

Chapter 157

Since she was going to get to the bottom of this, she was going to get to everyone!

Hassan liked Alyssa's working attitude.

There was a spirit in her that no one else had.

The more time he spent with her, the more he could feel her composure. Those interns simply couldn't match Alyssa.

"Do you need help? I can get you an intern to help you with your investigation."

"No, it's better to leave those interns to you to teach. My time is not fixed. I'd rather not bother anyone else."

Alyssa sounded like she didn't want to trouble others. But on second thought, Hassan thought that Alyssa might think that those interns would get her into trouble.

She seemed to be increasingly confident in the workplace.

Hassan nodded, "Then you can talk to me any time you need something. I can help you."

"Okay."

She needed cooperation from Hassan, who had much more experience than she did.

She turned to go out. When she reached the door, she stopped, "I have to go to school this afternoon, so I won't come to the company."

Hassan stretched out his hand, indicating that she could leave at will. Alyssa pulled the corner of her mouth.

Hassan didn't really care at all.

He was the boss, and the boss had that right.

Alyssa came out of Citic and called Leon.

Leon said he had a meeting at noon today. She didn't want to disturb Leon.

Hunter Group was preparing to sign a contract with MJ abroad, and Leon was particularly busy these days.

She didn't want to disturb Leon, so she went to the school cafeteria to eat alone. While eating, she was doing some research.

Suddenly, she vaguely felt that some boys were approaching her. She looked up curiously.

She looked up and saw a shy boy standing in front of her.

The boy looked at Alyssa and smiled at Alyssa. However, his smile was also shy.

Alyssa did not know this boy. He must have something to say to her as he stood here.

"Just say what you want." She said as she put the information in the file folder. This was the case of Citic, kind of confidential. As an employee, she naturally had to protect the company's confidential documents.

The boy didn't notice Alyssa's documents and just looked at Alyssa and smiled.

Alyssa frowned, "If you don't say, I'll leave."

As far as she could remember, she hadn't offended this boy.

Seeing that Alyssa was leaving, the boy finally stood up and ran up to Alyssa hurriedly, "Miss Graham, I want to ask you a favor."

Alyssa frowned. This boy was healthy and fairly good-looking. What favor did he want from her?

She was a little curious and asked softly, "What do you want from me?"

"Nothing, it's just that ... I have a letter for Ella ... but I've never had a chance to approach Ella. Can you help me?"

Hearing his words, Alyssa looked down and saw the letter in his hand. She smiled.

It turned out that this boy liked Ella. In fact, Ella was often at school and was a typical well-behaved girl. There was no way he wouldn't have a chance to approach Ella. So, he should be ... shy?

Alyssa laughed. She couldn't help but start observing this boy. He was not bad-looking, but she didn't know his name. Moreover, she knew Ella was quite critical. She probably wouldn't like this boy.

Besides, her mind had been on her studies all these years. She now had to work for Lloyd Group, so it was impossible for her to put her mind on a relationship.

But ... she couldn't make the decision.

In that case, she could ask Ella.

Alyssa looked at the shy boy and said softly, "I can help you. However, you have to do me a favor. How about we help each other?"

"Okay." After hearing Alyssa's words, the boy felt less nervous than before. He looked at Alyssa and smiled, "I can do whatever you want me to do for you, but I can't do anything bad."

"I just want you to take a window seat in the library for me. I'm going to be in the library from time to time for a few days, so you need to go to the library and take a seat for me. I don't want to have no seat in the library when I get there."

"Okay, I can go to the library and take a seat for you."

The boy nodded, looked at Alyssa with a smile and turned around, and walked away.

Alyssa thought that was fine.

She would probably go to the library a lot these days to do some research.

It would certainly be nice to have someone to take a seat for her.

She continued to look up Riley, Nash, and Venture Corporation.

Riley, as she had found out before, was nothing different.

Nash was indeed a student of Riley's. Three years ago, he and Riley had a falling out over the ownership of "Hydrodynamic". It even made headlines at that time.

Nash then went to Venture Corporation, where he was now a vice president, primarily in charge of the technology division.

Venture Corporation's chairman was Zain Kent, who started Venture Corporation five years ago, but had been working with other companies to sell some of the smaller brands that other companies sold to Venture Corporation. Three years ago, Venture Corporation worked with a lot of companies but had few achievements.

Venture Corporation was not very big. Now they actually sued Riley for the right to run "Hydrodynamic".

Alyssa thought that was strange.

She was not sure about why Venture Corporation had suddenly sued Riley and had sued Riley to the point of losing money and the patent. The key to this matter lied in Riley and Nash.

Nash was Riley's student. When "Hydrodynamic" was first developed, Nash was involved in it. It was not surprising that he knew about the content of "Hydrodynamic".

But Riley was a professor after all. He was the one who was in charge.

Probably because of her suffering in her last life, Alyssa didn't trust anyone in this life except her family and herself.

She wanted to ask her grandfather for advice but was worried that he would be angry if he knew she was pregnant and then went to work at Citic. Maybe it would be a good idea to ask Leon.

She came out of school and went to the place where she had last bought tea. She bought a cup of black tea and went to Hunter Group.

It was just about the end of the day at this time.

Alyssa called Leon from downstairs.

Leon quickly answered the phone.

"Leon, I'm waiting for you downstairs at your company. Can you get off work on time today? If not, it's okay for me to bring your tea upstairs."

"Yes, you can wait for me downstairs for a while. I'll pack my things and go down immediately."

His wife came to pick him up from work. No matter how busy he was, he had to hurry to see his wife. To him, seeing his wife was the most important thing.
