Chapter 2481

Nollace smiled. "Thanks for the concern. They're all fine. How are you doing, Uncle Brandon?"

Brandon nodded and picked up his teacup. "I'm doing just fine."

Colton walked down the stairs and saw Nollace. "Someone really knows when to come to pay a visit in order to grab a free meal."

At that moment, Daisy poked her head out of the kitchen. "Don't you dare bully my husband!"

Colton was rendered speechless.

Brandon laughed and changed the subject.

"Do you guys want to have roast turkey tonight?" Daisy answered immediately, "Roast turkey sounds great!"

Nollace said, "I'll go with my wife's choice."

Just as Brandon was about to speak, Colton was the only one who seemed bothered by the idea.

"Roast turkey? I'll skip--"

Freyja cleared her throat.

He pretended to hesitate for a short while and turned his face away. "Okay, we'll go with roast turkey."

Daisy's smile intensified.

Nollace wrapped his arms around Daisie's shoulder and gnawed the taco exactly where she had bitten it.

"Of course. And it tastes very sweet, just like you."

Daisie's cheeks warmed up. "You... I only asked you to grab a taste of the taco, and you're giving me nonsense."

His smile widened. "We just had a full meal at Colton's, and you're already eating a taco." "Your son is the one who's hungry, not me."

"Then our son has quite a huge appetite. He'll probably be a chubby boy in the future."

Daisie covered her abdomen with her palm and laughed. "Why must it be a chubby boy? It might be a chubby girl."

Nollace lifted her hair with his fingertips, saw her slightly gluttonous look, and could not help but laugh out loud. "It doesn't matter. I like both genders."

At this time, Daisie's cell phone rang. She took it out and looked at the caller ID.

It was Diana.

Nollace stared at King William. "How are you feeling?"

He smiled and explained, "It's fine. Everyone falls sick when they get old. I've given all my life to the politics of this country, and I've devoted myself to state affairs. I've never neglected my people, but with that, I've definitely ignored you guys back at home."

Nollace pursed his lips and did not utter a single word.

William looked outside the window, and his gaze dimmed. "I wronged your grandmother back then, your mother, you, and let's not forget about Freyja."

He was also very saddened by what Freyja's mother had done. After all, she was also his daughter.

And Freyja had always been innocent.

Daisie's eyebrows twitched.

"Grandpa, you have to take good care of your health. You'll still have the chance to make up for the things that you just mentioned in the future, and I'm confident that Freyja won't blame you."

Hearing what Daisie said, King William smiled. "I hope so too."

He then started coughing all of a sudden, and Nollace became nervous instantly."

Leia walked to her side. "Freyja, are... Are you okay?"

She shook her head and could not even utter a word at that moment.

Leia stayed by her side and comforted her until Colton appeared. He knew that Freyja would hear the news, so he rushed to the college to find her.

Colton brought Freyja to his side. "Thanks, Leia. Sorry to have bothered you. You can leave her to me now."

Leia nodded.

Colton got into the car with Freyja in his arms, and the car then left the college.

He brought Freyja to the palace, and just as Freyja was puzzled, Nollace and Daisie walked out of the huge building. "Freyja, you should also go see Grandpa for the last time."

Freyja clenched the hands that were hanging by her sides and quickly stepped indoors.

Freyja lowered her gaze and said nothing.

After a long time, she forced a smile. "Thank you for comforting me."

At the villa...

Brandon saw them coming in, got up slowly, and saw Freyja's bloodshot eyes.

There was a knock on the door, and Zephir looked through his fingers. "Come in."

Leah opened the door and walked in, and he was slightly startled by her appearance. "Why are you here

Leah lifted the bag she was carrying, which contained snacks and beer. "Seeing that you've been staying home, recuperating for so long, I was afraid that you'd be bored, so I came to visit you."

She put the beer on the table and took out some snacks. "At this time, you definitely need a drink, don't you?"

Zephir gave off a faint sneer. "You've read the news?"

"As long as one isn't blind, they will surely see it."

She opened a can of beer and handed it to him.

Zephir took it from her and took a sip.

Leah sat across from him. "Your injury should almost be healed, shouldn't it?"

Leah did not say anything, but millions of thoughts were flashing across her mind.

On the other side of things, Nollace drove to the Blue Valley Manor, and Daisy got out of the car.

Looking at the magnificent and classical-looking manor, Daisy was a little shocked." Could this be one of the things that Grandpa left for you?"

Nollace nodded. "This manor is where my grandmother used to live way back then. After she passed away, the property's ownership went to my grandfather. He was very reluctant about auctioning it, so it's been vacant all these years."

After explaining some of the backstories of the manor to Daisy, he stretched his hand out toward her. "Let's take a walk around the manor."

Daisy grabbed his hand with a grin and walked with him into the huge garden.

This manor was located very near the imperial palace—One could see the clock tower in the palace—and it was located in the most prosperous city center.

The garden had a few man-made pools and bridges, and there were even several pavilions.

Nollace reached out and pulled Daisy into his arms. "Are you really not afraid of me?"

She leaned into his arms. "It's not that you've hurt me before."

He rested his chin on top of her fluffy hair and sneered. "You're a silly girl who will risk herself to go on an adventure with me. How can I ever make up my mind to lay a finger on you? Daisy, there's a question that I wish to know the answer to. When they kidnapped and brought me to Octavia, and you went with me, weren't you afraid back then?"

Daisy looked up at him and let off a wide and brilliant grin. "Nope, because I knew my dad would definitely come to save us, and you would protect me too."

He paused for a split second and then looked down at her. "Did I protect you? It was obvious that you were the one who was protecting me?"

Daisy explained with a smile, "Actually, I don't know why I took that risk with you, but the one thing that I know is that I have no regrets."

Nollace hugged her tightly and pressed his lips against her forehead. "I think you're the only person in this world who can be this dumb."

"Okay, Nollace, let's not talk about the past first." Daisy got out of his arms, took his hand, and led him out of the pavilion. "I haven't seen the manor's interior, so you have to bring me inside for a tour."

Hedeon was puzzled. "Then..."

Nollace put his teacup down. "We're not in a hurry to find a business partner right now. What we need now is technical personnel. As for the companies that want to work with us, just come up with some excuses and decline their proposals."

Hedeon was stunned for a moment, but he could only nod at the end of the day. "Okay."

At the same time, all news channels, newspapers, and magazines were still reporting Diana's preparation for the coronation.

The students of the film college had all been talking about the royal family recently. At that moment, Freyja passed by in the corridor, and several students glanced at her as they whispered to each other.

"If I'm not mistaken, she seems to be related to the royal family. I heard that King William had prepared two wills before his death, and one is probably hers."

There were too few people who would say no to wealth and power.

At that moment, Shannon was standing not far away. Seeing that Leia and Freyja were getting closer by the day, she felt irked.

Leia had always been obedient to her before this. She always thought that no matter what she did, Leia would never cut off her connection with herself.

'It's all because of that b*tch. Freyja Pruitt, just wait. I'll personally give you hell when the time comes.'

At noon, when Freyja was leaving the college, Shannon suddenly stopped her and caught up to her very anxiously. "Freyja, something happened to Leia!"

Freyja frowned. "What happened?"

She gasped for air and elaborated, "I was looking for her just now, but I saw her being harassed by several men in the parking lot."

Although Freyja had doubts, Leia's safety was at stake, so she went with Shannon.

However, the parking lot was empty.
