

Chapter 369

Judith came down with the household register and suddenly found a problem. "Dad, today 70s Saturday. I don't think there is anyone working." Keven shook his head with a smile, "Judy, people are working on Saturday, but no one works on Sunday. Moreover, with me here, even if there is no, there will be!"

Judith nodded with a smile. Keven was so famous and certainly had many connections in all walks of life.

Immediately, Keven drove Judith and Mila to the Civil Affairs Bureau. Frank and Gary returned to the Taylor's. In the Taylor's, all of the family was there.

Including Ann.

They had been chatting and laughing, but when they saw Frank come back all of a sudden, their expressions turned gloomy, except for Carlo. "Frank, Gary, you're here," Carlo said as he looked at them.

Ever since the last incident, he had never seen Frank again.

"Mr. Taylor!" Gary smiled and greeted him. Frank was expressionless, as cold and arrogant as usual. He did not look at anyone and went upstairs to his room.

Gary did not follow him.

Gina looked at Frank's back, her eyes filled with anger. She even wished she could execute him. Because of Frank, she lost her position and had nothing to do at home. Carlo was determined to go against her this time. Gina had been pestering him for several days, but he had not allowed her to go back to work. Eliza looked at Gary and smiled gently. "Gary, come and sit!" Gary nodded and put on a faint smile. He walked to the sofa and sat down. Eliza placed the fruit in front of Gary, smiling. "Gary, have some fruit." "Thank you," Gary said politely and did not speak again. Steve had been paying attention to Ann's expression. When she saw Frank, her happy expression changed. He knew that she still had Frank in her heart. In any case, he and Frank were irreconcilable. "Dad, Mom, I need to go out for a while. I have an appointment with a friend." Steve got up and was about to leave. Carlo frowned and glared at him angrily. "Where are you going? Didn't you make an appointment with Ann to have dinner tonight?"

Steve cast a glance at Ann, who seemed to have lost her mind, and sneered, "I'm afraid that she is not in the mood to eat with me."

His words carried a bit of jealousy. After all, he and Ann were going to be engaged soon. In a family like his, men didn't have any feelings for their wives.

But his woman was thinking about other men! His dignity was denied and trampled upon.

Hearing that, Ann quickly came back to her senses and frowned, saying, "Steve, you were alright just now. What happened to you all of a sudden?"

Gina shot her a sharp glance at Ann. She thought, "She still has the face to ask?"
