

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 601: Attacking

At this moment, Sam is looking at the maps that are laid out on the table. He was quite shocked as he looked at one after another. Because each Map and Layout is painted extremely well, that they are almost realistic.

Not just that, they are extremely detailed and mapped in such a way that they can be used for hatching battle plans. Every weak point of the location was given out clearly and it is extremely easy to understand.

The most impressive work of all is the map of the whole Union. Even though it didn't include every single detail and he cannot be sure that it indicates every location there is, but he can bet that there might not be a more detailed map than this in the whole Union.

He observed all of them before asking Chatur.

"Chatur, what is wrong with your squad? Why did they give you away like that? You are an excellent addition to the team. You are even a Naga. I don't think race is the problem."

"Well, according to them my mapping ability no matter how good it is cannot be used in a direct battle. I can scout a location, I can identify the weaknesses of the locations easily and I can think of a thousand ways to destroy the location, but all of that was being buried and I was not given a chance to say that I can be useful this way, because my combat ability is subpar."

Sam was even more surprised.

"Are you saying that you never got a chance to show this ability of yours and get your required respect with that? Trust me Chatur, I would pay a bomb to hire a guy as skilled as you. You might not be good at combat, but your military acumen and mapping ability can make up for that subpar battle skills easily. It is unfair that you never got a chance."

"No, I got a chance fairly, but what is unfair is some guy wanted to try to get his name out there in front of the big dogs and improvised the plan I drew up and that also involved with a route I said highly dangerous in a plan of his own and it backfired.

He threw the blame on me and I cannot defend myself because of my lack of battle skills."

Sam thought for a moment and looked at him with deep thought. He hasn't seen a talent like this in a long while.

Even though Chatur's talents don't include in open wars and such, he is good at pointing weaknesses in layouts and he is a great addition to make fool-proof important constructions at the same time, he is also good for besieging and such.

He is also a great painter artisan.

"How did you scout all these areas? If you are not strong enough, how can you enter the enemy's territory?"

"Who said I have to be strong to enter the enemy territory, all I need to have is the talent to be discreet." He took out a paintbrush and turned himself into his human form. He started painting something on his face and he changed completely.

Even his aura changed.

Then with another wave of his brush, his face changed into Sam's and another wave, even his aura was disguised.

He turned himself back and said.

"This is just the tip of the iceberg. I entered the places deep enough to get the blueprint of one of the sect's bases. But I never got a chance to present myself."

Sam looked at him in the eyes and said. He cannot trust him clearly, because his abilities are too good to be ignored by the castle. That too when they are in such a situation.

"You are my assistant until the task is over. Report to the squad that I am taking you over and even send an application to the commanders. You are not going back anytime soon and that is if you ever go back.

After that, pull whatever strings you have to get me a meeting with the Merchant Union representative of Nagin castle and after that meeting, we are going to the base of the Union sect near our Volcanic Cannon."

Sam went on to look at the layouts regarding this location, while Chatur went to do what he was told.

The layouts are made in such a way that they could plan ahead if they want to do something to that base just by looking at it. There is no need for pre-fight scouting at all.

He marked some points and waited for Chatur to come. After an hour, he came back and said.

"The meeting with the merchant union representative should wait for a while. He is not here. He is off to a meeting with the remaining members from different castles. It is regarding the ongoing mess."

"Then, when can we meet him."

"Tomorrow, if he comes back and the day after tomorrow by the latest. But I have other options if you don't mind."

"What are they?"

"I have some connections with the merchant union members. I can get in touch with some of them. Which planet members are you going to make a deal with?"

Sam thought for a bit and said.

"How about the Merman Planet for the starters? Get in touch with someone who can make a deal of a product worth a few hundred million spirit stones. We can meet them tomorrow. If the deal is set, you can get two percent as a fee."

"I don't need a fee."

"I don't take anything for free Chatur. If you really want to do this, just to be friends, yes sure. You can do that. But that doesn't come into conflict with the business and I would pay for your efforts. And it is not easy to become my friend and it wouldn't depend on the favors you do to me. It would depend on your plain character. So, don't worry.

Now, why don't we make a move and secure the Volcanic Cannon and the nearest base of the Union sect now?

Do you have a flying beast?"

"Yes, I do. "

"Then let's go."

The Volcanic cannon is three hours away on this beast and when they arrived, the guards stationed here from the Nagin Castle are having a hard time.

There are fifty of them and there are signs of battle. Half the group is injured and there are some corpses around them.

The volcanic cannon looked like a volcano but it is too steep and straight and it is an active volcano. From what he heard, it shoots the resources out of it every month and the quota for this month would be in a week. This is the best time for the Union sect to trap this as they would get an immediate benefit right after and even if it was taken away later, that would be worth it.

He landed at the base and the squad leader came running to him and asked.

"Who are you guys?" He is a human and most of the squad members are human too and the rest of the non-human is all half-Naga.

Sam flashed his badge and asked.

"Which squad are you guys?"

"Squad 30."

"Okay now, what happened here?"

"They are chipping us down. Our squad used to have seventy members. But now, there are only fifty members. They are just attacking and retreating on the flying beasts and long-range attacks. They are more people, more resources, more beasts, more strength, and more support.

They are fucking my ass here."

His voice sounded frustrating.

"Why are they not sending the reinforcements?" Sam asked.

Chatur is the one who replied though.

"The political conflicts within. The Union sect is set on getting this no matter what and no commander wants to send his own squad to get them. And they don't want to weaken the remaining resource points and that led to the six special commanders."

Sam looked at the squad leader and said.

"I will need you guys to get ready, in a few hours their base is going to go down. I don't know what you guys do, but find more people to hold it down before their reinforcements come again."

With that Sam and Chatur started walking away.

The squad leader was dumbfounded.

He didn't know what happened, all he knows is some youngster comes here and flashes a special commander badge on his face and then says, the base of the opponents that they are facing for days and lost twenty men.

After some thinking, he just considered this as a cocky man trying to show off.

But what he doesn't know is Sam is walking straight towards a place that could give a proper view of the base.

They walked towards a cliff nearby and entered a cave that was covered with a load of soil and rocks a few feet below the surface.

After climbing into that opening and moving high enough, Sam used his back and legs to stay there and Chatur is right below him.

Not many people pay attention because the crack is tapered inside and from outside of the cliff, it wouldn't look like it could fit a person like that.

"I must say chatur, you could pick some great positions.

I can look at the whole castle from here and this is exactly what I need to finish off this base."

"What can you do from here? It is too small to use archery. It can be used to keep an eye on their movements. Nothing more."

"In normal cases, Yes. But it is me here and all I would need is this place to do what needs to be done. Now, let us finish this thing and have a great meal with whatever local specialties we can get in this area."

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Sam checked the location for a bit and kicked the walls for a bit to make suitable grooves for himself.

"Chatur, are you sure everyone in the base is an enemy?"

"Yes, No one will join the Union sect by force. At this moment, the base is occupied by a special squad of the Union sect. The Dark Sky squad.

Made of Yaksha and their mounts Dark wind Owls. They are good at aerial battles and also airstrikes. The squad is tightknit."

"How many people do you think they have?"

"Around one hundred and twenty. That is only an average squad in the Union sect when we consider the squads by their numbers."

"Now tell me. Does your disguising powers only apply to yourself or can they be used to cover up something else?"

"I can do that."

"Okay, then go down and try to cover up the hole with your tricks and stay inside the hole, if anyone comes near the hole, take these out and press the button on top and throw it at them with all you got.

If you can use disguise techniques on them, make them look like rocks and mix them up with real rocks and throw those things at them. It will work wonders if they landed squarely on their heads."

With that, Sam gave a space jade ring full of grenades and Chatur took them before climbing down.

Sam activated his eye technique and the thermal vision together to see if he can get all the heat signatures. But the thermal signatures of Yaksha are clearly messed up, it is almost like they are as cold as corpses.

He then switched to the energy vision and got a good enough view of them. He counted the visions he got. The castle is not made of special material. But there is a formation inscribed on it.

The defense could be used to defend for quite a while.

Sam took out his sniper and aimed. He first shot a few energy cell bullets at various places of the castle. It is small and he can get a full isometric view of it along with all the stone houses around it. He could miss two to three houses covered from his view by the castle, but the rest is visible clearly.

He shot the nodes of the formation and the formation started fluctuating. But this also alerted the Yaksha in the castle and the stone houses.

The formation only defends the castle building and it comes with the castle itself which was the part of this dimension, to begin with as for the stone houses, are built by themselves and the main feature of this formation is that it can repair itself. Unless the core is destroyed within the castle's foundation it wouldn't be of any use. They can at most destroy it temporarily.

And Sam bought himself around an hour.

Seeing the chaos in the castle and all of them coming out to take their positions to defend themselves, Sam started his harvest.

The first targets are the people running out of the castle compounds. They are the people going out to scout. As for why they are not using their owls, they don't want to catch too much attention if the attack is in order.

Yaksha also has humanoid bodies, except they have a body structure that is a bit different.

They are taller than average humans and shorter than Naga. And they have pale skin. They are one of the most beautiful creatures. But the only difference is that they don't have mage and warrior differences and all of them are Warrior mages.

Unlike the humans and Nagas, their affinity and the usage of their powers will be happening since birth. But their growth rate is quite slow and there is not much advantage apart from the superior experience in their own powers.

The Yaksha will have patterns on their bodies on their collarbone area, the navel and on the back. The colors of the patterns indicate their elemental affinity and the area the pattern occupies when birth indicates their talent.

But the patterns expand all over their bodies with the growth in their cultivation and their strength can be estimated with the density of the patterns.

At this moment, Sam is aiming at the Yaksha who just got out of the castle compound and are vigilantly looking around.

He shot one of them straight in the head and the head exploded because he used an elemental cell bullet.

This will create more fear and the difficulty will increase for them to pinpoint the location because there will be no traces of the bullets and wounds left on the body.

After the first one was down, the remaining became afraid and looked around. Sam shot another person and then the rest of them didn't even bother to stay there, they decided to leave and return to the castle.

But they couldn't, because out of eight members that came out one after another was going down, and the last two finally figured which direction the attack is coming, but they cannot expand their spiritual sense that far and they don't have the balls to go near.

They ran towards a stone house and just before they could enter the house, one of them died right in front of the door. This time, though the remaining person has seen the type of attack that was made.

Someone opened the door due to the explosive sound and when he looked at the body, he didn't let the remaining candidate come in, he called for someone else.

He seemed to be a figure of authority and he looked at the headless corpse and when he heard the account, he immediately wanted them to enter the house. But right before he could command, his head exploded and everyone looked towards the cliff.

They are sure that someone was attacking from that direction.

But they didn't randomly run after it, they entered the stone house and warned everyone to get inside a covered space.

Before the warning could reach another five people died.

Soon the whole castle fell into chaos and everyone went under the cover either into the stone houses or the castle itself to discuss what is happening. Sam activated the energy vision and locked onto one of the stone houses.

Since it is just some high-quality stone, he doesn't have to worry too much.

He checked the positions of the targets and shot at the door of the house and a hole appeared and the second shot went through him and hit another guy in the heart and created a large hole in his body.

He moved a bit forward within the crack and he has barely enough gap to hold the rifle in the place as he continued shooting.

After another ten kills, the energy cell bullets are not exactly useful for the remaining stone houses, from his position they will explode before they reached the remaining stone houses, if he wants to attack with them, he could only go straight to the castle.

But he doesn't want to yet. And one of the reasons is, he didn't want to damage the castle too much so that the commanders will nitpick at him.

He changed the bullets and started using the penetration bullets and windows he could possibly get under his aim and shot ten more people. Now, everyone became vigilant and hid behind the stone walls. They didn't even dare to look past the windows and doors.

At the same time, currently from the blind spot in which Sam couldn't shoot behind the castle a team of thirty people left the place and started taking another route to reach the cliff from the rear.

Exactly towards the cave entrance Sam and Chatur took.

Chatur who hid under his painting illusion could see them coming and couldn't help but feel tense.

He is really not good at battle. He can be calm when he escaped in front of a stronger enemy, but now that he was tasked to take on them, he was extremely frightened. He held a grenade in his hand and a paintbrush in another.

He painted it like a rock and placed it among a pile of rocks he collected, not all of them are rocks though, he looked at them and started throwing the rocks with all he got, even when they were not that close.

When the incoming Yaksha looked at the incoming rocks, they smiled and sent some long-range attacks to destroy the rocks and some of them even let them be as they are confident they wouldn't hit and they realized what kind of mistake they did.

They are pin grenades and when they exploded right under their footsteps and in the middle of the groups, they are extremely horrified because five of them are riddled with the pins and more than ten of them are wounded.

When Chatur saw this from afar, even though he couldn't see how much damage they took, he got some confidence.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 603: Capturing the Castle

Sam kept on shooting at the stone houses. The range of the energy cell bullets might be over and no one was left within except for the castle, and the people might have been hiding behind the thick stone walls, but that doesn't mean much to him.

He started shooting the walls with the penetration bullets.

After three continuous shots at a single spot, the fourth bullet entered the hole and shot someone in the heart.

He didn't stop. With the energy vision, he can shoot the four shots instantly particularly, when his sniper doesn't even have any reloading time required.

As he was harvesting lives as if they are ripe mangoes in the grove, the captain on the squad and some leaders inside the castle are having a hard time. They are waiting for the news from the thirty members that went to the cliff from the blindspot.

And the news they waited for came back. Ten people came running after they had enough of the grenades and reported about the rocks that sent them back.

This made the captain frown and when he started thinking about the situation and asked.

"The projectiles coming at us, at first they exploded and easily destroyed anything including the walls and the people, but now they are not using such attacks. Why do you guys think?"

"Maybe they are out of them?" One of his subordinates replied. The rest also agreed.

"Are you sure about that? If he is not out of them, we would be in trouble."

"But we couldn't think of any other reason. Except for if he is baiting us."

After discussing any possible scenarios, the teams started moving, they took advantage of the blind spot, they started moving out and took out the owls from their beast pouch. By this time, there are almost fifty deaths and only seventy people left.

Half of them led by the vice-captain of the squad are going to move towards the rear of the cliff on the owls and the remaining members will follow the captain from the front.

It is almost dusk and the sun is setting which means, the owls that have both dark elements and the wind element will have the time of their lives.

They also came out of the blind spot and moved outward in a different direction to test the range of Sam's attacks.

Sam didn't shoot them at all; even if one of them is within the range, he didn't do so.

Instead, he yelled for Chatur.

"Leave the cliff area and escape to another hiding location. Be discreet and be fast. But stay within the range of a few hundred meters from the Palace and keep this communication token on you. When I call you, come to the Palace discreetly and move as fast as you can."

After Chatur ran away, Sam looked at the captain and his followers coming towards the cliff slowly. He could also guess the remaining people coming from the rear. He only has a shot amount of time left for him to go on a final killing spree with the sniper. b

Because, once the captain or other elites got a hold of the speed and the precision of the sniper and since they already know the direction, they can dodge. Even if it is at a cost of their lives, he would lose the sniper's advantage. Along with that, there is no much range he can cover in peripheral directions because they are coming from a different direction instead of the castle direction because the crack is small.

So, he waited until they arrived a little nearer and started shooting continuously.

He didn't shoot the beasts, he only shot the riders on them and he shot as fast as he can. He got seven kills and for the eighth one, the captain got the hang of it and blocked it with a wind blade.

Sam shot two more times, one for a beast and another for a man, and one of them is dodged and another one was blocked.

They are still away from the energy cell bullet range, if he waits for them, the people from the rear will catch up.

Sam looked around. The troops from the front are waiting for the troops for the rear to make the first move.

He took out things and started sticking them onto the walls of the crack he was standing in.

These are the same bombs he used in the process of wrecking the Naval fleet of the Adrian Empire.

He slowly climbed down as he stuck the bombs to both the walls.

When he saw the rear troops in his sight. He placed a Naga shadow in that place and climbed down.

From both sides, the troops are moving slowly and are afraid that Sam would attack suddenly. But when they saw no movement after so much time, they felt like something is wrong and started throwing long-range attacks towards the cliff.

When they saw no reaction, they finally relaxed a bit and moved faster towards the cliff and when they saw a shadow from afar, they frowned, both troops sent five people from each side to check and when they are in range, the shadow did the task that it was supposed to do.

It pressed a button on one of the grenades and...

BOOM* BOOM *BOOM

A series of explosions occurred in a single area and the ten men along with the ten owls are all dead.

Taking this explosion as a distraction, Sam came out of the cliff entrance and moved along the shadows as he used the shadow transfer technique.

When the smoke and dust cleared, there is a large hole in the cliff with the stones thrown all the way around.

The two groups moved towards it and saw the large that also expanded all the way downwards. One of them jumped off from his owls and climbed down as they investigated.

Meanwhile, Sam used this chance to escape. But he didn't go away, instead, he went to the castle that was abandoned at the moment.

There are few people around inside the castle and Sam finished them off quickly.

He took out the communication device and tried to get in contact with Chatur. He hid inside the Palace as he waited for Chatur to come and before he wanted to contact for the second time, Chatur was already in front of him.

"Collect every beast pouch off of their bodies. Since they are dead, the beasts would have suffered a blow, but after they recover, they will try their best to recover. Recover all of them, but don't get noticed by the troops.

They might come at any moment, so I will be taking a look around the castle and find a suitable spot for taking them down.

At the same time, Sam let Yanwu and Sky out. They are inside the hall of the Castle and since this world has no miasma he is not alone anymore.

He can use his own beasts to gain an advantage.

He went to the best sniping spot and waited for the troops to return as Chatur collected the beast pouches and came to him within half-an-hour.

He threw them all inside the divine dimension to deal with them later.

The owls are from Yaksha's home planet called Fysi. They are not like the dumb fire owls he met in the Volcanic region. They are actually quite smart in terms of intelligence and they are of moderate size and have great attack power. Particularly attacking the ground when flying.

As Sam waited, the troops are coming back to the Palace. Half of them are moving towards the Castle, while the other half split up and moved in different directions.

Chatur is inside the castle checking the conference rooms and such to gather the information he needed as there are many scrolls left there in the middle due to the sudden attack.

As the troops neared the castle, Yanwu and Sky roared with all their might as they released their aura.

The surroundings are all covered by their aura and the owls that are bringing the troops back are all frightened and started moving down.

They don't dare to fly when two predators are roaring in such a commanding fashion. Their instinct is not to let them stay in the air.

The riders are trying their best to control the owls, the speed they are descending will make them crash into the ground. Sam and his two beast companions now went on to take advantage of this opportunity.

Sam unleashed another killing spree as he started shooting at every Yaksha he could get his scope on while Yanwu and Sky exited the castle and took flight as they attacked their own.

The whole situation turned into mayhem all of a sudden.

Only half of the Yaksha managed to come back to their senses and jumped off to reduce the damage, but they couldn't get away that easily though.

Sam shot everyone as fast as he could. Soon, only three people remained there and those three are able to dodge the bullets.

But Sam didn't worry though, because the owls that landed on the ground and now lost their contracts all turned their heads towards these three in a hostile fashion. Because the two predatory beasts are ordering them to do so.

Sam didn't even bother to shoot anymore, because his two companions and their new lackeys all tore those three apart.

He called them back and caught the beasts in the divine dimension, before calling for Chatur and five new Yaksha shadows and let them clean up the battle-field.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Sam waited for the remaining troops to come, but this time his plan didn't go through as he wanted it to be, because the remaining half of them came once and another half came a bit later than them.

If the second half were any sooner or any later, then it would have been great, but they came right when he was dealing with the first half which led to a chaotic mess of some of them escaping.

Sam wanted to chase them, but seeing that they split up in different directions, all he can do is shoot four out of six of them while the remaining two escaped into two completely different directions.

He didn't follow any of them. Since one of them would definitely escape, he might as well let them get both of them away.

He looked at chatur who got the remaining beast pouches and spatial rings and asked.

"Do you think the squad at the Volcanic cannon called for the base?"

"Absolutely not."

"Then, you call them and make them call the base. I am pretty sure you guys have a method of communication. I am not going to waste my time holding down this place like this on my own. I have many things to do."

"What if I call the squad in that place to come and hold this down?"

"And the Union sect will soon move out and take the Volcanic Cannon and the six commanders will start uprooting the authority of the special commanders starting with me.

I don't want to play stupid politics with these guys. After contacting them, just go and do your own thing with this base and get a new blueprint. I would like to see how good you are. Your talent is quite unique. You have a combination of skills in art, construction, and architecture along with scouting, battle strategy and defensive fortification, infiltration.

Combine all of that and show me what you got. Show me some design that shows all your expertise in one place, if you impress me, not only will I hire you for something great, you will also get twenty million spirit stones.

But before that, don't forget to set a meeting with the person from the Merman planet tomorrow. It is late and I would like to take a rest. Call me if anyone comes here before the troops from our base."

Chatur went on to do the tasks and a little after midnight, the soldiers from the base came. There are a hundred of them and Sam finally felt relieved as he didn't even bother to deal with the squad captain and left with his new assistant.

This time they soared on Sky. He is faster after all.

"So, when is the meeting?"

"If you want to, we can go there directly."

"Just show the way then."

As Chatur led them, they traveled for two hours which should have been four hours in any other beast of the same level and arrived at another castle.

There are a lot of merman and fishmen walking in and out of the castle and just every other castle, there are stone houses around it. This one is a lot smaller than both the castles Sam has been to.

But the specialty of this one is, the front yard of the castle is full of stalls with all the races.

There are many types of beasts and herbs that could be found in this dimension and many people will want to sell them and apart from that, they will also sell their own local specialties of their planet.

This place is a market for people of all races.

Sam and Chatur walked into the castle compound and the latter called someone and some came as they escorted them inside.

In an office room within the castle, A beautiful woman is sitting behind a table.

She has white skin with a light pink complexion and emerald eyes and hair that matched their color. She has a voluptuous body and a tall build with long legs that can be seen under the table.

She is wearing something similar to the tank top and a long slit skirt below from which one could get a glimpse of those long and beautiful legs.

The only difference between her and a normal human is that her elbows have fins with some pink marks on her neck that are her gills. Even though, they have closed at the moment and not pleasant things to look at individually, within her beautiful body they just enhanced her beauty.

She looked at Chatur and Sam and stood up as she stopped writing whatever she has on hand and greeted them warmly.

"Hello Chatur, this must be the person who told me about it. The Special commander of the Nagin castle. Sam. Nice to meet you." She shook his hand without standing up from her chair. And gestured them to take a seat.

Sam took a seat and said.

"I am sorry to say this. But I don't know much about you. May I know your name?" She looked at Chatur with a piercing expression and said.

"Its Sandra." Her voice was melodious as if it was nice music. But that didn't impress Sam, rather he felt wary. He knew little about the Merman race. Because all he learned is about Nagas as they are present in every planet of the Naga Loka and that includes the Merman Planet and they have a population that easily matches if not surpass the Merman's themselves. But what he knew is that there is something wrong with her voice. He remembered some myths of mermaids in his previous life and hoped that it is not true.

"Nice to meet you too. I only came yesterday, so I didn't have enough to learn much about you. I hope you forgive me." Sam maintained his polite tone.

"There is nothing to forgive. But chatur said that you have a business to discuss and it is a big one. What do you want to buy exactly?"

"I want to buy something from your home planet. But I don't know if you would be able to sell it."

"There are very few things I cannot sell from my planet, Mr. Sam. You can tell me what you want. You can trust in my capability."

"Then I would like to get the Rainbow Kelp."

Sandra was stunned for a second before saying. "Did I hear you wrong Mr. Sam? Did you say, Rainbow Kelp?"

Only Chatur doesn't know what is wrong with these two words.

"Yes, I said Rainbow Kelp. Don't tell me, that is one of the things you couldn't sell from your planet."

Sandra became a bit angry and said in a low voice.

"I doubt that you could afford it Mr. Sam."

"Money is not an issue."

"You do know that the value of that thing will go beyond money right?"

"Yes, of course. Then, what do you want?"

"What is willing to pay? Since you know what it is, you must have something in your mind. If the price is right, I can think about it. After all, there are only five units of this and they only grow every five years. So, please don't try to bluff me into this."

"If you ask me, I would mostly say money. Around two hundred million spirit stones. I don't have a problem if you want to renegotiate the price. As for anything else, you have to tell me what you want."

"Two hundred million? In spirit stones? You can pay such a large amount directly?"

"Of course. I can. Will you take it?"

"No. even though, the value is about the same, the Kelp gives a person to gain a chance to Breakthrough the levels in the transcendent stage. Even if that person is on the death bed, he can still breakthrough, as long as he is of water element.

So, it is beyond money."

When Sam heard this and looked at her expressions, his instinct told him something and he asked.

"It seems like you already have something on your mind. What is it that you want?" He asked as he looked straight into her eyes.

She took a deep breath and said. "I heard that you have deals with Yodha and are quite good with making new weapons. I want a new weapon design."

"Miss Sandra. You must be mistaken, my weapon designs are far more valuable than two hundred million. You are asking for a completely unequal trade."

"We will pay you the difference back."

"It is not about the difference. If you knew that I do weapon business, you must also know that I don't give the design away completely. I don't sell the design that easily."

"I am pretty sure, we can find a way to make a deal." She said with a brilliant smile and the bell-like voice once again made some waves in his consciousness. He frowned and looked at her coldly. The atmosphere in the room changed and his spiritual sense turned sharp and rebuffed whatever that is that came into mind.

Sandra jerked a little in her seat and started sweating.

She looked at Sam with a smile and the confidence that was before in her eyes was gone.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 605: Discussing Business

Sandra looked at Sam with keen eyes. The clash of mental attacks just now is something only she and Sam knew, Chatur could only see that something went wrong, but he couldn't understand what is going on.

She took a deep breath and said.

"Okay then. I need a weapon for a specific purpose. To hold something in place and create damage at the same time. I don't want the victim to be dead immediately and it would be better if they wouldn't die at all.

Can you make one like that?"

"What kind of creature are we talking about, humanoid? Fish? Naga? A four-legged beast? It depends and what kind of restriction do you want? In what kind of terrain they should be restricted? How much of a restriction do you want? Unconscious? Devoid of motion? Slow down? How big the creature would be?

I need more detail, Miss Sandra. I need you to be more specific."

Sandra was stunned for a second. After all, Sam is just denying everything as long as he has to part with the design completely, but now he is asking for specifications. Seeing her confusion, he smiled and said.

"It is not that I am agreeing to give you the design. I am a businessman. I am not against talking terms. So, since you want to talk about the specifications, we will see what you want, and then I will decide whether I will sell you a design."

She then started explaining what kind of specifications she wanted and Sam took a mental note of that as he imagined what kind of machine he should make for that.

The main problem is that the weapon should work underwater and they are most needed to catch some water-type beasts.

Merman planet is mostly comprised of water and there is only around fifteen percent of land and the rest of it is the ocean.

Even the Naga that stays there is mostly a sub-race of normal Nagas the Water Serpent Nagas. They can survive in water. But they are still Nagas and their appearance and the final form of their bodies doesn't look much different from the normal Nagas in the Nagin Planet, except that their skin and flesh are a bit different and Nagas never discriminated against them.

Most of the Nagas and the Mermen on that planet stay in underwater cities. As for the land, it is mostly occupied by the normal beasts and some Normal Nagas that are present there and some land is used by the Water Serpent Nagas and the Mermen as their bases to get the resources from the land.

But still, the ocean is ten times more dangerous than land. And both the Nagas and the Mermen are not the true species that is on top of the food chain.

The sea creatures are. There are many species that outnumber these two races and outdo them in strength.

As for fishermen, they are an even lesser race than humans in the eyes of Nagas and the mermen have a little better opinion of the fishmen than the Nagas.

All these three humanoid races lose a lot of people every year and due to their production rate being higher than even humans, they are still able to survive.

Now Sandra is asking for a weapon that could help them survive against a shark species and other species of similar size and strength.

He has some ideas and said.

"It is not that difficult. And I can sell the design. What can you offer me for that? Because a rainbow Kelp cannot be sufficient for that design."

Sam decided to sell that because the design will only be properly effective in the water. Even though he can make a variant that could work on the land with very small adjustments, he is not against selling the design.

If it is the design of the puppets or grenades, then that would have thought otherwise. They are his opening business offers, when he wants to enter the market in a new place. But he is not that interested in the Merman Planet. As long as he could get a source to get their natural resources, he can part with a design that was born due to their custom ideas.

"How are you so sure that a rainbow Kelp is not sufficient?" She asked.

Sam thought for a bit and said.

"I will have a prototype along with the weapon with me in a few days and I will show you a demonstration, in fact, I can even demonstrate on your own planet if you want me to. Then we will decide how much it is truly worth.

How about that?"

"Sounds great to me." She shook his hands once again and both of them had smiles on their faces, there is not a trace of their clash that happened a few minutes ago.

They came out and used Sky and started their journey back to the Nagin castle.

"Where can we get some beasts, that are good to eat? Like rabbits, pigeons like that? Do you know any place like that?"

"There is a small forest over there and there is all kinds of small creatures there. There is a herd of deer, but they are fast and dangerous. Not many people would venture there to catch them. If you get caught you will die.

But I heard they taste extremely good."

"Show me the way. It has been a while since I had a venison steak."

When they arrived at the place, Sam noticed the beasts, they are called Gale deer. They are extremely fast and only moved in a herd. But they are not as fast as Sky.

With a mere thought, Sky dove down like a flash and made Chatur let out a shrill cry. Sky dove down and caught a deer and rose high. It is all in one swift move and the deer couldn't even react. Sam is glad that he at least has his beast companions by his side and he can use them now.

They went back to the Nagin Palace and when they are inside the stone house, Sam felt like the place is not big enough.

"Is there an open place nearby? Without any trees and a big enough clearing."

Chatur nodded and led him there. Everyone in the castle is looking at them in surprise. They didn't expect someone would catch a Gale deer and when they heard that he is the new special commander, they are even more surprised.

The news about his base capture along with the assistance of only one person is something that turned their surprise into shock.

Since yesterday the six commanders are trying to get in touch with him. The remaining five commanders are still trying to get familiar with the situation. But he already took a base from the Union sect.

The six commanders were threatened by Sam's actions, so they wanted to put him down a little with some of their authority. But he is nowhere to be seen since the squad arrived to take over the union sect's base he took down.

At this moment, Sam is looking at the land he was on with satisfaction. He gave a tent and tools and asked Chatur to make one as he took out a grill and fired it up with charcoal. He made the charcoal himself before for situations like this.

While he skinned the beast. The beast is large and it is larger than a normal elephant. But at this moment, Sky grew extremely large and even this large deer is barely half its size.

He skinned the deer and kept the pelt before cutting down three large steaks and butchering the rest into large pieces.

He took out some herbs he would use as spices and started grilling the meat. After he was done, he kept the steaks and left the rest with Sky as he sent him and the meat into the divine dimension, so that the rest of the beasts could enjoy it.

Sam laid a table and asked Chatur to join him. He himself had two steaks and gave one to Chatur. But it is an extremely large one and he even doubted that the other party will finish it and said.

"Don't think about saving it up or something just because it is valuable and good to eat. My cooking is not something you could get often and mind you, I even clashed with the Imperial family because they wasted my food."

Sam said jokingly and took out some wine as he started enjoying the juicy red meat.

But his peace didn't stay long as one of the six commanders, the one that belonged to Mov empire is running towards him along with his subordinates.

"Sam, why did you not report when you took down a base like that? The Union sect will retaliate harder and they will become more offensive."

Sam didn't like this interruption as he said.

"Are you in a war or playing house? Do you want the enemy to walk all over you? If you really want to win the war, just leave me alone and try to put more work into the defense and attacks. A base like that is chipping the forces of the Volcanic Cannon and you are doing nothing, only letting a squad of fifty defend it.

What do you think will happen in the next few days? In six days, the monthly quota will be shot out and they will definitely take that place before that.

And why do I even have to report this? My designation is the same as yours. Now, don't disturb me when I am having the meal. This is the first and last time I am saying this."

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 606: Lake and Pearl

Sam finished his meal after brushing off the commander. He really missed his friends now. Ever since he came to this Naga Loka, he missed those three as he couldn't rely on anyone when needed. If they are here, he is sure that four of them are enough to hold down that castle.

After eating, Sam said to Chatur.

"Let us go back to the Volcanic Cannon. I am taking the next thing that is coming out of that cannon. We are going to camp there and give me the layout of the nearest resource point or the base that is taken over by the Union sect. We are taking it back.

Call for two of the idlest squads that want to shine but have no opportunity to do so when I ask you to. I need them to hold down the next point I takedown. Along with that, find another thirty individual members. Use my authority to tell them to be on standby. They should move with those two squads."

Chatur nodded and did as he was told.

He is fast and efficient and the more he showed these qualities, the more Sam thought that it is a bit suspicious that he was being suppressed like this. It is hard to leave a talented guy like that to rot away. From what he saw, the Mov empire values their talents too much as he himself is the prime example.

He only has two thoughts regarding this. The first one is that Chatur has to be lying and is spying on him and the second one is Chatur is being really suppressed but not for the reason he was told.

But Sam didn't think much. As long as he didn't sense any threat, he was fine. He might be leaving all the orders to Chatur, but he is in his own precautions.

After chatur finished his tasks, they once again made their move and went back to the Volcanic cannon. Sam checked up on the squad and after confirming that there are no more attacks, for the time being, both of them moved in another direction from there.

They traveled for an hour and reached a Lake.

This is the resource point. Even though there is a Volcano nearby, a normal lake existed here. That is the nature of the Union dimension.

Sam and Chatur got down from the Sky and walked through the woods as they neared the lake.

The lake was surrounded by a vast expanse of trees and many soldiers are waiting there.

When Sam got an estimate, he couldn't help but feel surprised and asked.

"Just how many members are there in the Union sect?"

"Thousands. The rough estimate is three to four thousand."

"Then how many are there in the Nagin Castle?"

"Around thousand five hundred."

"That's it? We are outnumbered and outdone in unity and strength. This is tough."

Sam looked at the lake from afar. The lake is a weekly resource point, one of the five that sect took over.

There are fishermen all over along with a bunch of humans. They covered the whole area with a hundred people. The majority being the fishermen and the rest of the humans.

He took out the rifle and started his harvest once again. In this forest, it is too easy for him to deal with them. He didn't even have to bother about his spot being caught. It is not like he was stuck in a cliff crack.

He can move around and with his Harbinger he is unstoppable. He can finish this off pretty easily. At least, half of them will be done. Unless there is a super-elite on par with the Players, he wouldn't have much problem.

He shot every person down one by one as he moved through the forest around the lake. But he is not lucky to clean it up. Because out of the last twenty people ten of them are great at blocking the bullets. They couldn't escape them completely, but he really wished that he had an assault rifle instead of the sniper.

These guys are a pain in the ass and they are working together. As for the remaining ten, they are great at escaping.

But this time, he didn't want them to go away. He let out the ape, Raiju, Yanwu, Sky and he let some of the owls go after them along. The ten people that are capable of defending the bullets are staying at the lake and out of ten, three of them are fishermen and the seven are humans. He was completely surprised by this.

He didn't think that he would get some friction here.

He stored the sniper away and took the handguns and directly went to confront them. He must say, he is enjoying the shooting. It really is addicting to shoot. As for the hundreds of bodies, he is taking down, he didn't care much. Since it is war, then they are deaths.

He jumped right into the middle of the ten and started shooting once again. All he did is try to dodge and shoot. He is not even using any other attacks. Even though his energy is draining just like a normal attack with every bullet, the damage is far greater and he is confident that he can deal with them fast enough.

By the end of the fight, Sam is panting and the Lake dyed red.

Chatur, who is hiding in the woods as he looked at him was gulping down nervously. Meanwhile, the beasts came back with the ten bodies of the people that escaped.

Sam told Chatur to collect the spatial rings while he checked the lake out.

He took out the bodies and looked at the lake that is looked like diluted blood.

He noticed that the blood is being absorbed from a point on the lake bed.

"What kind of resource point is this?"

"A weekly resource point. The pearl lake."

There is an oyster at the bottom of the lake and it absorbs the energy from the lake as it creates a pearl. The pearl is not an ornament though. It is a pill.

It is mostly beneficial for water element users and the spiritual energy it absorbed all over the week will be absorbed by the body one hundred percent.

The amount is not high though. But this is the first time, we are seeing it absorbing the blood. After all, no killed anyone inside the lake." Chatur appeared as he finished his task and said.

"When is the next pearl coming out?"

"From the looks of it, maybe tomorrow."

Sam nodded and replied.

"Call the squads and the extra members I asked for and station them at the Volcanic Cannon for now. We will stay at the lake for the time being. Build the tent nearby."

Chatur went on to finish the task and Sam started observing the lake. He activated his eye technique to the limit and is looking at the energy flow within the lake.

The oyster is indeed absorbing the energy of the water and the water is receiving the energy from surroundings.

It is mostly filled with the water elemental energy due to the lake water and the rest is the neutral energy.

Chatur finish setting up the tents and Sam let out Ape to stay guard at the entrance and went inside before entering the divine dimension. He has to finish the promised design and the prototype so that he could get the Rainbow kelp. That is the second herb on the list.

He spent his time inside the tower to deal with the new design. This is actually not much complicated. Just the restraining part is a bit complicated. And according to Sandra, he can make animals bleed and it would be better if the beast weakened as much as possible.

So, Sam decided to make a suitable design according to that and started working in it. The night passed outside and he only came out the next morning.

He went to see chatur who is working in his tent on a table with a large scroll as he painted.

"Did you send the news that we took the lake and I am taking the gains of the lake for the next few weeks?"

Sam asked casually.

"Yes and I already got a reply. The six commanders don't seem too happy. They are saying that you are breaking the war strategy with your reckless actions and they want you to go back."

"What if I don't go back?"

"Well, there is nothing they can do. All they said is that they will make the commander for Mov to complain to the emperor."

"Then, it is okay. Let him complain to the emperor, at least he would get some sense drilled into his head."

"Any other news?"

"The troops from the Union sect arrived at the Volcanic cannon and are stationed nearby. There are two hundred of them in total. They didn't seem to have gotten the news about the lake or they seemed to have left it for later.

But they didn't attack the castle or the Cannon as they seemed to have been waiting for further orders due to the new arrival of the two squads."

Sam heard all the news and went to the lake as the time for the pearl to arrive has come.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 607: Another Resource Point

Sam already went through the spatial rings of the people here and he already has seen few pearls that came from the lake.

The weekly resource points don't seem to interest the Union sect by much, because the subordinates here have six pearls, which means from the past six weeks he didn't give away this share and it has only been six weeks since they captured this place.

Sam looked at the lake as the oyster shined and opened. He dove and took the pearl before coming out. The oyster closed and the lake was back to normal.

He looked at the pearl carefully and noticed that there is a faint red hue around the quail egg-sized watery-blue pearl.

He used his observation skill and noticed that it is full of water elemental energy, but there is faint energy that resembled the energy from blood-essence.

He became curious and placed the pearl he got from the spatial rings. Both of them are almost the same except for the red hue, which he accounted for the blood that was absorbed.

He became curious and threw both of them into the divine dimension as he closed his eyes and observed Mia who is taking the two pearls in.

She first ate the normal pearl and the reaction is that she got a bit of spiritual energy and most of it is water elemental energy. When she took the second one, she could feel minute improvement in the blood and body as she was eating some nourishing food. But the effect is so faint that it didn't matter whether the change happened or not.

Sam started using the eye technique and the observation ability at the same time as he could see the energy slowly gathering inside, the oyster. It is mostly observing the lake's energy for now and it is slow.

He squatted down and placed his hand inside the lake. Every living creature will emit some energy out and Sam also does. That energy was also being absorbed and the energy absorption from the water reduced a bit while the energy out of his hand is being absorbed at a more normal pace.

He took out a glass container to see what the water and tried to examine it as much as possible. Then only he noticed that even though it is water, it not normal water.

Normal water would have some vitality present. Even if it was not as apparent as the trees and light, there would be some vitality present in water, but in this lake there is none.

The water almost seemed to be dead, even the spiritual energy that was being absorbed by the oyster is not coming from the lake, rather the water is absorbing the spiritual energy from the surroundings, and due to the nature of this weird water and the spiritual energy that it absorbed not being directly consumable, it turned into water elemental energy by the time it reached the oyster, at least that is what he can figure out from the observation in the energy flow and changes of the energy.

He took out a spirit stone and threw it in the lake as he kept on observing.

The lake water stopped absorbing the surrounding spiritual energy and completely focused on the spiritual stone.

They started channeling the energy to the oyster and when observed, he didn't notice any change in the nature of energy. It is still neutral spiritual energy unlike before.

He felt weird because, the energy absorbed from the ground and plants and surrounding environment is being converted into faint water elemental energy, but the spirit stone's energy was not being converted.

He felt like this is something worth observing as he threw a lot of spirit stones in the lake. There are more than a hundred thousand, but still, there is no increase in the water level. It is just like normal.

He left the lake alone for the time being and went back to Chatur who wrapped his work up.

"So, what are we doing now?" Chatur asked.

"What is the location of the next resource point?"

"It is far from here. We would have to cross the army and travel for four hours on Sky to go to the next resource point. From there, the remaining three would be near enough. But from what I heard, the situation is not as easy. After these two attacks, they tightened the defense in other resource points.

I don't why they are not aggressive in attack though. After all, a base and the resource point are big enough provocation."

"They are being wary."

"Of what?"

"The troops of the sect are well trained and tightknit. They are well-versed in battle. That is the reason no one attacks them lightly. But two of those squads are gone, disappeared right from their troops in two days.

They are wary and want to see exactly what they are dealing with."

Chatur had a look of realization on their face and he thought of something.

"What are the weapons you used to attack them?"

Sam smiled and replied.

"They are called guns, the smaller ones are handguns and the large one is a sniper rifle. Why?"

"They are powerful." He said in a low voice.

"Of course, they are. They are made such a way to reduce my effort during these kinds of situations."

"These kinds?"

"Yes, I often find myself in a spot where I have to kill a lot of people. It would be exhausting to fight them head-on. With these things, I can use almost the same amount of energy but is not as exhausting and dangerous. But there will always be exceptions, just like the ten people yesterday."

"Oh." Chatur wanted to say something but hesitated and stayed silent.

"How far is the next resource point from Sandra's place?"

"There is a direct way connecting two places, it wouldn't take much time."

"Then let us go. Since, the next pearl will come after a week, even if it is left alone, we don't have to worry about anything. But still call for a squad and ask them to guard here. Tell them to not touch anything in the lake, otherwise, I will break their legs."

Chatur nodded and went on to do his tasks. Sam doesn't know how he was able to contact the castle from every place. But he didn't care for now, as long as the task is done.

A squad from the Volcanic cannon came to this lake for now meanwhile, the squad they called for from the castle will follow the Volcanic cannon.

There are no signs of attack from the enemy troops at this moment, so they didn't worry. Sam and Chatur went on their journey to the next resource point.

Sam decided to clear the next one and stay there for the night and go to Sandra's place and finish the demonstration.

At the same time, this will also send the message to the Union sect. They will know that increasing their defense will not be changing anything and they are still as vulnerable and then the elites will finally come out.

Even though, Chatur said they are elite squads, from what he could see, they are barely foot soldiers. They are elite, but only compared to the squads of the Nagin and other castles, but within the sect, they are a little more than normal foot soldiers. He is pretty sure there is not much of a difference.

The next resource point is a bamboo forest. Inside the forest, there is a single bamboo that grows individually and gives out special water within their sections.

Water is useful for cleansing the toxins and improving body conditions. It was said that it can be used to enhance medicines and potions by using a small amount.

Every week a new individual bamboo will start growing from the bamboo shoots of the previous bamboo. But only shoot among all of them will grow and become a bamboo tree and only one section of the tree will be giving this water.

Around a liter of water will be given every week.

Sam is looking forward to having a taste of this water. From what Chatur said, it will two days for the next harvest and it is a great time.

They arrived at the place by afternoon and there are two hundred members here. Sam was really impressed by the fortification. All the soldiers are in a formation and they have beast companions. He didn't expect that he would meet so many cultivators that use beasts.

Fifty of the two hundred have beasts and they are felines. Tigers, lions, and Panthers. All kinds of feline beasts are present. He almost drooled over them when he saw them. He didn't expect that he would get such a great harvest this time. He got around a hundred Dark wind owls and now these good felines, he is looking forward to what this place is going to offer.

Sam sprang into action and by night, he was done. Some felines are dead, but he managed to capture most of them. After checking his loot, he once again made a tent and waited there for the squads from the Nagin castle to arrive.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 608: Sagar

Sam got three liters of water that was inside the spatial rings of his victims. After calling for another two squads, he stayed there for the time being to see if there is any abnormality in the bamboo forest like the lake.

But there is nothing like that. He spent the night inside the divine dimension once again finishing the design for Sandra.

After the squads arrived and once again telling Chatur to ignore the messages from the six commanders and other special commanders who are also pissed by Sam's actions as he is stealing their limelight, they once again started their journey.

He didn't really care about the commanders, they will talk and talk about all the glory and credits and all the honor they will get. But all he cares about is finishing the task and deal with the task and go back to his home planet.

He has to bring his friends out of that place and show them the world. It is boring for him in the Naga Loka, they could have clearly made it a lot easier and a lot more entertaining.

After another two hours, he finally arrived back at Sandra's castle. They once again visited her and then all three of them set out on Sky.

"What kind of bird is it? It is so fast." Sandra asked as she felt the shining feathers on Sky.

But Sam didn't reply, he could feel that Sky is so proud of his mental connection and instead started speaking to him so that he wouldn't get cocky.

At this moment, they are going to the Origin Castle, the castle that has portals to different planets.

Sandra led them to the room that has the portal that leads to the Merman Planet, but before they entered she said.

"The entrance is an underwater cave. Even though there is an air gap inside the cave and you can stay there, we have some preparations made just for you. But you would have to wait here for some time, I will go in and come back after making sure everything is ready."

"You don't have to worry about that," Sam replied and took out two breathing devices and gave one of them to Chatur before saying.

"Turn to your human form. It would be hard for you to wear this in this form. And don't try to talk, it is mostly useless."

Chatur nodded and turned himself. When Sam saw his human form, he was stunned. Because he looked like a dorky nerd that everyone wants to push around in the classroom.

He didn't expect someone like this would even come to the Union dimension. He didn't think much and started wearing the device.

This is a newly modified device. He made the modifications in the divine dimension the previous time after the second resource point was captured. He made sure so that he can communicate underwater. He just removed the small pipe that connects his mouth to another space jade that collects his exhaled air and created a small cavity.

This has a one-way outlet that would let the air out. And as for talking with this, a normal voice wouldn't be loud enough to transmit his words in the deep sea. But with his spiritual energy and his elemental affinity with the water can make him reach the message.

Sandra is looking at them with confusion, even chatur doesn't know what this is, but he still wore it and all three of them entered that door and reappeared in an underwater cave.

There really is an air gap in that cave, but the water is still knee-deep.

The three of them swimming. Sandra has changed into her original form. The legs joined together to form a mermaid's tail and the fins on her elbows expanded a bit. The gills on her neck open.

As for Sam, he is using the water elemental energy to move. He looked at Chatur, who seemed to be having no trouble. He used his eye technique and noticed that guy is also using water elements. He raised an eyebrow as he didn't ask for what kind of abilities the other party has.

He scolded himself in his mind for being too lax and swam after the mermaid.

There are some Mermen and Water Serpent Nagas staying guard. They crossed them over as Sandra said something to them as she brought them over.

"We will go to my home first, it is not far and we will be there in a few hours. We will go to the demonstration after that."

Sandra's voice could be heard in their ears and Sam is stunned because he could see her lips are not moving at all. It is definitely not a technique that directly sends messages to his mind. He is sure about that at least.

"Sure."

Sam used his own technique to voice his answer as they swam together and after some time, Sandra gestured them to halt and a large seahorse appeared from the depths of the ocean. On the sea horse, there is a man standing. He is a Merman. But his hair is in light yellow color while he didn't activate his merman form.

Only his gills are open. His tail is not. He is standing in his human form.

"Lady Sandra, are these guests you talked about?" The man's voice rung in their ears and the tone of the words is extremely polite.

"Uncle Khaal. You are here." Sandra spoke in a cheerful tone and said to Sam and Chatur.

"He is my uncle and he is also my guardian. Let's go, we can move faster on the Emerald Sea Horse."

As she spoke she swam towards the Sea horse and changed into her human form as he stood on its head.

Sam and Chatur followed and greeted the man.

"Hold tight. We are going at full speed."

With that, all they could see is the flash of blue all around them and some colors in between. They couldn't picture anything that was around them.

Within an hour and a half, they actually reached the destination.

Sam had an urge to throw up. But he tried his best to suppress it. And Chatur is trying his best to hold back.

His face is hidden behind the breathing device, so no one could see his expression.

Sam looked at the magnificent underwater city in front of him. There is a large dome devoid of water and there are a lot of tall buildings. The buildings are mostly designed after the shapes of the seashells. They looked different and artistic.

The sea horse and Khaal remained outside and three of them swam towards the seabed beside the dome.

There is a small underwater stream that is leading them under the dome. There are some mermen staying guard and when they saw Sandra they saluted her and let them in.

They followed the stream and let it carry them inside. After some turns, they reached a surface.

It is like a subway station, but instead of a track, there is a stream.

They used the steps to climb the bank, took off the breathing devices, and started walking.

Nobody seemed to care about their wet bodies.

The city really is magnificent and Sam is really impressed by the artistic way they built it.

Everyone greeted Sandra respectfully.

The city has a lot of Mermen and Fishmen. The Fishmen are mostly in small positions like attendants or shopkeepers. They walked for a while before reaching the Palace which is the core of the city.

Sandra introduced every place related to this and before they could go to the Palace, she took them to another street.

"We build the city near an undersea Volcano. We use the heat to for many purposes and some masters worked well enough to use that Lava for the fire element usage.

Mermen will be born with the innate water ability and they do have tougher bodies than humans. But some of them will be born with an extra element and fire element is also not an exception. But improving in it is not easy, so we build the cities near the undersea volcanoes."

Sam nodded in understanding. The street has some metallic works and some weapons shops. Most of the stores are owned by Mermen because Fishmen doesn't have any other affinities other than water. But they also have strong bodies even though they don't have any warrior constitutions.

After checking the street out and admiring the craft of the mermen, they finally arrived at the palace.

Sandra led them to meet someone who has an uncanny resemblance to her and is Pre-transcendent stage cultivation.

"He is my brother Sagar." Sandra introduced him before saying.

"Sagar, he is Sam and his assistant Chatur."

They shook hands.

"I heard a lot about you. I and Yodha are acquainted. He brags a lot about how great the wine you give them is and how much he is earning from your partnership and how good you are at everything you do."

Sam smiled and said.

"I don't know he can brag. I only know he can drink."

"He can brag alright. It is not that far away from his drinking capacity. Now, Shall we talk about the design you worked on? I would really like to see what you came up with."

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 609: Great Black Shark

Sam along with Chatur, Sandra, and Sagar are all in the sea. Behind them, a group of mermen is coming along with a Black Shark-type beast. It is a Nascent level beast, but it still took a Pre-transcendent stage Merman to hold it in a chain that was completely wrapped around its body.

They dragged it forcefully and Sagar waved his hand and the Merman left chain. The Shark flashed into a black streak as it moved to get away, but before it could escape, with another wave of Sagar's hand, the water in the surroundings started moving and created a specific region that made the Shark stay within it.

It glared at the four of them who are just outside that barrier zone. Even though Sagar is a Pre-transcendent stage cultivator, the shark showed no fear. There are teeth protruding out of its mouth. The fangs of the shark are too big to completely fit in and almost looked like a Grimacing giving it a creepy look.

Sam was amused when he looked at the beast. He didn't expect to see this beast in a place like this.

The Great Black Shark.

Yes, the name itself is the Great Black Shark and one must agree that the name is deserving of it.

It is one of the dangerous predators of the sea. They are fast, strong, ruthless and their biting power is as strong as an Initial stage Pre-transcendent stage beast when it is in Late-stage Nascent level Beast.

If a real pre-transcendent stage beast couldn't handle it and died in its hands, there is still no need to be surprised.

The beast is fearless and it is one of the few that has some resistance to the innate instincts that cause a beast to fear a superior being. Of course, if the difference is too big, then it wouldn't escape those instincts.

The best part is that the size of the beasts is not much different from a normal shark. The most it could grow is to the size of a Whale-Shark. The largest shark in normal earth. Around eighteen to twenty meters. Even if it becomes a deity and a god, it will still stay that size.

That size along with the speed and strength it could pack, it is a threat to any other beast in the sea at the same level.

"Are you sure you guys are having trouble with these sharks?"

"Yes, why?" Sagar asked in return.

"I can understand why you are so adamant about getting a weapon like this. But are you sure you guys want to capture them? They are strong and efficient, but they are not exactly a pet material."

"We know, but these beasts are too precious to let them die like that. We will try our best to form a contract." Sandra replied.

"You seem to know a lot about these beasts," Sagar said from the side.

Sam didn't reply and said.

"No offense, but if you really want to catch these, even with my weapon, the user will have to be extremely skilled. I don't think even a normal Elite would have a way to shoot that. The only time they would have a chance to shoot it is when they are in the middle of its jaws in the process of being bitten in half."

Sagar's mouth twitched and said.

"No problem. Just show us what you have. We will think of the solution for other problems."

"Then your wish."

Sam swam around the barrier and reached the other end grabbing the attention of the Shark. When he reached the spot he desired to, he signaled Sagar to deactivate the trap.

Sagar hesitated a bit before placing himself in front of Sandra and Chatur and deactivated the trap. The Shark immediately shot towards Sam.

It opened its maw as wide as it can and tried to bite him off.

Sam barely dodged as he looked at the Black Shark changing the direction and coming off.

His body changed and he activated the Partial Fusion with the water element.

He moved in the sea as if he is a part of it. He is just trying to get a hang of the ocean battle and this shark is the best opponent he could ask for.

He didn't even attack, all he focused on is the defense.

When Sagar saw Sam having fun, he frowned and was about to sound his impatience. But Sam already understood and he thrust himself forward as his speed increased with a jet of water under his feet.

He took out a large metallic object.

It is a Harpoon Gun. But it is not like a normal one.

It mostly looked like a normal one, but the butt of the gun is made differently. There is a few square inches of the rectangular gap in it. He took out a small metallic cylinder from his storage and placed it in the gap. It fit perfectly.

Apart from that, the Harpoon is also a bit different. The spear tip is a bit different, it looked like it was made by joining several smaller metallic pieces.

It is like a Lego Spear.

As he moved around almost as fast as the shark, he dodged its bite once again and aimed at its back, and pulled the trigger.

The cylinder in the butt of the gun almost shook and a jet of air shot out from a hole behind the butt. But the Spear that shot out has an air jet at its tail end and the cable that should be on the tail end was also there but in a different way. It was a metallic cable and it wrapped and welded around the hollow spear shaft and coiled up almost half of it.

The Spear is too fast for a normal Nascent to even see. The Shark sensed a threat and wanted to move but it was already late and the spear lodged itself into its back.

The Shark was surrounded by its own blood that was quickly diffusing into the surrounding water.

The Spectators felt excited when the Shark was caught. But Sandra and Sagar only have their excitement as they saw the shark is still moving, but Sam didn't show any change in expression.

When the Shark wanted forcefully tug away from the Spear, Sam just stood there with the gun in his hands and when everyone thought he would be pulled over, he didn't budge, not because he is too heavy or too strong.

After some struggle, the Shark didn't move an inch. It became extremely still as it was a rock. They didn't know what happened, because all they say is that there is some extra blood that puffed out of it.

Sam called for Chatur, who swam to him nervously.

"Hold the gun like this and don't even move. Just stay there."

Sam moved gave him the gun and swam to the Shark. That was roaring in the water. Even though it is not a normal roar that would come from other beasts, anyone can see its anger.

Sam just stood there a foot away from it. He is looking straight into the eyes of the beast. He even placed his hand on it. But the shark didn't move a bit. Sandra and Sagar are shocked.

They didn't expect the crazy and ferocious beast a second ago trying to kill him, is not even moving when he placed his hands.

"I am sorry."

Sam said in a low voice and moved. He placed his hand on the spear. At the neck of the spear, there is a small metal protrusion and a guideway in which it sat. He pulled the protrusion back and the Shark gave out a low roar.

After pulling the metallic protrusion back, the spear seemed to have loosened and it came out with just a normal pull.

When the shark was about to move and attack Sam, he held it with both hands tightly and started healing it. At the same time, he threw out the remaining two pearls in its mouth to supplement the remaining energy, but there is a mark left of the shark's body. There is a large scar.

He didn't know what to say. He never felt bad about killing a beast for its meat, or for any other purpose for that matter, he didn't want to torture a creature for his own purpose when it has done no wrong to him. He didn't like the feeling of that and always felt somewhat repulsive.

Even if it is a human it will not change. He might even feel better if he directly killed them with a single hit, this torture is something he is just against.

After healing and the pearls are absorbed, the Shark is back to full health except for the loss of blood and energy. The beast looked at Sam ferociously and left. It didn't attack him, but it is still angry. After all, he did attack him.

Sam looked at the leaving beast and when he saw the Pre-transcendent stage Merman that brought it here was about to go after it, he blocked his way and said.

"If you go after it, the next spear will be in your back. He turned to Sandra and said. If you want to have a deal with me, then I want to include the life of that beast in the contract. He lives our partnership lives. If we can agree on that, then we can discuss it further.

I left a scar that could be seen from the range of this gun. And every time I come here I will find it. The moment I couldn't find that guy, you will understand how I can break the contract."

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 610: Business Deal with Mermen

Sam and Chatur are sitting across a table with Sagar and Sandra on the other side.

"Why are you asking for us to guarantee the life of a shark? It is a beast?"

Sagar asked.

"I used it to achieve something and I am just returning the favor. I don't like debts."

"But that beast wouldn't come to collect it. No one else is going to do that for him."

"I don't want my debts paid only when they were asked. That is what I expect from my debtors. So, I cannot preach what I can't follow. It is more of a personal standard. Are we in or not?"

"How would you even know if we killed it or not? How would you even know if it is alive or not?"

"I made my preparations. Every heard of Spiritual Imprints?"

"The ones that are used on puppets?"

"Yes, I have been experimenting and increased my expertise recently. Now, I might not know the exact location, but I sure as hell know if it is alive and I do know which direction it is and I will also know when its vitality is reducing. Unless and of course, someone kills it and flees the scene within thirty seconds of its death, you sure as hell can count on me to catch them."

"It would take more than thirty seconds to come here from Nagin," Sagar said with a smile. For some reason, he is so interested in getting to the bottom of this. Sam looked at him and said.

"Since you knew about me through Yodha, did he tell you where I am from?"

"Aren't you from Nagin?"

"Not really. I am representing Nagin in the Union dimension that is it. Next time you see Yodha, you ask him how I appeared in Nagin and whatever his answer is, you can be sure that I will appear in the same way on this Planet whenever I want.

Now, if you want to talk business we can talk further and if you don't want to, there is nothing we can talk about."

Then the talks finally went towards the business and the price.

"A rainbow kelp is not going to be enough for the design and the prototype."

"Then how can we be sure it is as valuable as you made it out to be, before explaining about the core design."

"Of course, I can explain it to you. But what if you reject the offer and copy the mechanism afterward?"

Sagar chuckled and said. "I heard you are a competent businessman, but you shouldn't badmouth the people you want to do a business with."

"Badmouth? You might not know this, before becoming a businessman, I am actually a creator. I make things and due to me being extremely good at that, I got another ability up my sleeve and that is, I can spot a copy when I see it."

"What do you mean?" Sandra asked with a frown.

"First shop on the right, third shop on the left. The artisan shops in the volcano street you have taken me. The two artisans in the shop are experts at creating copies, in fact apart from their skill in forging, they only know how to replicate.

They don't have a shred of creativity and they work directly under you."

"Now you are accusing of us and our artisans."

Sagar as adamant and his voice turned a little forceful.

"If you really want to do business with me, you better get a good understanding of me. And don't ever question my words when I talk about artisans and their craft. My credentials would disagree with that big time.

And the sooner we agree to that, the sooner we can talk further."

"What do you want exactly?"

"I think you are some sort of nobility here, so then use your spiritual signature and your noble seal and write a contract that you wouldn't copy my design if our deal doesn't go through after I explain the design."

Sagar looked at Sam coldly and looked like he is too adamant, but right after that he sighed and agreed.

Sam smirked and said.

"If not for the fact I have no plans on developing further in your planet, we wouldn't have had to do this."

"Why?"

"Because wherever I am, people would be too afraid to copy my things and it doesn't matter what it is. So, now let me explain you the design.

The harpoon gun has two main working mechanisms, one of them is the shooting mechanism for which the small metallic cylinder and another machine that I made myself would be required. The small cylinder contains compressed air, at extremely high pressure.

When the trigger is pulled, the air is injected through another nozzle to the shaft of the harpoon and it goes on until the pressure lock is triggered which will make the harpoon launch and pierce into whatever the target is.

And now, the second mechanism, the harpoon spear tip. It acts like a normal spear tip when it was impaled, but once it stuck and the beast wanted to make the spear get out of its body, the spear tip's mechanism will be triggered.

It is a small trap with some strings and small metallic blades, both are sharp enough to slice through the flesh of a Level-6 beast or a Nascent stage cultivator and even the pre-transcendent stage cultivators.

The trap captures something inside the beast as it envelopes either a piece of flesh, an internal organ or both combined and the second the beast moves, not only would the entrapped part of its body will be sliced meat, the motion of the beast will definitely be impeded and if your soldiers couldn't catch a beast in such stage, they better not try to catch.

But that is only the worst case scenario. Because, if the beast has its normal instincts, it wouldn't move considering the pain that would occur due to a millimeter of its movement."

Sam explained as he activated each mechanism in ten percent of their strength. Even though, they couldn't be operated that way in the middle of the battle, it would be done with Sam in the demonstration.

After explaining everything, he said.

"This is what you are buying. This might not be the best thing I can offer, but I can say that this is the best thing you can get no matter where you go."

"You are that confident in yourself that nobody can beat your design." Sandra said.

"If I am not confident in my own skills, I would be too embarrassed to let others see them and I am not just confident, I can bet that no one can beat my design. It is a fact and my design speaks for itself.

By the way, we are dragging this way too long. This is one of the smallest deals I did and you are taking way too much time. What do you want offer?"

"Rainbow Kelp and extra two hundred million spirit stones."

"Rainbow Kelp and five hundred million worth of resources. I don't need spirit stones, I have too many of them."

"Whatever resources you could get, but the five hundred million is too big of a number to give you that. I can go upto two hundred and fifty."

"Four hundred and fifty."

"Three hundred."

"Four hundred."

"Three hundred and fifty."

"Four hundred and fifty."

"Four hundred it is." Sagar extended his hand and they agreed on a deal.

"Now let us talk about the resources you are going to give me."

"What do you want?"

Sam went on with a list of materials he wants to get from this planet. And after he gave them discussed the deal, he stayed the night in the city.

The next morning, he got ready to leave with Sandra back to the Union dimension.

Before they separated at the Origin Palace, they shook their hands once again.

"It is nice making a deal with you. I hope we can work together in the future."

"I would like that too. I will come to you, if I get a good business plan and you can come to me again if you want to make another deal. I can do a lot more than designing a weapon."

"I will hold you for that."

After that brief farewell, they went in their own ways. In the one day, they were absent, a lot has changed in the Union dimension and they knew about it as soon as they arrived at the Nagin Castle.

The Flavos' special commander has made his first move and that is against a resource point, he lost a lot of individual members. Around sixty of them for that victory and this caused another political friction between the commanders as the special commanders of other nations tried use their commanders to beat him down by a notch.

The worst part is that the resource point is not in their hands completely. Even though it is there, the Union sect has already sent troops to that place and they are now attacking.