Chapter 2701

Daisie brought them upstairs, and the first thing that caught Colton's attention was the scene of Nollace changing the baby's diaper.

He sneered. "What a rare thing to see."

Freyja mocked him in return, "He looks much more competent than you when you first started picking up this chore."

Colton was at a loss for words.

Cameron walked up to the babies with Waylon. Her belly was so big now that she could no longer bend down, so she could only squat halfway down on the side of the bed and hold the baby's little hand. "It's so soft, and it's such a tiny hand. This feels amazing!"

Daisie stared at her belly. "Cameron, how many months has it been?"

She stroked her belly. "It's been 22 weeks."

"Brother, how many are you expecting?"

Waylon chuckled. "You're welcome to guess."

Freyja guessed there would be three, and Daisie had the same thought.

Colton said, "You ladies are making it sound like conceiving triplets is a normal thing to do. How would there be so many triplets? It's at most twins."

Nollace nodded.

Nollace was rendered speechless.

"Or Alpha, Bravo, and Charlie? These sound a little more systematic."

Nollace was at a loss for words.

After a long time, he took a deep breath and pinched the bridge of his nose. "I think we should skip the naming for now. We'll come back to it someday in the future"

There was one more week until the 20th, which was Colton and Freyja's wedding date.

Daisie originally thought that the babies would be born after the wedding, but she did not expect the due date to be pushed forward.

However, after unloading the goods, everything was a lot easier.

Freyja and Colton's wedding ceremony would be taking place outdoors, and the weather forecast claimed that the weather on that day would be clear and warm, which was very suitable for an outdoor ceremony.

It was also said that the style of the ceremony was Moroccan. With a site of 20,000 square feet, it was natural for the scale of the event to be grand.

After resting for a few days, Daisie went out with Nollace to accompany Colton and Freyja to try on their wedding clothes.

Daisy was stunned for a moment but still accepted his congratulations with a smile. “Thank you.”
“Daisy, I’m very sorry about everything that happened in the past.” Zephir’s eyes moved. “I must have let you down after all these years, whether it’s back then or now. I never knew what I wanted all this while and what I have done while trying to find out what it was.”
Daisy stared at him for a while. “Zephir, everything that happened is in the past now. You can still choose now, can’t you?”
He paused for a long time, then gave off a faint smile. “Yeah, you’re right. However, many things have changed, and there’s no turning back now.”
He seemed to be connoting something.
Daisy thought of someone. “Is it Leah?”

He did not respond to her question.

“Zephir, I hope you’ll get to live a good life. Even though some things have changed, life still goes on. Whether it’s you or Leah, I truly hope that you both can be well and find your own happiness in life.” Zephir raised his gaze and stared at her. His lips then moved slowly. “Thank you.”

She chuckled and added, “Actually, sometimes I miss those days when we were still studying back in school, you, Leah, and I, and of course, Coleman and Wayne. That will always be one of the happiest times in my life.”

Jefferson had a straight face but did not say anything more upon seeing that his son had agreed to his arrangement. “Tomorrow at 3:00 p.m., I’ll arrange for you two to meet.”

The next day, in a high-end restaurant...

James stepped into the private room wearing sunglasses. Seeing that there was no one there, he took off his sunglasses. “What the hell is going on here? Is she kidding me?”

‘Since she can’t even be punctual, then there’s no need for me to wait for her.’

James turned around and was about to leave, but a woman appeared out of nowhere behind him, shocking him.

The woman had a neat shoulder-length haircut and wore a white low-necked silk gown, a printed blue silk scarf, and a pair of loose straight-fit jeans. Her attire looked simple and clean as she did not have any extra jewelry on, apart from a watch and a crocodile leather handbag.

James was stunned for a moment. "You..."

'She looks rather familiar.'

After thinking about the terms for a while, a hint of slyness flashed across James' eyes, and he leaned forward. "If it's going to be a fake marriage, then... Do I need to fulfill my obligations as a husband?"

Giselle choked on her own words and restrained her expression. "You don't have to do so."

He smirked and picked up the pen. "Deal. I was worried that you wouldn't be able to hold yourself back and throw yourself at me someday. I'm a public figure, so where would I go if that were to happen?"

Giselle was at a loss for words.

'He's quite an overthinker, isn't he?'

After James left his signature on the contract, Giselle signed it too.

James looked at the contract. "There isn't any official stamp here. This might seem to be-"

The entrance toward the passageway was decorated with a flower arch. There was a DIY oil painting at the reception, which blended in with the venue's colors. It was very pleasant.

Even the welcome card was made from leather. It was unique and classy.

The guests who entered were all mesmerized.

The Goldmanns and Brandon stood at the reception to greet the guests. Colton was the man of the hour, the groom. He was in a full white suit, making him look taller.

“Our brother, the groom, is so handsome today.” Daisy and Nollace walked over.

Colton smirked and gave her a bag of candy. “You’re so sweet.”

Daisy took the bag of candy, smiled, and put the bag away. “I’m going to see Freyja.”

"I don't believe that I'll lose again. I'm going to bet on twins again!"

"I'm still betting on triplets!"

Barbara said, "$2,000!"

Ryleigh's eyes shone. "That much?" She then leaned over to Helios. "Cuz, aren't you going to hold your wife back?"

He chuckled. "I'm betting $20,000."

Ryleigh was too stunned to speak.

Louis looked at him. "I'm on my wife's side, so I'll match your $20,000."

Helios replied, "Well, if we're putting in that much, we might as well throw in the gender too."

Louis and Ryleigh both paused, then agreed. "Deal."

Deedee nodded. “Okay.”

Cameron and Waylon walked over. “I heard that we will have a barbeque later. Why do I have to be pregnant now? I can’t eat any of that.” She was craving so badly.

Daisie smiled and said, “You can have freshly barbequed meat. Get my brother to make them for you. It would be fresh and healthy. But don’t have too much of it. It will be a problem if you catch a fever. Just have some to stop the craving.”

Cameron was overjoyed to hear that. “Really?” She then looked at Waylon. “Make some for me tonight!”

Waylon saw how badly she was craving the food and was afraid that she might start crying, so he nodded. “Sure, I’ll personally make them for you.”

The night fell, and the lights on the patio were switched on. There was barbeque, great food, and wine. The children were playing and laughing.

Waylon turned into Cameron’s personal chef and placed the freshly barbecued meat on a plate. He added cherry tomatoes and mint leaves as decoration so it looked delicate and pretty.

Beatrice talked back. "Daddy was peeling shrimp for you too. You're not ashamed either."

Barbara had nothing to say, but Ryleigh and Maisie laughed.

The moon hung brightly in the sky. The lights shone around them, and it was a happy scene.

After the wedding, Freyja brought her daughter and Colton to the Kong Ports. The father and daughter also went there for vacation.

Waylon and Cameron went to Taylorton to learn how to take care of the babies so they wouldn't be flustered when theirs came along.

Nollace was a trainee dad, and Waylon was a soon-to-be dad. They were trying to one-up each other. Daisy and Cameron were rendered speechless by their behavior.

Cameron asked, "Have you come up with names for the babies?"

Daisy shook her head and said, "I'm going to call them Tic, Tac, and Toe."

Cameron chuckled. "Are you going to be so casual about it?"

Leah turned to look at him. "You wouldn't."

"How would you know? Don't trust men too much."

"Including you?" asked Leah.

Morrison cleared his throat. "You can include me."

Leah suddenly laughed. "You're friends with Wayne, and that says a lot about you. Besides, you didn't take advantage of me previously, so I trust you."
