

Chapter 214

Alyssa sat in the car, thinking about where else Leon could have gone besides to the office.

According to grandpa, Leon should have left the old house long ago.

He didn't go to the office, so where did he go?

At that moment, Alyssa suddenly saw two men stopped in front of her car.

The men were unfamiliar, but they looked tall and strong.

Alyssa didn't dare to move.

They looked at Alyssa and said in a cold voice, "Alyssa, come with us! Our boss wants to see you."

"Who is your boss? I don't see a nobody." Alyssa clenched her hands. When necessary, she had to make her move.

"Colton."

Colton?

Alyssa's heart beat a little faster.

They had just come back and Colton already had his eyes on them? How did Colton move so fast?

"You want to see Leon, don't you? Leon is with our boss. If you do as you're told, we can take you to Leon."

Alyssa didn't believe them. But she was a little hesitant because Leon was indeed missing.

But Leon wouldn't be that careless. He shouldn't be taken by Colton, but Colton was cunning. He might ...

Alyssa didn't know Colton, and she was suddenly worried that Leon had really been taken by Colton.

"Mrs. Hunter, there's nothing you can do even if you don't believe us. Our boss said you have to listen to us if you want to be with Leon."

Alyssa raised her head and looked at them.

"Why don't you convince Leon to join our boss? He is Leon's uncle. How could he harm Leon? If it weren't for the kinship, our boss could get someone else. Leon shouldn't be too ungrateful. If our boss really gets angry, he might really kill him."

"Leon is really with you guys?"

"Why would I lie to you?"

Alyssa laughed and then nodded, "Okay, since you guys said so, I'll go with you."

Alyssa didn't believe their words, but she had no choice now.

Even if she wasn't pregnant, she wouldn't necessarily be able to beat them.

Not to mention that she was pregnant.

If Leon was really taken by them, she could see Leon. Two people being together was better than being alone.

If Leon wasn't taken by them, she was sure Leon would come to her rescue.

Leon was different from others. When something happened, he would also solve the problem calmly. She had faith in Leon.

"That's right." The man laughed, "Throw your phone away! What if you call the police?"

"I'll put the phone back in the car."

"No, throw it away!"

Alyssa really didn't intend to do anything to it. She just thought it was a waste to throw the phone away.

Never mind, as long as she could see Leon. She could just ask Leon to buy her a new phone.

The man took Alyssa to the car. Noticing that Alyssa wasn't scared at all, they looked at each other and couldn't help but wonder.

If any other women had been taken to the car by the strange men, they would have screamed and cried. But she didn't show any reaction at all and seemed calm.

"Aren't you afraid?" One of the men in black looked at Alyssa.

Alyssa shook her head, "I'll see my husband in a moment. My husband will protect me. What am I afraid of?"

"What if your husband is in danger of defending himself?"

"No way, my husband is very strong and can handle anything. Nothing will happen to him." Alyssa had confidence in Leon, who would be able to handle whatever came his way.

The two men looked at each other and couldn't help but laugh.

"So she's a fool. No wonder she's not afraid at all."

Alyssa still wanted to argue that she wasn't a fool. But looking at the way they let their guard down on her, she suddenly stopped moving.

It was okay to be treated like a fool.

She hadn't confronted Colton before.

Colton probably didn't know her yet.

It was okay to be treated like a fool. It was a good way for her to get Colton to let his guard down.

She just couldn't figure out why she looked like a fool.

On second thought, she thought maybe what she had just said had made them think she was stupid.

Indeed, she really wanted to see Leon badly.

As she thought about it, she couldn't help but smile.

Seeing Alyssa suddenly smiling, one of the men taunted.

"Leon actually married a fool. No wonder Leon never mentioned his wife before. How is he supposed to tell the public that his wife is stupid?"

"Since she's so stupid, we can just use her."

"The more stupid she is, the better she can be used. I think this time boss will be able to get Leon to go to Koherr Group to deal with those old men. That way, our boss can make money with us."

"You're right."

The two men couldn't help but laugh again after they finished.

Alyssa had heard something useful.

Colton probably asked Leon to go back to cover for him.

Her grandfather had long said that the Koherrs' business was not legitimate. Grandpa Hunter tried so hard not to let Leon go back. Although he did not say why, she guessed that it was because the Koherrs' business was not clean.

Alyssa became worried.

Crunch!

The car suddenly stopped.

Alyssa looked up and saw Bangkok Clubhouse.

She knew this clubhouse.

It was well known in A City.

Originally she thought Colton would hide in a very secluded place.

But she didn't expect Colton to stay in Bangkok Clubhouse openly.

No wonder they hadn't been able to find Colton's trail.

Soon Alyssa was taken out of the car and went inside the clubhouse.

She didn't expect that the clubhouse would have a special place inside. There was a hidden door in one of the innermost compartments.

As she walked, Alyssa began to guess that the Bangkok Clubhouse was not as calm as it appeared. There were many things she didn't know.

She told herself not to panic. Their goal was not to kill her. She was sure she would see Leon in a moment.

However, after walking for a while, she did not see Leon but was taken to a windowless room.

The two men who brought her here took her in and left immediately.

Alyssa hurried to stop them.

"Where is my husband? Don't leave. You brought me here to see my husband, didn't you?"

"You just wait. We'll let you see your husband in a minute." The man looked at Alyssa with disdain. How dared a fool block his way. When Alyssa refused to move, he pushed her a little harder.

Bam!

Alyssa was pushed into the corner.

She subconsciously fell to the ground holding her belly. The door slammed shut with a loud bang.

After they left, Alyssa carefully stood up. When she was sure she was okay, she breathed a sigh of relief.

She looked carefully at the room.

The room was quiet, with no windows and only a door.

She knocked on the wall with her hand.

It was the sound of thick stone.

She remembered the way. Through the last room of Bangkok Clubhouse, there was a hidden door up ahead. It should be located against the bottom.

There was an underground parking lot below, so this place should be located close to the underground parking lot.

Alyssa calmed down. It seemed that they wanted to lock her up.

After frustrating Leon, they would send her to Leon then.

Colton must think that if he controlled her, Leon would do as he was told.

Sure, Leon might listen to him. But she wouldn't just sit here and wait. Both she and Leon would get out.

Maybe they would use some other tactics, some dirty ones anyway.

Alyssa was in no hurry and just sat aside to rest. She planned to wait until she saw Leon.

The Hunters' old house.

The bodyguard stood in front of Kevin and reported the information he had found out earlier.

"Alyssa was involved in this incident. Although I thought about this possibility before, it happened so fast. Now Alyssa is pregnant. No matter what you do, you must keep Alyssa and Leon safe."

"Mr. Hunter, don't worry. I'll take care of this."

"I'll only give you half a day. I want them back for lunch tomorrow."

"Yes!" The bodyguard looked at Kevin with some hesitation, "Mr. Hunter, what are you going to do about the thing I told you about before? Audrey has been causing troubles outside. Likely, this incident is also related to Audrey. She's been in cahoots with Colton for a long time. They also used George last time."

"You get Alyssa and Leon out of there first. I'll take care of that woman tonight. Since she doesn't like to stay in the Hunters in peace, I'll send her to another country! Make it clean and don't let anyone know she has anything to do with the Hunters. Also, create a car accident."

"Got it, Mr. Hunter."

The bodyguard heard Kevin's arrangement and turned around to leave.

Kevin looked to the door and caught a glimpse of George who had been hiding in the corner.

He sighed. This couldn't be hidden anymore.

"George, I saw you. You must have a lot of questions right now. You come in and ask me directly if you have any questions."

George, who was hiding outside, came in. Looking at his grandfather, he didn't know what to say suddenly.

Kevin looked at George and pointed to the seat opposite, gesturing for him to sit down.

"If you have anything to ask, just ask. I will definitely answer whatever I can answer you."

"Can I ask you anything? About my mother?"

Kevin nodded and smiled benevolently, "Of course."

"Do you want to kill my mother?"

"In your eyes, would I do something like that?" George pondered for a moment. "Did your mother put it into your head that I was that kind of person, or did I give you the impression that I was that kind of person?"

George bowed his head in shame.

"I really don't like your mother because your mother is very utilitarian. I can tell you that Hunter Group needs Leon to run it. You need to help Leon. Leon is your brother, you know?"

George didn't say a word, still keeping his head down. He knew that grandpa was right about everything. But when he thought of that person being his mother, he suddenly wanted to fight for something.

But she had done that kind of thing. How could he beg for her?

George could only hang his head lower when he thought about that.
