Chapter 2621

The man gnashed his teeth and rushed toward Mahina.

Mahina evaded and gave the man a left hook punch, making him take a few steps back. Seeing how he couldn't win over a woman, he turned to leave but was kicked from the back and fell to the floor. The wallet in his hand flew out.

Mahina stepped on his back and grabbed him by his collar. "Are you blind? You're too dumb to steal my purse!"

Another punch landed on his face.

Dylan finally caught up and watched Mahina beat that man up so fiercely. He was petrified, as if the filter he had on was shattered.

Meanwhile, a car was parked outside of the center. Cameron got out with Waylon, and they were surprised when they stepped into the hall.

Mr. Goldmann was here?

Other than the two of them, even Harold and Conroy were there. They brought crates of alcohol with them too.

Soon, Mahina and Dylan came back with the food. Dylan was happy when he left, but now he looked like a deflated balloon.

Cameron leaned closer to Waylon on the way back. "What did you say to Nick?"

Waylon looked at her and smiled. "I invited him to our wedding, of course."

"Did he agree?"

"Yes, of course."

Cameron leaned back into her seat and smiled. "I thought you would start arguing."

Waylon held her hand and kissed it. "You were not worried that we'd fight instead?"

She said in a serious tone, "It's not good to fight. I don't think you'd fight in front of everyone."

He chuckled. "You're starting to sound reasonable."

Cameron pulled her hand back. "I'll show you who's boss for teasing me."

Leah paused and slowly said, "That was just an accident. I'll be careful this time."

She then looked at him. "Are you alone?"

"Well, do you see anyone else? Oh, you're sitting on my friend," he casually said.

Leah looked at her seat. "Sitting on your friend?"

Morrison poured a glass for himself, smiled, and considered scaring her. "Yes, do you want to know more about it? But it's best that you don't know. You might not be able to sleep tonight."

Leah picked up her mojito and took a drink. "I'm even more curious now."

Morrison saw that she wasn't tricked, so he clicked his tongue. "You're so daring. Let me tell you then. My friend jumped off a building not too long ago and died terribly. Her head split open. You're sitting on her, and she's not happy about it at all, so be careful tonight. She might stand next to your bed, and you'll be in trouble."

Cameron paused. "Why do you ask?"

“If you want to, I’ll go with you.” Waylon rested his chin on her head.

Cameron turned to face him. “Shouldn’t you bring me to Stoslo instead?”

He paused. “Do you want to go?”

“You said that you have friends to introduce to me. It’s not too much if I meet them, right?”

He squinted. “Are you sure you just want to see my friends?”

Cameron placed the coffee cup on the table and hugged his neck. “You know everyone on the East Islands, but I don’t know anyone from the Night Banquet. Shouldn’t I say hello to them?”

Waylon chuckled and tapped the tip of her nose. “Sure, as long as you’re happy.”

Zephir fell silent.

“You always had different dates. Now it’s Roxy’s turn. Was it worth changing for even if she looks a lot like Daisy?”

Leah’s eyes were red because she felt that her decade of feelings wasn’t worth it. She liked Zephir because he was loyal to Daisy and would secretly do things for her.

She thought that Zephir was a loyal person, and even when he found out that Daisie was getting married, he was sad for some time.

However, she still stayed by his side without complaining and helped him heal, even if he didn't have feelings for her.

She believed that one day he would eventually notice.

Patricia seemed to have noticed something had happened between her son and Leah. What's more, her son was being bewitched by a woman she did not like, so her face was dark.

"Zephir doesn't even want to come home now. He just wants to stay outside. I really don't understand what's so good about that woman."

Alexander said, "Alright, alright. This is his own choice. He's a grown adult. We can't help him make decisions now.

Patricia sighed. "I thought Leah was going to become my daughter-in-law..."

Benjamin chuckled and said, "It's fine. It isn't going to affect our relationship anyway."

Daisie walked to the flower garden with her big belly and watered the roses in the courtyard, hoping that they would bloom beautifully in the spring.

Nollace approached her and took the watering can from her. "Didn't I say you should rest more?"

A man approached Leah and asked, "Are you Ms. Younge?"

Leah raised her head. She thought the man her father introduced was not coming anymore. She was going to leave after she finished everything, but to her dismay, he came in the end.

She smiled. "Yeah, it's me. Please have a seat."

The man sat down and looked at the food on the table.

Leah continued to smile and said, "I'm sorry. It's the third day of the new year. I thought you were not coming anymore since it has already been half an hour"

The man was rendered speechless. After all, Leah implied he was half an hour late.

"I was caught up by something. Anyway, Ms. Younge, I heard you worked as an interpreter while abroad?"

Without putting down her fork, Leah replied, "Yeah. I'm still considering whether I should go back or not after this."

Maintaining a smile on his face, he asked, "You're planning to go back there?"

Leah was stunned and shook her head.

"So, how can you explain this? I'm sure there is more than one restaurant in Bassburgh, right?"

Leah shrugged. "But there aren't many high-end restaurants in Bassburgh either."

Morrison chortled and asked, "Then can't you pick another restaurant with a lower ranking?"

"Well, it doesn't matter since I already know your name now." Leah smiled. After that, she turned around and left.

Morrison clicked his tongue, feeling he had been taken advantage of.

Waylon drove the car over and locked the door after Cameron got in. Morrison went to the passenger seat and knocked on the window when he couldn't open the door.

"What are you doing?"

Waylon looked at him and smiled. "We still have another date left, so you're on your own now."

Nicholas nodded. He wore gloves and started cleaning the weeds and grass around the tombstone. Maisie also helped them.

It took them about half an hour to clean up the weeds around the tombstone. Nicholas put a new bouquet of white roses and a basket of fruits that she liked to eat before she died in front of the tombstone.

Nolan and Maisie decided to leave some private time for Nicholas. Both of them came out of the cemetery and looked into the distance.

"Dad has been thinking about Mom all these years after she passed away. They must've loved each other very much."

Nolan hugged Maisie in his arms. "They had a great relationship for as long as I can remember. As my grandfather said, my father's weakness was my mother, and he lost to a woman just like my great-grandfather."

Maisie chuckled. "Well, he still willingly lost to a woman after he had woken up."

"You're right," replied Nolan.
