Chapter: 781

Expose The Dark History Of Valerie

Bryant stood up and fetched a hot towel, giving Valerie some time to calm down.

When the towel was used to wipe her face, eyebrows and eyes, which was very gentle. The warm mist was a good tranquilizer. When Bryant wiped Valerie's face, Valerie's body stopped trembling.

Bryant asked her gently, "You said Leon threatened you. What did he say?"

Holding a white towel in both hands, Valerie was no longer pale, with brown eyebrows, black mascara, lipstick and red cheeks, and a large area of naked color.

Her face was covered with nude powder, and the pure white towel was stained, like falling into the mud on a rainy day.

Valerie held it tightly.

Valerie said, "Leon said that it was me who let others spread the rumor about my relationship with him. He asked me to find a way to solve it. He also asked me how long it would take, and he said that he wouldn't wait too long."

At the thought of the smile on Leon's face, she felt her scalp tingling, as if something was climbing up her spine.

Bryant's eyebrows twitched. "So he meant you should solve it as soon as possible. Did you tell him how long it took?"

"No, I didn't." Valerie's voice faded, and she began to sob again, "He acquiesced in this matter. Why should I solve it by myself in the end? How can I solv to Leon yourself, didn't you?"

As soon as Bryant finished his words, a frightened look appeared on Valerie's face. She stepped back subconsciously, but there was a wall behind her and there was no place she could retreat.

"Bryant, I don't understand what you are talking about."

Bryant looked at her calmly. He seemed to feel that his gaze gave her too much pressure, so he looked away, not knowing where to look.

His eyes were not focused, and his thoughts were drifting away.

"You fell in love with Leon at the charity dinner at that time, didn't you? You love Baker, but you love yourself more. You can't help but fall in love with a better man than Baker. Leon is excellent, and there are too many people who fall in love with him. Just like most people, you think he is too far away from you, so you don't dare to think about it. But that day, he suddenly got close to you, and you inevitably would fall in love with him.

You couldn't control yourself since you were a child. That's why you feel scared and think he's paranoid and terrible when Leon trapped you in the castle."

Facing the door, Valerie wanted to escape with her toes moving slightly.

Because what Bryant said was right, she felt ashamed and angry as if she had been stripped in broad daylight.

Help Me

Bryant didn't intend to show mercy today.

"Mike, do you have a deep impression on him?"

As soon as the name came out, Valerie was even more flustered. Just now when she opened her mouth, Bryant didn't give her any chance to find an excuse.

"In order to help Baker get rid of his enemies, you used Leon to deal with Mike. You said that Mike molested you, but in fact..." Bryant paused. He felt that it was not appropriate for him to say something like that as a brother. After all, he was a man, so he had to change his tone. "Is that true?"

In fact, she loved Baker, but she couldn't control her heart or her body.

Bryant knew her very well. Why did he know her so well?

Because only Valerie would talk to him, be kind to him and help him in the Feng Family. Even if it was a piece of cake for Valerie, it was rare family affection and warmth for him.

So he paid special attention to his sister.

Bryant was smart and hardworking. He always liked to observe people and could observe them very carefully.

Even if Valerie was good at pretending, it was just on the surface.

How could a person living in a big family not have the ability to intrigue? That was their survival skill.

Therefore, Bryant never

"Brother, I'm wrong. I'm really wrong. Please help me. I'm wrong. I won't do it again."

He wanted to alert her through the fact that Princess Nina was bullied, but he didn't expect her to be so scared, as if she had committed a crime of murder.

"Are you afraid now?" Bryant reached out his hand to support her and comforted her, "You can still redeem your current situation. Didn't he give you a chance? You just need to find someone to get engaged. The gossip will be scotched and the matter will be solved. You have to listen to me this time."

"No, no, no." Valerie shook her head, tears welling up in her eyes. She knelt on the ground and didn't dare to stand up. The more she cried, the louder she became.

Bryant frowned. "You don't want to? This is the best way now."

"No, it's not like that." Valerie cried, "Brother, I was so careless. Please trust me. I pushed Michelle down the stairs by accident. I didn't mean it, brother..."

Brother, help me."

Every word she said was shocking in the ears of Bryant.

Bryant couldn't believe what he had heard. It was as if he had been hit on the head, or as if someone had poured a basin of ice water over his head in winter.

Her whole body was numb with cold.

Nina Suspected That She Didn't Fall By Accident

"Are you crazy?" Bryant thought she must be crazy.

Why did she push Michelle away for no reason?

Valerie kept crying and repeated, "I didn't mean it. I really didn't mean it. I was just careless."

She had never thought of killing anyone.

Although she watched Michelle get on the ambulance in the end, Michelle's head got hurt and Valerie didn't know if she could be saved.

What if Michelle died?

Would Michelle's family let her go? Would Leon her and make her life a living hell?

Fear spread in Valerie's heart, almost suffocating her.

It happened so suddenly that Bryant couldn't think straight and his breath became much faster.

He didn't say anything. Valerie thought he didn't care about her anymore, and her tears rolled more fiercely. She held his clothes tightly and didn't let him go. Her knuckles turned white.

"Bryant, I'm your only sister. You're the only brother I have. Only you can help me. Please don't leave me alone. Brother, please."

Bryant's clothes were pulled down by her, as if there was a heavy burden hanging on his neck, and the clothes at the back of his neck were rubbing his skin.

Looking at uilt, the scene inside could no longer be hidden.

If Michelle had woken up and known this, Leon felt that he would be screwed and probably wouldn't have been able to hold her and continue to kiss her.

It would destroy his happiness!

And it was inappropriate to let Nina see such a scene.

However, Leon's movement attracted Nina to look at it carefully.

Her brother was a little abnormal.

Was he and Mimi hiding something from her?

Nina withdrew her hand leisurely. "Leon, what are you doing? I just want to check Mimi and find some clues."

Her voice had always been cold, and it was totally different from the sweet and soft voice of Michelle. Now he felt that his sister's voice was just as cold as ice blade in the sky.

Leon couldn't help but feel scared and shudder.

After all, he was an old fox who had gone through a lot of ups and downs. The next second, he looked as usual. "I'm afraid that she will catch a cold if you lift the quilt."

The excuse seemed not to be reasonable. Then John said indifferently, "Do you think the air conditioner is just a decoration?"

Leon looked back at him and felt speechless.

"Why don't you work overtime after your honeymoon? Why do you stick to my sister?" Leon who loved his sister so much relentlessly retorted him.

John didn't give in, looked at him coldly and said, "You called my wife to accompany you in the evening."

Then he sneered.

Nina, the bystander, was speechless.

"Michelle is her good friend. Shouldn't Nini come?" Leon retorted.

With a slight smile on his lips, John seemed to have the confidence to defeat him in one go. He asked slowly, "Nina is my wife. Shouldn't I follow her? Haven't you ever heard that no matter where a wife goes, she is followed by her husband?"

"Oh, I forgot that you don't have a wife." His provocative tone was very annoying.

Nina held back her laughter.

Leon was rendered speechless.

He felt the words sounded familiar.

He remembered that he had told Wynn these words.

It was so unlucky that he was the one who should be punished by these words.

He was speechless. Leon didn't want to say anything, but he had to prevent Nina from lifting his girlfriend's quilt. He had to say, "I've already asked someone to investigate. I believe the result will come soon. But if you want to find some clues from her, you can

Her hands thoughtfully, she felt even worse.

So she held the little boy in her arms, gently patted his back and said something with concern. Then she blew on the back of Van's hands and applied medicine to it.

Van smiled happily that day and said in a sweet voice, "Mommy, I love you."

The key point was that he said that day, "Mommy, you smell good. Does it smell like that of daddy's?"

At that time, Nina's face was flushed, but she was surprised. 'Why did Van think so? Why didn't he say that I had sprayed perfume?'

So she asked Van the reason and Van analyzed it reasonably, "I smelled the fragrance of my uncle from Aunt Michelle. My uncle said that when the two people were very close to each other, they would smell the same. Mommy and Daddy are very close to each other every day."

At that time, Nina was so absorbed in praising Van that she forgot to think about the key point carefully.

But now when she carefully thought about the sentence "I smelled the fragrance of my uncle from Aunt Michelle."

She almost couldn't bear the truth. If they could leave the scent of each other, they must be so close to each other.

At least at zero distance contact.

Even. Sex contact.

No Sense Of Security

Nina was shocked by her own thoughts. She thought for a while and said, "How about I go and smell it?"

At this moment, John gently patted Nina's waist, like a playboy flirting with a good girl. His fingers seemed to inadvertently twist and scratch, making her lustful.

But he looked serious.

"You can't smell it. The hospital is full of the smell of disinfectant. She had been in the operating room before."

"That's right." Nina didn't really want to smell it. If the two of them really was in love secretly, she would find it out sooner or later.

Anyway, it was between the two of them. She felt a little awkward at the thought of it.

Nina thought, 'If Mimi and my brother Leon really loved each other, would she be my sister-in-law?

Two good friends, one called me Aunt Nina, and the other is my sister-in-law.'

Nina was terrified.

She gently touched John with her elbow, and John lowered his head and whispered in confusion, "What?"

"Are they in love?" Nina asked in confusion. She thought of her brother's red eyes and heart wrenching tears when she rushed to the hospital.

The expression on her face was too out. Do you know why? It's said that women know women best. Nini, do you know why?"

Nina thought for a moment and said, "Either she doesn't like you, or she has no sense of security. Mimi is a person who likes to share happiness with us. She will share everything that makes her happy with us, but she hides the things that you two are in love. Either she is unhappy, or she doesn't dare to say anything because she is afraid of empty joy.

But Mimi has been very happy recently. She keeps sending messages in the chat group every day, but we seldom reply because we are very busy. But she doesn't care about it. She can enjoy herself. All in all, she doesn't feel sense of security."

Under the light, Leon was stunned.

Nina continued, "Mimi lives in a very warm family. She has a sense of security since childhood."

These words were like a heavy punch, smashing into the heart of Leon.

His eyes were a little anxious, and his eyes fell on Michelle's face again. Her thin eyelashes covered her watery eyes, and her lips were still a little pale and a little dry.

He thought, 'So she doesn't feel sense of security, right?'

Did I Do Anything Wrong

play_arrow

It was 8:50 in the evening.

When Michelle woke up, she heard the light sound of door opening. Following the sound, she turned her head and saw three blurred figures standing at the door. Later the door was closed, and there was only one figure left.

The outline gradually became clear.

Seeing the tall and thin back, she recognized that it was someone she was familiar with.

Michelle opened her mouth, only to feel her throat hoarse and powerless. The word "Leon" stuck in her throat.

But she really wanted to call him, so she pursed her lips and made a faint sound.

"Leon."

Like a connection between two minds, Leon strode over. Michelle moved her mouth and called "Leon" again, and her voice was as weak as before.

But Leon heard it.

He looked at her again and found that she had opened her eyes. She was so weak that half of her eyes were covered by her slightly drooping eyelids, only a small crack was exposed.

Michelle's waking up had already made Leon overjoyed. He didn't expect her to open her big eyes which were as bright as usual.

"You finally wake up." Leon's worried heart was finally relieved, and it seemed to be full of joy again. He didn't feel his heart beating until she woke Leon wrapped Michelle's little hand with the other and sat on the chair.

"Nini called your mother and told her that you would stay at her house for one night. Tomorrow, you will call your family and tell them that you will be on a business trip for a week. You will be hospitalized."

Reminded by him, Michelle remembered what had happened and looked at him gratefully. "Thank Nini and thank you, Leon. Wait! Does Nini know I'm in the hospital?"

"You woke up as soon as she left with John." Leon said.

Michelle nodded. Suddenly, she was shocked, "What? Nini came to the hospital to see me. Did she see you? Did Nini suspect anything?"

Leon frowned and soon relaxed. He pretended to be casual and asked, "What can she suspect?"

"Suspect that I'm in love with you." Michelle looked flustered.

However, Leon felt annoyed and said calmly, "We're already in love. Why should we be afraid of suspicion?"

He suddenly approached Michelle and almost touched her nose. His breath fell on her face. "Why don't you want to make it public, Michelle? Did I do anything wrong? Is it because it is a shame to let me show up as your boyfriend?"

His clear voice was as gentle as a feather, sounding a little aggrieved.

I m Sorry That I Failed To Pull You Back In Time

play_arrow

The sick needed to have a good rest. Michelle was recuperating in the hospital for three days, and only Nina would come to accompany her occasionally. But every time Nina stayed in the hospital less than half an hour, someone would call her to go back.

Nina was worried that Michelle would be bored in the hospital alone. After all, her brother Leon was very busy in the day, so he didn't have time to accompany Michelle.

Michelle didn't mind it at all. She always watched Nina leave with a smile, saying that she was not bored alone and could play with her mobile phone.

It was the same today. Michelle waved her hand and said goodbye to Nina as usual. After she left, Michelle took out her phone and continued to watch the soap opera that she hadn't finished yesterday.

As expected, Leon would appear at the door of the ward when she watched the drama until it was dark. Leon would have dinner with her, chat with her, or watch the drama.

Even if Leon didn't like watching the soap operas, he would still stay with her wholeheartedly.

As the night fell, Michelle didn't see Leon but saw Bryant and Valerie come over.

On the second day after Michelle woke up, Bryant wanted to take Valerie to apologize, but Leon refused their visit with nted to grab Valerie's hand for help. Of course, she couldn't let Michelle succeed. Not only did she shrink her hand, but she also gently pushed Michelle.

However, she had no experience in pushing people down the stairs. At that moment, she felt very happy. But it was the first time that she had done such a thing, and it was inevitable that she was not used to it. After that, the fear spread all over her body.

After thinking about it for a few whole nights, Valerie gradually came back to her senses. Although the bloody scenes flashed through Valerie's mind occasionally, Michelle did not have any evidence to prove that Valerie pushed her.

Even Michelle thought it had nothing to do with Valerie.

Otherwise, Leon would have attacked her.

It was all her fault. She was so panic that she said it was her who pushed Michelle by accident.

Now that Michelle had woken up, she could explain it face to face.

"Michelle, I'm sorry. I didn't reach out and pull you back in time, so you fell down. I'm sorry. I failed to pull you in time." Valerie pursed her lips into a smile and apologized sincerely.

As soon as she finished speaking, Bryant cast a suspicious look.

He was confused, 'Why is it different from what she said before?'

You Pushed Me

play_arrow

Valerie thought that Michelle didn't know she had pushed her on purpose, but in fact, Michelle remembered what had happened. She had hurt her head, but she didn't lose her memory.

When she woke up, she didn't say anything. She just wanted to smooth things over, especially when she knew that it was Valerie who called 911. She was very regretful when she went back.

It was not a big deal if she could correct his mistakes.

Since Valerie pretended that it was an accident, Michelle then pretended that it was just a careless mistake.

As long as Valerie apologized, Michelle would do her a favor and let it go.

She then remembered when she was a child, she felt that the grass was soft and comfortable to step on. She ignored the sign which warned people not to step on the grass, and happily stepped on it.

Later, her father blamed her. She didn't dare to admit that she stepped on the lawn on purpose in front of many people, so she had to lie that she accidentally stepped on it.

At that time, her father didn't blame her. He only said that it was not a big deal as long as she would correct her mistakes, so she never stepped on the lawn again.

Her father had protected her self-esteem.

She

relationship between Michelle and Leon, which revealed the biggest flaw in Bryant's eyes.

It was not until he Michelle fell down and hurt herself that Bryant made a suggestion about the engagement to Valerie.

And they just made a proposal last night.

Time didn't match at all.

So Valerie certainly didn't want to talk about this thing at that time. As for what she wanted to say or do, only she knew.

Now Valerie was lying to both Amy and Michelle.

Bryant was sure that he had been deceived.

So Michelle was really hurt by Valerie... She was pushed down by Michelle.

His body trembled. He couldn't believe that Valerie could really do such a shameless thing to harm others.

He could only feel lucky that Valerie wasn't completely out of her mind at the last moment and knew to call an ambulance to send Michelle to the hospital, so she didn't commit a monstrous crime.

Worried that Valerie might say something wrong, Bryant added, "Yes, Valerie will be engaged soon. I'll send you an invitation."

"We have something else to do, so we'll go back first." Bryant left in a hurry with Valerie, hoping that the news of the engagement could smooth the bad feelings between Michelle and Leon.

Keep The Truth To Yourself

As soon as they walked out of the ward, Bryant took Valerie to a quiet corner at the end of the corridor.

He asked coldly, "Did you push her down the stairs?"

Fearing that someone might hear him, Bryant cautiously didn't mention the name of Michelle.

In fact, it was safer to discuss this matter at home. It was just that Bryant couldn't wait to know the truth because he had suffered a little.

He had always thought that no matter how bad Valerie was, she wouldn't kill anyone. But now he really was not sure.

Valerie looked away, staring at the white wall without saying a word, without showing the panic of being exposed.

It was a rare calm.

After a while, she answered casually, "Yes, so what?"

The feeling of his guess was totally different from that of what he had heard with his own ears. With his pupils suddenly shrinking, Bryant was shocked. It took Bryant half a minute to accept the truth.

With a straight face, he said, "Valerie, you shouldn't have done that."

"I have done it, but I can't go back the past." Valerie glanced at Bryant with a faint smile and sneered.

"If I could go back and change the past, I wouldn't have pushed her f ere not painful anymore.

"Leon, I really fell down by accident. Many people saw it at that time."

The more Michelle said, the lower her voice became. She felt embarrassed.

She was not a three year old child but she could fall on the ground even when walking.

Now she recalled the scene of falling. It was really shameful that so many people had seen it with their own eyes.

"Yes, Michelle fell herself. She was tripped by the wire on the ground," added Randi in a low voice.

Then, both James and Emma looked at Michelle.

Being stared, Michelle was embarrassed. She lowered her head and said, "Yes, I was careless."

"So unpromising." James rolled his eyes at her.

Emma still had doubts and looked at Leon, waiting for a completely different answer.

"You let her walk up to the eighteenth floor on purpose, otherwise she wouldn't have weak leg to fall."

Leon looked at Randi with a smile on his face but coldness in his eyes.

There was smile on his face but it was full of particularly coldness, as if there was a terrifying white skinned hand, carrying the breath from hell, densely climbing up along the coccyx.

Randi's back was cold in fear.

Chapter: 790

They Are Innocent

Her words stirred up Randi's mixed feelings. Randi then lowered her head with a guilty conscience.

Emma angrily asked, "18th floors? You let her climb to 18th floors?"

Mimi had been a delicate girl since she was a child, and she didn't like sports. Even if she climbed to the 5th floors, she would catch her breath for half a day, and her legs would ache.

What did the 18th floor mean?

It was hard for her to imagine. She was angry and turned to Michelle, "You climbed it?"

"Yes." Michelle blinked, "The elevator was broken, so I climbed the stairs."

"The elevator is broken?" Apparently, James didn't believe it. Since his uncle had scolded Randi face to face, things must be not simple.

He looked at Randi and found that she was so nervous that her hands trembled.

He was even sure that she did it on purpose.

"Mimi, did you personally see that the elevator was broken, or someone told you that it was broken?"

As soon as James finished his words, a thin cold sweat came out from Randi's palms.

"So the elevator is not broken, right?" Michelle finally became smart.

"It's not broken. I checked the surveillance video," said Leo ou?"

"Yes." Michelle nodded.

Emma asked thoughtfully, "Are you on good terms? According to what Randi said just now, you don't have a good relationship with Valerie, do you? "

"What?" Michelle tilted her head in confusion.

The two men standing there also wondered why Emma suddenly asked such a question.

Emma frowned, "It seems that you two are not on good terms. Since you are not on good terms, why did she pay a million dollars liquidated damages for you?"

"What liquidated damages?" Asked James.

"I'm preparing a play about the theme of computer games. A few days ago, I visited a competitor named Joanna. When she knew that I was Mimi's cousin, she told me that Mimi had to pay liquidated damages when she left the club that year. She inadvertently saw a woman paying liquidated damages for Mimi, and the manager called that woman Miss Feng."

Emma's words reminded Michelle.

"I didn't pay the liquidated damages, so the manager let me go. I almost forgot it if you didn't tell me."

"So did you go abroad because of Valerie?" Emma held her shoulders tightly and was determined to figure out what had confused her all the time.
