

Chapter 606

He said, pointing at Evelin.

Evelin looked at him with a blank expression, her mouth not making any sound as it was gagged.

He Si's face turned pale.

"So what you're saying now is..."

That flower-armed man, reached out a hand on He Si's shoulder, laughing: "Brother, not that I'm saying you, you this person ah sometimes is just too merciful, people's wives are disowning you, thinking of ways to divorce you, but you still miss the old love refused to let go, you say this is why?"

The words almost made Evelin vomit.

You're holding on to old feelings?

It's the money that's holding him back, isn't it?

But though this sounded hypocritical to her, He Si was very much amused by it.

He laughed twice and said, "I'm not just a one-day husband and wife, this girl at least calls me father, I can't do things too badly, right?"

That flower-armed man's eyes flashed with a sneer at the words.

The face showed, however, a very admiring look.

"If you ask me why do I think you're just a righteous man!But brother, you have to look at the situation a little bit more clearly.This girl has been tied up here by you, do you think if you really put her back, she'll be able to spare you later?"

As soon as this was said, He Si was stunned for a moment.

He had bullied Evelin's mother and daughter for too many years, and over the years, even though Evelin was becoming famous, whether it was financial income or social status, she was no longer the little girl that he could take advantage of.

But just because there is a marriage certificate between Kang's mother and his first marriage, he is nominally still Evelin's adoptive father.

And because of this, with Mother Kang as his leverage, he wasn't afraid that Evelin would disobey him.

Perhaps it was a habit he had developed over the years, but gradually, he felt that no matter what he did, in the end, Evelin would still have to be at his mercy.

So, even though she had tied her up here this time, she never thought that she would get back at herself afterwards.

The man with the flowery arms saw him stunned and smiled, patting him on the shoulder.

"Think about it yourself, we'll take the money anyway, and as for the people, whatever you want to do with them."

After saying that, he took the man out.

He Si stood there for a moment, his face changing.

He turned his head and looked at Evelin, who was tied to a concrete pillar, and suddenly there was a hint of birds of prey in his eyes.

Crouching down, he yanked away the rag that had been gagged in her mouth.

"Ho Si! Are you out of your fu*king mind? Do you have any idea what you're doing right now? Hurry up and untie me!"

Evelin could speak with difficulty, and immediately shouted out.

He Si looked at her, the birds of prey between his eyebrows growing thicker.

Only half a dozen times did he coldly say, "Don't shout, even if you break your throat, no one here will hear you."

Evelin immediately turned pale at the news.

The face, which was already a little pale, was even more bloodless at the moment.

She looked incredulously at He Si and asked, "What is this place? What have you brought me to?"

He Si indifferently stuffed a piece of cake into her mouth and said, "Don't ask, I won't say anything if you do, now it's time to eat, drink what you have to drink, eat and drink and then get on your way."

Evelin stiffened and spat out the pie that was stuffed into her mouth with a few poofs.

"What's on the road? Where are you taking me and what do you really want?"

He Si didn't say anything.

Just that look in his eyes had betrayed his thoughts.

He said coldly, "Don't blame me, there's nothing I can do, who made you treat money like a life before, you'd rather hug us all to death than give me the money, now it's the only way."

As Evelin listened to his words, she couldn't figure out what he meant at all.

Only one signal was understood.

"Are you, are you doing this for money? He Si, are you really crazy or not? Didn't I promise you that I'll give you $50 million if you're willing to divorce? Why are you doing this? Isn't that money enough for you to trample on?"

She said this in a low voice and through gritted teeth.

He Si gave her a mocking glance.

"Fifty million? Heh. You'll really have $50 million for me? Or do you think I'm stupid? Is it that easy? You're just looking for an excuse to kick my ass after you've flown the coop!"

He said, suddenly thinking of something, and crouched down again, grabbing her by the shirt.

"You tell me honestly, where is that check for $20 million? Just say the word and I promise to let you go, okay?"

Evelin looked at him and suddenly felt a little funny.

So, it was a real laugh.

"Ho Si, do you think you're sick! Obviously there is more money you don't want, but you have to come and take such a big risk to take this twenty million, have you had your brain chewed by a pig?"

He Si didn't think that she would have the nerve to curse him even at this point.

In a fit of rage, he slapped her across the face.

"I told you to tell me where that money is!"

He hissed out, his whole body shaking slightly from anger.

Evelin's face was tilted to the side as he hit her, the fishy taste of rust filling the corners of her mouth.

She took a deep breath and said quietly, "Why don't you do this, let me go first and I'll tell you where the money is."

He Si stared at her fiercely, a pair of eyes that were close to crimson from anger.

Evelin, however, wasn't afraid in the slightest, only gazing at him with a calm gaze.

Even the tone of the negotiations was almost calm.

"I don't know what your relationship is with that group of people out there, but I can see that they don't take you seriously either, and letting you kidnap me out is mostly just using you, what about the twenty million, and how much you have left in a point with them."

"Why don't you let me go first, that way the twenty million dollars are all yours and you don't have to divorce my mother, and later you can use the divorce thing to find me and extort another fortune, I can't do anything to you anyway, can I?"

I have to say that Evelin's words struck a chord with him.

After all, that's over 20 million!

If all that money had been his, he could have bought a lot more...and he would never have to endure the torture he was enduring now.

Thinking of something, He Si's eyes went crazy.

He looked at Evelin with an almost paranoid fury, and lowered his voice, "Are you sure that if I let you go, you'll really give me that money?"

Although Evelin's emotions had risen and fallen very much, she still appeared to be very calm on the surface.

At any rate, I've acted in so many plays, how can I drop the ball at a critical moment?

She said calmly, "Yes, if you let me go, the money is all yours."

Chapter 607

He Si's breathing became quicker.

He turned back, took a look at the group of people standing outside the door, and then whispered to Evelin, "You promise to keep your word, no lying to me!"

Evelin sneered, "What can I lie to you about?It's not like you don't know where I live, can I hide from the first day of the year and still be able to hide from the fifteenth?"

As soon as she said that, He Si was indeed convinced.

Come to think of it, legally, he was her adoptive father, and it was only right to ask her for some money to spend.

She could even sue her for abandoning the elderly if it was a no-go.

And all these years, He Si had been manipulating the mother and daughter, and was psychologically used to it.

Precautions against them, naturally, are low.

But, just to be on the safe side, he kept an extra eye out.

"Tell you what, you tell me where your mother is and I'll let you go once I've made sure it's okay."

Evelin's face instantly went cold.

"He Si, our business is our business, it has nothing to do with my mother, so don't you dare hit on her!"

He Si laughed gloomily.

"Nothing to do with her? How is that possible? She's your mother. She's my wife. What happens between us is her business, isn't it? Besides, you're a different little girl than you used to be, so you don't have to lie to me."

"I know, you hooked up with a rich man, didn't you? Now you've got a lot on your mind. If I let you go and you don't pay me, what can I really do to you? Aren't I afraid of that wild man of yours taking revenge on me?"

"But that's different with your mother, we're legally married, even if I don't beat her and scold her, it's normal to do things that couples love to do, right, and when doing such things, if one of her hearts doesn't recover and something happens, it's not something I can control, right?"

"Legally in a situation like this, I shouldn't be held accountable either, should I? So ah, you'd better tell me her whereabouts, that way, I'll be at ease, you'll be at ease, and then we'll work together happily and pay with one hand and pay with the other, wouldn't that be the best of both worlds?"

Evelin was trembling with anger.

She had always known that He Si was shameless, but she had never thought that he could be shameless to this extent!

She gritted her teeth, looked at him coldly, and said word for word, "Don't you dare!"

Her attitude caused He Si's face to instantly go cold.

"Heh! So, you were trying to trick me, then? Because you want to lie to me, you don't dare to tell me your mother's whereabouts now, Evelin, do you really think I'm funny?"

He said, suddenly reaching out and clamping a hand down on her jaw.

Evelin only felt as if her jaw was about to be crushed by him, and her entire head was forced to lift upwards.

Just then, a voice came in from outside.

"Hey, have you asked her out yet?"

He Si looked back at those people, and before he could speak, he heard Evelin grit her teeth and lower her voice, "The money is in my house."

He Si froze and looked back at her, not responding at first.

"What did you say?"

"I said, the money is at my house, and I'm sure I won't have a check for that large amount with me, but if you want it, you'll have to come home with me to get it."

He Si was ruthlessly shaken!

He released his hand and turned back to the house and shouted, "Soon."

Then, only then did they turn around again and look at Evelin.

"Are you sure you're not lying to me?"

Evelin's jaw was finally released, relieving her pain.

She took a few deep breaths before saying, "Sure, but you have to take me with you, because without me, you won't be able to get into my house."

He Si laughed sardonically at the words.

"That's where you're wrong, have you forgotten how I came into your house last time?"

When he laughed, Evelin laughed as well.

"Is it? So do you think I'd be stupid enough to keep living there when it's clear that you've been in my house before?"

He Si was stunned.

Evelin continued, "As you said, I'm a big star now, and I'm rich, and I've even climbed into a rich man, so naturally I can't continue to live in that small flat."

"To tell you the truth, actually, that little flat, I put it there specifically as a blindfold for you."

"I'm usually out filming, I stay in hotels most of the time, and you don't know how many days a year I'm at home, so if I go back there once in a while, you'd think that I live there all the time."

"That way, you won't have to look up my real address, but the truth is, I moved long ago, and where I live now, it's a single-family house."

"It's not just the cheque, there's a lot of jewellery and antiques in there that I've been quietly saving up over the years, and if you'll let me go, I promise not to take a penny of these things, I'll give them all to you, how about it?"

As soon as He Si finished listening, a pair of eyes turned hot.

"Are you serious? And jewellery and antiques?"

"Of course, you've got my men, how dare you lie?"

He Si swallowed his saliva, and Evelin looked at him quietly, not hurrying, waiting for his answer.

She knew that based on He Si's greed, there was no way she wouldn't want it since she knew there was such a large sum of money.

Sure enough, a few seconds later, he gritted his teeth and said, "Fine, I'll let you go, but not until I get my stuff!"

Evelin smiled slowly, "It's a deal."

"It's a deal."

After He Si discussed with her, he went out.

The group outside had been asking him to find out if the money was anywhere.

He also just smirked and said that the little girl was so tough-mouthed that he'd wait to starve her again for the night.

The other man's face pulled down at the news and gave Evelin a cold glance, his mouth seemingly saying that he wanted to teach her a lesson to taste.

As he said that, he came inside while undressing.

He Si frowned at the sight, then smiled and held out his hand to stop him.

"Hey, don't ah, we haven't got the money yet, this girl is so strong s*xually, now if we play a good thing, then it's not worth it, when we pry our mouths open at night, we can play as much as we want, let them be, he will never interfere."

The man heard the words and that's when he stopped, giving up the idea of doing it now.

The previous Flower Arm laughed, "He Lao Si, I can't tell, quite ruthless, this is your adopted daughter! You don't feel bad about being trashed by your brothers?"

He Si narrowed his eyes, took a cigarette and lit it, smiling, "What adopted daughter? It's just a money loser, who's been eating and using me for the past ten years, who wants to kick me out when she's flying high, and who am I to care about her?"

The man listened and seemed to let that go, put his hand on his shoulder and went back to joking around.

Chapter 608

It wasn't until the evening that He Four reappeared.

This time, there was no sound outside, as if everyone was asleep.

Actually, Evelin wasn't sure if they were really asleep or if they had left, but it was always quiet outside.

He Si came in furtively, holding a set of car keys.

He came over and untied the rope from Evelin's body.

As he untied the rope, he said, "Stay quiet for a while, just follow me, the car is parked not far out on the road, we'll go over there and just get in."

The tape on Evelin's mouth had already been torn off.

A little unsure of what I heard, I asked, "Where are those people?"

He Si gave her a look.

This glance, taboo as it was, for some reason, Evelin suddenly had a feeling of chills down her spine.

Like a shadowy snake, it leaped up her back.

Immediately after, she heard He Si's cold, gloomy laugh, "I've knocked them unconscious and locked them all in the cellar."

This place, the so-called cellar, is supposed to be a basement.

After all, it's a factory, it's normal to have a basement to put some unwanted junk or tools and so on.

Only, Evelin was a little confused.

"What did you put them in the basement for?"

If it was because you wanted to take her away, then just knocking someone out would be enough, so why bother moving them down there.

Only He Si looked at her gloomily, his eyes narrowed, and the voice he spat out was cold and low.

"If we don't shut it down, won't the body be found right away? It's hidden there, at least it can be hidden for a few more days, and when they find out again, I'll be long gone, and I wouldn't be able to catch me even if I wanted to, don't you think?"

Evelin's movements stiffened.

The whole body stayed there, looking at him incredulously.

He Si suddenly didn't know where, and felt a small knife.

He held a knife to Evelin's stomach and sneered, "Good girl, I killed someone to help you this time, you shouldn't betray me, right?"

Evelin only felt cold behind her, as if it was cold from her skin all the way into her bones, even her fingers were freezing.

It took her half a moment, but she managed to nod her head.

"No, it won't."

He Si moved his finger, gesturing for her to stand up.

Then only did he say, "In that case, take me to the money! Don't worry, there's no one out there right now, and if you promise to behave, no one will ever hurt you."

He said, continuing to hold the knife against her, gesturing for her to step outside.

Evelin moved stiffly outside and suddenly understood something.

Turns out...he never intended to let himself go!

She wasn't stupid, but He Si had killed so many people, yet she was relieved to tell her about it.

Unless he was crazy enough to tell this to someone who had been standing across from his enemy and could betray him at any moment.

Either that or...he had no intention of letting her live!

A dead person doesn't have to worry about her spilling her secrets.

When she thought of this, Evelin only felt cold, and a great sense of panic and helplessness came over her heart.

It was like a thick, dark cloud, overwhelming, with an overwhelming sense of pressure that was about to nearly collapse.

But, in the end, she pursed her lips and showed nothing.

Be good and follow him outside.

I didn't have far to go, but I saw a road not far away.

There's a black car.

He Si kept the knife in his hand against her stomach, and when he reached the car, he handed her the keys and asked, "Can you drive?"

Evelin nodded.

He Si just handed her the keys and ordered her to sit in the driver's seat before quickly going around to the other side and getting in through the passenger seat.

In such a short, only a second or two gap.

Evelin actually thought about running away.

But the thought, which only flashed for a moment, was abandoned by her.

There's no escape!

This place is so remote, there's no one around, she can't outrun He Si by herself.

With no defensible weapons on his person, even if he ran, he wouldn't be able to run for more than a few steps before he was caught.

When the time came, there was no telling what would happen if He Si was angered.

She gulped at the thought of putting the keys in the keyhole and gripped the steering wheel with both hands.

He Si buckled his seat belt and looked at her, seeing that she had been behaving well and obediently.

"Look, how nice is this now?! I'll save you the trouble if you do as you're told, and don't worry, when I get the money, I'll let you go and never embarrass you again."

Evelin could only manage a smile, then slowly started the car.

The car had been moving evenly on the road, and He Si sat in the passenger seat, the knife in his hand never leaving the socket of her waist.

It wasn't that Evelin didn't want to drive the car and run straight away, but she knew that she wouldn't be able to move faster than He Si.

Perhaps before she could run, He Si's knife had already been plunged into her body.

If it had been in the past, she probably wouldn't have believed that He Si would have the guts to be so bold.

But now, after learning that so many people had been killed and their bodies hidden by He Si, she realized that the He Si she knew now was no longer the one she had known before.

The He Si she knew was just as odious, though.

But the guts are smaller, only daring to do petty evil, bullying women, gambling, or fighting or whatever.

When you really encounter a hard edge, you'll still back off.

But not now.

The current He Si was more like a cold, venomous snake, appearing weak and even small on the surface.

But at some point, it can suddenly jump up and take a big bite out of you.

The poison enters the bloodstream and can't be saved even if you want to.

She was sure that if she really had anything else in mind at this point, He Si could definitely do something to kill and escape.

Therefore, Evelin did not dare to act rashly at all.

However, continuing to wait is not an option.

She thought about it, and then suddenly said, "Have you got a box ready for your stuff?"

He Si froze, frowning at her.

"What box?"

Evelin smiled stiffly, "Didn't I say that? I have a lot of jewellery and antiques. Don't you want them all? Definitely have to get something for it, and I don't have a case at my house that you can take away, and my case is either one I've used before that's easily recognizable, or it's a small suitcase, and that won't hold antiques."

She was actually taking a gamble.

Bet He Si is reluctant to give up those valuable antiques.

Sure enough, I heard He Si ask suspiciously, "What antiques do you have in your home?"

As soon as Evelin heard this, he knew he had taken the bait.

Inwardly relieved, his mouth rambled, "A lot, what do you like better?"
