

Chapter 240

Rectal cancer refers to the difficulty of tumor surgery alone. In fact, it is not too difficult compared with cancer of large organs, but why can't ordinary hospitals do this operation.

In fact, the difficulty lies in the anus. The terrible thing about cancer is its metastasis and spread. When doing surgery, we should try our best to clean up the place suspected of diffusion and metastasis. But the difficulty of rectal cancer is on this anus. At present, all the difficulties are around this piece.

Cancer surgery pays attention to cleaning as much as possible, but although this anus is not impressive, it has a great impact on people's quality of life. In this regard, no matter how exquisite your operation is and how good the artificial anus is, it is not as good as the patient's original. Let alone others, the infection of a fistula is very, very troublesome, and there is almost no peculiar smell when the human body's own rectal cleaning function and personal hygiene meet the standards. But this artificial one won't work. There will be a smell of stool in everything. And it's not convenient, because the fistula is in the abdomen, you can imagine!

So the difficulty of this operation is how to design to preserve the anus as much as possible.

For an ordinary person, as long as he is flexible, he can have some energy in a small city, but once out of the city, he has little influence. Moreover, the medical industry in China is a very closed ring. You don't know who is the authority unless you are engaged in this major and on a relatively high platform.

Because of the relationship between interests, each has its own view. Each major hospital has its own area of influence. In short, the operation of each department of a regional capital hospital monopolizes the major operations of regional hospitals.

Surgery in the north is mainly the power circle of the capital hospital. Hospitals in Shaanxi and Sanchuan in the northwest have great influence, while hospitals in Han University in the middle and Hushang in the south. In the early years, military hospitals all over the country also developed well, but after entering 90 years, military hospitals have generally declined to first-class, and only a few are still top hospitals.

The medical system of the coastal port city is very different from that of the mainland. Although it is a small hospital, people's medical level is very strong, and privatization is very strong. There is a great difference between having money and not having money.

Chen Jun was taken in, Zhao Zipeng improved the relevant examination, the Department made preoperative preparations, and their family were also making preparations. The first is to determine whether to operate here or not. The larger the place, the higher the medical level. Chen is the pillar of the family and can't operate hastily, so the family mobilized all its strength to inquire.

Not in this circle is very difficult to inquire. One person has one statement, and the technical difference between front-line experts is not very big. In a more popular word, eight or nine is inseparable from ten. If we only talk about this digestive department, where the overall level is high, there is no ambiguity. China is second to none in Guangzhou province.

Because of the southern diet, I like to eat less cooked food, so there are many gastrointestinal diseases. Every year, like the north, there is an outbreak season of gastrointestinal diseases in the south. But why are hospitals in Guangdong Province not famous? There is a saying here.

The medical industry is a very stable industry, but this province is different from other regions. Doctors are extremely mobile and people here are easy to wander. When the technology reaches a certain level, if there is no hope in the hospital, they may go to Africa to make a fortune.

The Chen Junyi family contacted a foreign expert through their relatives in the bird market, but they didn't come directly when they heard about the tea vegetable market. The top medical circle of a province is so large that there is no secret about who did what. The tea vegetable city hospital not only made Lao Chang lose face, but also Lao Chang couldn't even mix with the bird city hospital. Finally, Lao Chang left the frontier directly!

Walking is to play skills to make money, not to fight face. The municipal hospital has a super Da Na. Other doctors who go to acupoints will try not to come. They run to grab food with others and risk being beaten in the face. It's not worth it!

Chen Junjia's relative is a teacher of Dida. Although he is not a famous professor, he also has some social relations. He asked the reason.

"The doctor in tea vegetable city has no problem with this operation. If you ask me to go, I won't give others face. It's unnecessary!" Finally, I asked the vice president of my school to inquire about the specific situation. After the situation was fed back to the chenjunyi family, the family was happy and worried!

I'm glad that there is a great God in the municipal hospital. I don't have to toss about anymore. I'm worried that I can't move the great God. The smaller the place, the more rules! There's nothing wrong with that. This matter can only rely on Chen Yan to inquire, and the final result points to Zhang Fan!

I thought it was the director of general foreign education. Chen Yan was really overjoyed by the result. It was not that the director of general foreign education was hard to speak, but that Zhang Fan was too easy to speak, and she had a good relationship with Zhang Fan. Asking people to do things is like asking people to do things, although it's from a hospital!

Now more and more people have private cars in the hospital. Zhang Fan doesn't pay much attention. After all, it's still convenient to have a car. When Zhang Fan left the hospital, Chen Yan at the door of the hospital waved!

"Are you going home?" Chen Yan's eyes were swollen. She had a good relationship with her cousin, and when her family came, they cried again. After getting on the bus, Chen Yan asked in a hoarse voice.

"Well, you should pay attention to it yourself. If you get sick, you should actively treat it. Where are you going? I'll take you!" Zhang Fan asked after persuading him.

"Thank you!" Chen Yan had thought of a good idea. As a result, when she met Zhang Fan's persuasion, she couldn't say it. After trying to suppress her desire to cry, she said, "who are you going to do my brother's operation?"

"I do!" Zhang Fan said without thinking.

As soon as these words were said, Chen Yan confirmed everyone's statement, because a resident can say such words with such certainty for only one reason: strength!

"I don't know how to thank you, so I bought two cigarettes. It's really troublesome for you, director Zhang. I must save my brother." The girl looked at Zhang Fan with tears.

"Look what you're crying about. Do we still need you for our relationship? You look down on me. Just take it easy. I will go all out, or I won't see you in the future! Put it away quickly. It's time for you to use your money. If you need it, speak up. I still have some money in my hand. " After pulling over, Zhang Fan handed the paper towel to Chen Yan and said a few words of comfort.

"Well, thank you!"

"Hi! You look at you. Do you remember the first day I went to my heart? You take care of me like a sister. How can it be like this now? More points! Don't worry, I'll take you home? "

"Well! Um! I'll just get off here! I cried like this. You sent me back to the hospital so that others thought you bullied me. It's not good for you! I knew you were a good man! I'm leaving, thank you! "

Good word, three winter warm!
