

Love At First Night

Chapter 225

He got emotional after hearing what Gary said last night. He felt like he was shaken by some power “Frank, what the hell are you thinking? Do you know anything about love? Why do you keep falling for that?” “I tell you what, don’t play with your feelings, okay? You’ll lose if she doesn’t love you back when you are in a relationship. And sometimes, you’ll get hurt very badly if you pour too many feelings into it. You have to make her feel your love. You have to prove that she can rely on you by your action” Gary had said, Gary’s words still resonated in his ears. He seemed to know what to do next “Mom, I had enough. Go and eat your dinner!” Lucas glanced at his mother. His mom always acted like this. She put her children first and then she’ll pick up her meal.

She would never be too busy to take good care of her children, “You had enough? I thought you could eat more!” said Judith, laughing. Lucas replied, smiling, “Mom, we had breakfast this morning, remember?”

Judith nodded, “Oh, I remember. Just a sec, I’ll finish mine.” Frank turned to her and told her not to eat in a hurry. Judith replied with a slight nod. Jason took Collin to the hospital. The doctor examined him and it turned out to be a slight injury, nothing to be worried about

He was told that he could recover soon if he got some rest.

Jason drove him back home so that he could have a rest. Collin sat in silence along the way, knitting his brows. He had a sense that he saw his daughter today. He felt strongly about it this time, He gazed at Jason and didn’t tell him about his thoughts because he knew Jason wouldn’t help him check on her

He had been there many times. Numerous paternity tests had been done. His actions lead to his son’s conviction that their dad might be a psychopath. “Never mind. I’ll go and check by myself another day,” he thought. He knew the restaurant’s manager. He thought he could ask him for help. Collin asked abruptly, “Jason, how are you lately? Something has been bothering you? I saw you have been acting strange lately. You don’t talk to your mom and you just drink all day. What happened to you? Be honest with me!”

Jason wished they could talk about other things than his depressing life. He answered in a gloomy tone, "Nothing is going on with me I'm fine."

Jason didn't find it useful to tell him what was going on. His dad was afraid of his mom. He could do nothing if Marilyn said no. He knew about his mom. His mom could be so callous sometimes that she would rather give up on her grandchildren. As for himself, his consciousness was full of guilt as a man for failing to protect his family. Jason smiled at his dad reluctantly, a pain tipping in his heart. He sank into thoughts, «Sarah must have given up on our unborn baby. I was so useless. I was not good to her when my mom acted that way. Of course, she will give up on me too. I have caused her so much pain. She was his one and only one for almost two decades. She was modest and kind. She had a kind heart and would always cheer him up. Whenever he came from work she was there for him with a happy smile on her face so that he never felt any stress or exhaustion of the day.

No one in the world would give him that kind of satisfaction except her. Unfortunately, his mom stood against their marriage. What odds with his life to stumble upon such a preposterous thing! Jason felt like he was doomed,

He sighed with a sheer He made up his mind already. Without Sarah, he was nobody. So He decided to stay unmarried for the rest of his life. No one would force him to get married, including his mom.
