Nathan said coldly, "I wanted to let you off and even gave you a chance.

Unfortunately, instead of cherishing it, you acted against me. If I were an ordinary man, my entire family would be begging you for mercy right now. Would you have let them off?"

Dip bowed deeper and pleaded repeatedly, "General, I was wrong. Will you forgive me? I will give up all my assets to make up for my mistakes. I only ask you to spare my family's lives."

Nathan replied, "The national treasury will confiscate your family's assets if every one of you is dead. However, if I annihilate the entire family of the governor of the South, it will cause an uproar among your supporters. Why don't you set one hundred million aside for yourself and use the rest to start a charity for the South Provincial City? The funds can be used for the city's projects for urbanization and ease poverty.

's living conditions and education. In return, I will allow your family to leave the country alive."

In a blink of an eye, the multi-billionaire family would only be left with a hundred million. They would have to move out of the South and leave the country.

At that thought, Dip felt like he had aged tremendously, but he knew that this was a rare offer.

He expressed his gratitude repeatedly and while trembling, he replied, "Yes, I will do so immediately!"

At the same moment, Zach brought his subordinates over and with a smile, he asked, "General, how should we deal with those guys on the shore?"

"Those men have committed a violation so we cannot let them get away with it so easily. Well, we need more laborer for the construction of our military facilities in the North. Send those violators to the labor camp for three years."

Chapter 461 How Should We Deal With The Guys On The...

Zach nodded.

Three years of hard labor wasn't that bad.

However, the North's conditions were harsh, and it had steep terrains. Out of a year, it would be icy and cold for a period of over six months.

Working construction at the military facilities would definitely result in many deaths. To make it out alive, they had to be tough.

On that same day, Dip liquidated all his assets and donated everything but one hundred million.

His family then took the night flight out of country.

The Turners' followers were arrested and sent to the frontier.

The news shocked the entire South.

Everyone was discussing what had happened.

Chapter 461 How Should We Deal With The Guys On The...

As Nathan had ordered the cover-up, no one knew he was responsible for Dip's situation.

Instead, it was rumored that he attempted to bribe Zach with a billion and angered the latter.

It was further triggered when Dip summoned thousands of his followers to the Navy Festival with unruly intentions.

Zach then ordered his soldiers to arrest Dip and his followers.

Dip Turner was a tyrant in the South and monopolized many profitable industries. His followers were not any better, often taking unfair advantage of the citizens, which made them very upset.

They celebrated the downfall of the King of the South.

The day after the Navy Festival, Nathan and his family headed back to Channing.

On the way back, Penny grumbled, "Where

Chapter 462 The Schulz Family

Penny, together with Benson and Leah, smiled as they shook their heads.

They thought it was impossible for Nathan to board a navy ship, so he must have brought Queenie to an ordinary one and lied..

Their daughter was young and easily fooled by Nathan.

Penny shot him a look as she whispered, "How can you lie to a child?"

Nathan blinked. "I did not. I brought her to a navy ship."

Penny scoffed doubtfully, "Stop lying. That may work on a child but don't try to fool me. I am not that dumb."

Nathan's family returned to Channing after the very enjoyable trip.

However, Dip Turner's plight did anger some people.

It was none other than the century-old,

Chapter 462 The Schulz Family

aristocratic family of Alberesque, the Schulz.

In the South, everyone knew that Dip Turner loved the spotlight and was even named the King of the South.

Nevertheless, there was a saying among the circle of the wealthiest families, “the Kings of the South can be comparable to rivers while the Schulz was like iron.”

In other words, many dominated the South came and went like a river, but the Schulz family had always held their position at the top.

Although Dip Turner appeared to be King of the South, he was actually the spokesperson for the Schulz family.

Over the century, in every generation of the Schulz family, there were people who held important roles in Northania.

In order to uphold their reputation, the Schulz family could not carry out immoral behaviors, such as money laundering, themselves. Therefore, they had to arrange for someone else to handle these things for them instead.

Chapter 462 The Schulz Family

They labeled people who helped with their illegal activities as their “white glove”.

Though Dip Turner was a multi-billionaire, most of his assets actually belonged to the Schulz family and he was just managing these assets for them.

Now, their “white glove” had lost their money, and he had even fled overseas.

This made Vance, the head of the Schulz family, especially angry.

He issued an order that no one could touch Dip’s assets, and all of it was to be returned to the Schulz family. Anyone or any organizations who dared to use that sum of money would have to be prepared to face the wrath of the Schulz family.

After Nathan returned to Channing, he received a call from the South governor, Patrick Ward.

Chapter 462 The Schulz Family

After Dip donated his assets worth two hundred billion, he desperately left the country with his family.

Following Nathan's instructions, those funds were donated to the South's city council and used to solve problems such as the poor's living conditions and issues faced by the poorer students.

Initially, Nathan thought Patrick had called to thank him.

After all, this was a great opportunity that Nathan had given to him.

With billions in hand, Patrick did not have to worry about not being able to meet expectations for the next few years.

However, Nathan sensed that something was wrong when Patrick seemed tongue-tied over the call, as though there was something he could not bring himself to say.

"Ward, what's wrong?"

Chapter 462 The Schulz Family

Patrick responded guiltily, “Mr. Cross, I have let you down!”

Nathan frowned. “What are you trying to say?”

Patrick summoned his courage and relayed what had happened. He told Nathan that Dip was actually the “white glove” for the century-old, aristocratic family of the South, the Schulz family.

He specialized in helping the Schulz family with money laundering and the management of their finances.

Though on the surface, those assets seemed to be Dip Turner’s, a great portion of it actually belonged to the Schulz family.

There were brilliant people from every generation of the Schulz family that held important positions in Northania.

Currently, there were many descendants of the Schulz family who were highly involved with the military and political circles in Northania. They were very powerful and none in the South could rival them.

Chapter 462 The Schulz Family

After Vance found out that their “white glove” had run off and even donated billions to the South Provincial City Council, he was enraged.

He demanded the assets to be returned to the Schulz family immediately.

Nathan’s expression turned gloomy. “Are you telling me you were intimidated by the Schulz family and gave those funds back to them?”

Patrick responded in shame, “The Schulz family is the most powerful family in the South, with a century-old reputation. In addition, many of their family members hold important positions in Northania. I still have six months in this position and I really don’t wish to provoke them.”

His voice grew softer, and he finally muttered, “That is why I returned fifty billion in cash to the Schulz family.”

Chapter 463 It Already Belongs To Zach Hill

Nathan raged when he heard the last sentence. "Patrick Ward, you are a coward! I could finally teach Dip Turner a lesson, and I wanted to use those funds to make it up to the people in the South. You sent all the money back because of a mere threat!"

Patrick quivered in fear. "General, please calm down. I only returned the cash to the Schulz family. However, the luxurious properties that they own in Alberesque, and the family's Blue Sky Corporation and Ocean Corporation, have yet to be returned."

Nathan scolded, "If you dare give those properties back to the Schulz family, you can dream about keeping your position as governor."

He knew Nathan was furious, and he quickly continued, "However, the Schulz family calls me daily to demand their properties, so what should I do then?"

Nathan sneered, "I gave you a great opportunity, but you turned out to be useless. Forget it. Give the properties to

Chapter 463 It Already Belongs To Zach Hill

Zach and let him handle the matter. Cross Group will acquire the Blue Sky Corporation.”

Patrick immediately responded, “Yes, I will do so this instant.”

He hung up the phone in relief. Back in his office, leaders of the South surrounded him and were pestering him for an answer.

Patrick let out a sigh of relief. “The hot potato will finally be passed on. Zach will handle Dip Turner’s properties. The General’s wife from Cross Group will acquire the remaining Blue Sky Corporation”

The leaders relaxed when they heard the news.

The office director, Oliver, said, “Nathan and Zach will be splitting Dip Turner’s assets. Zach Hill is too influential, so the Schulz family probably will not mess with him. However, Nathan has been concealing his identity all this time. If the Schulz family learns of his involvement, they will surely take revenge on him.”

Patrick snorted, “The Schulz family relies on the fact that they have many members holding important positions in Northania. This time, they disrespected and embarrassed us by demanding the return of their funds. Everyone, please keep in mind not to reveal the identity of the General. If the Schulz family finds trouble with him, we shall just sit back and watch their family go down.”

Oliver and the rest nodded.

Two hundred billion would originally allow the leaders of the South to make countless political achievements. It would have acted as a springboard for their promotions.

Because of the Schulz family’s threat, they had no choice but to return fifty billion in cash to them. However, the properties that were left in their hands felt like a hot potato to be thrown to Nathan and Zach Hill.

It would be a lie to say that they did not hate the Schulz family.

They could not wait to see them go against Nathan and end up defeated.

In Alberesque, at Schulz Mansion, Vance was in discussions with everyone at home.

Dressed in black from head to toe, Vance sat in an armchair. He held a cup of tea in his hands, slowly taking a sip from it.

He then glanced to his side at the group of family members and plainly said, "Has the City Council return all assets?"

Carter Harris, the housekeeper solemnly replied, "Sir, the governor has already transferred fifty billion of the funds back to our accounts."

The corner of Vance Schulz's mouth twitched and he sneered, "At least Ward is sensible and knows how to discern between the pros and cons. Other than the funds, what about our properties and corporations? Dip owned several of our

Vance was taken aback by what he had heard and he frowned. He took a moment before he said unhappily, "Dip offended Zach Hill and was ultimately taken down. It is understandable that destroying Dip Turner was a piece of cake for Zach Hill."

Vance Schulz paused before he continued, "Zach has significant power and influence in the military. It is not wise for us to go against him. We can let him have those mere properties and Ocean Corporation. As for Blue Sky Corporation, we have to get it back. Otherwise, we will suffer great losses."

Carter said in a small voice, "Someone else has also acquired Blue Sky Corporation at an extremely discounted price."

The entire Schulz family was in disbelief. Who would the hell dare to steal from them?

Carter continued, "It is Cross Group from Channing, owned by Nathan Cross and his wife, Penny. I'm not sure what they did to obtain Blue Sky Corporation from Patrick at such a cheap price.”

Vance was furious. “How is that possible? The Schulz family has stayed in the shadows all these years with Dip as our front man. Do those worthless people think they can go against us now?”

A man in his twenties stood up. It was Vance’s grandson, Freddie.

He raised his chin haughtily. “Grandpa, let me handle this matter. I will bring my men to Channing, make Nathan and Penny Smith kneel and beg us to take Blue Sky Corporation back.”

Vance narrowed his gaze. “That’s not enough. I heard that the Cross Group distributes the liver cancer vaccine and they have enormous potential to grow. I want you to go to Channing and take over the entire Cross Group!”

“Grandpa, I will not let you down. Wait for my good news!”

Chapter 464 Someone Is Looking For President Smith

In Channing, at the CEO office of the Cross Group.

Penny had just returned from an inspection at the Blue Sky Corporation and she felt like she was living a dream.

Who would have imagined that Blue Sky Corporation, which had created so many hurdles for Cross Group in every possible way, was now hers through Nathan's connections?

The money for this acquisition was from Cross Group's new round of financing. Now, the Blue Sky Corporation was officially the group's subsidiary.

The market value of Cross Group soared to close to a hundred billion!

Penny felt like she was dreaming. She had stumbled upon the chance of acquiring Blue Sky Corporation and somehow became the president of a corporation that was worth billions.

Of course, while the Cross Group's market

Chapter 464 Someone Is Looking For President Smith

value was close to a hundred billion, Penny's shares had been greatly diluted because of financing this time.

Left with a ten percent stake, she was still the second-biggest shareholder and the president of Cross Group.

However, she was no longer its chairman.

Cross Group's largest shareholder became the new chairman with a seventy percent stake in the corporation.

Everyone in Cross Group, including Penny, was unaware of who the chairman was.

He had yet to show himself.

However, the new chairman seemed to trust Penny very much. He sent someone to pass her a message that he would not intervene in any company affairs and would let her act on his behalf.

Penny could call the shots.

She sat in her office. Her brows furrowed

Chapter 464 Someone Is Looking For President Smith

as she mumbled to herself, “Who is this new chairman? Why does he trust me so much? He does not even want to intervene in the company affairs and allows me to take charge of everything. Is he not afraid that I might sell this company?”

Regardless of how Penny pondered over the matter, she could not have guessed that Cross Group’s funds came from Nathan’s pocket.

He was the mysterious chairman who had not revealed himself.

While Penny continued to dwell on the identity of the new chairman and why he trusted her this much, her secretary, Jenny, suddenly knocked on her door.

“President Smith, someone is looking for you.”

Chapter 465 I Must Have That Girl

Penny regained her senses and returned to her usual professional self. "Who is it?"

"He is Freddie Schulz from Alberesque."

Is he the new chairman?

Penny called out immediately, "Quickly, let him in."

Soon, Freddie dressed in a black Armani suit strode arrogantly into her office with an entourage of subordinates.

Penny frowned when she saw Freddie.Is this foppish man the new chairman?

On the other hand, Freddie was star-struck when he saw Penny.

His heart leaped.Oh my god, this woman is absolutely stunning!

Penny had a good figure and today, she was wearing a bohemian dress.

Tailored to fit her, the dress showed off her curves in all the right places. While she

Chapter 465 I Must Have That Girl

exuded the innocence of a young girl, she also brought out the charm of a sophisticated married woman.

Female celebrities paled in comparison to her.

Looking at Penny, Freddie, a playboy who had his fun with countless women, instantly felt like she topped all those women.

She was gorgeous, and his heart wavered at his first sight of her. I must make this woman mine!

Penny was clueless about this man's identity, much less the dirty thoughts he had in his head.

She smiled, "Hello, I am Penny Smith, Cross Group's president. Is there a purpose for your visit today?"

Freddie pulled a chair out and sat down, resting his pair of branded leather shoes on the edge of the desk. Smugly, he said, "Of course. I am here to talk about Cross Group.”

Penny’s heart skipped a beat. Is he really the new chairman?

She asked cautiously, “I’m not quite sure what you are trying to imply. Who are you?”

Freddie conceitedly replied, “I am the grandson of the South’s top household, the Schulz family. I am Freddie Schulz, but you can call me ‘Mr. Schulz.’”

Penny furrowed her eyebrows. “I see. Mr. Schulz, what would you like to discuss?”

Freddie pouted, “Dip Turner was the Schulz family’s “white glove”. Blue Sky Corporation actually belongs to us. We want you to return Blue Sky Corporation to us and hand over Cross Group too. Otherwise, your future will be bleak.”

Penny was taken aback. “So you are not the chairman of our company, but someone wants to make trouble.”

Freddie snapped his fingers. One of his

Chapter 465 I Must Have That Girl

subordinates took out a contract and placed it on the desk.

“Sign this contract and Cross Group will belong to the Schulz family. I will become your new chairman then.”

Penny was both frightened and furious. “Do you think I will willingly hand over a multi-billion corporation just like this? Do you think I’m crazy? Please leave immediately or I will call for the security or police!”

“Go ahead! The police will not dare to involve themselves with the Schulz family’s affairs.” Freddie scoffed and continued, “I predicted you won’t relent easily, so let me show you something.”

As he spoke, he handed Penny a cell phone.

She responded hostilely, “I don’t wish to see anything. If you don’t leave this instant, I will call security to escort you out.”

Freddie chuckled, “Isn’t your daughter in

Chapter 466 It Is Time To Settle The Score

What?

Penny went pale. She grabbed the phone and saw an ongoing video call.

Children were pouring out of the kindergarten since it was dismissal time.

At that moment, her daughter Queenie had just exited the kindergarten.

She was holding Leah's hand, walking toward a BMW in a distance. Benson was in the driver's seat.

Freddie grinned. "Tom, start the car and prepare to run over that little girl."

Vroom!

The car's engine roared and Tom, who was on the other end of the call, was prepared to drive toward Leah and Queenie.

Penny screeched, "No!"

"If you don't wish to see your daughter get hurt, sign this contract now. Otherwise,

Chapter 466 It Is Time To Settle The Score

you will watch her die.”

He looked at Penny, who was in despair. He narrowed his eyes. “Don’t worry. When we take over Cross Group, you will definitely keep your position as chairman. However, the only other condition is for you to be my woman. If I want you to kneel, you will not stand. If I want you to lie down, you will not sit.”

Tears formed in Penny’s eyes. “You are shameless!”

Freddie grinned. “My shameless self has yet to be unleashed. I am especially so in relationships and you will witness it soon. Nonetheless, you should sign the contract first or Tom will kill your daughter.”

“Don’t do it, you jerk!”

Freddie chuckled, “I will count to three. One, two...”

Penny was about to break down. She was prepared to disregard the consequences and sign the contract to save her mother’s and daughter's life.

However, just as she was about to do so, someone kicked her office door open.

Nathan strode in sternly. "How dare you bully my wife and threaten to kill my daughter?"

Penny felt like she had found her pillar of support. She flung herself toward him and cried, "Nathan, he is about to kill our daughter!"

Nathan looked at Freddie indifferently and snorted, "No one can touch our daughter, much less think about it."

The latter countered, "You probably will not budge until I show you what I can do."

With that, he gave an order. "Tom, kill them. Target the mother first. If they still refuse to give in, go for the daughter next."

His subordinate on the other side snickered, "Understood!"

Chapter 466 It Is Time To Settle The Score

Tom then stepped on his accelerator and was ready to drive into Leah and Queenie.

At that moment, however, two silhouettes suddenly appeared in front of his car.

They were Quinten and Juan from the Elite Eight, bodyguards who were secretly in charge of protecting Nathan's family.

Quinten's right hand reached into his suit, holding on to a gun with a silencer. He shot Tom twice, killing him on the spot.

Next, Juan opened the car door and shoved Tom over to the passenger seat to take the driver seat. Shortly after, he drove away.

Juan picked up Tom's phone where the video call was still ongoing. "Mr. Cross, the murderer is dead, and we have eliminated the danger that Ms. Queenie was facing."

What?

Freddie and his subordinates were stunned by what had just happened.

Chapter 467 Stop Bullying The Others

Freddie was flustered. “What can you do? I am the eldest grandson of the Schulz family.”

Nathan ordered, “Kneel!”

Crack! He sprang into action and broke Freddie’s knee.

The latter’s leg buckled as he screamed.

Only after Nathan kicked Freddie, causing the latter to kneel in pain, did several of his subordinates regain their senses. One by one, they yelled at Nathan for hurting their young master before charging at Nathan.

Quick as lightning, Nathan scoffed and made several heavy blows.

With a few moves, all of them were yelping in pain on the ground with their arms or legs broken.

Freddie tried to endure the immense pain in his right leg. With a distorted expression, he warned, “How dare you do this to me? I am the eldest grandson of the prominent Schulz family. One word from me and you are dead meat.”

Chapter 467 Stop Bullying The Others

Nathan seemed to recall something else. “Schulz family... Is Jaxon, the Brimmopolis’ mayor from your family?”

Freddie proudly responded, “We are the wealthiest family in the South, so most of my family members hold important positions throughout the country. The mayor of Brimmopolis is my uncle. Do you realize how prestigious my family is now?”

Penny and Jenny, who rushed in together with the security guards, gasped.

Being able to serve as a mayor in Brimmopolis meant he had immense power and capability.

No ordinary man could climb to that rank!

Penny hurried over and tugged at Nathan. She said shakily, “Nathan, let’s not provoke them any further. Let them go.”

Chapter 467 Stop Bullying The Others

Freddie ridiculed, "I'm afraid it's too late for you now. Even if you strip and kneel on the ground to persuade me, I won't let your husband off."

Nathan chuckled. "You seem prepared to kill me."

Freddie suddenly stopped laughing. With hatred in his eyes, he glared at Nathan. "You better hand over Cross Group to the Schulz family. Otherwise, your wife will have to accompany me for three full days while you kneel by my bedside and watch me play with her. I just might just let you live then."

Nathan was not angry. Instead, he calmly replied, "I think you have misunderstood. I do not care about the Schulz family. As for your uncle, he is a nobody to me."

Freddie widened his eyes in disbelief. "You!"

Nathan raised his hand and coolly instructed the security guards, "Break all his limbs."

Chapter 467 Stop Bullying The Others

Ever since Cross Group had expanded, Nathan felt like the company's security guards were useless. Therefore, some time ago, he asked Thomas to gather a group of subordinates who dared to fight and would risk everything. They were then assigned as security guards at Cross Group.

Thomas handpicked some of them.

As for the rest of the security guards, they did not dare to react after Freddie announced his status. On the other hand, Thomas' subordinates respected Nathan very much, so they were very obedient.

With Nathan's orders, Ryan and the other security guards immediately pulled out their batons and attacked.

Freddie snorted, "I dare you?"

Ryan and the rest swung their batons toward him. After several cracks, Freddie's limbs were broken in several areas.

"Arghh!" Freddie let out a piercing scream

Chapter 467 Stop Bullying The Others

that rang through the office.

After breaking Freddie's limbs, Ryan raised his head and innocently asked, "Mr. Cross, we have carried out your orders. Are there more?"

Nathan's gaze seemed to turn unintentionally toward Freddie's crotch.

Ryan understood that hint instantly. At once, he raised his foot to trample on Freddie's crotch.

"Arghhhh!" Freddie let out another scream, which then grew weaker and weaker.

Nathan patted Ryan's shoulder with satisfaction. "Call Thomas and send these people back to the Schulz family in Alberesque. In addition, warn them never to return to Channing again."

"Yes, Mr. Cross."

Nathan glanced at Freddie. "I hope that after the doctor has cured you, you will stop bullying the others."

Chapter 468 A Fierce Dog

Not long after, the security guards dragged Freddie and his subordinates out of the office.

Jenny also hurriedly called the cleaner to clean up the mess.

Nathan and Penny walked to the President's lounge next door. Penny's face was filled with worry and she sighed, "You only had to teach them a lesson earlier. There was no need to be so cruel."

"He is Schulz family's eldest grandson and his family holds immense power. In addition, Jaxon is Brimmopolis' mayor."

"After offending them, they will likely target us in the future."

Nathan gazed at Penny and smiled. "The bottom line is simple. Anyone who messes with my wife and family will have to pay with their blood."

Penny looked at Nathan's determined gaze and her heart suddenly softened, with a warm, fuzzy sensation spreading through her limbs.

Chapter 468 A Fierce Dog

She glanced at his face with affection.

“Hubby!”

“Hmm?”

Penny blushed slightly, tilting her face up with her eyes closed.

At first, Nathan was puzzled. His eyes then fell on Penny’s red lips and he realized she was actually asking for a kiss.

Love struck, he dipped his head to kiss her.

When the two touched, she trembled slightly, letting out a groan.

Just as they were kissing, Jenny suddenly knocked on the door and came in.

“President Smith, the office is clean... Oh, I did not see a thing!”

Jenny knocked before she entered the room, but she did not expect to see Penny and Nathan making out. She was so surprised that she quickly covered her eyes and ran out.

Embarrassed, Penny also quickly pushed Nathan away. How embarrassing for her to be caught kissing Nathan by her own employee!

He seemed indifferent and even said, "We should scold Jenny for entering without permission after she knocked."

Penny's blush spread to her neck. She was ashamed and slightly annoyed. "Are you not embarrassed? Don't you dare talk about this matter again!"

Nathan chuckled, "We are husband and wife. What is so embarrassing about kissing my wife?"

Penny was still embarrassed and nudged Nathan. "Don't mention it anymore. Let's head home, it's late."

Nathan recalled the close shave his daughter had earlier. Although Quinten and Juan found out and eliminated the threat in time, it was still a fact that she had been in danger. As her parents, they could only relax when they see her in person.

“Yes, let’s head home.”

Nathan and Penny had just returned to the Riverside Garden.

From a distance, they saw Leah carrying a bag of produce from the supermarket.

Nathan and Penny got out of the car and the latter shouted, “Mom!”

Seeing her daughter and son-in-law, Leah happily responded, “You guys are back. I just bought a big fat chicken. Let me make mushroom chicken stew for you tonight.”

She held out a bag in her hand, containing the slaughtered chicken.

However, a large dog almost the size of a pony suddenly whizzed by and snatched the bag from Leah’s hand with its teeth.

Leah was shocked and she screeched, “Ah!”

Chapter 468 A Fierce Dog

Nathan and Penny immediately went forward to support Leah. "Mom, are you alright?"

Her legs trembled, obviously still in shock. She glanced at the dog who finished the chicken in two big bites and said, "That dog... it's so big and fierce that it really gave me a good scare."

Nathan and Penny looked at the pony-sized dog as well, surprised and angry.

It was an Argentinian Dogo often used to hunt for larger animals.

They were very fierce dogs. Once they bit on to something, they wouldn't let it go until it was dead.

Such dogs were banned in the cities.

There are people who actually raise such dogs here? He was not even leashed. How irresponsible!

Leah was still traumatized while both Nathan and Penny were very upset.

Nathan, Penny and Leah looked in the direction of the woman's voice and saw a wealthy middle-aged lady donned in jewelry, laughing presumptuously.

The Argentinian Dogo immediately ran to her when it saw her.

It was obvious that she was its owner.

Realizing that the dog's owner had appeared, Penny felt her blood boil once again.

She stepped forward and angrily asked, "Madam, this city bans the ownership of such dogs. Besides, if you are raising such an aggressive dog, why is it not on a leash or muzzled? What if it hurts someone?"

It was the first time Penny had seen someone so unreasonable. She shook with anger and said, “I’m calling the police to take your dog away.”

This lady did not have a dog certificate, and Channing banned the ownership of such dog breeds.

She narrowed her eyes and replied anxiously, “If you dare call the police to take Bolt away, I will first get him to kill you. Bolt! Charge and attack!”

The fierce dog obeyed his owner’s command and immediately bared his fangs at Penny.

With a roar, he charged at Penny and opened his mouth to bare his sharp fangs.

Penny screamed in fear.

The lady laughed in triumph, “Haha, wretch, he will kill you!”

Just as Bolt was about to sink his fangs into Penny, a figure suddenly moved forward to protect her. He was none other than Nathan.

The Argentinian Dogo could not care less and pounce. He stood on his hind legs and opened his mouth, wanting to bite Nathan’s neck.

Leah’s heart leapt to her throat, and she shouted, “Nathan, watch out!”

At the same time, Nathan clenched his fists and threw a punch at Bolt’s lower jaw.

Crack!

The Argentinian Dogo’s chin was instantly shattered. The power from Nathan’s punch even caused the dog’s skull to crack.

It flew like a rag doll, landing right in front of its owner, already dead.

The smug look on the lady's face instantly disappeared, and her face hardened.

She widened her eyes in disbelief, unsure of what had just happened.

She glanced at the corpse of her pet before she finally regained her senses and screeched mournfully, "Bolt!"

Her screams caught the attention of several security guards patrolling the area.

Ben, the head of security at Riverside Garden, together with a few others, came over. When they saw the lady mourning and screaming, they asked in surprise, "Mrs. Kemp, what's wrong?"

She was the wife of Channing's prominent landlord, Colton Kemp.

When Mrs. Kemp saw Ben and the other security guards, she cried as though they were her saviors. "They murdered my son!"

When Ben heard her explanation, his eyes widened and he asked cautiously, "I see. But if so, where is your son's corpse?"

Mrs. Kemp wiped her tears and pointed to her dead dog. "Isn't that his corpse?"

Ben was taken aback. Shortly after, an awkward expression crept onto his face.

He replied in embarrassment, "Mrs. Kemp, isn't this a dog?"

She yelled in exasperation, "What is wrong with that? I raised this dog like my son and this bastard killed him. He must pay for it with his life!"

Nathan was the bastard that Mrs. Kemp was referring to.

Furious, she commanded, "Why are you guys still standing there? All of you should be punishing him! I will file a complaint. You will lose your jobs if you don't do as I say!"

Of course, Mrs. Kemp's husband was from a prominent family himself. After all, no typical man could afford to stay at Riverside Garden.

As such, Ben was put in a spot. "Mrs. Kemp, we told you we banned such breeds in our community. Even if you raise a dog, you must have the relevant documents and should keep it on a leash. It is difficult for us to carry out your request now. Why don't you let me talk to Mr. Cross? Perhaps we can discuss if he can compensate you with some money?"

Mrs. Kemp seemed extremely insulted as she cursed, "Screw you! Do I look like I need more money? He killed my son and he must pay back. An eye for an eye."

Ben awkwardly responded, “We cannot carry out your orders.”

Mrs. Kemp sneered, “Since you are useless, you can forget about keeping your position as the head of security.”

With that, she fished out her mobile phone and called the general manager of Riverside Garden.

Within the next few minutes, the general manager, Dale, arrived with a team of men.

He asked politely, “Mrs. Kemp, what’s wrong?”

Mrs. Kemp kept her face straight. “Dale, you are here just in time. You are good friends with my husband. You have to deal with this matter.”

She gave a rundown about what had happened. She left out the part where her dog had tried to hurt someone and only mentioned that Nathan had killed her dog.

At the same time, she also accused Ben and the other security guards of not doing their jobs.

After listening to what Mrs. Kemp had to say, Dale immediately criticized his security guards, "You guys are fired. How dare you go against Mrs. Kemp's wishes?"

Dale took out his mobile phone to call the finance department of the community and talked about their dismissals. He wanted them to pack up and leave.

Ben and the rest did not dare to retort, even though it was unfair treatment.

Penny and Leah thought they were doing their jobs, yet was unfairly punished by the unreasonable lady. Both of them felt guilty for causing the security guards to lose their jobs just like that.

On the other hand, Mrs. Kemp was delighted. "This happens when you offend me. Dale, it is now time for you to punish my son's murderer."

Everyone turned their attention to Nathan.

Ben, Penny, Leah and the rest had a worried expression as they knew the general manager favored Mrs. Kemp.

Sure enough, Dale tried to butter up to her. "How should I punish him?"

Mrs. Kemp snickered, "I don't need him to die nor do I need him to compensate me with money. I want him to kneel in front of my dog's corpse and repent for twenty-four hours!"

Dale glanced at Nathan and ordered, "Didn't you hear what Mrs. Kemp said? If you do not kneel and repent in front of her dog, we will find a hundred ways to make it difficult for you to stay in Riverside Garden. I shall not shock your family by elaborating on how we will do so."

Everyone looked at Nathan.

Instead of throwing a fit, he glanced at Mrs. Kemp and Dale before he smiled. "You made a call earlier, so can I make a call too?"

He then dialed Derek's number. "Derek?"

Instantly alarmed to hear Nathan's voice, Derek quickly responded, "I am here, Mr. Cross. How can I help?"

"A resident in Riverside Garden let her dog loose and wanted him to bite me. Then the general manager threatened to find a hundred ways to chase me out of the community. What are your thoughts?"

Derek was furious. "That is outrageous! Let me go handle it personally."

Nathan replied, "Alright, I want you to come here within the next ten minutes."
