

My One In A Million Wife Chapter 289

“Say another word, and I’ll kiss you!” Lucas turned towards her with an evil look on his face.

Ashlyn instantly shut her mouth and followed his lead onto the airplane.

L City.

There was a huge tennis court on the top floor of the luxurious five-star hotel.

The private jet landed slowly on that tennis court that was paved with plastic.

Several women clad in sexy tennis skirts ran hurriedly across the tennis court in the bid to evade the landing.

All holding tennis rackets in their hands, their skin was snow-white while their legs were slender and charming under the short tennis skirts.

This was a large hotel for entertainment and leisure. As seen from the sexily-clad tennis girls, this hotel provides some novel and exciting services.

This was one of his properties at L City.

This hotel was very special. However, because L City was the darkest yet busiest city of H Nation, their clients included some of the most prominent figures in the business world.

After the private jet landed, Lucas grabbed Ashlyn and brought her down.

Ashlyn looked at the green tennis court while several beautiful girls ran to the shade.

men in tennis

“I was so scared...”

nearly killed

dare they be so arrogant

and saw that the

are looking at them instead? Aren’t you afraid that you’d be blinded by palm covered her sight while his slightly teasing would I know that they would be that scene would have repulsed her to the point on other men, and ugly old men at that! He was not happy about it. Isn't my physique good enough?

Isn't it enough to attract glance at

have ordered Spencer to clear the grounds when we were these few people won't get off interesting things here, and you'll probably like it," Lucas said coolly, betraying no emotions within draped his arm around her as they walked few middle-aged men were rounded up by several bodyguards

they were to

romantic and exquisite manner, complete with melodious

one of the beautiful waitresses had their fiery

few in French