

Epilogue - Part 2

Chase

Who would have thought that things could change this much and still be this good

"Ace, no!" Lexi groans from underneath me. "What?" I ask even though I already know the answer.

"We are not having a whole army of little Chases' running around." she says frustrated.

"But that is why I told you baby, they have to look like you" I say like it is the most obvious thing on earth.

"Lena and Aria might both look like me but we both know they act like you" she says irritated "Lena kicked a boy's tooth out in daycare the other day"

"Okay your right" I say nodding my head and I can see the relief in her eyes "we only need like five more... that would probably be enough" I continue, making her roll her eyes.

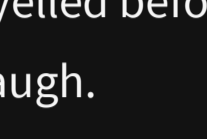

"Momma, Aria fell! Her nose is bleeding!" I hear making me chuckle. They are definitely my kids.

"I'm already knocked up, you can leave me alone and go take care of your crazy pups" she says rolling her eyes.

I pull her back into another passionate kiss before getting up.

"And no playing ninjas!" she yelled before I close the door behind me making me release another laugh.

She knows me so well.

Lilah

"Drac!" I yell "Draco! I need some help!" I try again when I didn't get a reply.

Next to me Ellie whines before running out of the house. She is so over this.

Draco walks into the room and burst out laughing. I give him a stern look and he bites his lower lip trying to not to laugh.

The kitchen is filled with smoke, I'm covered in food from head to toe. I turn to look back behind me, how can something be so damn cute and irritating at the same time?

"You feed the little dragons! I'm going to take a shower." I shove past him, but he grabs my hand pulling me back into a chest giving me the type of kiss that leaves you breathless but wanting more.

"I love you Lilac" he whispers pulling away still staring deep into my eyes "and so does the little dragons" he add with a faint chuckle.

"Nolan, Neileen say sorry to mommy for making a mess" he says sternly making them pout.

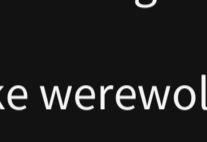

"Sowwy mommy" they say at the same time "Food cold" they try to defend themselves for almost setting me on fire.

Why can't little dragons be like werewolves and only get their powers when they are teenagers? I can't even count how many times they almost accidentally set me or the house on fire.

When we found out I was pregnant with twins, Draco was extremely happy. He was an overprotective alpha male during my whole pregnancy and has been a superhero father to the children.

I couldn't be happier.

A year a er the twins were born, I gave birth to another set of twins, Elias and Aliana. That was the time that Ellie lost hope at any silence and normalcy around the house.

A few years later

"Mommy! Mommy!" My youngest set of twins, Blue and Wesley, yes we have three sets of twins, come padding through the door.

"Mommy! Mommy!" they say loudly and out of breath like the whole pack hasn't heard them already, while I calmly sip on my wine.

"Bubba and sissy are shi ing" they say excited.

Well I should have expected them to shi early since their cousins already shi ed at the age of ten as well.

The moon goddess explained a while back, when I was complaining about the lack of information when I gave birth to every set of twins, that she can't give me the inside scoop on things involving my family anymore, so that was a huge adjustment. But she still talks to me about the supernatural world and the pack.

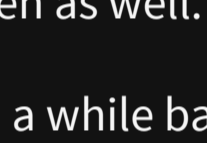

When I get to the kids I see they already shi ed and I'm stunned for a few seconds. They are beautiful, they are literally surrounded by flames, like they are on fire or has a shield of flames on their skin protecting them.

I feel warm arms wrap around my waist from behind as Draco whispers "Those are our little dragon wolves" placing a kiss on my neck.

All I can do is nod. He looks as me funny "I've never seen you stunned. You've never been this quiet" he laughs "Even while giving birth I couldn't get you to stop blabbing my ear o , are you okay"

I can't help but roll my eyes "If you wanted to sleep on the couch tonight, all you had to do was ask"

A heartwarming laugh comes from him,, but I still can't stop staring as my beautiful pups in front of me.

A few years later

"What do you think you're doing?" I ask coming up behind my mate as he turns to give me a guilty look.

"Chase said..." I don't let him finish. "You want our kids to fight their cousins in a battle over something your best friend, my brother, said?"

He looks behind us where all the kids are dressed like they are going to war. "They are excited about it. And Noah is judge, he won't let them hurt each other. And..." he looks around before whispering "Malia is here if someone accidentally gets hurt"

I roll my eyes "what did my crazy brother say?"

A er I told them they would be best friends they fought it for so long, until they practiced together once. A er that they were all buddy, buddy, always visiting each other, playing jokes on each other. They are practically inseparable.

"He said his four warrior wolves can beat our six dragon wolves any day. Well today is any day, and I'm proving him wrong" he says defiantly.

"You mean proving me right brother" comes a little chuckle from our side, Chase. I can se the frown on Lexi's face as she grumbles something, clearly also not happy about this.

"Okay I will allow this fight, but then you are not allowed to make any bad bets for at least a month." I say making them look at each other like I just asked them to pick between juice or the love of their lives. What a hard decision.

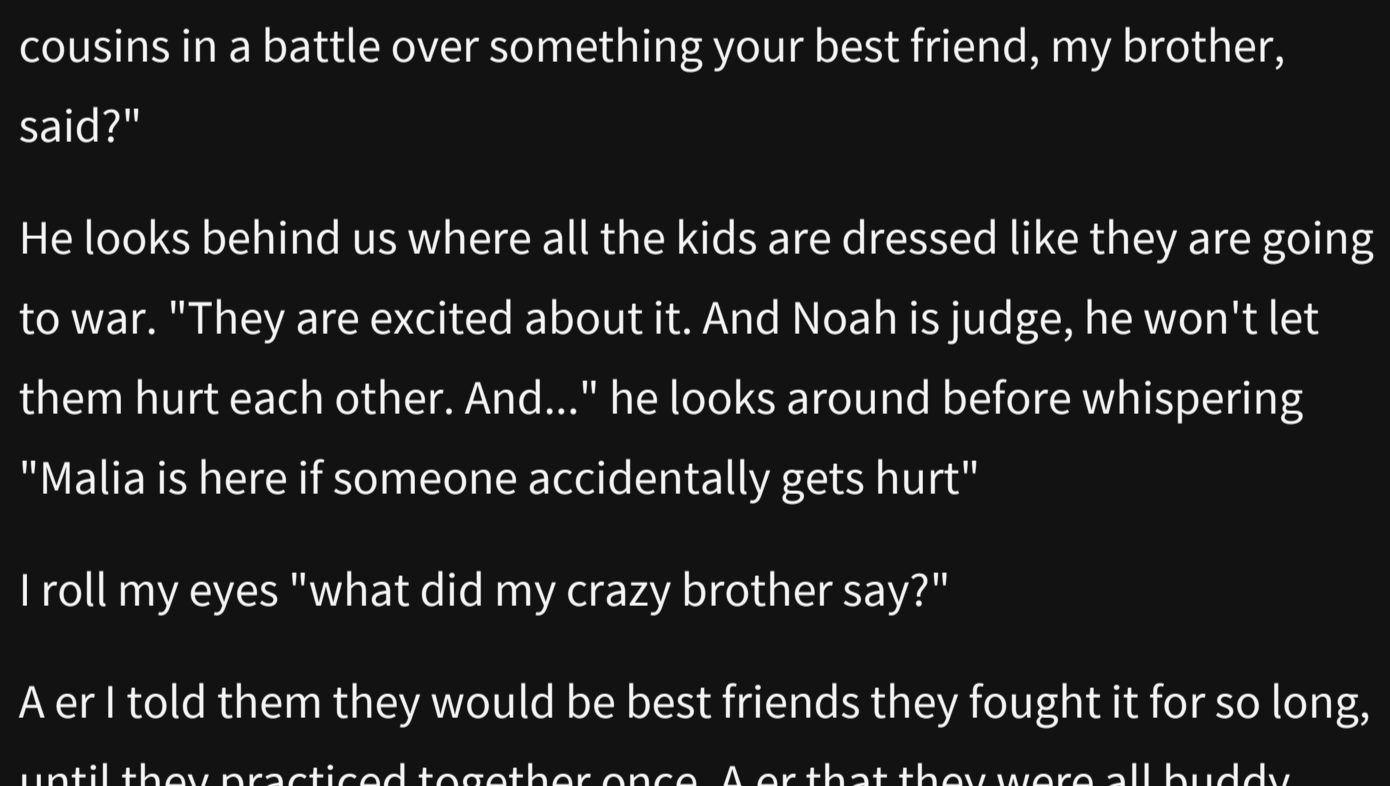

They nod "Okay Noah, let the games begin. And remember no picking sides they are all your family" Ace says.

Noah looks a bit scared before li ing his hand yelling "Fight!"

Vote & Comment

Just like that the book has come to an end! I really hope you enjoyed it and thank you so much for all the positive feedback.

And here is a little family tree for everyone who got a bit confused along the way.
