

A Contract Marriage With My Boss by Anna Shannel Lin Chapter 50

Sarah thought that Mrs. Thomas would change her mind and then like her over time. And then her marriage would be happy. But now, it was impossible. Mrs. Thomas didn't like her at all, and didn't seem like she was open to ever liking Sarah one day – she just wanted to drive her away.

Although she knew that Mr. Thomas and Charles would support her and that Emma didn't mean to destroy her family, Sarah still felt uncomfortable, and even a little sad.

She went back to the ward and found her cellphone. Mr. Thomas was sleeping, so she didn't wake him up. She just glanced at him and was about to leave. Mrs. Thomas and Emma came back at this moment.

Emma was surprised, “Sister, why are you here? When did you come back? I didn't see you.”

The place where they had the conversation just now was the only way to the ward. They stayed there the whole time and didn't see Sarah, so when they saw her in the ward, they were surprised.

Sarah answered, “Oh, just now, there was an operation vehicle entering the elevator, so I took the stairs.” Sarah made an excuse.

“All right.” Maybe Emma was just pure that she simply trusted her. “What are you doing back here?” She asked again.

Sarah shook her cellphone and pretended to be relaxed. “I came here for my cell phone. Now that I have it, I'm going back now. Emma, Mom, see you later! You've had a long day.”

“Okay, see you. Brother is waiting for you now.” Emma replied.

Sarah nodded and bowed to Mrs. Thomas. Then she left.

After Sarah left, Emma said to Mrs. Thomas, “Mom, she looked unhappy.”

Mrs. Thomas sneered, “It is great if she heard our conversation. Then I needn't waste my time.”

“What?” Emma was confused. Soon she knew her meaning. Perhaps Sarah had heard them talking. When Emma turned around and saw the empty corridor, she felt a little guilty right away.

Sarah walked out of the hospital with a heavy mind. When she saw Charles’s car beside the road and his smile, which was so handsome and charming, Sarah felt warm immediately because she knew it all belonged to her. No matter what happened, Charles would support and encourage her.

Therefore, she chose to forget the pain and walked toward him with a bright smile.

Charles opened the door and let her in. Then he said, “What happened? You looked unhappy just now.”

“It doesn’t matter.”

“Is daddy getting worse?”

“No. You think too much. Dad feels good now. Nothing happened.”

“Why did you look unhappy?”

Sarah made an excuse and replied, “I’m just thinking about what I should do after the marriage.”

“Okay.” Charles smiled and got in after walking to the other side. Then he said, “You needn’t overthink. You can do what you want to do. If you don’t want to do anything, you can stay at home and give birth to our children. We need many kids. I am afraid that you will feel overwhelmed.” Charles moved close to her and laughed vaguely.

“Bad guy,” Sarah said, patting him petulantly.

Charles turned his head around and went about starting the car. Then, he continued, “Just now, my mother’s call came. She’s asking to go back home to live as a father needs to be taken off, and Emma will return to Chicago. I promised her we would. After all, you said that you wanted to go back to take care of our father.”

The smile froze on Sarah’s face. Mrs. Thomas and Emma’s conversation still whirled in her mind. If she hadn’t heard it, she might have been okay and indeed was willing to take care of Mr. Thomas. But, at the moment, she knew that Mrs. Thomas might throw her a curve and try to destroy her marriage. So she was worried that moving back would not be a good choice.

