

Chapter 383

He didn't even need to think to figure out Adam's purpose. Judith and Sarah arrived at the night market street of the Riverside District. The streets were very spacious and clean. Every shop was very big. Sarah smiled and said, "Judy, look, this is the one!" Sarah pointed excitedly at a shop opposite her. At this time, the door was opened and a middle-aged man in a suit was waiting for them! Judith smiled and said, "Sarah, let's get in and take a look." "Okay!" The two walked over, and the middle-aged man smiled. Judith politely asked, "Are you Mr. Stark, if I may ask?" "Yes, Miss, I am Randy Stark. Mr. Williams told me to wait for his daughter here. It must be you!" Randy looked at Judith with great respect. He had seen her before. And he remembered Keven said she was a good person. And now he found that she was very beautiful. "Yes, Mr. Stark." Judith instantly had a feeling that she had become a lady. "Miss Williams, I have been with Mr. Williams since I was a teenager. I have never seen Mr. Williams as happy as last night. "Mr. Williams and I are as close as brothers. I know very well what he wants these years. Thank you, Miss Williams, for giving Mr. Williams a home." Keven was an orphan. He had always longed for a family. Back then... Randy shook his head when he thought of what happened in the past. When Judith heard this, she felt sorry. She knew that there must be something going on between Mila and Keven. Otherwise, they would have been together long ago. "Let's go. I'll show you around the shop." As Randy spoke, he turned around and walked in, saying, "This place used to be a restaurant, but the previous owner's son wasted all his savings on gambling. So, he couldn't afford this shop anymore. He had moved away just two days ago. If you came a little later, someone might have taken it." "Wow!" Sarah looked at the spacious and bright room, suddenly feeling happy. "Judy, this place is really good!" She said excitedly. Randy said, "Yes, it is. The night market is also very lively." "Thank you, Mr. Stark. I'll take it. I've been here before." Sarah stopped walking. There was no need to decorate the shop again. We'll just need to change the signboard. She had always been looking for shops in this area. The night market here had been passed down for generations and available shops were always hard to get! Randy smiled and said, "Alright! Let's sign the contract today. Mr. Williams has already told me the details and the process is very simple." "Thank you, Mr. Stark!" Judith said with a grateful smile. She knew that Sarah had been anxious. She would feel better now with the shop. Sarah also said, "Thank you, Mr. Stark. Let's sign the contract today, so you won't bother to come back later!" "That's what I meant!" Randy said as he took out the contract from his briefcase, placed it on the table, and signed it. Then it was Sarah's turn. Sarah was very grateful to Keven, she signed her name directly without checking the items! Randy took out the key from his bag and handed it to Sarah. "Miss Farrell, it's done. This is the key to the shop. And it's yours now. I wish you to be successful!" "Thank you, Mr. Stark!" Sarah took the key excitedly. "You are welcome! Miss Farrell. I get to go now!" As Randy spoke, his gaze landed on Judith with a light smile. He liked