

Chapter 15

Xavier's POV

Since I already know that I will be the future of all werewolves. I make it part of my duty to know something about every pack. To stay in contact with every pack.

I make aliances where I can. I want to know their threats and help protect them as much as I can.

They might not all be apart of my pack and my family yet, but they will be one day.

I have been hearing about more and more strange attacks. Not the kind that destroy packs, but the kind that weaken them.

Wolves getting ambushed. Packs being set on fire. Guards getting killed while on patrol.

There hasn't been more than 25 wolves killed per attack, but all the attacks added together, there has been more than 200 wolves killed.

That is something that just can't be ignored.

They all have one thing in common, no one knows who or what the cause is.

Now that a pack was attacked close to ours, it changes things even more. I can't allow that to happen to our pack as well.

Right now they are only taking out a few wolves at a time weakening us, but one day a few won't be enough and they would come for all of us.

I can't let that happen.

I made place for the nearby packmembers in my pack, sending some of my men to help them rebuild on their pack.

I decided it is time to talk to all the other Alphas, I know they don't all get along, but we have to come up with a plan and start working together.

I have a feeling this is just the start of something bigger.

My men had to start doing more patrols, start practicing more and start working harder.

The vampires are all strong and experienced fighters, and they agreed to help with our trainings.

Their speed is on a different level, it is hard to keep up with them. You barely saw them coming before you are flat on your ass.

Fighting with the vampires was where Ace spent all his time when he wasn't with Lexi.

Even the vampires started to get annoyed at how much my little brother likes to fight, but he is getting the hang of it, winning in wolf form, human and with weapons.

I was in my office trying to get some of my work done, which felt impossible with all the extra work I have lately and the fact that my wolf just wanted to be with his pregnant mate didn't help with my concentration.

My beautiful mate already has a little bump, and a lot of hormones and mood swings.

I can't let anything happen to either of them.

'Alpha, we need you at the South border, here are some... people?' one of my guards mindlink me.

Why does he sound unsure about the people, like humans? Now I am a bit confused. And how did people find us in the middle of the woods.

Just to stay safe I call Seth and Ace with me, quickly making my way towards the border.

When I get there I am definitely confused.

There are about 40 people? The don't smell like humans, but they also don't smell like anything I've smelt before.

They are kind of small compared to us? The have bags and look like they are ready to move in?

"Who are you?" just as the question leaves my mouth, I hear a gasp behind me.

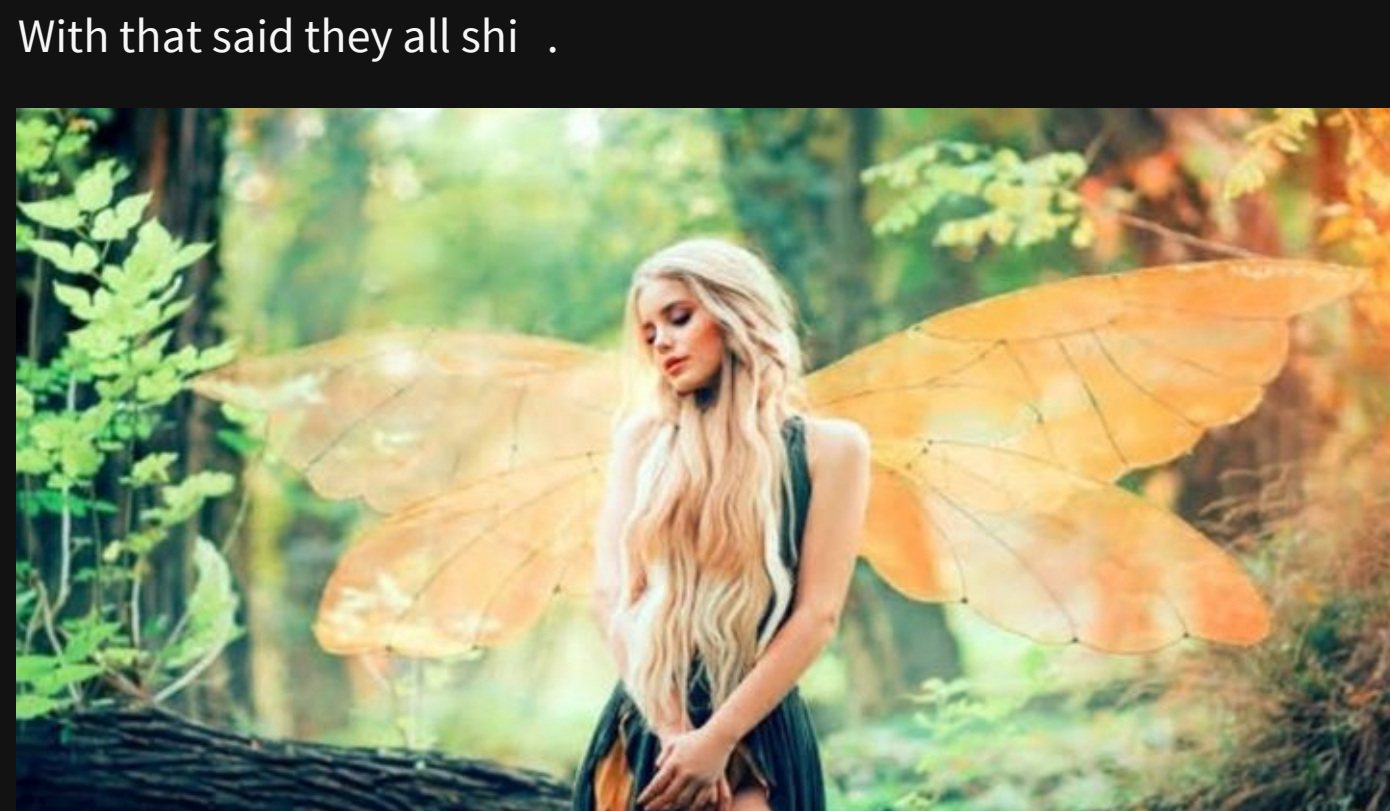

I turn to see Liley with big eyes and a big smile. I was about to scold her for coming alone into the woods when she knows it is not allowed, when she yelled one word that stopped me.

"Fairies!" I turn to the group to see some of them with proud smiles.

Fairies exist? How did I not know that? I thought it was a myth.

One of the men with a frown on his face spoke up "I'm sorry miss but not all of us are fairies." he said in a scolding way "Me and some of the others are Elves." he states proudly.

With that said they all shi

Fairies and Elves?

How is all of this possible, how could we not know of them.

Could this day get any weirder?

"We had some supernatural pull to this place and came here for shelter."
