Chapter 1351 Time To Retire

Kenneth, Hendrix, and the others gaped in utter shock.

They didn't expect Nathan to deploy a special regiment to deal with them. Even a dozen tanks were deployed.

Looking at those tanks with their gun barrels raised and hordes of Dragonfury soldiers with submachine guns, many of the men inside couldn't help but put their guns down and raised their hands to surrender.

With veins standing out of his neck, Kenneth barked, "You guys are crazy! Do you know what you're doing?"

"This is mutiny. You people will be severely punished, do you know that?"

"No, it's not," Nathan piped up placidly.
"They're just acting on my orders. They will not be punished in any way."

"Hah, your orders?" Kenneth sneered.

"You're about to become a prisoner now.

"You think you're still that General from before?!"

Nathan wore a calm expression. "So long as I'm not relieved of my post, I'm still the General and I will still be able to mobilize the troops."

"But I can guarantee that you'll be striped of your title soon!" Kenneth argued, then reached for his phone and shouted, "I'm going to call the President now and report about the mutiny of your men and ask him to relieve you of your post at once."

Nathan smiled. "Do you believe if I say that the President will not relieve me of my post but yours?"

"Bullshit!" Kenneth cursed.

"I'm the President's loyal follower of many years. Why would he relieve me of my post?"

"But you, you killed Wyatt Windsor, and now you're fighting against the investigation. You're screwed!"

Chapter 1351 Time To Retire

A corner of Nathan's mouth lifted. "I'd like to see you try!"

Sure!

Kenneth dialed President Windsor's number on the spot, and the call was connected shortly after.

In a loud voice, Kenneth reported, "Sir, Nathan Cross has mobilized the Dragonfury Special Forces without permission to fight against the investigation."

"The Dragonfury has surrounded us on all sides. This is an emergency and I request that this matter be dealt with seriously and immediately."

Hansel's voice slowly sounded. "Nathan Cross is the General and the Dragonfury Special Forces is under the jurisdiction of the North Army. He has the authority to mobilize the Dragonfury Special Forces."

Kenneth's jaw dropped at Hansel's words.

Coming back to his senses, he faltered, "P-President, Nathan Cross is under investigation now. How could he..."

"My bad. I forgot to tell you," Hansel said. "You've investigated for so long to find no ironclad evidence of Nathan Cross's crime. So it's clear that he may not be the culprit of my son's death. Therefore, you don't need to waste your time on him anymore."

What?

Don't waste my time on him anymore?

You're asking me to release him?!

Kenneth cast a shocked glance at Nathan. Still surprised, he said to Hansel in a fluster, "But President, Nathan Cross, he..."

"How many years have you been with me, Greene?" Hansel cut in.

Kenneth looked stunned. Why is he asking me that?

“About twenty-three years?” he answered instinctively.

“Yes, and I remember you should be sixty-five now, right?” Hansel asked.

Kenneth was startled again. “I just turned sixty this year, President!”

“Well, you’re not getting any younger. You’re at that age to retire now,” Hansel said.

Crash!

Kenneth felt as though he was struck by lightning.

Retire?!

What’s going on?

Is he asking me to retire because he knew what’s going on?

Before Kenneth could recover from his shock, Hansel, on the phone, continued, "Greene, it must have been hard on you all these years. It's time to take a break."

"Someone will take over the investigation to Wyatt's murder and your position with the Secret Service."

Kenneth trembled, looking as if he had aged another ten years. In a quavering voice, he asked, "Who's taking over my place?"

"Hailey Reagan." Hansel replied.

It was at this moment that a smartly dressed middle-aged woman in her forties, who wore her hair in a bob, appeared carrying a briefcase with a team of subordinates in suits following closely behind.

The woman was none other than Hailey Reagan, the second in line for the Secret Service.

"Greetings, General!" Hailey brought her subordinates over and greeted him politely.

She then took out an inauguration notice and handed it to Kenneth, saying, "Nice to meet you, Sergeant Greene. From now onwards, I'm officially the Director of Secret Service and I've officially taken over the investigation team."

Kenneth blanched.

Nathan Cross was right!

The President didn't relieve him of his post, but mine instead!

"That voice," Hansel's voice sounded from the phone. "Seems like Hailey has arrived. Well, you guys have a good handover then."

At that, Hansel hung up.

"Would you look at that, what did I say, Sergeant Greene?" Nathan snickered. "The President will not relieve me of my post. But you, you're toast."

"I'm your new leader from now on and all of you are under my responsibility, got it?" Hailey said to Hendrix and the rest.

"Yes, ma'am!" they chorused hastily.

"Very good," Hailey said with satisfaction. "Now, there are two things that I need to do."

"One, cooperate with the General and find out the culprit behind the murder of Wyatt Windsor. No matter how powerful these people are, they have to be eradicated."

"Yes, ma'am!"

"Two," Hailey continued, "is to investigate the serious criminal and disciplinary issue with the former leader of the Secret Service, Kenneth Greene."

Hendrix's expression turned for the worst. He didn't expect Hailey to be so aggressive, much less expect Kenneth to

All the colors drained from Kenneth's face, but he remained calm.

He knew he must have failed somewhere. Otherwise, the President wouldn't have replaced him without warning.

Now that he had been found out, he wasn't surprised that Hailey was coming for him.

"Is there anything that you wish to confess, Sergeant Greene?" Hailey regarded Kenneth with a disdainful look.

Kenneth held his tongue.

"Looks like you're unwilling to cooperate, Sergeant Greene," Hailey said. "It doesn't matter. I will make you speak. I may be younger than you, but my abilities in torture are in no way inferior to yours!"

At once, a few men in suits rushed forward and arrested Kenneth.

How ironic. Kenneth was planning to transfer Nathan to the prison and make him confess under duress.

But little did he know he would end up being the one handcuffed, and that a torturous interrogation awaits him.

Once her men had taken Kenneth away, Hailey instructed all the men of the Secret Service to stand down.

Nathan ordered the Dragonfury Special Forces to retreat as well, leaving only Colin and the Elite Eight at his side.

Nathan got into a black MVP with Hailey, followed by several jeeps and cars behind them. The convoy sped off in the night, whizzing toward the direction of Fresh Fields Supermarket.

In the MVP, Hailey said to Nathan, “General, the President has ordered me to investigate Wyatt Windsor’s case with you and to make sure that we’re able to give him a satisfactory explanation. But you shall remain behind the scene and be discreet.”

There were two key points in Hailey’s statements; to be discreet and to produce a satisfactory explanation.

As a matter of fact, the Secret Service could have dealt with this matter by themselves, as it belonged to Hailey’s area of responsibility. Nathan didn’t have to intervene.

Besides, even if Nathan were to join in with the investigation, there was absolutely no need for him to be discreet.

In addition to the words 'satisfactory explanation', it dawned on Nathan that not only did the President want him to find out about what befell Wyatt, he also wanted him to take care of this matter to his satisfaction.

The President was asking him to avenge Wyatt Windsor!

Nathan's face remained unchanged as he said calmly, "Tell the President that I'll see to this matter and give him a satisfactory explanation."

"Understood!" Hailey nodded.

Soon, they arrived at Fresh Fields Supermarket.

It was already eleven o'clock at night. The supermarket had already closed and the backdoor of the supermarket was quiet.

At the moment, one of Hailey's men was leading the way.

with the rest of their men. “Wyatt Windsor’s body is hidden here?” Nathan asked.

“Yes, I secretly ordered my trusted aide to find it, and it wasn’t easy,” Hailey replied.

Nathan nodded. “Something’s up with Kenneth Greene. Otherwise, with the Secret Service’s ability, there’s no way that they couldn’t find out what happened to Wyatt Windsor for so long.”

Hailey lowered her voice as she said, “What happened to Wyatt Windsor has a huge impact, and it involves a lot of people. The President urged you to be cautious in dealing with this.”

“I know what to do,” Nathan said.

Soon, Nathan and his men arrived at the back entrance of the supermarket’s cold storage.

What's going on?

Is it possible that there are supermarket employees who are transporting things to the cold storage in the middle of the night?

Nathan and Hailey exchanged a suspicious glance.

Suddenly, a group of people come out from the cold storage, leading the group was a man wearing a black cloak that covered every part of his body.

However, under the dim lights, the man's handsome face and long silver hair stood out a mile.

The man was none other than Fin Leeroy.

Following Boris's orders, Fin was ready to transport Wyatt's body from the cold storage to the residence of Colin and the Elite Eight, and pin the blame on Nathan.

But he didn't expect to run into Nathan and his men at the door as soon as they moved the body out from the cold storage.

Truth be told, Nathan and Hailey, too, were surprised at their chance encounter.

Hailey stared at Fin and his men and said frigidly, "Indeed. What an unexpected surprise."

Fin was a little shocked to run into Nathan here. Didn't Sergeant Greene arrest Nathan Cross? How is he here?

He calmed himself down and slowly reached for the combat dagger at his waist.

The men behind him followed suit, looking like a group of beasts that was ready to attack at any time.

This put Colin and the Elite Eight, who

A dangerous glint flashed across Fin's eyes as he roared, "Argh!"

He pulled out a combat dagger and charged at Colin. The combat dagger turned into a streak of light as it pierced through the air towards Colin's head.

Colin reached behind and pulled out a dagger as he got ready to attack without a trace of fear on his face.

Clang!

Crisp noises sounded as their weapons collided.

Both of them attacked relentlessly after that. The battle was extremely intense with sounds of combat dagger clashing continuously.

In the meantime, the Elite Eight were fighting against Fin's subordinates.

Fin's men were all elites picked by the Leeroy family from the North. They were all highly skilled warriors and were even comparable to the soldiers from the Special Forces.

However, the Elite Eight were the personal guards of the General of the North. Eight of them were the best warriors and they were known as the King of Warriors. The Elite Eight were far more powerful than the Special Forces' soldiers.

In no time at all, Fin's men were all defeated by the Elite Eight.

A few of the men were captured alive by the Elite Eight. The remaining few saw the situation and quickly slashed their own throats to avoid being captured.

Colin and Fin were the only ones left fighting on the battlefield.

There were holes and cuts on Colin's military uniform but he wasn't injured.

However, the hood of Fin's cloak was shredded by Colin's dagger. Colin kept on slashing at Fin's hood that even a fragment of the latter's hair had been cut off.

Fin never thought that Colin was such a powerful man. He didn't have the upper hand when fighting with Colin at all! What's more, his men were all defeated. A long battle wouldn't do him any good.

Fin knew that it was already too late for him to turn back so he decided to go all out.

If he could kill Nathan, then his Godfather would be one step closer to fulfilling his wish of becoming the General of the North.

The old-schools of the North would regain control of the North and they would be one step closer to their goal of going back to being the top of the world.

So with eyes full of determination, Fin kept slashing his dagger in front of him and forced Colin to back away from him.

After that, the ground beneath him rumbled and shattered as he surged towards Nathan like a cannonball.

But it was still slow in Nathan’s eyes.

Nathan even noticed that there was a symbol of a python on the back of Fin’s combat dagger.

The symbol of a python!

It’s the emblem of the Leeroy family from the North!

Nathan’s brows furrowed as he raised his hand to pinch the dagger Fin was using with his fingers.

Nathan broke Fin's combat dagger with ease and at the same time, he landed a punch on Fin's chest.

Pfft!

Fin coughed out a mouthful of blood and flew backward as if he was a kite with a torn string.

Nathan didn't even bat an eye at Fin and studied the broken blade in his palm instead. He looked at the symbol of the python on the blade and spoke determinedly, "The King of the North, the Leeroy family!"

Hailey was dumbfounded when she saw the emblem of the Leeroy family from the North.

She said with a low voice, “The King of the North, Leeroy family is actually involved! General, does this mean we can immediately take action against the Leeroy family?”

Nathan shook his head and stated calmly, “No. First of all, the Leeroy family is extremely powerful. There are Leeroy family’s younger generation and followers throughout the military. It’s simply a stretch if we’re going to strike against the King of the North, Lucifer Leeroy with just these few people alone. Do you believe that Lucifer Leeroy can casually cover up this matter?”

Hailey frowned when she realized that she had been too naïve.

She lowered her voice and asked, “Then what should we do now?”

Nathan narrowed his eyes and said, “Since

With the way things unfolded, everything must've been done by the King of the North, Lucifer Leeroy to snatch Nathan's position as the General of the North.

Since it was a fight between the old and new nobles of the North, Nathan had to return and deal with it.

Nathan needed to punish them too in order to give the President a satisfactory explanation.

But if Nathan were to return to the North, it meant that his vacation needed to end earlier than planned.

Hailey stared at Nathan and said softly, "General, I heard that your wedding is tomorrow. But this situation is so urgent. Will you be postponing your wedding?"

He promised to give Penny a grand wedding and even promised her that she would be the most beautiful and happiest bride.

That was why his wedding tomorrow had to happen as planned.

It needed to be a really grand wedding too.

Nathan didn't return home that night. Instead, he and Hailey sent Wyatt's body back to Brimmopolis.

Chapter 1357 Nathan Is Back

Another group of guests came at this moment. This time, it was the governor of the South, Patrick Ward.

Patrick led his group of subordinates and quipped, "I am the governor of the South, Patrick Ward. I heard that it's Mr. Cross and Ms. Smith's wedding and came uninvited. I'm welcomed here, aren't I, Ms. Smith?"

Of course!

Of course you're welcomed!

Penny and her family were starting to feel excited. The governor who could only be seen on TV normally was here for Penny and Nathan's wedding. It was a great honor!

Groups and groups of guests followed. All of them were respectable nobles and important members of society.

In the end, even those with the status of a mayor of Channing, like Russell Crow, didn't have seats anymore. They could only stand around as they chatted and laughed.

The Smiths were absolutely dumbfounded as they had never experienced such glory.

Ferlyn, who was still looking down at Penny previously, along with Derek and his son who came to look for trouble were absolutely appalled at the scene in front of them.

Derek and his son knew that something wasn't right and tried to take advantage of the crowd as camouflage to sneak away.

However right when they reached the door, an excited cheer came from the outside, "He's back! Nathan is back!"

What?

Derek and his son's faces turned ashen upon hearing the news.

Didn't Nathan kill Wyatt and was arrested by the Secret Service? Doesn't he have a death warrant issued against him?

Chapter 1357 Nathan Is Back

So why is Nathan back now?

When they thought about how they had treated Penny disrespectfully earlier and recalled Nathan's status, their legs instantly weakened.

Penny, Benson, Leah, Kylie, and the rest were ecstatic when they heard that Nathan was back.

Penny was so overwhelmed that tears started to well up in her eyes. She lifted her wedding dress and dashed towards the door.

Kylie and the others followed behind her and shouted, "Hey, be careful! You're wearing heels!"

Penny and the rest of the Smiths came to the entrance of the Smith family residence. They immediately saw a line of cars outside.

There was a Hongqi right in front followed by a black SUV behind. All of the cars had a red-colored letter at the beginning of the car plates, representing cars from the military.

All of the attendees were stunned.

There's so many military cars!

Soon, all the cars stopped in front of the entrance of the Smiths' residence.

An army of young men clambered out of the cars. Most of them were officers with several generals among them.

The Smiths and everyone present gasped. Why are there so many military officers here?

Then, dressed in a colonel's uniform, Colin strode to the back door of the Hongqi and opened with respect.

Penny and the rest were shocked once again. They didn't expect Colin, Nathan's sidekick, to be a colonel!

Who exactly is Nathan Cross?

Penny and everyone present collectively looked in the direction of the backseat of the Hongqi. A well-built figure with eyes shining like stars got off the car nonchalantly. He was dressed in a white military uniform with gold stripes. It was the General's uniform.

It's Nathan!

Penny's eyes widened. Everyone was staring at Nathan's military uniform in shock.

Their gaze fell on Nathan's shoulder and they saw the golden national emblem and a sword on it.

Everyone couldn't help but draw in a deep breath. Could Nathan be...

That was when all of the officers and soldiers, including Russell, Patrick, Franklin, and the others presented a military salute, "Greetings, General!"

General!

Penny was shocked.

Sean was shocked.

Even Benson and Leah were shocked.

Ferlyn and the rest of The Smiths were flabbergasted. All of those who were present and didn't know about Nathan's identity gaped at the sight of him.

Queenie, who was held by Leah, clapped and shouted with her face red with excitement, "Papa's so handsome!"

Penny quickly regained her senses when she heard her daughter's words.

She stood rooted on her spot as she stared at Nathan. There were tenderness and happiness in her eyes, but there was also accusation and resentment.

Nathan walked towards Penny as they fixed their gazes on each other.

Penny stared at Nathan's tenacious yet gentle eyes. After staying strong for the past few days, she couldn't help it as tears fell.

Nathan panicked upon the sight of her. He quickly took her in his embrace and comforted her, "Don't cry! It's our wedding day today!"

Penny reached out to hit Nathan and said with a voice that was somehow filled with happiness and reproach, "What have you been doing these days? Why didn't you tell me anything? I've been so worried. And why are they calling you the General? What else are you hiding from me?"

Nathan answered softly, "I've always been the General of the North. I told you about it previously but you didn't believe me!"

Penny was rendered speechless. Nathan did tell me that he's the General more than once. But he didn't try to prove it to me even when I didn't believe him.

I can't believe he's actually the General of the North!

Nathan added, "I just regained my freedom last night. I didn't let you know about it immediately because I was busy."

Penny couldn't help but ask, "What were you busy with?"

Nathan beamed as he turned around and looked towards the ninety-nine children of varying ages not far away from them. He said, "I was busy picking them up so that they can attend our wedding."

Penny asked in surprise, "These kids are..."

Nathan took out a ring box with a diamond ring in it. It was the 'Eternal Love' diamond ring that they spent about a billion on at the charity gala.

Nathan smiled and said, "All these ninety-nine children were treated for blindness by the charity fund after the donation drive. They have regained their sight. As an act of gratitude, they came all the way here as invited, to witness our love."

Penny's body slightly shivered upon his words. She held on to Nathan's hand tightly and said, "That's so romantic, Hubby! I'm so happy!"

Kylie's voice sounded at this moment, "Hey! Why are you in such a hurry to leave? Aren't you going to give your blessings to Penny and Nathan before you leave?"

Derek and Mason tried to sneak out of the wedding hall but Kylie noticed what they were doing and quickly called out to them.

Nathan furrowed his brows slightly when his gaze landed on Derek and his group.

Kylie quickly went over to Nathan and whispered something in his ears.

Nathan's expression darkened when he looked at Derek and Mason, "Derek Harvey, you sure have some guts!"

Nathan stared at Derek and Mason who were kneeling on the ground with cold eyes and sneered, "Today is my wedding day so I won't take things to heart. Both of you, disabled one of your arms and get out of Channing. Never let me see you again."

Derek and his son felt a sliver of hope when they heard that Nathan wouldn't take things to heart.

But their faces immediately turned ashen when they were ordered to cut off their own arm.

But this was actually quite the 'better off' consequences for offending the General.

If it weren't Nathan's wedding today, with his temper, the father-son duo would have been dead.

Derek didn't dare to have any objections. After looking around, he found a piece of a wooden stick and hit himself hard on his left arm.

With a loud snap, Derek's left arm was broken.

Cold sweat broke out and his face was contorted in pain, but he didn't even dare to cry out in pain.

Mason's face was pale as he followed suit. He took the wooden stick from his father and broke his own arm.

Everyone felt chills all over their bodies when they heard the sound of bones breaking.

The crowd also felt a sense of awe when they looked at Nathan.

Derek and his son should've taken a good look at who Mr. Cross really is. You're really courting death when you came here to bully Ms. Smith. The crowd thought to themselves.

Derek's face grimaced in pain as he said weakly, "General, I'll sell off all our properties once I'm back. Please give me some time."

Nathan said coldly, “Two days. I’m only giving you two days to get the hell out of Channing.”

“Yes, General!”

Derek’s heart was bleeding as he had to sell off all his shares and properties within a short period of two days. He predicted that he would even have to sell his shares at a loss. Otherwise, none of the large buyers would buy it in such a short period of time.

He was full of regret. If I knew this would happen, I’d rather die than bully Penny.

However, there were no ifs and buts in this world. Derek and his son were lucky enough to be able to keep their lives. Not daring to say anything else, they scuttled away along with their subordinates.

Meanwhile, Nathan scanned the crowd and the smile returned to his face. He said casually, “Thank you all for coming to my wedding with Penn. Please make yourselves comfortable. I’ll be sure to have a few drinks with all of you today.”

Franklin, Patrick, and the others in the crowd smiled and cheered.

Sean and his family were still full of shock when they looked at Nathan. They couldn't process what had happened and couldn't accept that Nathan was actually the General of the North.

Sean rushed to Nathan along with the rest of his family. He couldn't help but ask, “Nathan, are you really the General of the North? Am I dreaming? Do you mind slapping me so that I can be sure I'm not dreaming?”

Nathan smiled and replied, “Old Master, you're not dreaming. All of this is real. I am the General of the North. But I'm not any different from the other soldiers. We're all here for the country and to protect the country and its people from harm. You don't have to look at me differently. It's also why I didn't tell you all my identity previously.”

Sean was so excited, he grabbed hold of Benson in one hand and Leah in the other as he exclaimed, "This son-in-law of yours is really something! Penn has great taste! Your family has great taste! Haha! God bless the Smith family!"

Everyone from the Smith family stared at Penny with envy in their eyes.

Penny was calm despite the honor. It didn't matter even if Nathan was an ordinary retired soldier or the General of the North. He was still the man she loved. He was her husband. That was why her feelings for him wouldn't change because of his identity.

Benson and Leah were extremely proud and happy when they saw the envy in their friends and family's eyes.

None of the elders in the Smith family loved them in the past. Now that they have Nathan as their son-in-law, they had finally made a name for themselves.

The one who felt the most awkward was Penny's cousin, Ferlyn.

Before Nathan was back, Ferlyn was still ridiculing Penny. She mocked Penny that she was going to get married to a murderer and that it was embarrassing as there were only few guests who attended her wedding.

She didn't expect Nathan to be back. He was even dressed in his uniform and exuded an aura like that of a monarch overlooking the world.

Ferlyn was feeling both ashamed and envious as she watched Penny who was standing shoulder to shoulder with Nathan.

Chapter 1360 Bridesmaids

Nathan and Penny entered The Smiths' family home surrounded by the crowd.

Nathan questioned Penny softly, "How are the wedding preparations?"

Penny blushed slightly and whispered, "Everything's ready. But the young ladies from the prestigious families who promised to be our bridesmaids heard that you were arrested by the Secret Service. They even said that you were in deep trouble. They were afraid of being implicated so they backtracked from the responsibilities of being bridesmaids. Now Kylie and Frida will be acting as my bridesmaids."

Just as she said this, a few Maserati cars stopped in front of the Smith's residence. A few beautiful women got down from the cars, with Channing's famous socialite, Hadia Scoles in the lead.

Hadia and the other socialites went over to Penny. They smiled and said, "Hi General, Ms. Smith. Ms. Smith, we thought about it. Since we're your best friends, we have to be your bridesmaids at your wedding.”

“Yes, yes! We’re here to be your bridesmaids.”

Penny had a complicated expression on her face.

What a hypocrite! When Nathan was in trouble, they immediately cut off all ties and even said that they didn’t want to be my bridesmaids anymore. They even ridiculed and taunted me for getting married to a murderer.

But now that they heard that Nathan isn’t a murderer and is in fact the General of the North, Hadia and her group came back almost immediately to be my bridesmaids.

Before Penny could say anything, Nathan said indifferently, “Sorry. After you rejected to be our bridesmaids, we found someone else to substitute you. We don’t need you to be our bridesmaids anymore.”

Hadia and her group were surprised and full of regret. She refused to accept it and said, “Who is going to be your bridesmaids if not us, the famous ladies of the South?”

Just then, a convoy of cars belonging to the military arrived outside.

A bunch of men and women in uniform got off from the cars. The men with muscular physique and women with beautiful appearances were wearing Major General uniforms.

It turned out that a group of mid-ranking generals of the North Army had arrived.

The male Major Generals were Fang, Destroyer, and Heptakill.

And the female Major Generals were Jules, Nine, and Phoenix.

Nathan grinned, “There. Our groomsmen and bridesmaids are here. Are these bridesmaids any better than you all?”

nothing against this group of generals!

They had nothing to say and quickly backed away.

Fang and the others walked over to Nathan and said in unison, "Greetings, General!"

Nathan smiled, "No need to be polite."

At that moment, another group of distinguished guests arrived. It turned out that was the Major General of Capital Garrison in Brimmopolis, Will Long.

After Will presented a salute to Nathan, he smiled and took out a gift. "It's the General's big day today! Too bad the President and the First Lady couldn't come to your wedding since they were met with a tragedy. But they personally wrote a wedding testimonial for the two of you and wishes that you have a happy marriage."

Will then pulled out the wedding testimonial and gave it to Nathan.

Nathan and Penny quickly accepted it. It's
