Chapter 2641

The staff member was shocked and asked, "Why isn't the filming done in Dorywood? We can hire famous actors from Zlokova, like the one that Mr. Boucher did."

Donny shook his head. "This is different. I wanted to shoot in the Kong Ports because it has a very strong vintage look and mysterious vibes. Those are the effects that I'm trying to achieve, and the main focus is on the mystery of the NPC's suicide and the memories that return to the other characters after they're no longer drunk."

The crew whispered among each other and seemed to be accepting his idea.

Norman crossed his fingers, rested his chin on them, and then smiled. "I think your suggestion is great because the script contains many vintage styles, like the printing press, the hanging calendar in the victim's home, the radio, and so on. If we don't use it as the background in the scenes, it will lose the mysterious vibes of the story."

After that, he looked toward Freyja. "Ms. Pruitt also hopes that her script will be perfectly translated to the big screen, right?"

Freyja paused, then slowly said, "I was thinking if it would have a better effect if it were set in the past, but after hearing what Donny said, I'm confident about it."

Freyja leaned in close to the screen. "I should let her remember this face then."

“She can remember it when you’re here.” Colton looked down at Charm. “Right? My baby? Don’t listen to your mom trying to trick us.”

She smiled. “Don’t worry. I’ll be there with you in less than a year.”

Colton looked at her. “We’ll be here waiting.”

“By the way, how’s Deedee?”

“She’s good. Ever since she started spending time with Beatrice, she has become much happier and made many friends. She even went to a dance class with Beatrice.”

Freyja smiled. “I guess Beatrice plays a big part in her change. I need to bring presents for both of them when I return.”

Waylon chuckled and raised his hand to touch Cameron's hair. "Are you angry?"

"I offended someone, and it was because of some woman. How could I not be angry?"

Cameron pushed his hand away and pointed at the men. "Tell me, what else did Ms. Woods say to you? What did I do to her? I'll tear your lips off your face if you can't do that."

"How... could you be so unreasonable?"

They finally witnessed her arrogance.

Cameron rubbed her wrist. "I've trained in martial arts since I was a kid. I had tough physical training in school and the army and have fought with countless people, a lot of good ones too. I've learned from them and used their skills during the fight, so it would be impossible for you to win just by your brute strength. You could only do it with speed and cooperation.”

The few men stood up. She had managed to deal with the strong attacks of several people by herself, and the speed of her moves was faster than their eyes, completely catching them off guard.

They were impressed by her abilities. That was why Waylon had agreed to let them fight. He knew that they weren't able to fight her.

The leader of the bunch apologised, and the others followed.

“Ms. Woods, there's no need to hide anymore. Come out. I saw you,” shouted Cameron.

Waylon smiled sadly. “Helping you doesn't mean anything. In that situation, I would have helped even if it was some other girl. As for letting you stay by my side, you said you wanted to thank me. Did I ever agree to it? You kept following us around.”

His words struck her so hard because it sounded as if her feelings had just been a joke.

“No... No way.”

Evelyn didn't want to accept that. “You lied. You thought I was special, so you treated me differently. Why didn't you stop me when Morrison brought me to join the Night Banquet then?”

How would she have gotten into the Night Banquet if he didn't find her special?

Waylon rubbed his temple. "Because Morrison was friends with you, and I wanted to make you a couple. Of course I wouldn't stop him."

Step after step, Waylon approached Evelyn with an indifferent smile. The main reason for your downfall is your poor acting skills. Do you really think real criminals will give you a chance to call for help?"

Evelyn dropped to the ground. She looked at Waylon and grabbed his hand. "I'm sorry. Why I shouldn't have done that. Please forgive me..."

Waylon pulled his hand out of her grasp and looked at her coldly. "I'm banning you from the Night Banquet from now on. If I hear you make any more rumors about anything else, I'll come after you"

After that, he turned to Cameron, wrapped his arm around her shoulders, and went back into the house.

The members from the Night Banquet looked at Evelyn and shook their heads.

Apparently, they were wrong about Evelyn.

All of them ignored Evelyn, who was sitting on the ground, and left as well.

Just when Leah was about to say something, Morrison raised his hand to stop her and continued.

"Alright, you don't have to say anything You only live once, so you need to cherish your own life.

"I can introduce some good men to you if you want. All of them have good family backgrounds and good looks. I'm sure you'll find one that you like. Of course, if you don't like men from Stoslo, I can find someone for you from Bassburgh."

Leah smiled awkwardly. "Umm... Thank you for your advice."

"Don't mention it. We're friends, after all. Give me two days. I'll compile the profile of all good men in Bassburgh for you to choose from."

Two days later, Morrison presented Leah with the profile of some unmarried rich young men in Bassburgh. The corner of Leah's lips twitched as she looked at Morrison, who sat on the couch opposite her. "Where did you get these from?"

"Dating agency," Morrison replied matter-of-factly. "According to them, all of these young men come from wealthy families, and they studied overseas, so I picked these ten that match your family background the most. Pretty neat, right?"

Leah picked up those profiles and looked through them one by one. Some of them came from Bassburgh, while others came from Asperia, Rowerl City, and Coralia.

Chapter 2648

It was just that no one expected Donny would let Freyja decide who would play the protagonist roles
Freyja felt slightly stressed as she did not want to let Donny down by picking the wrong candidates

She was not very good at selecting characters, so she figured that she needed Daisy's help

Freyja came to Blue Valley Manor and let Daisy have a look at the script. "Daisy, you've got to help me this time. I'm scared I'll ruin Mr. Winslow's movie if I make the wrong decision. I need to get it done as soon as possible so it won't affect the shooting time."

Daisy looked at her and chuckled. "There's still an audition session, right? Besides, you still have about six months left. I'm sure it'll be enough."

"Yes, it's enough, but not everyone is free at all times. I'm just worried the actor won't be able to commit to the project if some unexpected event happens. Besides, I need to go back to my country for the audition in a month. I need to pick two candidates from so many actors. This is the first time I'm so stressed out, and I'm very nervous," Freyja said helplessly.

"There is a first time for everything, so I can understand. How about this? I'll ask Charlie to give you some help when you get back. He's a celebrity manager, so he has a very spot-on insight. He was the one who chose many of my scripts, so I trust him," Daisy comforted.

Freyja hugged her with a smile and said, "Thank you so much, Daisy. You're the best."

The netizens had seen James on the cast list, but they did not realize that he was, in fact, "Simon"

James's fans all became excited when they saw his name.

After Isaac had finished speaking, he rose to his feet and left.

Morrison clicked his tongue after Isaac left. He leaned on the back of the chair and mumbled, "He can't stood up from behind and sat in front of him. She said with a smile on her face, "So, you failed?

Morrison crossed his arms in front of his chest and said, "This isn't for me. This is for you. I'm helping you to get a boyfriend. I don't understand why you still can laugh at this point."

"Alright, alright, relax. It's normal for him to reject me since I'm older than him. Besides, I really am not
