowly turned into one.

But the general pattern did not change, and each empress, almost always in cooperation with this great master of the country, managed the whole country in an orderly manner.

Until the time of the last empress, she had had enough of the humiliation of being next to the emperor and didn't want to continue this pattern, so she hatched a plot to trap Nanjin, the great master of the country at the time, in an unfavorable position.

To achieve this, she was willing to sacrifice her own life just to make the puppet royal family, who had been a puppet for hundreds of years, truly stand up.

However, even this one

The fight to the death has also failed.

It was because Nanjin, the great teacher of the country at the time, had accidentally obtained a treasure.

It was before he took office, and for his military service he led his soldiers around, once reaching a desert.

There aren't really any tribes there anymore, and the few that are there have long since been driven out by them.

They didn't really want to go deeper into the desert, but it was because there was a big sandstorm and the army got lost in the middle of it, and it was only by mistake that they got there.

In that place, he saw a sacred stone.

In the middle of the divine stone, a goddess came out.

The goddess had a delicate face and an even more needlessly long and slender figure, which immediately caught his attention.

When the goddess saw him, she walked towards him, and he was so moved that he couldn't bear to leave her alone in the desert and be swallowed up by the sand, so he made an effort to take her on his way.

After getting on the road, he realized that the woman, although she looked like a normal human being, was actually like she had come out of an uncivilized primitive forest.

Not only do they not know manners, they don't even know how to dress and eat.

Not to mention talking.

But the good news is that she's smart enough to learn whatever it is, right off the bat.

Most importantly, she seemed to know the desert, particularly well, and it didn't take long for her to lead them out of it.

Nanjin liked the woman so much that he kept her in his house when he returned to the capital.

He was still young and hadn't really ascended to the position of Grand Master, so he had no plans to marry for the time being.

Therefore, at that time in the house, the woman, although she had no name, in fact, and the mistress of the house is the production left not much status.

Later, he finally became a Grand Master by virtue of his military achievements, and although he was busy with the imperial government every day, he was still able to take care of her who stayed in the house.

The two of them, too, had a beautiful and happy time.

In those days, the two of them watched the blossoms and flowers bloom and went fishing in the spring together, not to mention having a great time.

But the good times were short-lived, and the empress' plot reached his ears like a thunderbolt.

Nanjin quickly reacted and immediately sent someone to arrest the empress's sister.

It was a matter of life and death secrets, and he didn't feel comfortable leaving it in the care of someone else, so he gave the man to the woman he trusted the most.

But it was precisely this decision that caused the two to end up on opposite paths.

One afternoon, just after lunch, he originally wanted to walk around casually, unintentionally walked to the door of the room where the empress' sister was being held, so he quietly opened the door and took a peek inside.

But unexpectedly, he saw that the woman he knew so incredibly well now had another man's face on top of his.

It didn't take long, just one turn, and then she was herself again.

The incident, in those days, was undoubtedly sensational.

At first, he thought he'd met a demon, but then he realized that she wasn't a demon.

She disproved the theory of a round earth, which everyone believed in at the time, and insisted that the earth itself was a circle, and then claimed to be from some planet in the far reaches of outer space.

Every person on that planet has an energy stone in their body.

As long as this energy stone remains, the person will not die, it will keep this body forever young and vibrant, unless one day they want to die and remove the energy stone from their body, so they can die naturally.

Chapter 1063

So on their planet, everyone has a long, long life expectancy.

And, of course, with it comes the scarcity of humans.

After all, when everyone's lifespan can be extended indefinitely, there won't be much need for the rest of life on this planet.

And it was because she was tired of this way of life and didn't want to face such a stagnant planet forever that she escaped from her original home in her own ship, trying to find a new miracle.

But she didn't expect to be only halfway to the planet when, due to an accident, the ship crashed.

It had to be said that the other party's words simply overturned all of Nanjin's seriousness at the time.

It's not just the idea of a roundabout place that's been debunked, it's what universe, outer space, spaceships.

It was simply inconceivable that the round stone he had seen earlier was some kind of ship?

Shocked, Nanjin also quickly thought of another possibility.

Now that the empress is dead, all the courtiers have learned that the empress has a sister in existence and are searching for this heir.

But off to the side, the empress had told her sister of her plans before she died, ordering her to point out the truth that it was Nanjin who had murdered her, no matter what, after she succeeded to the throne, so that she could overthrow the position of Grand Master and put the royal family back in power.

It could be said that at this time, Nanjin was undoubtedly feeling like she was being roasted over a fire.

It is preferable that he has no retreat yet, and unless he rebels against the empress' sister, he will die.

However, how could the empress sister listen to Nanjin when her own sister had died because of herself?

Thus, the matter became insoluble and a complete dead end.

But now it was different, and he suddenly saw a new hope.

The reason why he couldn't have someone pretend to be the empress' sister before was because, all the courtiers had seen her face, and he couldn't find someone who looked exactly like her to dress her up.

But now it was different, this man he had found.

That's the woman who followed him all the way back from the desert and claimed to be from outer space, Shallow.

She had no family, no friends, only a few people in the house who knew of her existence and trusted her wholeheartedly, and this was the perfect candidate.

Therefore, without even thinking about it, Nanjin told her about the plan.

At first, Shallow refused, though with her current knowledge of the world, she couldn't give any reason at the moment, but her subconscious still felt that this was not a good thing.

But reluctantly, there was Nanjin's softening up, and in the end, she agreed.

That day, he watched her with his own eyes and sent her on her way to the throne with ten miles of red makeup.

Shallow sat on top of the dragon chair and looked down at him kneeling in the hall, his heart in a panic.

And then, there was the palace coup, the massacre.

It was clear that Nanjin didn't want to talk about that bloody history, so he only carried it over in a few sentences.

But Jenny still detected a change in that time from the few statements he had made.

From his previous description, the shallow one he spoke of should be a person of good nature.

Nan Jin, on the other hand, had already been overwhelmed by power, and back when he learned of the plot set up by the empress, he had actually made up his mind to seize power and completely abolish this empress' position, so that his own ascension to the throne could take its place.

After all, what was the point of keeping her with an emperor who was completely useless to this country?

It's better to be able than to sit back and enjoy it!

But this idea he never revealed to Shallow.

So, when the army killed the Imperial City, and when Shallow looked at the so-called mutineer, who was the very person she loved with all her heart, she broke down.

The reason she broke down was not because she couldn't bear to give up the throne.

Rather, she had listened to his words and felt that she had ascended this throne in place of others in order to stabilize the people of the world, for the sake of the common people, and to keep the country from further internal strife.

But in reality, it was all an excuse for him to lie to her.

He planned carefully, not for the people, but just to give himself some time to vacate the development.

By means of her trust, Nanjin has taken almost all the power into her hands, and has long since become the true doctrine of the country.

Previously, the position of Grand Master could also be voted on by all courtiers to have someone elected.

And now, the full court is already full of him, and who dares to vote against him?

He was already the uncrowned king of this country, but he still wasn't satisfied, and he wanted to get rid of even the last remnants of the royal family.

When Shallow ascended the throne, she used the face of the empress's sister.

Therefore, the people of the royal family had always treated her as their own, trusted her and revered her.

At first, Shallow was a little uncomfortable and confused.

But she was human, with a powerful gift for learning, and soon came to understand family, friendship, and love from her time with these people.

She understood that she was love for Nanjin.

And at the same time, one's friendship and affection for these people who depend on them and believe in them.

She didn't want anyone to get hurt or betray her, especially not Nanjin.

But in the end, Nanjin betrayed her.

In order to ascend to the throne, Nanjin not only drove her off the dragon chair with her own hands, but also killed everyone in the royal family in front of her.

Just to get rid of the roots!

At that moment, Shallow was unbelievable.

She couldn't believe that the man she'd always loved was using her.

And I can't believe that his apparent mellow kindness is all an act, but in reality, he can go on a massacre spree for power, even those who are the slightest threat to him.

The youngest one there is only three years old!

He's just a kid. What did he do wrong?

But as she weeps in her steps, she walks up to him and asks the question.

Nanjin only gave an indifferent answer, which was, "He's still a child, but sooner or later he'll grow up."

Heh. Sooner or later it will grow up.

Yes, growing up, he would remember today's blood feud and he would most likely come back for revenge, so Nanjin didn't leave them any hope or danger for himself.

Shallow was completely desperate.

She no longer held out any hope for the man, so at the last moment, when he decided to make himself queen.

She chose to refuse and took out her energy stone.

In the past, on her own planet, she'd always wondered why those people, who were alive and well, would remove the energy stone and choose to commit suicide.

But it wasn't until this moment that she understood.

That's probably because it's no longer fun to live, there's no hope for the future, and the people you love the most have become completely different.

It's better to be alive than dead.

Chapter 1064

By dying, at least you can avoid facing so much pain and betrayal.

And you don't have to see so much killing and bloodshed.

So, in this moment, she made the same choice.

The difference was that she hadn't destroyed the energy stone, but had installed it in his body.

The energy stone carried its owner's strong will and was separated from Nanjin's body.

She thought that since he didn't want peace and happiness, he wanted this country and the world, so let's satisfy him.

There is no dynasty that can exist for generations, and no nation that will be strong forever.

But he could.

Because he is not old, he is not dead, and he can use his wisdom and his writs to keep his absolute power forever, let him spend his long future life to atone for the sins of the people of this country.

Even before her death, everything Shallow did was out of the goodness of her heart.

But she probably could never have imagined, after her death, the extent of the madness of the man who had betrayed her, who would do anything for power.

People are like that sometimes.

When you have it, you never know how to cherish it.

It's not until you lose it that you realize how precious the other person is.

Nanjin is crazy.

He couldn't face the fact that Shallow had left, and even though the other party had turned into a corpse, he forbade the person to be buried, instead freezing the person in an ice coffin.

The people from that planet all have one thing in common.

That is, they relied on the energy stone to survive and stay young forever, and once they lost the stone, their entire body would age rapidly.

Like a wilted flower, it instantly becomes a senile old man.

So, what Nangong Jin froze up was not a normal shallowness.

Rather than dumping the old and out-of-shape shallow.

But Rao still kept guarding that corpse, and not only that, he abandoned his country and his hard-earned throne and went far away in order to seek medical treatment that would allow Shallow to wake up smoothly.

Soon, the Great Forest Dynasty was broken by the enemy, and the dynasty was changed, and there was no more Shallow in the world, nor was there the magnificent Grand Master of the world.

Under the pseudonym Nanjin, Nanjin established the Nanjin family, which survived for generations.

After Jenny heard his story, it would be a lie to say that his heart wasn't shocked.

She had thought that this kind of thing would only happen in a TV show or a novel.

I didn't know it actually existed.

Whether it's Shallow's infatuation, or Nangong Jin's stupidity, in the end it's all just due to love, and it's not sad.

She asked curiously, "In that case, it's been a thousand years, have you found a way to bring her back to life?"

Nangong Jin nodded, "I found it."

"What's the solution?"

Nangong Jin didn't answer in a hurry, but pulled out his phone and flipped out a news article and handed it to her.

"You read this first."

Jenny picked it up and read it, finding it to be a science news article.

It's about a meteorite that fell two hundred years ago in some small coastal town, where it caused so much nuclear radiation that the people there either got sick or moved away all together.

Then the place gradually became an empty city.

The people outside have given the place a name, Ghost Town.

Jenny looked at the report above and frowned

Head.

"What are you showing me this for?"

Nangong Jin said in a deep voice, "The meteorite that fell here back then wasn't really a meteorite, but a ship from the same planet as Shallow, the difference was that that person wasn't as lucky as Shallow, and had died for some reason, but although he died, the energy stone is still there, I investigated, and when someone left there back then, they took that piece with them!The energy stone, because it was felt to be rare in texture and a memorial to the homeland, was divided into many pieces and given to the people of the house, which is today's heavenly jade tablet."

Jenny shook fiercely.

"A heavenly book of jade?What do you mean..."

"Yes, it's that heavenly book of jade that's circulating right now."

Jenny suddenly realized why Nangong Jin was trying so hard to find it.

An energy stone from the same planet, a mythical object that is said to make people immortal and bring back the dead....

So, those rumors are actually true?

Realizing this, her face was faintly pale.

Nangong Jin continued: "The Book of Heaven is divided into twelve pieces of jade, and the people who got the energy stone had witnessed the meteorite crashing, but science was not popular at that time.

Later on, these energy stones, gradually tumbled out into the world, and I also found a piece by accident, thinking that the material was similar to the one Shallow put into my body at first, so I looked up the information, and that's how I found out about the incident that happened two hundred years ago."

Jenny pursed her lips.

"So?What are you trying to collect this for?You can't really think that it will bring your shallowness back to life, can you?"

"How do we know if we don't try?"

Nangong Jin looked at her calmly, "This is the only chance you'll get, if it doesn't even work, then the world..."

There is no more way in this world that can bring Shallow back to life.

His shallowness left him forever.

Jenny listened to his words, and although he was touched by the depth of his attachment to his beloved for a thousand years, he still found it too unbelievable.

"Is that why you're so adamant about finding the twelve pieces of heavenly jade?But what does that have to do with me?Why did you bring me here?"

At the mention of this, Nangong Jin's face fell into a playful expression.

"I didn't want to arrest you either, Jenny, as I said, you saved my life once, and although I don't consider myself a good person, I'm by no means a benefactor, so how could I hurt you?"

"Then you..."

"The reason I'm doing this is actually just for self-preservation ah, can't you see until now that your husband Biden Lu, the man who accompanies you all day long, is actually not quite different from what you thought?"

Jenny was at a loss.

Different?

What's the difference?

Nangong Jin shook his head and sighed lightly.

"Fine, you were wiped of that memory by him, so I'll remember it for you."

He said, suddenly getting up and walking away.

Jenny looked at him, and for some reason, a touch of panic rose in her heart.

She braced herself on the ground and kept backing away.

Muttering, "Don't come over here, don't come over here, what do you want..."

However, before the words were finished, they were caught on top of the head.
