

Chapter 164

10:30 PM.

Alyssa was still at Jones Group for her research.

Her phone suddenly rang.

Alyssa picked up the phone and heard Leon's voice.

"Alyssa, where are you?"

Alyssa answered while looking at the time, "I'm at Jones Group."

Hearing Alyssa's location, Leon was a little confused, "I'm going to pick you up now."

"I'd like to stay here a little longer. I just found out something. By the way, there's something I need to tell you. Do you remember Chloe, that designer?"

"Yeah?"

"She was introduced to Jones Group by Walter, who is Derick's brother. I thought about it carefully and found it both interesting and scary. Is there a huge chain of interests behind this?"

Leon thought about what Alyssa said carefully. But he didn't know how to guide Alyssa properly for a while, so he had to keep quiet for the time being.

Alyssa happened to find out other information about Chloe. She said softly, "I need to check the information for a while longer. You can go back and rest. I'll be back when I'm done."

"I'll pick you up."

"But I don't know when I'll be done checking."

"That's okay. I can wait for you."

Soon, the phone hung up.

Alyssa couldn't help but smile at the thought of Leon coming to pick her up and take her home. She immediately sped up, taking her notebook and writing down all the useful information.

She could have been faster if she hadn't been prohibited from taking pictures.

It was 1:30 am.

Alyssa finally finished reading all the information.

She came out of Jones Group and saw Leon waiting in the car.

She was surprised and delighted at the same time. She felt sorry when she thought that Leon had come because he was worried about her.

Before she went forward, she saw Leon get out of the car and walk toward her.

"Are you done?"

"Yeah." Alyssa looked at Leon, "Have you been waiting for a long time?"

"Hmm." Leon looked at Alyssa's pale face and asked softly, "Are you tired?"

"No, I'm just a little sleepy. I finished reading all the information, and I gained a lot. I'll tell you when I get back." Alyssa pursed her lips, "I think this whole thing is a little complicated. It seems like a huge headhunter, but not completely. I don't know what to say. I don't think what they're doing is legal, and they even hit the moral line."

There were a few headhunters in the market, but they all dealt in the normal way. Apparently, the ones she had contacted today were companies that did not deal in the normal way.

Leon nodded, vaguely sensing that Alyssa had found out something.

"Let's go home and talk about it later."

"Okay."

Alyssa nodded.

Sitting in the car, Alyssa felt warm.

She was sleepy and wanted to sleep.

Half an hour later.

Leon took Alyssa back to the villa.

As soon as he turned his head, he saw Alyssa sitting on the seat and falling asleep!

She was worried about waking Alyssa and simply sat in the car to work.

He replied to an email unhurriedly. It didn't take long for Alyssa to wake up.

"Did I wake you?" Leon stroked Alyssa's little head, "You're too tired."

"It's okay. I'm not very tired yet. I just think this thing is getting harder and harder. All of a sudden, I don't have a clue." Alyssa leaned back tiredly against the car seat and said softly, "Hunter Group, Jones Group, Sky, and Venture Corporation, or other companies, even Citic, may have employees who are traitors."

In front of Leon, Alyssa said what she thought.

Leon was not surprised and nodded, "It's quite normal. If you were a mid-level employee of some company and someone offered you a lot of money and asked you to give them some information, would you agree? People love money. So about what you said about traitors in the companies, it's all possible."

Leon had been in this circle for a long time.

He had long been accustomed to this kind of thing.

This was all normal. As long as it didn't get too big in the circle, no one would know.

Besides, many companies were connected, just like what happened last time when Jones Group leaked the design.

He could easily get Mr. Jones to compromise because he had something on Jones Group.

As for how Jones Group actually worked on this matter, no one knew.

When Alyssa heard Leon's words, she understood that he already knew what she had found out.

She looked at Leon, "So what should I do next?"

"You want to solve Sky's case, not expand this case, right?"

Alyssa hesitated and then nodded.

Leon was right. She couldn't care that much. All she could do now was to take care of Sky's case.

Alyssa said seriously, "I'll think about it. I should be able to handle this."

"Well, feel free to come to me if you have any questions."

Alyssa nodded and pulled the door open to get out of the car. But before her feet hit the ground, Leon came over and picked her up.

Alyssa was stunned for a moment. Her arms immediately wrapped around Leon's neck. She looked up and found Leon looking at her, "I didn't know you had such strength. You scared me."

"You're too tense, relax."

"Okay."

Alyssa relaxed and yawned in Leon's arms.

Leon sent her straight to the bedroom. She felt that Leon really knew her.

After relaxing, she got sleepy again.

The bedroom was warm and Leon helped her change into her pajamas personally.

Alyssa was very sleepy, but she grabbed Leon and wouldn't let go.

Leon just felt a small brush across his heart.

He looked at Alyssa and went over to her and kissed her hard.

Alyssa looked at Leon in surprise and didn't say anything for a long time.

"It's dark, and it's bedtime. You hurry up and go to bed." Alyssa hurriedly prompted her husband, who had turned on, to go to bed!

But her voice was soft and sounded seductive instead!

Leon looked at Alyssa, only to see her red cheeks slightly lowered.

He could only see half of her little face.

Leon couldn't help but swallow.

Alyssa felt that Leon's expression when he looked at her was not right!

She couldn't figure out what was wrong. Then, she looked up and met Leon's eyes staring at her.

His eyes were dark as if he wanted to eat her up right away.

Looking at him, she lowered her head in embarrassment.

She felt that it was useless for her to say anything now, so she simply said nothing, pulled the covers over her, and hid herself in as if she were going to sleep.

She knew Leon. Even if he wanted to do something, he wouldn't say anything if he watched her sleep.

Sure enough, Leon was quiet. When she wondered where Leon was going, she looked up and found Leon in the bathroom.

Soon, she heard the sound of water running in the bathroom.

Alyssa frowned innocently. Leon had just taken a shower, hadn't he? Why did he suddenly go to the bathroom again?

Wasn't he afraid that his skin would shed if he took too many baths?

That hurt!

In fact, she knew what Leon wanted to do. After three months, they could do that.

When she thought of this, Alyssa felt she should comfort Leon.

They would have plenty of opportunities in the future. For them, having a baby was the most important thing right now.

She was going to wait for Leon to finish his shower and talk to him about it.

But she couldn't resist the urge to sleep. After a while, she was more and more sleepy.

She yawned and quickly closed her eyes and fell asleep.

Leon came out of the shower and saw that Alyssa had fallen asleep.

She slept really fast. He wanted to talk to her for a while!

Anyway, if he kept looking at her, he might have something else in mind.

He hesitated and decided to sleep in the guest room.

Alyssa woke up at the dawn of the next day.

She had just moved and suddenly wanted to vomit. She immediately woke up, ran in the direction of the bathroom, and threw up into the sink.

Wendy was the first to notice that Alyssa was throwing up. She rushed in to help Alyssa pat her back.

Alyssa felt better after she threw up. She was about to tell Wendy not to worry about her.

When she turned her head and saw Leon approaching, she immediately became aggravated. She ran to Leon with red eyes.

Looking at Alyssa's red eyes, Leon hugged Alyssa tightly.

Alyssa cried in Leon's arms in aggravation, "Oooh, I'm throwing up. I'm so sick. Where have you been?"

Her voice was a little hoarse and sounded soft and delicate.

Leon felt even more distressed for Alyssa. The little brush in his heart started to brush again.

Suddenly he didn't know what to say.

"Oooh, I don't feel well." She didn't know why she was so aggravated. Seeing Leon made her feel very aggravated. She leaned into Leon's arms and cried in aggravation.

"Don't cry. I'll take you to the hospital. The doctor will surely have a solution."

"No."

Alyssa insisted not to go to the hospital.

"How about I bring the doctor into the house?" Leon changed his approach.

"No, I don't want to see a doctor. I'm hungry. You prepare something for me to eat. I'm so hungry."

Alyssa was really hungry.

Her stomach was empty just now.

She hugged Leon, "I want to eat meat."

When he heard Alyssa's words, Leon looked at Wendy, "Wendy, go prepare some meat. Alyssa wants to eat meat."

Wendy quickly nodded, "I'll go right away."

Wendy immediately went to the kitchen.

Alyssa hugged Leon and refused to let Leon go.

"I'll go get you some water."

"No, I want you to hold me. You're not allowed to leave. Why weren't you there when I wasn't feeling well? What have you been doing?" Alyssa felt aggrieved again at this thought. She cried sadly. Her tears fell on Leon's white shirt.
