

Chapter 591: Busy

Thursday was when the bidding would be held. Jiang Yao did not attend, instead, Lu Yuqing and Manager Sun went on her behalf. Manager Sun was currently the general manager for the Changkang Group and already had his business card, while Lu Yuqing was the group's financial controller and her business card was currently in print.

Jiang Yao chose not to attend not only because she was lazy and did not want to get too involved in her business' operations, but also she did not want too much media attention on her.

She had rather her photograph not be printed on the front page of various newspapers and magazines, or gossips being published as breaking news.

She liked to earn her money under low-profile.

The result of the bidding would take some time to be released, but Jiang Yao was not concerned at all since she had Manager Sun's assistance and Liang Yuezhe's connections to ensure the successful bidding of the land.

It was early Friday morning, except for Zhou Xiaoxia, the rest was not in a hurry to go to school as their classes would not begin until ten o'clock.

"Let's go shopping this Saturday? Perhaps we can have lunch together and buy some books from the largest bookstore in town." Since Jiang Yao was also available, Lin Qiaoyu suggested, "Jiang Yao, you should come with us! We have not gone out together before!"

"I'm not too sure. If I have time I'll go, if not, maybe next time." Jiang Yao dared not promise for she really had no idea how her schedule would turn out.

She had a lot of matters to attend to currently, therefore she was not sure if she would be needed somewhere suddenly on Saturday.

"You are really busy." Chen Siyang looked at Jiang Yao with a solemn expression. "You're just a freshman here, what other responsibilities do you have? Look at you, requesting for a leave of absence again this week. There are already rumors circulating in the school talking about just how often you're skipping classes."

Chen Siyang had no issues with Jiang Yao being a standout among them, she was worried that her friend would neglect her studies as a result.

Plenty of people were currently looking forward to Jiang Yao's finals' result.

As the freshman representative, there was just too much attention on her.

Regardless of gender, there would always be people who were jealous of Jiang Yao's achievements. Her mere presence in school was enough to dominate the spotlight. Many of the students in the school were waiting to see her fail, even though they pretended to be friendly with her.

The doubters were initially only of a few, but recently more and more people were jumping on the bandwagon.

Perhaps the finals were only two months away, so everyone started focusing on Jiang Yao. Or perhaps she was always absent from her lessons, giving an opportunity for a lot of the people silently observing her to judge and spread rumors.

However, they were only the minority. Even then, Chen Siyang wanted Jiang Yao to stay the excellent student she was, then she did not have to worry about the rumors. Plus, it was her honor to have Jiang Yao as her roommate.

Jiang Yao was racking her brain trying to come up with an explanation for Chen Siyang. Since nobody believed her when she said she was the majority shareholder of Shengqi Hospital, perhaps they would think she was joking if she told them she was busy running her business.

Before she could think of a reason though, an announcement was heard from the dormitory's public address system.

Chapter 592: It's The Truth

Everyone turned their head only to see Wen Xuehui, lying on Jiang Yao's bed, listening to the radio on her cell phone with Moe in her arms.

Cell phones nowadays had few features, but listening to the radio was one of the rarely available ones.

"Why are you listening to the radio?" Jiang Yao asked.

"I went back home with my father for dinner last night. While we were eating, I heard my parents discussing the massive flood in Province C's Rong County. The flood took many lives and left a lot of people stranded. I was a little bored so I wanted to catch up on the news."

Wen Xuehui muttered while she was fiddling with the radio channels. She then continued, "The flood in Rong County was very severe, apparently the surrounding cities and counties were also affected. There are no communication services and no electricity and water supplies in the affected areas."

Jiang Yao's attention was piqued as she walked over and had Wen Xuehui scoot in. She lifted Moe up and put him back at his nest before lying down next to Wen Xuehui.

A news report caught everybody's attention as the rest of the girls huddled together around Jiang Yao and Wen Xuehui.

"Rong County is not too far from where we are right now. Even though the past few days were rainy and overcast, there wasn't a lot of rain. Why did the flood happen?" Chen Siyang sighed. "The people that are affected the most in a natural disaster like this are your regular citizens. I remember a flash flood, similar to this one, happening in my hometown years ago. The scariest thing was that the low-lying areas of the village were completely flooded. Only those who weren't there were spared, everyone who was there drowned that night. Even till now, nobody dares to enter that part of the village."

Jiang Yao shifted her attention to Chen Siyang and asked, "How could it be?"

"I'm not lying, it's true." She did not want Jiang Yao to think that she was exaggerating so she continued, "It was summer then and it had been raining heavily for a while. There was a river flowing through the center of the village with an upstream dam. Usually, there wasn't much water in the river but since it rained daily, the water level in the river started rising. That night, the spillway of the dam upstream was opened up without any warning while the dam downstream remained closed. Caught in the middle were the low-lying areas of the village. It was dead at night and the water came too quickly, nobody had time to escape."

Back then, the houses were built with wood, unlike the sturdy brick houses found more commonly today among the well-to-do.

Wen Xuehui put her cell phone aside and sat up. She looked at Chen Siyang with anger on her face and said, "What was the person-in-charge thinking? Was it done furtively?"

"Yes. The police were involved after the tragedy," said Chen Siyang. "It was the residents of the village. They were worried that their village would get flooded with the never-ending rain so they sent two representatives to open the spillways, of course, it was done without anyone else knowing. The two people were later sentenced to death by firing squad."

Chapter 593: The Search and Rescue Team

The girls listened to Chen Siyang with heavy hearts.

Jiang Yao sighed. "Human selfishness can only be blamed. The authorities would have issued orders when it was time to divert the water out."

If that happened instead, the tragedy would not have happened.

In Jiang Yao's memory, her village was never a victim of a tragedy like this. When the water level rose in the river, the residents would have temporarily moved to places on higher elevation or sought refuge in mountain caves. Strong and healthy men would remain to monitor the river condition.

This was the Jiang Village she remembered, a united community of people. She was still a young girl back then when she was taken to the caves up in the mountains, protected by her two brothers of course. They spent the night there. Fortunately, the rain stopped the next morning and the river returned to its usual water level. It was a false alarm.

Even though the harvest for the year was ruined, Jiang Yao remembered clearly the smiles of rejoicing on the residents' faces.

"Do you think the flood was caused by the same events similar to what happened back at my hometown?" Chen Siyang remarked, "It's outrageous if that's the case! There are so many more people living in the county, they are all human lives!"

"I suppose not. From what I have heard, the local government has done plenty of preventative measures in preparation for the worsening weather. It would be impossible for a mistake like this to happen," Jiang Yao replied.

Just as she finished speaking, they heard breaking news coming from the radio announcer.

"We received frontline news that a soldier from the search and rescue team of Province C's Ying County was seen falling into the strong currents of the flood and swept away after protecting a child from danger. He disappeared instantly and we don't know where he is right now."

At this point, the announcer was slightly choked up. "I hope that everyone who is listening to this broadcast and is in the vicinity of Rong County can do whatever you can to help us find this soldier. I sincerely pray for his safe return."

After the announcement, the room fell into silence.

The news, no doubt, was heavy, even if none of them knew the soldier personally. Yet, they hoped, just like the announcer, that the soldier would be found safely.

The search and rescue team of Province C's Ying County?

Jiang Yao was deep in thought for a while as she instinctively took out her cell phone and dialed Lu Xingzhi's number. She was reminded that he had no access to his phone when the call did not connect.

Ying County of Province C, was that not the location for his selection process?

Was the search and rescue team comprised of the soldiers participating in the selection?

Jiang Yao asked, "Do any of you know if Rong County is next to Ying County?"

"No, they are separated by another county," Lin Qiaoyu answered and added after realizing the strange expression on Jiang Yao's face, "Are you okay, Jiang Yao?"

"I'm fine, I have a phone call to make." She shook her head and went to the balcony. She was so distracted that she did not realize she was not wearing slippers when she went out.

Chapter 594: From Jin City

She kept reassuring herself that the soldier who was swept away was not Lu Xingzhi.

In her previous life, he did not lose his life until ten years later.

There should not be any drastic changes after her rebirth, otherwise what would be the point?

When the call was picked up, Jiang Yao asked, in a quivering voice, "Brother Liang, do you know about the flood in Province C's Rong County? Is there a platoon stationed there in the first place?"

"No, there is no military presence in both Ying County and Rong County." Liang Yueze presumed Jiang Yao heard the news announcement and knew about the soldier who was swept away. "Don't overthink things, it's not Xingzhi."

"Were you able to contact them?" Jiang Yao asked.

"All communication to Rong County is lost. Every soldier in Ying County was urgently deployed to the disaster site, they are all currently at Rong County now. The incident happened a few hours ago actually. With the interruption in communication, it takes time for the news to spread. Don't worry, the authorities have sent more people into the search and rescue effort."

Liang Yueze did not think that the soldier was Lu Xingzhi.

If it were him, the Liang family would have received the news by now.

Liang Yueze comforted Jiang Yao but before he could hang up the phone, Old General Liang came in with a somber expression.

He looked distracted and immediately spoke to Liang Yueze without realizing he was in a call, "We received news that the soldier was from the Jin City platoon, however, we still don't know the exact identity."

Liang Yueze's hand stiffened as his body trembled violently.

It was no better than before; when they knew of Lu Xingzhi's critical condition after the rescue mission.

There were not many soldiers from Jin City platoon in the selection process, to begin with.

Liang Yueze dared not imagine. With Lu Xingzhi's personality, it really was something he would do, putting himself in harm's way to save others.

"Brother Liang, What did Old General Liang say?" Jiang Yao could only catch bits and pieces of information from the other end of the phone but she did hear the phrase "Jin City Platoon" mentioned.

Liang Yueze was abruptly yanked back into reality as he realized he was still in a phone call with Jiang Yao.

He was not sure what Jiang Yao managed to hear so he said, "According to Grandpa, the soldier that was swept away did not come from Jin City platoon. Don't worry!"

Perhaps she had absolute faith in Old General Liang and Liang Yueze, Jiang Yao believed him fully and did not suspect anything.

What a relief!

Liang Yueze was relieved to see that Jiang Yao had believed his reply. Nobody knew for sure who the soldier that was swept away by the flood was, so at this point, he had to withhold as much information from Jiang Yao as possible. It was better than having her anxious and worrying over at Nanjiang City alone.

"Stay in school, I'll talk to you later." Liang Yueze hurriedly ended the call. With a deep frown on his forehead, he said, "Grandpa, can you arrange for a helicopter? I need to see for myself what is going on in Rong County."

Chapter 595: Medical and Relief Supplies

"Were you talking to Jiang Yao?" Old General Liang eventually realized Jiang Yao might have overheard what he said earlier. "Did she believe in what you said?"

"For now, at least. That's why I need to be in Rong County as soon as possible to check out the situation. Jiang Yao is still a young lady but she has a very sensitive mind. We can't hide from her for too long," Liang Yueze said. "Grandpa, stay behind and wait for the news, I'll go now."

After hearing from Liang Yueze that the soldier was not Lu Xingzhi, Jiang Yao went back into her room in relief.

She thought about it, changed her clothes, and said to Wen Xuehui, "Can you help me? I'll have to take tomorrow off, there are urgent matters I need to attend to."

She stuffed Moe into her backpack and left the room before getting into her car. As she was leaving, she did not hear Wen Xuehui's question asking where she would be.

After leaving the campus, Jiang Yao gave the director of Shengqi Hospital a call.

"Did you hear about the flood in Rong County?" Jiang Yao asked before continuing, "Call for an emergency meeting with all medical and nursing staff immediately! I'll need you to reschedule the shifts and arrange for a third of our medical personnel to head to the frontlines in Rong County."

A brief pause later, she added, "It will be hard for everyone in the hospital. On behalf of me, the shareholder of the hospital, please express my heartfelt gratitude to all our medical personnel. There will be a bonus for everyone this month and whoever volunteers to go to Rong County will have their current month's salary tripled."

She spoke extremely fast, perhaps worrying that any second delayed would deprive the medical personnel an opportunity to save more lives.

"Yes! I'll get to it immediately!" The Director was instantly galvanized. He already knew of the dire situation in Rong County but perhaps he was used to the previous shareholders' indifference to unprofitable matters, he could only express his sympathies on the victims of the disaster.

However, he had no real intentions of contributing help to the victims.

It was not until he received Jiang Yao's phone call that his heart, buried under the desire for profit and money, was finally awakened.

He remembered the reason he chose to be a doctor in the first place. Not just for its career stability, but when he was younger, he had a passion to serve the people.

As he grew older and gained more experiences, his passion was slowly worn down by the realities of society, and eventually abandoned in his blind pursuit of wealth and fame.

With Rong County in trouble, Jiang Yao, a nineteen-year-old girl, took up a responsibility that did not belong to her.

She was willing to forgo Shengqi Hospital's profits and also to bear all grievances by the employees just to help the people in suffering.

To the Director, she was in fact a kind and gentle girl. Although it was easy to overlook that fact because of her hard-line attitude in running the hospital.

Jiang Yao called Manager Sun after establishing the details for the Shengqi Hospital's humanitarian effort. "I am transferring five hundred thousand dollars in cash to you now. Purchase as many non-perishable foods, water, daily goods, waterproof tents as fast as possible and have them delivered to the frontline at Rong County!"

Chapter 596: Altering the Outcome

Manager Sun immediately understood the reason for Jiang Yao's arrangement when he heard it was to be delivered to Rong County.

Without asking any questions, he took the job. Fortunately, he knew a lot of people in Nanjiang City, otherwise, it would be a monumental task to gather all the needed equipment and supplies in such a short period of time.

After the phone calls, Jiang Yao stopped her car by the side of the road. Why did she leave in the first place?

With the Director and Manager Sun overseeing all aid efforts, she did not have to be there herself.

Everything was done on an impulse.

Right now, Lu Xingzhi was giving his all in the rescue efforts at Rong County.

She did not think much. It was all done on a whim because she was afraid that he would not have sufficient food and water supplies, a tent to sleep in at night, and medicine if he fell sick.

She was also worried about the victims' condition. The victims affected might not survive for long for the lack of relief supplies.

At this exact moment, she finally knew what it felt like to be worried about the wellbeing of other people.

She was extremely anxious and kept praying for the casualties to be as minimal as possible.

Loss of property and money was fine as long as there was no loss of life.

And, the soldier that was swept away...

Jiang Yao rapped her head, she remembered reading the news report about this incident in her previous life.

According to the report, the soldier was found a week after his disappearance. Unfortunately, he was already dead. His body was found in a grisly condition due to being in the water for an extended period of time.

Jiang Yao racked her brain trying to recall the news report. She remembered reading an analysis of the path taken by the soldier after he was swept away.

It was reported that the soldier was swept into the West River by the currents of the flood and his body passed through Jade River County, Ying County before his corpse was washed up in a small river near a small town in Longxi County.

It was also mentioned that the soldier, instead of drowning immediately after falling into the water, was an able swimmer and died of exhaustion after some time.

Jiang Yao sat up again and thought to herself, now that she recalled the routes, was it possible for her to find the soldier earlier by waiting along the path he was said to have passed by so that she could save him before he died of exhaustion?

He was a national hero, a capable soldier!

Back then, his sacrifice touched the hearts of the people in the country.

Strangely enough, Jiang Yao could not recall the soldier's name, and it seemed like the news report did not mention his name anywhere at all. Yet, it did say that his body was transported back to his hometown, Jindo City, to be buried. Only his name did not appear at all.

Jiang Yao was very sure now that the nameless hero could not be Lu Xingzhi, because he was from the South, and not Jindo City!

Even though her rebirth changed Lu Xingzhi's life drastically, some things did remain the same.

Such as the flood and the missing soldier. Her presence might not alter the soldier's name, but she could try her best to change his fate!

Chapter 597: I'm Not Omnipotent

Even though the soldier was not Lu Xingzhi, she still wanted to try and save him.

With that thought, Jiang Yao went to the supermarket and bought some water, food, and daily necessities before leaving Nanjiang City alone, headed for Ying County.

At this moment, it was reasonable to assume that the soldier had yet to reach Ying County. She should be able to see him if she followed the West River distributary and drove into Jade River County.

Because she was in a hurry and wanted to arrive as quickly as possible, Jiang Yao drove very fast. After exiting the city boundaries into the national highway, she jammed her foot on the throttle and the car sped off.

Fortunately, Ying County was not too far away from Nanjiang City. Jiang Yao managed to reach Ying County by afternoon after racing down the highways.

It was only a five-hour journey, but the weather was vastly different.

Upon entering Province C, the temperature dropped a few degree celsius. Luckily, Jiang Yao had a jacket, which she accidentally left in the car a while back. The drizzle of the rain welcomed her into Ying County.

Nonetheless, it was still better than the weather at Jade River County with its heavy rain.

That being said, the situation at Rong County was even worse if the weather was already this bad in its neighboring county.

No wonder the person telling her the unfolding of the event did it with a regretful expression. Having heavy rain even though a massive flood had just occurred, it seemed like God really wanted to bring his wrath down on the people of Rong County.

It was already late at night when the car entered Jade River County. It was raining heavily so Jiang Yao had to slow the car down. She then woke up Moe, who was fast asleep in her backpack.

"Can you locate a person floating on a wide river with a strong current?" asked Jiang Yao.

“Hey, I’m not omnipotent!” Moe glared at Jiang Yao. “It’s a big body of water and you’re not sure if the person you’re looking for is here right now. It’s much easier if the person has undergone your surgery before, you could ask System Admin to do patient tracking. But, you’re looking for a stranger, that’s tough.”

Jiang Yao was extremely anxious and even though she was curious about what “patient tracking” was, she was in no mood to ask for further clarification right now.

“Well then, let me slow down the car. Help me out here, a cat’s night vision is supposed to be impeccable right?” Jiang Yao spoke softly, trying to strike a deal with Moe.

Moe jumped up and landed on the window. He wagged his tail before turning back to look at Jiang Yao. “You fool of a human! Your vision is as good as mine now. Plus, you have x-ray vision and an amazing hearing, you should try using your abilities!”

After such a reminder from Moe, Jiang Yao suddenly remembered that, indeed, her vision and hearing were now on a superhuman level.

“Let me remind you, your abilities have limited range currently. Know your limits, don’t try to push yourself. Otherwise, you’ll only hurt your body.” Moe rolled his eyes at Jiang Yao, not forgetting to remind her not to push herself too far.

Jiang Yao nodded. She knew she could not yet see nor hear things from too far away, the maximum she could go was a radius of two kilometers.

Chapter 598: The Search

Within the range, nothing escaped her vision and hearing, no matter how subtle or tiny it was.

That was enough, Jiang Yao thought. She could drive on and push the two-kilometer envelope further, as long as she could hear the soldier’s cries for help or see his silhouette, that was all she needed.

Definitely a faster way to search for the missing soldier.

It was late at night as the storm ravished the highway, not a car to be seen. The various tributaries of the West River flowed into the river next to the highway. The river flow was rapid and the current was strong as it flooded the farm patches on the banks of the river, covering everything, including the vegetation.

Jiang Yao focused her entire attention on listening and seeing. She saw, from her vision, that there were many objects floating in the river, such as clothes, shoes, furniture, trash, and even animals, who were struggling, being brought away by the strong current.

From her hearing, she could hear very clearly unknown yelps and howls coming from the mountains. It was so clear that she could identify where exactly they came from.

There was not a human nor any houses to be found along the entire journey. Even the most daring person would have a difficult time trying to navigate a place like this on a stormy night.

Jiang Yao was not the most courageous person but her focus was currently directed at searching for the survivor. Anything not related to her mission was ignored.

The storm paused only for half an hour throughout the entire night, as heavy rain poured on the rest of the time.

Jiang Yao drove on, passing villages and towns on the way. However, she still had no luck finding the survivor.

It was dawn when she drove out of a village into no man's land. Looking up at the sky, she turned to Moe and said, "Say, the river current is so strong, do you think the soldier was swept further? Should I have searched downstream instead? Was my effort last night a waste?"

Did she lose out on precious time because of her incorrect judgment?

"I don't know," Moe answered honestly. After all, he was not omnipotent.

However, toiling the entire night away was exhausting for him. He lay on the seat and looked at Jiang Yao with bloodshot eyes. She must be feeling exhausted now, he thought. After all, using one's vision and hearing to look for a missing person was a taxing endeavor.

He observed Jiang Yao, who was driving slowly, and thought how scary she could be when she set her mind on doing something.

Would she do the same if he was found missing one day?

Probably not. She might celebrate instead.

Frankly, Moe was not quite pleased with his assumption. The unhappy Moe then chose to go to sleep.

Seeing the sleeping Moe, Jiang Yao decided not to wake him up. She was contemplating whether to turn her car around and search downstream.

Or maybe she should just follow through with her initial plan and continue her search forward.

If she could not locate the survivor by the time she reached the borders of Rong County, she would turn her car around and drive downstream as fast as she could. That seemed to be the most reasonable solution to her dilemma.

Chapter 599: Found Him

As morning approached, more vehicles were found on the road. Most of them were trucks or vehicles sending supplies to the rescue team in Rong County. They sped past Jiang Yao's car, leaving a trail of mud and water behind them.

Since Rong County was heavily affected by the disaster, there were still very few cars headed toward that direction. An hour later, no other vehicles could be heard.

Jiang Yao looked at the cars momentarily before shifting her focus to the river again.

As she approached the borders of Rong County, her feelings of fear and anxiety mounted. She could not hear any cries for help, not even the softest sound.

As time went on, she was getting closer and closer to Rong County.

Calculating the time since the soldier was swept away by the flood, she could not help but feel dejected as time went on.

It was extremely worrying, even for an excellent soldier, to be immersed in water for an extended period of time.

No matter how well he could swim, could he do it continuously for more than twenty hours?

Even if he managed to grab onto driftwood, without getting on to dry land, there was no way he could have grabbed onto the wood for such a long time.

The waters of a flood was a very powerful force, strong enough to destroy entire villages and take away human lives instantly.

It was only a matter of time until a person felt exhausted holding onto driftwood.

Faster, Jiang Yao thought, she had to find him faster!

Overwhelmed by the thought, Jiang Yao stepped on the throttle and accelerated the car. She was not afraid of fatigue, she could always take a nap in her car. Yet, for the soldier, fatigue meant death.

She had to move forward faster. If she could not find the soldier after arriving at the borders of Rong County, she would immediately turn around and head downstream as fast as she could.

Her gaze shifted from object to object floating on the river, not willing to miss a single detail. What if the person she was looking for was among one of the trash and objects she saw floating on the river?

No!

There was no one in the current two-kilometer range!

Stepping on the throttle, she sped up and continued her search.

Her brows were knitted into a deep frown.

Hold on!

She thought she saw a human silhouette.

Slamming on the brakes, she directed her focus on what she just saw.

It was a huge, irregular rock on the river, and a man, in his military uniform, could be seen on it.

He was a head shorter than Lu Xingzhi.

Thank goodness, it was not Lu Xingzhi! She did not change the history of her current reality!

There were a lot of things on the soldier's face as he lay quietly on the rock. It did not have a flat surface and he was twisted in an awkward position as everything below his knees was submerged in the river. Veins popped out of his hands as he grabbed onto a protrusion on the rock tightly, trying really hard not to be swept away into the river by the strong current.

From his hands, Jiang Yao was able to see that he was using every last ounce of his energy holding onto the rock trying to delay his death.

Chapter 600: Hang On!

Heavy rain poured non-stop last night but it seemed like it would stay for a while longer. When the river flow suddenly increased, it would submerge his entire body in the water for a good few seconds. When the water receded, there would be some trash left on his face and body. Yet, he could not wipe them away for he had to hold on to the rock with both his hands.

Jiang Yao looked at his eyes, she thought they looked familiar but it was impossible for her to recall who he was at that moment.

Those eyes were not shut tight, instead, they were opened ever so slightly. Perhaps exhausted, the eyelids would shut from time to time but immediately the next second they would open again.

He looked up at the sky in despair.

When the waves came crashing, he held on to the rock tightly and shut his eyes hurriedly. And when his eyes reopened after the water receded, they suddenly looked sharper, as if his will to survive just increased.

Jiang Yao instantly understood the soldier's inner conflict.

He was desperate. At the moment, he was faced with massive waves and rapid currents. All his energy was used to hold on to the rock. He lacked the strength to call for help because he knew that nobody could hear him out here in the wilderness. Even the occasional car passing by sped right through.

His cries for help would only spend his energy further.

However, he was not willing to give up on his life. As long as he was still alive, even for a second, he could not give up.

He wanted to hang on for a little longer. Perhaps, his comrades would appear out of the blue and rescue him from the calamity.

"Hang on! I will be there soon!" She knew he could not hear her, but she still called out, wanting to comfort him.

She slammed on the throttle as the car sped along the highway.

Two kilometers. It was not as far as one thought, yet it was not a short distance either.

She was not sure if the soldier could hang on for another second. Perhaps the next moment, he would lose strength and vanish completely into the rapid currents of the river.

She had to save him!

Not just because he was Lu Xingzhi's comrade, he was a hero who sacrificed himself to save others.

A few minutes later. Jiang Yao finally arrived at the spot. She stepped on the brakes and parked the car by the side of the road.

Perhaps he heard the sounds of the car screeching to a halt, the soldier on the rock turned and looked toward the road.

“Hey, comrade! Hang on! I am coming to save you! Hang on!” Jiang Yao frowned. The rock was only a two-meter distance from the road but the rapid-flowing river between them made things incessantly difficult and dangerous.

Jiang Yao saw the lips of the soldier moving like he was saying something, yet it was too soft, she could not even hear it.

“Don’t speak! Conserve your strength!” Jiang Yao called out to the soldier. She lifted Moe up and asked, “Is there a way?”

“Damn! I don’t know! The river current is deadly and anyone that goes into that body of water will die!” Moe was furious. “Did you find him?” He looked over the river and added, “He doesn’t look good at all!”
