

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 501: A big proposal

After this battle is over, Sam is going to sit on that shelf for another week.

But this time, he is not going to stay idle. He is planning for something big for his next fight and this time.

Nowadays the multiple opponent fights became common and it is going to be hard for him to gain attention with them if he just kept on going with these types of fights, even though he was able to gain more audience currently.

Sam is thus trying to make himself special once again and he is in the store of the Arena and discussing with the shopkeeper.

He has been saving the money from the bet and some more money from the past bonus for this.

He and Shop keeper are currently discussing the situation and they are currently at the end of the deal-making.

"Are you sure you want to spend all your money like this? What is your goal? At this point, it is not even for fame and glory anymore."

The shop keeper asked in a mild tone.

"Before answering that, may I ask you something? Why is your scale color different from the rest?"

The shopkeeper didn't expect such a question, but he was too used to chatting with Sam in the past few days and he didn't find it hard within him to answer the question.

"I don't belong to this region. I am from a different nation. I crossed the border and came here along with my brother. Of course, we are from a friendly nation, and this type of immigration is still allowed. You can see many people like me in various cities of the nation. It is just it is rare to see someone in Imperial capital."

Sam understood him and was about to ask him some more, but was interrupted.

"Now it is your turn to answer."

"Well, can I trust you?" Sam asked instead of answering directly.

"That depends on your heart. Don't ask me. In fact, don't ask this question to anyone."

"Okay then, I will take a risk. I just want to get out of here."

"Get out of here?"

"From the Arena. What? Do you think I like performing like a caged animal? I do like a battle and I do like earning money, but not in this way. You should have seen my position back at my place. There every second I spend I earn money and every battle I was in would have already been noted down in history.

But here I am working like a caged animal."

When the shop keeper heard this, he looked at Sam for a second and said with a blank face.

"if you want to get out of here, just say it as it is, why are you blabbering so much nonsense. A place with your every battle creating history and every second making money? Do you know how much you should have earned in that time? Do you think there is such a place on this whole planet?

Actually, there is, but you would have to be the prince of that place to have such status, but you look nowhere like them.

Damn it, it is true. My brother always said humans liked to brag. I didn't expect that would be true."

"I know you wouldn't believe me. But I really do want to get out of this place and that is why I am making all these plans."

"Do whatever you want to do. I will arrange this after talking to Fidi and Rana."

"Don't bother, they will come to you. I already wrote a proposal to them."

"Proposal?"

"Yeah, you might not know, but the proposals are the new trend in the Arena, every fighter is writing a proposal, or more like a request as they are trying their best to get a better fight and more money so they can grow faster and increase their ranks.

Of course, I am the one who started this trend."

"Damn it, why are you all over the place? Are you the boss of the Arena or that Rana is? You are making waves wherever you go."

"Haha, didn't I tell you already? I want to get out of this place, so of course, I need some special impact. Anyway, I have to go. But let me tell you if there is a chance I will take you to my place and you can see my glory with your eyes."

"Yeah, Yeah. I will be visiting you in your dreams then."

With that, Sam left not even bothering to argue.

As for why is Sam behaving like an easy-going braggart youth, he just wanted to experience being one and he has to say that it is quite addicting.

At first, he wanted to put up the act and knowing that he doesn't have many obligations he has to follow in this place and there are not many responsibilities bearing him down, he can just be this carefree.

And this shop keeper is the only one who didn't show any form of animosity towards Sam. In fact, he didn't show it towards any human beings.

He treated Nagas and humans all the same and with more conversations, Sam found out that this guy is quite a good miner and excavator in this world and he had mined almost all kinds of valuable materials.

From normal spirit stone mining to excavating the lost buried cities and tombs, he had done it all, in all kinds of environments.

And this information slipped after Sam made him drink to his heart's content after all a long time and conversation started with the metals in the catalog.

That is why Sam offered to visit his place. He can use a man of such expertise. Currently, this mining and excavation field is not that prosperous on his planet, he only gave some knowledge in the divine dimension to the school.

That too only basics, the people in the school are not able to understand or implement these things, but this Shop Keeper is different.

Many people might not know, but Sam could see that this guy is a consummate realm cultivator and that is the most conservative estimate.

No one can see the energy waves or any form of pressure, it would be more believable to say that he is just a simple Naga without any cultivation, but when Sam used his eye technique, he could see something else.

Not only could he see the spiritual energy inside his body, but he could also see an invisible seal over him.

His arms and legs are shackled with some invisible cuffs and there is an invisible symbol over him.

The seal is strong, but not strong enough to suppress him permanently. Sam could even see the cracks all over the shackles and the seal and it is happening because of the constant erosion caused by his suppressed energy.

Sam didn't expect that his eye technique could be used this way and it is potent enough to determine such a high-level technique. This is completely unexpected.

He seemed to be imprisoned here for some reason and if Sam could help him somehow and bring him to his side, he would have another powerhouse to his aid.

But that doesn't mean, he could completely trust him at this moment, that is why he is having so many conversations with this man.

After he left to his residence and cooked another special meal, the next day, Sam was summoned by Rana and the atmosphere in the room is not exactly harmonious when they reached the place.

"What the hell is wrong with you? Are you really nuts or something? Do you know what kind of test you are facing? You would die if something goes wrong. And do you think the silver rank fighters would leave you alone just like you left all your opponents without killing them?"

Rana started yelling as soon as Sam entered.

"Boss, why are you so anxious? Have I been wrong until now? I can judge my strength and honestly if you have let me take on all the fighters in the division at the same time, I would still be able to do so.

Much less the Silver ranked fighters."

Rana was dumbfounded. He is also a nascent stage cultivator and in fact, all the younger generation people are nascent stage and they are in late stages, but they are not confident that they could take all the Gold-ranked cultivators in Sam's division alone.

Much less all of them.

"Are you sure about this?"

"Of course."

Rana thought about this and decided something.

"Then why don't you include the gold ranked fighters in this?"

Sam was stunned a bit, but then he nodded.

"I have no problem with that. But why did you change your mind easily."

"Since you are blowing it up in such a fashion, you might as well do it in a much larger scale."

"That would be my pleasure."

"But how are we going to facilitate the audience?"

"I have a plan, just give me a week's time and I would give you something that you would never forget. In fact, you can use it for the rest of these type of matches later.

But I am not giving it for free. You have to pay me."

"Sure, but I will only pay you after it was done testing."

"Alright, but I don't have a blueprint for this thing, I got this as a gift."

"Sure."

Both of them shook their hands and Sam left the place to go to the Artisan workshop which is right next to the store.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Sam went to the workshop and first time ever, he was without any surveillance and that is because, the artisans don't like their methods being watched by others, so they have this special privilege.

He locked the door and entered the workshop and once again checking the room for any type of surveillance just to make sure, he finally puked out the divine dimension which has been in his stomach.

He learned that he couldn't enter the divine dimension while it was in his stomach, so he didn't access this at all.

Even the blueprints he gave to Rana are taken out with great difficulty after moving the crystal to his mouth without letting it out completely.

The first thing Sam did after taking out the divine dimension is entering it and taking a swig of the heavenly wine. He missed this wine so much and had to cover up the craving with the normal liquor.

He took a good chug of it before relaxing a bit. No matter how much freedom he has the situation is not that great, so being in a place in which he had absolute control is great.

Sam sat in the divine dimension library and thought about what to do now. He needs to get a hang of the city layout and his exact position within the city.

In case, Yodha doesn't turn out to be the person he thought he would be and his plan fails, Sam would have another plan that can aid his escape from this place.

But he doesn't have trackers that can work in this environment. Shadow mice will be affected by the poison as they are only Level-6. Even the Zoi termites cannot survive in this environment.

He has to find an alternative to his options so that he can get his information. He pretty much understood the situation of power. Since it is imperial capital, except for Yodha and his father, everyone else can only bow to the emperor and the imperial family.

As for some high-level nobles like the Golden Blaze family, they do control certain businesses. For example, the girl named Vasuki who has a pink hue on her scales belongs to a family that has business in medicine and pharmacy.

They have fields all over the nation and they cultivate any herb that could possibly be cultivated on the soils of this nation.

Yodha doesn't belong to a family that has a long history, his father is the one who won the titles all by himself and his father is of the same generation as the current emperor.

Since he learned of the powers of this city, the next thing he would need is a layout. It would come in handy just in case he needs to destroy the city or escape from it.

Of course, even though it is a backup plan, it has to be thorough.

But even after thinking long and hard, there is no immediate solution.

Shadow mice, termites, locusts don't work. If he uses any spells, he would be easily detected. As for making something new, time is of the essence.

After thinking long and hard, he couldn't help but take the bestiary once again. That is the only way out for him at this moment.

He started collecting the clues from what he learned all these days.

First and foremost, this is an area full of grasslands and the atmosphere is suitable for Purple flame horses, apart from that, he started recollecting the catalog of the meats that he could buy in the store.

He made a list of animals he ate and saw.

After making that list, he started rounding up the beasts that could live in similar environments and after marking them, he crossed out all the other beasts that don't have a single thing common to the remaining regarding the environments they naturally live in.

After creating this new list, he started reading up on the beasts once more, even though he has the information in his head, he read once again just to be sure.

After reading all the information, he compiled some data that could estimate the surrounding environmental conditions and some types of flora that could possibly exist in this place.

After that, he once again went through the beasitary and started looking for all kinds of beasts that could possibly live in the environmental conditions he estimated.

Even though they spent two days in the grasslands, it seems like some sort of hunting grounds with a select few beasts, so he doesn't have enough data from it, but still, he is pretty confident in his estimation.

After going through all the data, Sam finally found a feasible solution, but for that, he has to go out once, even if it is in a controlled situation, where he has no real freedom.

After getting all the information he needed, Sam finally went through the next important thing and he came out at the right time because as soon as he came out of the divine dimension, someone came to the artisan workshop and it happened to be Rana.

When he saw him, Sam was tempted to make a move and get it over with, but he still didn't do so in the end.

"I forgot to ask, how you are going to manufacture something alone without any artisan."

"Well, I don't have to manufacture anything, all I have to do is make some repairs and create some extra outer-shells, and who said I am not an artisan."

With that, Sam showed the golden flame at his fingertips and some metallic shells of the bee-puppets in his hand.

He forgot that Rana doesn't know he is an artisan and directly asked for the workshop access and Rana himself didn't think much of it and accepted in a daze and later realized the mistake.

"You have fire element?" Rana asked with an extremely stunning gaze, after all, Sam never used it in a fight.

"I rarely use it in battles, my go-to is physical strength and the second one is lightning, the fire element is like a hidden card up my sleeves. Nobody forced me to use that yet, so you didn't see it. Let us hope that you would be able to see this week.

I hope your gold level fighters are not too disappointing."

"We will see. Oh, by the way, do you have any requirements for the fight other than what you wrote in the proposal?"

"Actually, I just thought of some."

With that, Sam started explaining some details and Rana is not suspecting anything at all.

After Rana left, Sam went back to dealing with the issues at hand, since the solution for investigation is available, the next thing he has to do is find a cure for the poison that was left in the fighters' bodies.

Actually, that is the only thing, Sam is trying even when he is in the residence and under surveillance and he used the guise of cooking to do that.

He just bought various local herbs as seasonings for the beast meat every day and he observed the effects of these herbs on the poison on Arman.

Since coming here Arman has been useful for little tasks, like being the test subject of the poison inside. Once Sam even asked if he could get rid of that and Arman said that he is positive if he used his secret blood burning technique.

But he didn't let him do that and let him be the test subject, at least this is a great use of him.

After continuous consumption of the herbs along with the meat, he did have some effects and these next seven days that he could spend in the divine dimension which will give him two months, he could make an antidote or at least a medicine that could reduce the effects, if push comes to shove, he can use the wine given by the Monkey King.

But he doesn't want to do that. He couldn't use these special cards whenever he got into trouble, otherwise, he wouldn't be able to solve problems effectively. Particularly, since he had plenty of time, he doesn't have to resort to such things.

So, now Sam went into research mode. But all the time, he kept an eye on the outside world, because Rana came to check up on him from time to time.

Soon, the time passed and Sam did have some results. He swallowed the divine dimension once again and came out with around twenty Bee-Puppets.

These are the same bee-puppets he made back on his planet, but there is only one modification and that is they are good for a single person scouting for a whole team.

These twenty puppets have spirits and those twenty spirits have connections between them apart from that they can all be connected to one of the large screens which Sam brought out along with it.

They work like a CCTV system and this is for his next special fight.

There are plenty of these large screens and they are for the audience to see Sam's next fight. Because the next fight is not going to be in Arena and not in a regular style.

The next fight is a hunt. Between Sam and all the Silver and Gold-ranked fighters in his division.

Sam went to Rana and started explaining how to use these things before the fight happens. This is the chance he has been waiting for because the fight is outside the arena. In the woods.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 503: Hunt

The day of the fight. It has been one and a half months since Sam came to this place.

And almost all of this time was spent in the Arena, today he is coming out of the Arena for the first time.

But, it was completely useless as he couldn't find a way to remember the route or surroundings because he was seated in a closed carriage which doesn't have any windows and has restrictions placed on it, so he cannot reach out his spiritual sense.

After a long journey, Sam was let out and he arrived right in the middle of the woods.

These woods are not too dense, but they are clearly not some normal grasslands. The presence of Level-6 beasts can be found anywhere, at least that is what Sam was told.

After leaving him at the edge of the woods, the carriage and the guardian who is beside the carriage stayed there and gave Sam a token.

"The area of the woods is covered by a formation laid by a consummate level formation master.

So, don't think about running away. Of course, the boss said you wouldn't do that, but I am saying this for the sake of saying.

You can only come out with this token and there are only some points in the formation that all you to pass through.

If you try to force your way through from any other point, you will die."

With that, he waved his hands and the Bee-Puppet appeared.

The Bee-puppet was locked on Sam as it followed him into the formation.

This time's fight is a hunt. Although no one knew who the hunter and who the prey yet.

At this moment, the arena's top is closed, it is completely dark and the audience is still seated in their own seats with a crystal screen before them.

The normal audience has a screen for three to four seats and VIPs have a screen for one seat each.

They are watching it intently and this time, they smelled an aromatic wine and roasted meat being brought by the attendants, so they didn't even think twice before buying it.

In the large screen, there are different sections and the larger section in the middle is focusing on Sam, while the smaller sections around it are the rest of the fighters in the patch of the wood.

Actually, the area that is enclosed within the forest is not too big. It is actually quite small and they could cover the whole area within half an hour if they traveled at a full speed.

So, they cannot hide from each other and can only fight head-on.

They are watching this intently as they looked at Sam and the Silver ranked and gold-ranked fighters who just entered the forest.

They are waiting for the first clash, but they didn't have to wait for long, because, Sam already moved like fish in the water as soon as he entered the forest.

He is agile like a monkey as he jumped from tree to tree with minimum effort and started searching for his opponents carefully.

There are a total of eighteen opponents to him at this moment.

And within the first five minutes, he encountered his first opponent.

Sam didn't even bother to sneak up on him and directly appeared in front of him, the Silver ranked fighter who saw Sam was startled for a second but braced himself for a tough fight.

But his anticipated fight was nowhere to be seen, he was already done for as soon as Sam made his first move.

Sam made the opponent unconscious and searched for his token. This is his task, any person without a token inside the formation will be suppressed by the formation and if he can rob them off of this, it would consider his win.

At this moment, the audience is clapping at his first successful hunt, but they also noticed something else.

The six screens that are covering the Gold-ranked fighters brought attracted their attention.

Because, they are all moving in the same direction, to the center of the forest. And soon they noticed that all six of them formed a group and are waiting for Sam to come.

The audience were riled up at this.

It is already supposed to be unfair to Sam, but these people already thought grouping up even before the match and they successfully did so in the first ten minutes, they didn't expect this from gold-ranked fighters.

But at the same time, they are quite excited about this. They wanted to have Sam fight the toughest battles to see his full strength and this might as well be their perfect opportunity.

But what they didn't notice is that Sam is not just moving around aimlessly, while he is tracking his opponents, he is also looking for something else on the trees, that is why he is only traveling on trees and he is touching every single tree in the path as he made his way forward.

Since the area is too small, Sam doesn't have much hope for this plan, but still he didn't want to give up.

He went through all the trees as he took down two more opponents.

After some more search, he was finally able to see some traces of what he wanted. But he didn't make his move immediately.

He looked around noticed that a large deer habitat is nearby, he lured one out and killed it before starting to prepare the meat and the pelt. As Sam is skinning the large body while sprawling over it, what no one noticed is that the crystal came out of his mouth and a black shadow carried it away from the carcass without letting the bee puppet catching its movement.

Of course, that is because Sam is the one controlling the Bee-puppet at this moment, the puppet would bypass all the commands of others as long as Sam said so.

As he delightedly put on a show to the screen, something else is happening right behind the puppet.

Mia came out and started exerting her pressure, she is the only one who doesn't have any negative effects from this environment.

As she used her pressure to the most and used the divine dimension crystal to collect a hornet's nest on the tree.

The hornet's nest is large and is as big as an adult male, but the hornets are weak and powerless, just a little bigger than the regular hornets.

After mia collected them, she went back into the divine dimension and inside the divine dimension, the termite queen is having a talk with the hornet queen.

Sam finished his meal and made his move. And in that move, what no one noticed is that he swallowed a crystal in a flash.

He was done with the things at hand and resumed his hunt.

For the next two hours, Sam became busy with beating the crap out of all his opponents and finally, he arrived at the center of the forest where the six gold-ranked fighters are waiting for him.

The sixth one is the newly promoted one, he was silver ranked for the past few days.

As he moved there, now almost all screens are just showing this scene.

This is the final battle for this hunt.

But this time, Sam didn't directly confront the six of them, they are staying in a formation and are waiting for Sam.

Sam is looking at them from the hiding.

He smirked at the fact that these six members formed a group just to deal with him and all of a sudden, energy surged in his body and slowly his body started converting into a mass of silver lightning.

He has activated the fusion, but he couldn't complete the fusion, at this moment his fusion is only eighty percent complete, but that is enough for now.

Sam made his move, he kicked the trunk of the tree he was standing on and disappeared with a silver flash as he zoomed towards the nearest opponent.

He didn't punch or kick, he just slammed himself straight into him like a lightning strike, but this guy is on his guard and was completely defensive, tried his best to defend the impact.

So, he wasn't down in a single attack, but he looked rather haggard and it would be hard to say if he would survive another attack.

The rest of the group grew alert and looked at the lightning flash that disappeared into the woods once again as soon as it entered the woods, the lightning disappeared.

That is because Sam deactivated the fusion to hide and move normally.

As the group changed the formation and got ready to take Sam head-on, they felt something coming from the rear and as soon as they saw it, they were stunned. Because the lightning flash that disappeared to their right is coming from their back at this moment.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 504: Troubles for Rana

This time, Sam didn't bother creating a show so that opponents could retaliate a bit and drag the battle, but his hits are extremely decisive as he wanted to cleanly sweep the opponents.

The lightning flash came from different directions. The opponents couldn't keep up with that.

The audience is cheering at the one-sided onslaught, but some of the discerning eyes are in awe of the skill Sam has shown.

The elemental fusion is somewhat difficult to achieve and it needs a lot of control which should be deemed impeccable.

They are surprised at Sam's control over his energy that he can activate and deactivate the fusion as he liked.

It is almost like being in the fusion is like eating and drinking to him.

Yodha is also looking at this scene and he is thinking completely differently, maybe only the other Noble scions are the ones who are thinking in the same way as him.

Because they are not just here for the show unlike the rest of the audience. Even though they enjoyed the show they are here for the skills and they have a gut feeling that Sam is showing his skills step by step.

Yodha has this feeling even more because, he saw Sam's skill level before the rest, which prompted him to present wine for him after the first fight itself.

Until now, Sam showed his long-lasting stamina by fighting twenty opponents one by one, then in the first fight against the Bronze ranked fighters, he showed his overwhelming attacks and in the second fight, he showed his impeccable speed and defense at the same time his control over the massive amount of spiritual energy.

As for the fight now, he is showing his tracking skill, battle instincts, an overwhelming advantage in using the terrain, and such.

From what Yodha is seeing, Sam is exhibiting his skills to be more eye-catching in every fight. In fact, as he progressed from one fight to another, he is showing off more and more.

It is almost like he is trying desperately to be out in the spotlight.

Even Rana might have noticed this, but he doesn't care about that, because what he needs most at this moment is the capital for his business so that he can compete for the position.

Arena might seem lucrative, but it doesn't make it for the long term.

He cannot depend on it if he wants to have large scale growth and develop his own loyal forces.

Sam also understood this, that is why he started becoming more and more daring with his requests.

If not for the fact that he is the prisoner of the Arena, he would have supported Rana directly, with the wealth he had in his hands, it would be a piece of cake for him to do this. But it is not suitable yet.

If he can get out of this place, he can do whatever he wants.

At this moment, Rana only has one thing in his hands and that is wealth that too is not too much. He doesn't have his father behind him neither his family, he would have to struggle all alone.

As for the rest of the families and other top dogs supporting him, it would only happen if he can give them enough incentive.

Sam is thinking while he was busy dealing with the six gold rank fighters and he was done in five more minutes.

After clearing them up, he took the tokens and started walking towards the entrance.

This trip has been rewarding and he achieved the goal he was set out to achieve.

Sam didn't expect that he would succeed on his first try, but from now on he doesn't have to worry about the layout. He can complete his backup plan.

After leaving the place and returning to Arena, Sam was gifted with the bonuses. Today's bonuses are by far the highest.

He left to his residence to think of what to do next.

Meanwhile, Rana is looking at the bee-puppets in his hands with a shocked expression. He has seen the performance of the puppets, this is used for broadcasting the fight, but it is not the best use for it. There are many more efficient ways to use this.

He started examining the materials and the structure, but to his dismay, he couldn't see the internal structure with just his spiritual sense, there are too many restrictions.

Not just him, even the noble scions are interested in how Rana showed them the whole fight.

It is not like they never saw this before, but it takes an extremely high-level formation and it costs too much.

Rana doesn't have enough resources or wealth to make the formation, he could barely put that restriction formation in that forest after renting it from the authorities.

It would be hard if he really wants to get that formation that can broadcast, apart from that these crystal screens and the various angles, are all completely new to them.

If even they, the scions who are going to be the next heads of their families with full support doesn't know the source and existence of such technology, how can a person who is being bullied and isolated from his own family get his hands on this?

If Sam knew that all of these people are thinking about this, he would wear a grin from ear to ear.

Because that is the result he expected. When he showed the bee puppet's demonstration, Sam didn't show the quality of the surveillance to its full extent and even the angles it can capture and the speed it can follow are not shown to its complete potential.

But in the actual fight, they worked to their fullest extent and showed impeccable image.

He wanted to put more pressure on Rana.

If Sam is in Rana's place, he would take advantage of the current situation and showcase the prowess of all his candidates and sell them to the noble families in form of favors or wealth, as for making them join his force, which would be a stupid decision.

Because the resentment they feel for being toyed like an animal is not something they would be able to forget that easily.

He could guess that Rana's plan is the same. But Sam wants to accelerate the plan and make him do all this faster.

He cannot manage the Arena on his own, he does have skills but he doesn't have resources or support and he is not capable of gaining them in short term.

And he gave away the bee puppets and now they are like oil in the fire.

All this while, Rana will only get pressurized by his own family, but now all families are concentrating on him.

Meanwhile, Sam is meditating in the room with lightning surrounding him and the whole room was lit with silver light blinding the surveillance.

As his back is facing the surveillance, what the people who are watching him don't know is, a shadow expanded from right below Sam and extended to his mouth. At the same time, something unbelievable happened as Sam's chest suddenly bulged and his esophagus expanded like a balloon.

He used wind elemental energy to pressure his esophagus and created a tunnel from his stomach. At this moment, a small hornet flew out of Sam's stomach and the shadow that was stretched out turned into a hand and caught it before disappearing.

The shadow reappeared in the hallway and the hornet was left to fly freely.

The small hornet which completely negligible in the eyes of everyone in the Arena left the place that day and roamed into the city.

The same process happened again and again and for the whole night, Sam is creating this blinding light in the distraction.

Meanwhile, Arman is being a good and obedient test subject as he kept a space jade in his mouth and took one medicine after another from it as he experimented it on the poison.

He took a minuscule amount as he made it react bit by bit to see if any of these things can cure the poison completely.

The next day, Sam is still meditating as he closed his eyes. Inside his mind, there is a large blank space glittering with many white dots.

This is the result of the exchange between him and the hornet queen.

The hornets he sent away yesterday are one of the lowest-ranked insects of all time. They are Black hornets and they have short lifespans. They wouldn't reach past Level 1 in their lifetime unless they get to have an evolution in their bloodline with enough resources that are generally not so easy to get.

After estimating the environmental conditions around, Sam went through all the beasts that stay in these conditions and came across some insect species and made a list to find out what kind of insects could live in the vicinities based on his estimation.

So, he picked a forest similar to that and he really did find one of them. But these hornets are at the bottom on the list, he would have preferred if he could find other types, but he couldn't do anything about it. He has to deal with whatever he had in his hand.

And just like that, he now had a decent estimation on the size of the layout and if he wants to, he can even look at some areas nearby, that is the ability of the hornet's queen and due to the spiritual connection he made with it, they can exchange the information directly. That means he is not seeing the image directly rather he is seeing in the mind of hornet's queen.

While Sam is rather satisfied with the surveillance, he is completely unaware of the storm that was caused in Rana's office since previous night.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 505: Change of attitude

Rana is having the hardest time of his life. After the hunt was over, he collected the necessary bonuses and was rejoicing in his new income. But his happiness is short-lived.

He wanted to ask Sam where he got the bee puppets and get the blueprint out of him. He doesn't believe that Sam doesn't have a blueprint of it, at least that is his hunch.

But before he could do so, he already started facing trouble and he understood how green he was. He is not the only one who saw the efficiency of the bee-puppets.

The rest of the noble scions doesn't know about the bee puppets, but there is something up with that broadcast system.

So, one after another the noble scions sent people to visit and Vasuki even came on her own. All of them are subtle about it, they didn't say it out openly, but they didn't hide the fact about wanting to know more about it either.

Yodha approached the matter in a completely different way, he just rounded up the Arena attendants who finished their shift and returned to their homes.

Clearly, he is the sanest and clear-minded of all the scions as he knew that Rana doesn't have that capability and there is something else going on.

Rana is not too stupid to get that technology out in the limelight at this moment, he has to do at least after building some sort of foundation otherwise the rest of the guys will rip him off real good.

That is why he took away the attendants as soon as they left the arena and started his interrogation, the whole thing went smoothly and the attendants didn't even bother to conceal a thing in face of Yodha.

Apparently, they don't know the full story, but there are some of them who were present when Sam is giving the demo and that is enough for Yodha to draw a conclusion.

The next morning, as Sam finished spreading his hornet network, he was called to Rana's office. He had a cold smile on his face and he walked with his hands on his pants' pockets. Arman noticed the change in his body language and started to do his part as well.

He moved out of the cell and went to the dining room. No attendants stopped him. When he entered the dining room, he even talked to the chef and gave him some large pieces of meat, this is the deer meat that was hunted by Sam yesterday.

This is going to replace the meat in today's night meal after that he went back and started speaking to some of the other fighters in the residences, at first there is some resistance, but Arman is no soft permission at least not in front of others.

Sam reached the office while Arman is doing his assigned tasks. Rana looked at him coldly and said.

"I want that blueprint of the Bee-Puppets."

"I don't have it."

Sam replied in a calm tone, he is back to his original self. There is no cheerful youth who loves bragging and likes showing off. His eyes are cold and calculating.

"Do you think I will believe that? You are going to give it to me no matter what. But you should decide whether it is the hard way or the easy way."

"You can think whatever you want, but you will never get that blueprint."

"Do you think you are in a position to deny? All I have to do is make you lose your meal for two days straight and you will be dead."

"Why don't you try that then? I dare you to do so."

When Sam said this, Rana was stunned for a second, and then only he noticed the change in Sam as he continued to speak.

"The family has essentially isolated you, you want to start your own business and don't have enough capital to compete against your family, at your current state the best you can get is a small shop which wouldn't provide enough revenue for your growth and your force.

You need money, to develop your own force and at the same time, provide them with cultivation resources and stuff.

Along with that you will need a place to stay and situate your force.

At this moment, you might be in charge of the Arena, but it belongs to your family, to begin with, they will take it back one way or other. The only reason they are still letting you stay here is that it would too obvious and their reputation will be affected.

So, before that happens, you have to get as much money as possible from the Arena in this short amount of time.

Your best bet would be to sell all the fighters to the other families and gain money and favors. As for keeping them yourselves, there is no way you would be able to do that because they can kill you in your sleep.

But the other noble families will not buy the fighters at this moment, because at this exact moment, the only hot commodity is me and a few other fighters. So, to gain more build-up you have to maintain a few more fights and you will have to use me as the foundation for that.

Then only you can sell us and get some money to maintain any form of force. Even after doing all this, you would barely gain one to two billion spirit stones.

That could at most get you by for one more year if you maintain a decent force.

That too if your investment in the business goes well without any intervention from the family of yours.

After all, you just kicked the ass of your brother who is supposed to be the next head, so for the next few years, half of your family who is in support of him would create troubles and the other half would look at the show as a test.

That amount would be barely enough, that too if there are no additional problems.

The great thing is that your own family has coined almost all businesses related to metals.

Not only do they have a weapon shop, they even have an Armory in the west of the city where they provide basic armors to the military and the city guard command.

They even have a foundry where they sell metals for even the Artisan association in this place. They even have deals with the formation and inscription experts.

If you want to get the approval of the family, you might have to go into the same kinds of businesses.

After all, the Bewitching hue family coined the medicine business, and other families have their hand in the auction house, the lodgings, the mercenaries, beast cub trading, everything is coined.

If you enter any of those businesses, you are in trouble, because other than your own family in which at most half of them are going to trouble you, the rest of the families wouldn't pull their punches, they would just tear you apart."

Sam said all this in one breath and paused for a second.

Rana was stumped.

But before he could react, Sam started said once again.

"Before all this could happen, you still have to make it big and I am needed for that. So, once again I dare you to kill me.

Apart from that, the scions might have already contacted you about the puppets. So, if I am not here you are in a more disadvantageous situation. Good luck with that."

Just like that Rana was dumbfounded.

"Are you not supposed to have just entered the city? Where did you get this information? How do you know all this? Wait, why do you know all this? Why are so clear about the family situation of mine?"

He said frantically and started thinking about all the situation and after he thought this through, he realized Sam is a catalyst to everything that happened till now.

He thought, he is in full control of him and using him to make money, but it turned out that Sam who is in a disadvantageous and submissive position from the start is the one manipulating.

Not only did he influence him and his family's situation while staying in the Arena, but his actions could also possibly influence some changes in the city's power balance, at least when it is concerned with the young scions.

He looked at him with a terrified expression.

Sam looked at him condescendingly and said.

"You better think before throwing someone in a place like this.

Do you think you are someone who can just through me in a place like this and make me perform like a monkey? You are far too incapable of that. Now, you are forced to a path of no return. Not only do you have to make fights like want to in the next two weeks, but you will also have to control the rest of the noble scions.

Of course, I can offer you a way out of that too. But there are some conditions. If you want to discuss it, come to my residence."

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 506: Discussion

Sam didn't even bother to wait after that. He just left the place as if he owned it.

Rana panicked and fell into his chair with an exhausted expression. He didn't expect that things would turn out like this.

This is the situation he least anticipated. In fact, he didn't anticipate it at all.

As he was brain storming what he to do, he got the news that the attendants are rounded up by Yodha and some of them spilled some information.

The attendants didn't run away, because the chance of escape is not so great for them and they decided to surrender earlier. Of course, half of the reason is that they know that Rana couldn't afford to kill them at this moment and they are betting on that fact.

This made Rana even more panicked. He ran towards Sam's residence to have that talk.

After reached, he noticed that Sam is playing with a small hornet in his hands. He didn't care much and sat down on a chair right in front of him and asked.

"What do you want?"

"Simple, for the next fights, arrange them with the next division. The Late-stage nascent division. I am going to fight them for the next few days continuously until they are finished.

As for the rest, I do have some ideas on how you can get past this situation and I can even give you a way out of this current predicament. I can help you make a business, a force, and even make you the next candidate for the family head. But there are different conditions though.

But I don't know if you will agree."

"Why don't we discuss and see?"

"Well, we can actually, but I don't like negotiating much, so it would be better for me if you agree to them straight away."

"That wouldn't be good for me right?"

"I don't think so. Trust me whoever makes a deal with me, will always turn out to be a winner at all times."

"That is bullshit."

"I don't care about your opinion, but if you want to do this you can think this through. My conditions would be extremely harsh and there wouldn't be much room for you to negotiate. Only come here if you are decisive enough. But before that, just go there and prepare for the next fights. We can make some money first."

Rana looked at him and left.

For the next week, Sam and Rana are both busy. One with fighting while the other is making the fights happen.

After the week, there is only one fight left for Sam and that is the battle against the Rank 1 of the Gold rankers of the Late-stage Nascent division.

All over this week, Rana is under too much pressure, he didn't want to believe what Sam said to him in his office so he tried his best to stay positive and worked towards his goal.

But as time passed, he realized that all he said was true and is moving in the exact direction he pointed out.

The first thing is his family is trying to take the Arena away from him before he could do something drastic and the signs of their movements are all over the city.

The second thing is the pressure from the other Noble scions is increasing, they are investigating left and right and they are also trying to get their hands on the attendants, but they are not as daring as Yodha who is a reckless and bold guy.

So, all they can do is fish out some information.

As he was facing all of that, the only positive thing is the money he is making with extreme difficulty.

Meanwhile, Sam is providing various types of meats for all the divisions through the chef of the Dining staff and Arman is communicating with all of them in the backstage of the Arena whenever he got chance.

Since the attendants and the dining staff don't know how much of a storm Sam has raised, they are just letting them be and Rana is in no position to care about such things which appeared to be trivial on the surface.

After this week, the day before the last fight of Sam, Rana couldn't hold it anymore and once again made a trip towards Sam's residence.

"What do you want me to do?"

Sam smirked at the question and said.

"First of all, arrange a meeting with Yodha for me. We will talk about the rest based on how he reacts."

"With Yodha?"

"Of course."

"Do you think he will meet with you? Even I am not sure getting a meeting with him."

Sam chuckled and said.

"You don't know this because you don't belong to the category. But a superior being can recognize another superior being."

"What do you mean?" Rana was offended. After all, Sam is putting him on par with Yodha and is calling him inferior.

"The reluctance to accept the obvious is the sign of inferiority and idiocy. Don't ask me when you know the answer. And for me superiority doesn't come with birth and blood, it comes with capability. The day you understand that you will also see how puny your ambition and that family head position is.

Now just go and arrange a meeting tonight."

Rana left the room with a black face. He doesn't understand what Sam said and he obviously doesn't like this.

His expression changed only after he went to Yodha's house.

"I want to meet with Yodha."

"Commander asked me to escort me inside if you come. Please."

The guard greeted him and led Rana inside the house.

Yodha is sculpting a small wooden piece that is the size of a fist.

"What brings you here?"

Yodha asked, but his expression is showing that he already knew the answer.

"I am here because Sam requested to arrange a meeting with you." Rana tried his best to hide his surprise and curiosity as he said.

"It is about time you did that."

Rana couldn't hide his expressions and asked.

"Why do you want to meet him?"

"A person who can make waves in this city when he cooped up in the prison; of course I want to meet him."

"So, you knew this already?"

Yodha chuckled and said.

"You guys are wondering since childhood, what is the difference between you and me. And I can now say this is the difference. I am not one to not see the flow. You wouldn't understand even if I explain everything to you.

I will visit the Arena at midnight. Just wait in your office with him."

With that Rana left Yodha's house and went back to the Arena.

At midnight.

Sam is waiting for Yodha along with Rana in the latter's office.

Soon, Yodha entered the office and smiled at Sam.

"It is nice to finally meet you. I am Yodha."

Sam shook his hand and said.

"I am Sam. Nice to meet you too."

"So, we can go straight to the point, but before that, if you have some special wine; that would be great."

"Of course."

Sam took out two gourds that are extremely similar and gave one to Yodha.

"I only have these two gourds of it left. I didn't want to share it with someone who cannot appreciate good wine. But since you are good at it, I will share this with you."

With that, both of them clinked the gourds and took a gulp.

Yodha's facial expression changed as he swallowed the heavenly wine. This is the diluted wine of the Monkey king. Sam didn't want to use it, but he knew something like this would need to win over a smooth conversation with Yodha. So, he decided to pay the price.

But still, his hesitation caused him to dilute it with some normal fruit wine. But it is still better than any wine in this whole realm.

"This is great. Thanks."

Yodha thanked him and relaxed a bit.

Then Sam smiled and got to the point.

"I don't know if you know exactly why I called you, but I think you would have some guesses.

The first thing, I want to talk about is the broadcast system that Rana used in my hunt is my creation and I am the one who implemented that. Of course, that is not the main function of that system and not the intended use too.

But I made it like that to gain enough attention.

Second thing is, it will be most useful for the City guards and the military. So, if you want we can manage to cut a business deal. But I do have some conditions which I would like to talk about later. That is if you are interested and this system is not the only one I can offer."

"So, what do you want in exchange?"

Yodha asked.

Sam smiled and said.

"It is simple. I need to be out of here and you should guarantee my safety. I don't belong to any of the nations that ruled by Naga. I came from a place that you guys never even heard of and I will definitely return to that place. So, I would like to make a business deal between both our places and I want the two of you to be my partners."

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 507: Business Deal

Yodha and Rana were surprised if what Sam said is right, there is a nation that is completely ruled by humans and not Nagas.

But that doesn't make sense as they are sure that there is no such nation on their planet, which leads to only one conclusion, Sam is not from their planet.

Even though it is not easily feasible it is still a possibility. They knew that human civilization is not completely lost and it is still holding some weight on some other planets, but they didn't expect that they would meet someone and he is so confident in making such a business deal.

Yodha thought for a moment and replied.

"I don't know if you know the military situation of this place. But the military weapon production is extremely limited. After all, if the artisans are directly associated with the military they might get conscripted directly into the army when a situation arises.

They don't want to join. So, except for some high-level artisans who are in charge of making some special weapons and armor for the people in the army that are exchanged for their military merits, there is no production of the basic weapons.

In fact, the Golden Blaze family already holds the deal for all the military bases of the nation. We only buy the things from them on annual basis within the military budget."

Sam listened to every detail carefully.

"I understand. I don't know why you are here. But if you are interested I can get you some great deal, which can provide income to all three of us."

"How is that going to happen? Anyway, right now doing business with Rana is not something beneficial to me, why would I have to do business with him."

Yodha replied with a smile.

"Well, if Rana is alone, it is indeed something completely inefficient. But he will only be a middle man in the business. Although he would be a partner and receive a share of the business, his main role would be binding us two."

"Then please do explain the deal you want to make."

Rana looked at the two of them in a dumbfounded expression, this is his office and they are talking about him as if he is not worth anything. A middleman? He is a noble child. When was a human able to talk to him like that?

Sam didn't know what he was thinking and there is a huge possibility that he wouldn't care if he knew of this.

He took out some things from his spatial storage and the first one of them is the methane grenade. The grenades are one of the most lucrative things selling like hot cakes in his business.

There are various types of grenades, depending on the degree of damage and purpose.

Apart from the methane grenade, there is the decaying flame grenade which is the cause of the weird poison and this is also used in cannon shells at the war of Adrian, the new model of the pin grenade.

Smoke grenade and normal grenade whose sole purpose is pure explosive destruction and each type have various subtypes based on the degree of their damage.

Yodha was surprised. Although these are not invincible, they really do come in handy with the wars and they are hard to detect when compared to normal inscription based or formation based traps.

They can be used as mines or for other purposes like a distraction.

After that, Sam took out the hunting trap, as for the second model of the hunting trap that uses the poison, it is not that useful in the Naga realm. So, there is no need for it to be displayed.

The next thing Sam showed was the Breathing device that could increase the proficiency in Naval warfare, this intrigued Yodha very much.

He also knew that the least development they have in terms of warfare and technology is in the territory of Naval-warfare.

After that was done, the next thing would be the communication hubs and various communication devices.

Sam noticed that the communication techniques are a little more advanced here, but not as advanced as his own network.

The most that these people have is the extra range. But Sam's portable communication hub and the large-scale communication hub area almost irreplaceable.

The last one is the Bee-Puppet. In fact, before he came here, Sam is already working on the third puppet design. Until now, the Bee-puppets are only of Nascent level puppets in terms of materials. But they can be used against the pre-transcendent stage cultivators at best. But that is it.

The Flat-fish puppets are the same. But they are good as long as they serve their purpose which is mostly scouting and transport.

Sam is still hesitating if he should show the flat-fish puppet and decided not to after some thoughts.

After that, he started explaining how the Bee-puppets work and what their functions and features are.

If things go right with these businesses, Sam would introduce the cement, cannons, and other things later.

In fact, it is too much of a risk for him to take out all these. But this is a gamble. He doesn't want to wait and slowly make his foundation in this world.

He needs a rapid progression. It is almost two months since he came here and there is only ten months' time to the next palace of inheritance.

So, he has to move rapidly.

Sam explained everything and said to Yodha.

"I know you would prefer these things to be on business as soon as possible. But I would prefer to deal with them slowly and make a contract on them one by one."

"Why is that?" This time it is Rana who asked. He was awe-struck by these things and since he was involved in this deal, he couldn't help but feel excited.

"Progression and lack of resources. We cannot invest a whole lot at the same time to produce these things on a large scale.

We have to progress this slowly.

The first product would be the grenades and all types and degrees. Along with them, we will be selling all kinds of other weapons that are normally used. These grenades are responsible for attracting the customers while the normal weapons would be sold along with them due to this attraction."

"I don't think it is necessary to limit this to just grenades in the first stage. And I also don't think it is a good idea to sell them to the normal public. It would be better if they are reserved for the military and city guard specific use." Yodha said from the side.

"But wouldn't that limit the revenue?" Sam asked.

"What do you mean to limit the revenue? The revenue would be exploded. Do you know how much each of these would go? Tens of thousands of spirit stones."

Yodha said as he pointed at the grenades. Sam was dumbfounded. He is the creator of the grenades, but even he doesn't know that they are that expensive.

But he didn't show it on his face.

"We are going to write a military exclusive contract and I will be the mediator. All three of us would invest and since, the idea is you don't have to invest as much as we do."

"How big is the military manpower?"

Sam asked all of a sudden.

"The military of the nation is very huge even if the imperial capital is not that big. Only the specially privileged are able to stay in the imperial capital.

In fact, almost all of the normal citizens in the imperial capital are noble scions, of course, it is a small nobility rank and most of them are just empty titles gained through military service.

So, you might have a very considerate estimation of the military. But our total manpower from the foot soldiers to the Marshalls combined will be around five hundred thousand."

Sam was dumbfounded. He doesn't know what to think of this. The whole force of the western continent would be barely fifty thousand, if he counted the Acolytes too, then they barely reach that number. But these guys five hundred thousand people just for the army, that is some large force.

"What is the name of your Nation?" Sam asked in a bit awkward tone.

"You don't know?" Both Rana and Yodha are stunned.

"I actually came here by mistake. So, I don't really know."

"It's called Mov Empire."

Sam nodded, but he didn't ask further.

He then proceeded to explain the next steps to Rana on how he should proceed to get away from the pressure of his family and also the rest of the scions.

Rana is extremely unwilling to do some of the things as they are nowhere near the same as his own plans. But he was forced to do so.

He cannot back down now. Even without knowing he is trapped with Yodha and Sam. He doesn't have any control of the situation, the only good thing is that with these two he can definitely get back at his own father.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 508: Shop Keeper

The next day, Sam went on with his last fight in the Arena.

For the next week, the fights went on and this is going to be the last week of the Arena in Rana's hands. Both Yodha and Sam agreed that the Arena will just come in their way and it is going to be taken away by Rana's family anyway.

So, they decided to stop the Arena fights after this week.

As for the fighters, they are not being sold away. At least not all of them. When Sam went to meet Rana, Arman talked to these fighters about something and that is related to this.

Sam knew that things would progress this way and that is why he already started preparing for the situation and sent Arman to talk to them.

The meat that was given to the chef contains some medicine that can neutralize the poison a bit. This is Sam's gift to the rest of the fighters and Arman went to some of them to say this and also weave some lies to them.

His plan is that he would act like a mediator between Rana and them to make them believe that Rana doesn't like the Arena and these methods and is trying to get rid of it without his family knowing. So, the fighters would have to choose a different path from now on.

Since Rana cannot get rid of them directly and let them get away, he has some options for them. The first one is that he would let them join his personal force and they can work for him as a soldier. There would even be compensation for all the torment they went through in here.

As for the second choice, they would be auctioned off to the Noble scions and one-fourth of the amount you get will be taken away by Rana, with the remaining three-fourths going to the fighters.

The fighters didn't believe this at first. After all, who would believe the person who acted as a gatekeeper of the prison?

But Arman did a great job convincing them.

He even tried to lay a trap of guilt on them by saying that Rana's current situation of isolation from their family is all because of them. Because Rana wanted to free them and stop this, he was isolated and bullied.

Surprisingly this worked. They are not from here and they don't really know the exact situation of the families. The most they knew is that Rana is from a big family and from the gossip of the dining staff, they came to know that he is in trouble. That's it.

They ignored it in the past and thought that whatever that is they don't have anything to do with it, but Arman's statement made them think.

The same thing happened with the other fighters of Arena Sam talked to.

While the situation was left to Arman to solve, Sam went to the store after his fight and met with Shop Keeper.

The latter was not really surprised by his visit as it became a daily norm for both of them.

"Fancy a glass of wine?" Sam asked as he took out a crystal bamboo jar.

"Sure."

Both of them sat down together and started drinking. They didn't talk much as they drank, but when the first crystal bamboo jar was over, Sam finally asked.

"How many days for your seal to break?"

Abruptly, the shop keeper halted in his actions and looked at Sam calmly.

Sam didn't stop though, he was as casual as ever.

"How do you know?"

Sam activated his eye technique and there is a golden glow around them. The shop keeper looked at him and sighed.

"Where did you come from? The eye technique of this level is not that easy to obtain or cultivate. Are you really from some other place ruled by humans?"

"More or less, but it is not on this planet. As for where it is, I will tell you later. Before that, what is this seal?"

The shop keeper looked a little melancholic and said.

"This is a seal placed on me by my brother when he was taken away. Even though I want to tell you, I think it is beyond our means."

"Why don't you tell me? Maybe I am someone who can help."

"How can you help me when you are in your own shit?"

"Well, the shit is cleared completely. I will be leaving this place by the end of this week. The Arena will be empty and all the fighters are also leaving along with the staff. So, if you tell me what your problem is, maybe I might take pity on you and take you with me."

Sam said half-jokingly.

Shop Keeper was shocked. He chugged the liquor and said.

"You are more capable than I thought. Since you are so interested I will tell you, but I highly doubt you would be able to help me.

Didn't I tell you that I am from a different place? it is completely true, and in fact, I am not from this realm at all. I came from another realm. There are also Naga's ruling a single planet in that realm. Of course, there are many powers, countries, and sects as such, but that place is inhabited by only Naga and Yakshas.

I and my brother belong to a mediocre noble family and we both have special constitutions due to our bloodline.

That constitution gives me a different type of power than the elemental energy or pure warrior strength. My brother also had a different constitution that is not explainable by the normal elements and strength.

The shackles and seal that you have seen are also the results of that power.

There is a superior noble family that is interested in our power and tried to take us away.

This planet is connected to that realm through Space-Warp gateway and we managed to escape.

Of course, the noble family wouldn't be as considerate as letting us go right? They just chased us here. Then before I knew it, my brother who is far stronger than me placed a seal on me and threw me into a stream before they could catch us.

The last thing I heard from the stream is that his consent to be taken away by them.

We don't know what they want from us, but they are still searching for me as they are sure I wouldn't die. I wanted to leave this place through the Space-

Warp gateway, but there is only one on this planet and that leads to the same planet as our home. Even that, was impossible for me to leave through.

This seal not only stopped my cultivation for a bit, it even stopped me from going through the Space Warp gateway.

That is why I am stuck in this place and I took up such an inconspicuous job like this."

"You are saying this all to a normal human, where is your aversion towards humans?"

"Maybe, I grew out of it over time. In our realm, at least in my home planet, there are no humans and it has stayed that way for generations what is the point of me hating the race that we have never seen for so long.

That is why I don't really care about that. The hatred towards humans is indeed innate, but that is not to the extent it is completely intolerable or something that couldn't be overcome."

"So, it seems like your seal will break in a few days, what would you do?"

"It might look like that, but I still have more than a year for that. Even then I don't have a guarantee that it would break."

"A year?" Sam was really surprised, the seal certainly didn't look that way. It is almost like it would break apart at any moment. If even that will take a year, just how long did this guy stay in this place? Sam didn't keep this question to himself and asked.

"Twenty-five years."

Sam was dumbfounded. He didn't expect that he would stay here for that long.

"Damn, even after twenty-five years they are still searching for you?"

"Of course, like hell, they would leave me alone. There is even a person staying in this imperial capital and looking for those reports as we speak."

The cultivation seal is the only thing that is saving me.

My brother's seal not only stopped the cultivation it even changed the color of my scales. That is why there is no one who can identify me yet. But once this seal broke, I don't think I would be able to escape unscathed.

They would definitely capture me."

Sam thought for a moment and said with a smile.

"I have a plan, you want to hear me out?"

"What plan?"

"First tell me, what your real cultivation level is?"

"Level-9 Consummate realm, I would have broken through the next plane if not for the seal. But this seal is somewhat helping me solidify the foundation."

Sam didn't hear the rest and felt like this is a great chance.

"I do have a plan that can help you out."

The shopkeeper looked at him with a bit of doubt and excitement at the same time.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 509: Auction

One week later.

On this day, the regular audience and the attendants of noble scions all visited the Arena one by one only for it to be closed.

There is no sign of people and not even the gate guards are present. It has been like this for the past two days.

The fights for the Arena are over on that day and Rana stopped the fights and events further. The Arena will be closed, permanently.

Even though they could operate the Arena further and the income is pretty decent, at the end of the day the Arena is still the Golden Blaze family's property and it would be quite problematic for them to take over the control and make it independent.

So, it would be better to discard it completely and get away with it.

On this day, Rana visited the other noble scions discreetly and gave them an invitation.

This is the invitation-only for the scions of their generation and no other people are allowed.

Today is the auction day.

Sam's plan worked perfectly, with the slight relief of the poison due to the consumption of the meat, the fighters are convinced, but most of them wanted to be auctioned off. Only a few of them are staying with them

So, today that auction is happening.

Yodha, who stayed out of the city for the past week is also coming back to the city. He went outside of the city because he wanted to find the land and make arrangements.

Yodha has special privileges which made it easy for him to acquire land. But the land is not inside the city. It is completely outside the city premises.

As for safety? Sam learned that apart from the hunting grounds there are no beasts around in this area and the place Sam arrived when he came to this realm are also hunting grounds. The city gate he saw was also a rear city gate, not the main one.

Even his hunt was done in a small part of these hunting grounds.

This is something unexpected. Apparently, the hunting grounds are far larger than the city.

Anyway, the safety of their factory will be guaranteed as Yodha is going to be a partner, he is also in charge of safety and he does have some personal guards apart from the military guards that he could assign.

As for Sam, he is in charge of providing the blueprints of the grenades and the machines required for production.

Even this doesn't have much improvement in the machinery and production, they also prioritize the individual artisans that could make some great weapons for individual prowess.

The most they have are some pressing machines used for making basic armors for the lowest-ranked soldiers that are given for free when they joined the army.

Except for that, there are no other machines.

Sam started making the hand press, and other things for the production lines. Since, he has the production unit in his divine dimension, making and assembling these machines is faster than ever. Apart from that, he also needed some inscription masters that can make the inscriptions that are needed and the workers to carve out the Space jade.

He found out that Space Jade is actually quite easy to acquire in this nation.

As for the methane and the decaying gas, there is no way he would set a plant here, this early. For now, he has these gas plants in his divine dimension and he would only supply the gas.

Only after making sure that he can trust the other two would be, he set up the methane gas plant and the decaying flame gas plant here.

There is only one place with these gas plants and that is the factory zone of Sam's city.

In this past week, Rana made rounds all over the city, to hire an architect for the construction of the factory. Sam gave the blueprints for this.

In fact, Sam's plans are the core of the whole business, so he has to invest the least amount of money into it. Meanwhile, Yodha and Rana had to invest a lot more than him and they still had to take care of security and the management respectively.

Rana's job of finding an architect would prove to be difficult if it was normal time, but it has become easy when the architect read the letter that Yodha wrote.

Due to Yodha's special identity, his authority and name have the same effect as that of an imperial prince. Even some of the imperial offspring don't have the same level as him. Except for the crown prince, the rest of the princes and princesses doesn't have that much sway than him. Perks of having a powerful father.

After handling the job to the architect, their next step should be recruiting the people for the production workers.

But that can wait. The factory would take at least a month to be built completely.

There is a consummate realm Architect doing the bidding, but that doesn't mean it would be finished that easily.

That evening the noble scions are all arrived at the Arena as discreetly as possible.

They didn't even bring too many guards. Rana is waiting on the stage for them.

After exchanging some greetings, they started the auction. The Casual fighters are all auctioned in groups of five. The ranked fighters are ranked separately.

When it was Sam's turn, the fight is somewhat intense. Everyone wanted him and there is another lock in this, that is Arman and Sam are auctioned off as a duo and they have to buy two of them.

For some reason, they didn't seem to mind and kept on increasing the price as if they don't have anything but money.

From the looks of it, they seemed to have gained the approval of their family members to buy him off, but what they don't know is that the auction is rigged.

Nobody knows that Sam is not just enslaved fighter, rather he is the business partner of the two noble scions. Anyway, since Yodha is also their partner, he would be buying him off without a single penny but just mere words and take him away to the army.

This is planned to put on a show to the rest of the city and even the noble families. No one should know that Sam is a business partner with two Noble Nagas.

It wouldn't be good for any one of them.

After the auction was over, Sam and Arman are taken away by Yodha while the rest of the fighters are also taken away by the other scions. Before leaving, Vasuki made her way to Yodha and asked.

"Yodha, how about you lend this guy to me for a few days? I promise I will send him back intact."

Yodha looked at her and then at Sam. He is not against it, as long as there is no marriage or relationship and impregnation is involved sex is an extremely normal thing for all the Naga race.

Their lust is just taken as a simple emotion like pain and happiness, they would show it like it was nothing.

Yodha looked at Sam if he was interested, he even whispered something in his ear, which made Sam stunned.

Vasuki seemed to have understood what Yodha said and she closed her eyes and started circulating her spiritual energy, she turned into a human woman with a pink flash. Sam was stunned.

What Yodha said, is that she can turn into a human form and there would be no different from having sex with a human.

This is something he didn't expect. He does know that other races have ways to turn themselves into human forms after certain cultivation is reached, but he didn't expect that the Naga race can do it this early.

It is even when they are in the nascent stage.

There is also something else Yodha said in his ears that made his mind go blank. The greatest pleasure of Nagas' sexual intercourse is apparently not when they are in their original forms or humanoid form, rather it is in their human form.

He didn't expect this at all, but that doesn't mean he would accept it, he directly rejected her proposal.

He is not that easy to obtain even if it was just physical.

Yodha shrugged his shoulders at her and the three of them left, Vasuki pouted as if she was a little girl being wronged, Sam shuddered at this display.

After they started walking, he couldn't help but wonder about these Nagas' special shapeshifting abilities.

These people have three forms which they can transform at will. One is their true Naga form that has no legs, they would only have a serpent tail and their stature would be big and bulky, the second form is the humanoid form, which is the form they would spend most of the time.

This wouldn't take too much of their energy and there are many things they can do comfortably in this form, the last one is the human form.

They wouldn't have any scales or any other traces of them being nagas, they could easily be passed off as humans, if not for their unique aura.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 510: To the Army

The only thing good that came out of Vasuki's pursuit is that he now understood the Nagas more and he would have learned it anyway.

Now, that the initial step in their plan is done, they have to move towards the next step. But before that, Yodha, Sam, and Arman, three of them went to the administrative office of the city, where they have required documents for the registered land.

The new land they bought is currently under Yodha's name. Since humans cannot buy this much land in the vicinities of the Imperial capital, this is the only way for them to deal with this.

After taking the documents, Sam observed something else about the Naga race, they are actually quite meticulous in the administrative work and everything is documented, he even learned that there is an Identity card system, but it is more like a crystal token that gives details about you on a holographic projection.

This system is quite advanced.

Sam didn't expect this, he thought that except for the luxuries of the Naga and based on their lust and other factors, he judged them to be living a bit more on the savage side rather than civilized.

After that, the next step is enrolling in the Army.

Since yodha 'bought' him out of the Arena, it is best for them to join the Army. This way, Sam and Arman will have a new identity on them on this planet and they can roam freely when they came back once more. Anyway, Sam has his own business now, it wouldn't be a bad idea to have an identity and residence at this place.

But before going, Yodha still has something to do, so Sam and Arman are staying at the construction site of the new factory.

No one knew that this place is the business involving Rana too because in their eyes Rana has completely disappeared after the auction in the Arena.

Currently, Rana and the subordinates that included the workers, attendants and some fighters in the Arena are all staying at the construction site in the tents.

The first phase of construction is a large compound wall in the land.

The land is very huge for almost five hundred acres, Yodha said he got some deal since the land is outside the city and it was left to waste.

At this moment, Sam is looking at the Transporter. He is looking at the coordinates in it. There is another function in the Coordinate system and that is noticing the coordinates of his current location. He didn't get the time to see this before, so now he is taking a look.

The Realm coordinates and Planet coordinates are all been fixed the only thing that was left are the Coordinates within the planet, so he opened the marking system to see if it is the function at all and he is not disappointed.

When he changed the location and opened the transporter, he can see that there is a change in the coordinates when he activated the marking function.

He could at least move to the required location when he needed to come back.

After everything was done here, Sam used Rana's help to gather the information and knowledge regarding this planet. Since Rana belongs to the Golden Blaze family that has a great influence over the metals and raw materials, he got first-hand information on the mineral resources of this nation.

Apart from that, he got the information regarding the number of states in the nation, the coastal line, and finally the number of nations on the planet and such.

After that, Sam started studying the geography of the nation and the states to see what kind of medicinal herbs, fruits, beasts, and other things he can obtain here.

The only regret Sam has is that he can gain the beasts and herbs and grow them in his divine dimension, but the problem comes when he has to use these beasts on his own planet.

Because some of these beasts cannot survive in an environment without Miasma.

This is somewhat regretful, but there are many beasts that can survive without Miasma but just some poison herbs will do like purple flame horses.

Sam got busy with the details so that he can take advantage of this environment.

Apart from that, he also has to teach the new workers how to do things in the factory. If only he could have brought some of his subordinates things would have been easier.

Rana tried his best to discreetly hire some workers since the technical capabilities required are not that high, it has been easy enough for them to hire them.

After teaching them how to operate the power hammers, the lathe, the grinder, the cutter, and even the Pressing machine that makes the outer shell of the grenade and the assembly, he even recorded the whole process so that they could re-watch again.

After this one week, Sam and Arman left the place along with Yodha to join the Army.

Along with them, there are other ninety-eight new recruits. All of them are humans and most of them don't have any traces of Naga Bloodline in them. So, they are going to be the cannon fodder on the frontline.

They were taken away on a transcendent stage beast, they traveled for two days straight and reached the Army camp.

This is the nearest border to the Imperial capital. Generally, the imperial capital would be in the center of the nation, but this is not like that, the imperial capital is located at the border of the two states of the nation, and this area which is the gray zone has some cities in between the capital and the border.

This is the most active border too as the enemy nation is completely hostile and is trying to take over any moment.

There are at least three significant attacks every year and even the timing wouldn't change. The next attack is going to be in a few days.

That is why they are injecting new blood so that they can have sufficient cannon fodder.

Yodha accompanied them until they reached the camp, but after that, he left the place and handed them over to someone else. Sam and Arman are going to be enrolled into Yodha's battalion along with the rest, but in which company, no one knows.

There are many newcomers coming that day and all of them are grouped up together in an empty ground.

At first, they have to register identities and after that, they will be separated and assigned into different companies and battalions based on their abilities. Of course, that is how it was originally supposed to be, but Sam and Arman are coined into Yodha's battalion even before that.

So, all they did was waiting for the identity registration and taking Id crystal token.

With this Sam and Arman officially had citizenship in this Naga realm. They can roam freely in this one nation at least.

Even though Sam and Arman are Nascent stage cultivators, they are still assigned as soldiers. Simply put, the average foot soldier has the cultivation of great realm in this place, but they cannot just give a higher rank to a cultivator who just joined.

So, there are some special battalions in the Army where the nascent stage soldiers are assigned to and Yodha happened to be the battalion commander of such battalion even though, he is an Initial stage Pre-transcendent cultivator.

After Sam assigned to the battalion, or more precisely to the company that has over one hundred members, including him and the nine other newbies, they were asked to take a rest for the day.

The next day, early in the morning, the company was called for an assembly.

After taking the general attendance, the rest of the company are sent to training, while the ten newbies are left in the assembly ground along with the Company commander.

The company commander is also a Nascent stage cultivator but at the late stage. He too has purple scales but they are extremely faint in color almost close to white.

He looked at the newbies and said.

"The Nascent Battalion-1, which you are now a part of is a special battalion in the entire base. Because this battalion is used to break into the newbies who just joined the army after they reached the Nascent stage.

In this battalion you would receive extensive training as a soldier and the required discipline will be drilled into your heads.

Generally, a Nascent stage cultivator at the middle stage or late stage will be eligible to become a company commander and the Pre-transcendent stage cultivator can become a battalion commander and only a Transcendent stage cultivator can become a Regiment commander that too provided they have all the qualifications and required merits.

Since a normal soldier would have joined when they are a Great realm cultivator, the promotion would not be complicated.

But for the cases like you, it would be a bit difficult.

So, there are a specific set of rules you have to follow if you want to be promoted and if you reach the rank of company commander you will be either appointed as one or will be sent to another normal battalion to take the role.

Here are the rules regarding your stay and the promotions, it is better if you remember them by heart but you have to do it in your break time.

So now, we need to see your abilities, so you will fight against the most recent candidates that came before you to see that. Get ready for the battle."