

Chapter 182

Hospital.

George grabbed Leon's collar and swung his fist at Leon. However, he missed Leon and hit the wall directly next to him.

"You still have the face to hide? It's because of you that Grandpa is like this." George glared at Leon, "Grandpa gave you all the best, and you let Alyssa hurt Grandpa. Are you out of your mind to marry that kind of heartless woman? I didn't believe my mom when she said that woman wasn't a good person. Now it seems that my mom is right."

"Shut up!" Leon held George down and pushed him to the other side, "If you don't want to be beaten, get the hell out of my face. I don't want to see you right now."

"Am I not telling the truth? What the hell does that woman want? Does she want Hunter Group? Then you give it to her! People like you who can't tell right from wrong will have nothing because of that woman sooner or later! My mom is right. You are nothing. You have no talent for leadership. Hunter Group should not belong to you."

"You think your mom is right?"

"Of course, if it wasn't for Alyssa, would Grandpa be like this? My mom is right! That woman is a scourge, and sooner or later, she will ruin our family!"

When he thought of his grandfather still in a coma, George couldn't wait to break that woman's body into pieces.

"You've seen your mother?"

Leon quickly realized that George had probably met his mother.

She was his mother. There was nothing strange about them seeing each other.

"I'm telling you, Leon, if anything really happens to Grandpa, I won't forgive you! I won't give up Hunter Group to you either."

"Fine, let's see if you have that ability!"

Leon really wanted to see what George could do. Being able to snatch Hunter Group from him was definitely quite a skill.

"Then let's see if I can still tolerate you if something really happens to Grandpa." George turned around and left, "Now, I'm going to go see that woman and ask her why she did such a thing. Grandpa gave her five percent of Hunter Group's shares, which meant that he treated her like the Hunters! Why would she want to hurt Grandpa?"

Leon didn't stop George.

He only called his bodyguard after George's figure disappeared and told him to follow George. First, he wanted to know if George had met with Audrey. Second, he was curious about what Alyssa would say when George went to see her.

There were many doubts before. He had to check them out gradually, and it would take time.

Alyssa said she wanted to be with him and was also doing her best to please Grandpa by giving him things he liked.

On the other hand, Alyssa really didn't want to be with him at first. Her change at the wedding, however, was very sudden, as if she suddenly wanted to be with him. Her change was also very strange.

Now, Alyssa was pregnant with his child. By common sense, she should be even less likely to do that kind of thing.

He couldn't ask, but George could.

From Alyssa, he couldn't find any confidence at all. On this point, he hated himself.

He loved Alyssa not only humbly, but also without confidence.

He took a cigarette out of his pocket and went to the air vent to smoke so that he could calm down and gradually clear his mind. Only if he knew what to do next would he have a sense of direction.

George went to see Alyssa. Outside the bars, the chill surrounded George.

When she saw George, Alyssa's face was cold.

Before meeting George, she had met her grandfather and parents. They said they could take her away, but she refused.

She was supposed to leave. But now was not the time.

She didn't hurt Kevin. Leon didn't seem to believe her anymore. But that was okay. She could wait. Her grandpa and mom and dad would look into it. She wanted to see if her family was faster at finding out the truth or if Leon was faster at figuring it out.

She didn't believe that after she and Leon had been together for so long, Leon still couldn't see her heart clearly. If that was the case, it could only mean that she loved the wrong person.

Alyssa was not convinced. It was obvious that they were in love with each other.

There was a previous story between them as well. She could not be wrong in this life!

She believed in herself and doubted herself at the same time. She had no choice but to stay here to convince herself and prove Leon's thoughts.

But Leon didn't come, George did.

Looking at Alyssa's calm face, George couldn't help but grab the bars with both hands, his eyes wide, "My grandfather was so good to you, and you even tried to kill my grandfather? Are you a human being or a ghost? How can you do such a heartless thing?"

"How do you know that I did it?"

"Everyone saw you with the knife in your hand!"

Alyssa looked at George, her face slightly sunken, "Does what you saw have to be true? I didn't hurt Kevin, I never did. Besides, I considered Kevin as my grandfather long after Leon and I got married!"

She did.

She had long thought of Kevin as her grandfather in her heart.

Kevin was so good to her, especially after knowing she was pregnant. Who would do this to such a kind old man?

Alyssa clenched her hands tightly at this thought.

When she found the killer, she would have to ask if that killer was a human being or a ghost, too.

She looked up at George, "I don't want to see you right now."

"You don't want to see me? Of course, you don't want to see me! You're feeling guilty!"

"I don't want to talk to people who don't know right from wrong."

She finished and turned to leave.

George looked at Alyssa's back and his face became even grimmer. How dared a murderer to say he was indistinguishable from right and wrong! Who was she to say that he was indistinguishable from right and wrong? It was true that there was a person who was indistinguishable from right and wrong, but it was not him.

However, she just left like this.

He didn't let her go yet!

His mother was right. This woman was a demon.

He thought of his mother's words and turned to walk out. At that moment, his phone rang. Seeing that it was his mother's call, he hurriedly answered the phone and walked out, not even noticing that someone was following him.

The Graham's.

Milo and Jalen sat in the study.

"According to Alyssa, we are going to check Colton, but Colton's power is still bigger than ours. Dad, what do you think we should do?"

"The Grahams have grown to this point with the efforts of two generations of you and me." Milo finished with a sigh, "But when it comes to your generation, you only have one daughter, Alyssa. You and I have to leave our careers to Alyssa."

Jalen understood, "I see. I'll get someone to investigate Colton now."

"Go ahead! No matter what, we have to find out the answer Alyssa wants. I trust Alyssa. She won't lie to us. Even if this matter is not like what Alyssa said, it is not far from the truth. We must find a way to prove Alyssa's innocence."

"I know, father."

"Good! Alyssa is different from before. She's so stubborn. We could bring her out just now, but she wouldn't come out. She must be aggrieved. We can't let her suffer, you understand?"

Jalen nodded.

Father was right. The Grahams had only one daughter, and the Grahams' daughter couldn't be wrong.

Besides, Alyssa was really not the same as before. They should trust Alyssa's judgment.

As for Leon, if he didn't care about Alyssa or believed that Alyssa was the murderer, there would be no need for Alyssa to have any relations with him.

He didn't even trust his wife.

Jalen followed Milo's lead and got someone to look into Colton. The key was to find out what Colton was doing on that day and who he was in contact with.

They couldn't alert Colton, but they could investigate the people around him. As soon as they found out who was around Colton, the truth might come out.

He immediately made a phone call, hoping to find out the evidence of Alyssa's innocence as soon as possible.

Hospital.

Leon answered the phone call from his bodyguard.

He said to the phone, "Keep following that woman and see if that woman has contact with anyone other than George."

Leon had been staying in the hospital, but the news he received didn't stop. He believed that everything would soon come to light.

Now it was dark and Grandpa still didn't wake up. He hadn't eaten anything and kept thinking about the whole thing.

George did see Alyssa, but Alyssa didn't say much to George at all.

The police had passed the message to him.

Alyssa refused to admit to killing Kevin, and when she saw George, she also did not admit that she killed Kevin.

When she met with her family, she continued to deny it.

Maybe she really wasn't the killer.

He sat here all afternoon thinking about whether Alyssa was worthy of his trust.

Alyssa had his child, and they had gotten along so well. She always considered his feelings in everything she did. Without Alyssa, he wouldn't have been able to get rid of Audrey so quickly. Alyssa played a very important role now.

Leon suddenly felt that he had made a mistake and misjudged Alyssa.

This matter was still under investigation. No one could tell what was going on.

Although Alyssa held the knife at the scene, it was not certain that Alyssa did it.

Moreover, the cameras might be destroyed by Alyssa, or someone else might destroy them.

He finished a cigarette and turned around to go to the doctor's office.

Doctor's office.

Leon sat in front of the doctor.

"How is my grandfather doing now? Is he getting better?"

"Kevin's condition is stable now." The doctor looked at Leon's cold face and suddenly got a little nervous, "We will keep observing Kevin's condition, please don't worry."

"Observe?" Leon raised his head and looked at the doctor, his dark eyes flashed with a trace of coldness, "I want to see my grandfather wake up. It's been so long. When will my grandfather wake up?"

Leon did not shout or even curse like other patients' families.

However, the doctor was very nervous when he heard Leon's words.

He kept his head down and didn't dare to look up.

Leon raised his head and looked at the doctor, "I only give you three days. After three days, if my grandfather has not improved, you, the famous doctor of A City, will be kicked out of A City."

Leon stood up and left.
