

Love At First Night

Chapter 205

Ann really ran out of the company. The words of Frank and Gary shocked her. After she returned to her car and sent a message to the manager of her department to take a leave, she drove after Gary. There were only a few agencies in Mayfield for DNA identification, and Ann could guess that Gary would definitely go to the largest identification agency in Mayfield. She followed him all the way and saw Gary's car. Her eyes were still red as she stared coldly at Gary's car. She thought, "Jodie, I won't let you come back to the Chaney family. Don't think about taking anything that belongs to me. You can only be dead forever." Ann bit her lower lip. Today, she was even more anxious than the night when she lost her virginity. Virginity didn't matter for rich ladies. Everyone was clear about their lifestyle. But without the identity of the daughter of the Chaney family, she would lose everything. When she was young, she looked like Jodie. Every time her parents saw her, they would feel a little relieved. But as she grew up, their relief was gone, because now she didn't look like Jodie at all. Every time her mother saw her, she would sigh. At that time, she knew that her mother was thinking of her own daughter. She was not their biological child. Even if they regarded her as their own and gave her what other rich ladies had, she was still not satisfied.

The only thing she wanted was Frank. She also wanted the love of her parents and her two brothers. Ann followed Gary all the way, and sure enough, she saw Gary enter the largest identification agency in Mayfield. There happened to be someone she knew here. She pulled off a strand of her hair and sat in the car, waiting. Holding the steering wheel, she was so nervous and afraid that she was curled up. Frank's attitude towards Judith was so good that she was afraid. She had never seen Frank's gentle eyes as if he suddenly had everything he wanted. After watching Gary drive away, she quickly got off and went to the agency. Gary drove to the main road and then slowed down, seeing Ann walk in. He sneered

After parking the car, he got off and followed Ann in. He thought, "Ann, you are toast this time. You even dared to do such a thing." After Judith accompanied Sarah through all the checks, it was almost twelve o'clock. Fortunately, Sarah and the child were fine. And Sarah could be discharged. Judith helped her with the discharge formalities, and the two slowly walked out of the hospital. Judith asked, "Sarah, what are your plans for the future?" Sarah glanced at her and said with a smile, "Judy, after listening to your story, I think I was a coward. Now! have decided to give birth to a child. No matter what happens in the future, it will be the greatest happiness to be with my child."

When Judith heard this, she nodded in relief. She had chosen to give birth to the children without hesitation because she had no family.

But time proved that her choice was right. Seeing that there was hope in Sarah's eyes again, Judith was relieved. "Then take care of yourself in the future. Have a good rest and come for a regular check-up. If you need someone, you can call me on the weekend."
