

Chapter 146

Alyssa sat aside and frowned in frustration. It was probably the sea breeze that blew through, and the room suddenly smelled much fishier. She frowned and covered her mouth tightly. But the smell still got into her nose.

"Ugh ..."

Alyssa bent over and threw up.

Alyssa retreated to the side uncomfortably. A sudden gust of wind blew over and she shivered. The weather was cold these days. She obviously felt colder.

She didn't have many clothes on. This was the beach. If she spent the night like this, she would definitely catch a cold the next day. Alyssa suddenly became worried when she thought that she would catch a cold.

She was pregnant, so she couldn't catch a cold. The doctor had said something about it last time.

No, she had to find a way to get out of here.

Alyssa wondered how to get out of here when she suddenly felt a strong gust of wind.

There was the wind?

Alyssa's eyes lit up.

She hadn't thought that there must be windows where there was the wind!

She looked up and started looking for the wind. Finally, she saw the window with the broken glass.

That window wasn't big. Alyssa looked down at herself. She should be able to climb out. But the window was too high. She felt weakness in her legs when she looked at the window that high.

If she wanted to climb up, she would have to find a tool that could help her climb up.

Alyssa had to use the tools around her. But there wasn't even a chair. There were only several fishy-smelling barrels around.

Those barrels were taller than she was, and it was difficult for her to climb up.

Even if she could climb up to the window with the help of the barrel, she still had to find a way to climb up to the barrel.

Alyssa went to the barrel and tried to climb up. But after several attempts, she couldn't get up there.

It was getting colder and colder. Her clothes were not enough to fight the cold.

She must find a way to get out of this place. No matter what way, she had to get out of here.

With the motivation to get out of here, she started to move those barrels.

When she pushed away a layer of large barrels, she unexpectedly found that there was a layer of small barrels below.

Those small barrels were iron barrels, but they were empty and not too heavy. She picked up a barrel to test its weight, and then the corners of her mouth raised.

It seemed that it was not difficult to climb up the window. She hurriedly stacked up those small barrels.

Leon sat in his office, his hand shaking slightly as he held the phone.

Before, when he called Alyssa, no one answered the phone, but now Alyssa's phone was off directly.

She had never been like this since she had been married to him.

He called someone to look for Alyssa at school and also asked Ella, who said that Alyssa said she was going to call him, and then she never saw Alyssa again.

He accessed the school's surveillance and also checked Alyssa's last call record. All the evidence pointed to Ryan.

At one point, he really suspected that Alyssa and Ryan had escaped.

Everything before was a blindfold used by Alyssa to paralyze him.

But the next investigation made him suddenly panic.

Because he found that Ryan and Emily had contact.

Knowing that it might have something to do with Emily, he immediately went to find Ryan.

Ryan was stopped in a car. His men brought Ryan to him. Before he could speak, Ryan fell to his knees and begged him for mercy. He said that Alyssa was taken by Emily.

Leon had Ryan interrogated harshly. He had to know where Alyssa was.

It was now 10:30 PM.

Nine hours had passed since Alyssa was taken away.

Where was Alyssa now?

At that moment, his phone suddenly rang. Seeing that it was a call from his bodyguard, he hurriedly picked up the phone.

"Mr. Hunter, Ryan said he recently started gambling and owed a lot of money. A few days ago, Emily found him and said she could help him pay the money and give him some money as well. She asked him to find a way to lure Mrs. Hunter out. Today he followed Mrs. Hunter on purpose and lured Mrs. Hunter out. Mrs. Hunter was taken by Emily. We found a man named Duncan, a fisherman from Hoyo Fisheries, based on the clues provided by Ryan. Previously, he had been fishing in the sea. Now, he is in charge of looking after the warehouse when he is getting older. According to his explanation, someone offered him to use the warehouse that had been idle for a few days. That person wanted to load some rags and pay him 300 yuan a day. He then agreed without the company's knowledge. There wasn't much inventory left in the warehouse this season, so the warehouses were empty."

After the bodyguard said their findings, Leon found the whole thing suspicious.

What could be kept in a smelly and fishy warehouse like that by paying three hundred yuan a day?

It seemed that they should be trying to hide something.

Leon immediately understood.

Alyssa was there!

If Emily dared to put Alyssa in the warehouse, he would make her pay for it.

"Mr. Hunter, other than that, we haven't found any trace of Emily."

"Other than Emily, what moves have the Coles made?"

Hearing that Emily hadn't been found, Leon wasn't so angry.

No matter how anxious he was, he had to be rational. Emily must have planned everything long ago. She used Ryan to lure Alyssa out and then took Alyssa away. It was his fault for not taking precautions before.

It was he who put Alyssa in danger. It was useless for him to be anxious now. He might as well calm down and solve the problem.

"Mr. Hunter, what should we do now?"

"Let's go to the warehouse first. You continue to find someone to keep an eye on the Coles. They will not remain quiet forever. Tomorrow morning, they are bound to show up."

Leon had already ordered the finance department to cut off the money chain in C City. He had gotten an audit to check their accounts. Even if there was no problem with their accounts, he would still find a way to ask the audit to find out some problems.

When the time came, he wanted to see how they were going to defend themselves.

In the meantime, Leon had asked people to blockade the airport, train station, high-speed rail, and ferry. His men were everywhere and Emily couldn't leave with Alyssa.

Of course, if Audrey, the most impatient, was ready to leave, it would be a good thing for him.

After catching Audrey, he might be able to find Alyssa. Even if he couldn't find Alyssa, he would have a bargaining chip with Emily.

But even with all the arrangements and preparations made, Leon was still nervous.

He hung up the bodyguard and went to the warehouse directly.

In the warehouse.

Alyssa stacked small barrels layer by layer. The third layer of small barrels was already about two meters high. She stacked these small barrels very carefully. However, she still felt unstable when she stood up.

Before, she had jumped from the building. Now she was still scared.

But now the wind was blowing harder and harder, and her whole body was freezing. Even if Emily didn't trouble her, she would just freeze to death here.
