

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 611: Mess

Sam didn't want to bother with this Flavos guy at all, but it turned out that he has to. Because no one is daring to take care of this situation and the movement of the Union sect became heated.

They are moving their troops on a large scale and the attack on the Nagin Castle's resource points and bases intensified. In the main castle, there are only three squads and around three hundred individual members left.

The four remaining special commanders are moving to different locations or already there as he spoke to the Mov Empire's normal commander who is in charge of the defense at the main base.

"What made them go on to this situation?" Sam asked calmly.

"It is good that you asked. You are half of the reason."

"Me? I am not even here yesterday."

"Who is talking about Yesterday? It is your continuous attacks. You killed four hundred of the enemy troops and did that so fast and one-sided that they got so pissed and they are now taking out on all of us."

Sam chuckled at the response.

"Do you think this is funny? You put the whole castle in jeopardy because you are too focused on your personal gain and glory."

"Glory? For what? Playing house with you guys. You can keep it all to yourself. Do you think I am like the rest of you? Don't just judge me with your personal standards. Because mine are way out of your league."

"If not for glory then what are you here for?"

"That is way above your pay-grade."

Sam left the room after saying those words. Chatur followed him and asked with worry.

"What are we going to do? They will put all the blame on us."

"Us?" Sam asked with a smile.

"Even though my contribution is minimal, I am already in the same boat as you. So, it is 'us' and both of us can't change it."

"Well, you are right about that. But they can't do anything to us. I am the one who made sure that there wouldn't be any more attacks immediately. The sect did send the troops, but they didn't attack. Because they are confused. The person in charge didn't dare to make rash moves.

Because, even if they really did get the information about me doing all I did, they would more cautious than enraged. A single variable being that big of trouble. A smart person wouldn't want to do anything rash until they figured out a way to eliminate or isolate that variable.

Something else triggered all this mess. Something happened when we are away and the mess is way too big than we want it to be.

How about trying to get some information. There is still three days to the Volcanic Cannon. We will wait here until now, you try to gather as much info as you can and we decide how to proceed. Until then there is no need to make a move in this war. Let them clash all they want.

Chatur complied and left. Sam doesn't know how he gets his things done, but he does get his things done and that too in an efficient way.

Sam stayed two days in the Castle, but all he did is try to create his new gadget cum garment he is making with the Blood mutant scales. Even though its quality wouldn't be anywhere near as the feather-coat or the harbinger, this takes a lot of time, due to the features he is going to place on that thing.

He worked in the divine dimension and roamed around as he tasted some beasts nearby to see if he can get any new additions to his farm or even new additions to his army.

And he did find some options, like the rabbit-type beasts nearby, except each rabbit is of the same size as a normal deer and there is a chance that it could grow even more. He caught some and threw it into the form and let Ape take care of them.

He spent his time like that for the next two days and Chatur came back with the information. But it is not complete. Because they couldn't find the exact trigger that leads to this situation in a single day.

But they do know how big the mess is. Every place is a deadlock. Every resource point, weekly or monthly, and even the random resource points. Everything was marked and targeted including the bases. Some of the bases are already taken out.

This is too much damage and the situation is worse than he thought.

While he is thinking about where to start to make his move, another person from Mov empire came running to him.

"I am here bearing the message from the Emperor." He didn't even bother to introduce himself as he showed a scroll. The same one he got every time he got a message from the palace.

He took the scroll and read it right there and when he saw the contents he couldn't help but feel frustrated.

Chatur who is standing beside him was extremely curious and tried his best to take a peek through his peripheral vision.

"Don't try so hard. You can read it directly." Sam said and passed it to him before looking at the messenger.

"Tell them, I will take it. But make sure you mention one thing. He owes me for this separately."

"Are you sure you want me to deliver such an impudent message to the Emperor?" The messenger asked coldly.

"Why? You got a problem doing your duty? I am already pissed by that message, you better not provoke me now and I am pretty sure that the emperor wouldn't mind some collateral damage in exchange for the part of his debt he will owe me."

With that, he didn't even bother and said to Chatur.

"Is the information you gave me is the only information you have on that spot? Did you leave any minor details?"

"No. But are you sure you want to do this? I know you can make a great amount of damage with the guns, but this squad is completely different.

This is the Elite Canine squad we are talking about and their top fifteen are something to be wary of. They wouldn't certainly be easy victims of the guns. They are elites of the elites."

"But what can I do? That Flavos special commander happened to be an imperial family member. The Emperor of Flavos is his uncle and do you know what that makes him?"

"He is also a nephew of the Mov Empress, who is the sister of the Flavos emperor."

"And you have seen the message, we have to save him right away. If he dies, the consequences are something Mov cannot handle and that would disrupt my expansion plans.

Why don't you take out everything you have about that resource point?"

This is the third weekly resource point Sam wanted to take back from the sect and this flavos guy beat him to it, but the sect pulled one over this guy and surrounded the resource point with their troops. If not for the fact, they came after Nagin Castle sent the reinforcement to secure the castle, the troops would have dealt with them easily.

Now, they are using the terrain that was at least giving them the advantage to keep themselves alive.

And Sam doesn't know how these guys held up for three days against the elite squad when they lost around sixty to seventy people against the squad that stood defense.

If the squad is really as elite as he heard them be, then there shouldn't be any form of a problem to wipe the floor with them.

He felt like he is missing something. But he couldn't pinpoint it. But he doesn't have time to think of it and started his journey.

The next resource point is a small hill and has a flat peak with a tree on it.

The tree gives a fruit every week and it is kind of weird because every time, the fruit differs. Sometimes, it is water, sometimes it is fire and sometimes it is lightning. The element changes and it doesn't aid in cultivation. It increases the energy control and efficiency of the techniques.

For all its worth, the fruit is useful for everyone and anyone who uses spiritual energy.

But the hill is full of trees and caves and holes all over it and they can hide properly and easily. The only problem is that now the hill is completely surrounded.

From all the sides.

They traveled for four hours and reached there by the late afternoon. But he didn't reach the place directly, they took a high vantage point and looked over.

From the side he could see, there are tents all over, and at that exact moment, a few groups are returning from the hill. They have various beast mounts. All of them are canines and they are foxes, wolves, bears, hyenas, etc.

But what surprised him is the things that these mounts are dragging down with them.

They are corpses. Corpses of the Nagin castle members.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 612: Canine Squad

Sam instantly understood what is happening. They are playing with the people on the hill. The Canine squad with around one hundred and fifty members and one hundred and fifty beasts is truly as elite as they said and they might be even better as they are relaxed enough to play around like this.

He couldn't hear what they are saying from that far, but what he can understand is that they are counting the number of corpses each of them brought and they are giving spirit stones to the one who has the most corpses.

He didn't expect that he would see something like this. The situation is a lot more serious and fishy than he had thought.

"What are we going to do?" Chatur asked from the side.

"First, do you like any of those beasts there?"

"What?"

"I did say that I would pay your commission to you for the deal. Two percent is around fourteen million spirit stones. I can give you in spirit stones if you want to, but I can substitute that with any of those beasts. They might be pricey, but trust me I am okay with that."

"Are you sure you want to talk a deal with me at a time like this?"

"If you think that something like this cannot make me stop making deals, then you are mistaken. This is just a gang of guys with a bunch of canines."

"Damn it, you are really underestimating the Canine squad. They are called the Alpha Canine squad and every beast is trained along with the squad members since their birth. They eat, drink and shit together for years."

"Where did they get so many beasts?"

"They collect them from all the planets."

"So, have you decided on what kind of beast you want?"

Chatur didn't even say anything anymore. Sam looked at him and said.

"Don't get worked up. What you said is right, the canines are great beasts, they are loyal than any other type of beasts and they are as good as they come. But their instincts are too accurate."

"How can that help us? If their instincts are too accurate, then isn't that another disadvantage for us?"

"You will know soon enough, how that is going to help us. You watch all of this from a safe distance, we will leave this place after I am done with them.

Tomorrow is the day, the Volcanic cannon activates and I am not missing it."

With that, Sam jumped off of the tree and took out the harbinger in the middle of the fall, and zoomed towards the hill.

The hill is more like a large mound than a hill. It is not too tall and they can even see the peak from the ground. And one hundred and fifty members are more than enough to block all the routes at the foot of the hill.

When they saw Sam is approaching, they already started moving. This side of the hill has around thirty members at this point and all of them stood there and all their beasts lined up in front of them.

A guy who is standing in the center howled a laugh out and said.

"Here comes the hunter who is going to become the prey. Sam from Nagin Castle."

Sam didn't reply, he has a faint hunch because of that statement, that this whole thing is a setup.

"Are you going to hurry up or not? That flower boy from the Flavos wouldn't make it if you don't." That man once again bellowed with a sneer.

Sam raised an eyebrow because, from the report they received, they didn't capture him by now. But the situation seems a bit different here.

"You know, our top fifteen guys are playing inside. They want to see who can catch that flower body first on the hill and whoever catches wins. We are waiting for the game to be over while helping them cleaning the remaining squad members up. If you go in there, the game would be more interesting."

"So, you started a game like this just to play with me?"

"You catch on pretty fast."

"Just make the way then, I will go in and see what your top fifteen has got."

"How is it going to be that easy? We heard you are a badass. Four hundred members from the sect. You did some serious damage.

What do you think will happen, if they are dealt with you so easily? and there would be no reason for us to wait here.

We are here to lend them a hand."

They immediately surrounded. Sam could escape easily with the Harbinger. But he didn't do that.

He already planned to bag all the beasts for himself and he is going to do it. With a wave of his hand, the Owls he captured came out along with Sky.

They might not be under his direct control, but Sky can control them. At least, the forty of them came out without any problem.

At the same time, Raiju came out and Sam released his beast aura and the killing intent on a full scale.

The canines that are walking towards him all stopped in their tracks.

The enemies all looked tense for a second. They couldn't guess why they stopped and they tried to urge them on.

But they didn't do. All they did is look at Sam, Raiju, and the owls while growling. There are hesitation and fear in their eyes. But they don't want to take a step forward either. The only thing that is keeping them in the place because they are loyal to their companions.

Sam looked at the group and said.

"I love Canines, they are great companions and honorable beasts. But do you want me to tell you something else you might not know about them?"

They are so loyal that they would do anything to save their companions and that is even if they have to face a bigger and more dangerous threat they can handle and even if they have to drag you away to run away from the threat, that they are sure will bring you the death."

As soon as he said those words, Raiju howled and lightning crackled all over. All the canine beasts immediately ran to their masters and tried to bite into their clothes and drag them away.

When the cultivators saw this, they became furious and tried to force the beasts with their mental contracts. Some of them surrendered and wanted to go against Sam and turned around and some of them didn't but suffered the backlash of the contract.

Sam looked at the beasts that have watery eyes as he took the reaper sword. He couldn't help but lament a bit. After all, for these beasts that grew up with these people from infancy, their masters are everything, but for them, they are just meat shields, a prized possession.

He looked at the beasts and said.

"Is this all your loyalty worth?"

With a single command, the owls went on to attack. They didn't go after the beasts and went against the cultivators directly. Even then, the beasts didn't let them, they tried their best to defend, but Sam and Raiju are not there for nothing.

They pinned the beasts as much as they can without attacking them and finished off the people directly.

The battle didn't take long, because the odds are clearly against the squad. After finishing his off, all the beasts are weakened due to the contract backlash. But they are standing and growling at Sam.

Sam shook his head and thought. I never thought I had to explain myself to beasts.

"I get it you are angry. But the first thing they did when they fell into danger is to use you as their meat shield. I don't say I am a saint, but that loyalty felt unrewarded even for a cold-blooded guy like me.

I won't force you guys to come and join me, but don't come at me just to lose your lives, it is not worth it. Before you decide, let me heal you first."

By this time, Chatur also came here to see the situation and Sam gave him potions and even some diluted heavenly wine.

Even though it is not a great thing for the beasts to drink alcohol, this is the only thing he has on his hands that could heal the body and soul at the same time.

After treating them all, some of the beasts left but most of them chose to stay. Sam let them all in the Divine dimension to join the community there and went forward.

He didn't go on to the hill but repeated the same thing he did here around the hill and cleaned all the people guarding the entrance for the top fifteen who prepared the playground for Sam to come and Play.

Now that he is done with them, he started moving on to the hill and at the same time thinking of who to capture to get some answers. Because from what he saw, this is clearly a setup for Sam and he would like to get to the bottom of this.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 613: Dealing with Canine squad

On the hill inside a cave, fifteen people gathered together with the Flavos empire's special commander tied up.

Out of these fifteen, five of them are Nagas, five Yakshas and the other five are human. They all gathered here to discuss what their plan is.

They believed that their squad would handle Sam and deal with him. Even though they don't know if they can kill him, they are sure they could wear him out. That is the plan from the start. The squad members only have this job to do.

They have to grind Sam a bit and escape if he is really as strong as the information they got said. But what they didn't know is that their squad disappeared and they even did Sam a favor by separating into smaller groups all over the hill.

Even though the fifteen of them heard the cries and howls of the beasts, they didn't think they are all dead. Other squads might have been wiped out, but they didn't believe the canine squad is the same. They have the utmost confidence that they can win this and Sam would definitely be worn down.

But what they don't know is, Sam and Raiju are coming inside the hill and are trying to search for the cave they are in.

He doesn't have a way to find out the exact location immediately though. All he could do is use his energy vision and try to search all over the place. Chatur is following him after he concealed himself. He might be nervous, but he didn't dare to stay too far away from Sam.

Because he is afraid that a canine might smell him out of his concealment and if he is alone he would die. If he is with Sam, at least he is guaranteed that he would be safe and have a greater odds to fight back.

At this moment, he is walking with the grenade in his hands.

And he is extremely nervous.

After some time, Sam looked at Raiju and suddenly remembered something. He let the shadow mice out.

Since there is no miasma here, he can just let the shadow mice handle the scouting and searching. He doesn't have to worry about this too much.

After an hour, the results came.

Sam followed the shadow mice and arrived at an area. There are fifteen beasts lined up near the cave and he could see another sixteen energy signatures inside the cave.

He knew he came to the right place. He also noticed there is a formation arranged around the cave.

He doesn't know which formation it is and from the looks of it, it seems like an illusion formation. But he didn't worry. His eye technique might not be the best in the universe and might not be able to see through everything and anything.

But this level of formation is quite easy to overcome.

"Stay here, there is an illusion formation there. You wouldn't be able to survive in that with the beasts around.

The canines have too good of a sense of smell and they would easily catch you within the illusions. Just stay here and wait for my signal.

When I give you a signal, just throw the grenades at these places."

As he said that, he pointed at different spots within the area.

With that, he and Raiju walked towards the cave without any hesitation, and the beasts outside already started growling as they looked at them.

There are two wolves, two bears, three foxes, two hyenas, four hounds, and two Jackals. Although, they have different elements those are the species that are there.

When Raiju and Sam entered the formation they growled and howled making the fifteen members come out.

They looked at Sam and smirked. Because, at this moment, Sam's face is showing an expression of fatigue and he looked ragged.

"You seemed to have met the welcoming parade we arranged for you."

"Of course, I did."

"Then that means, you are now here to serve yourself on a silver platter and your beast looks good. Maybe it will be a good addition to our team."

Raiju seemed to have been infuriated and growled with all its fangs showing out. Sam patted its back as he said.

"Don't say things like that, if he goes out of control you will wish for an easy death."

"Well, we can say the same to you and our statement will be much more valuable. Because, if anyone is dying that would be you."

With that one of them activated the formation and all Sam could see is endless darkness around him.

Apart from Raiju, he couldn't see anything.

Sam looked at him and said.

"Do what you want, just don't go to the areas I pointed out and you are okay. As for the beasts, just let them stay if you don't mind. If you cannot then so be it. But don't suppress them with your aura yet. I want to see what this formation could do."

Sam said and patted him again. He jumped into action after nodding to Sam's words. Sam didn't activate his eye technique immediately to see what this formation is all about. Everything is a learning opportunity and he didn't see a formation like this before.

All of a sudden he felt a sense of threat and ducked forward. He could feel something brushing past his hair and it felt like the claw of a beast.

He raised an eyebrow and once again dodged to the side. He felt another sensation on the feather coat.

He concentrated on his senses and continued dodging. He could see Raiju is holding something in his mouth and smashing another thing with his legs. He didn't seem to be in trouble as blood spilled on his silver fur and for sure he knew that the blood is not his.

Sam understood immediately. The formation is made for the beasts. Particularly these canines that pride themselves in their sense of smell. They are using that sense to attack while all victim's senses are dulled.

As for the cultivators, they still didn't make a move. If Sam's guess is right, then he must not have been in the formation at all. Because from what he could see the formation doesn't have exception making arrangements for someone to enter and leave it without affecting them.

So, they would be standing outside and will only make their move after their beasts couldn't anymore.

Sam didn't care much, because he is not as exhausted as he looked. He just made himself look like that to trick those guys, since he knew for certain that this is a plan.

He played for a while and after checking everything he can about the formation with and without the eye technique, he whistled loudly and Raiju howled loudly along with him.

While the fifteen members out felt like something is wrong, they saw the fifteen beasts inside the formation suddenly prostrate themselves on the ground. They didn't dare to make any further move. At the same time, a series of explosions occurred around the cave.

BOOM

BOOM

BOOM

With the explosions, the formation immediately disappeared and Sam took out his staff as lightning energy surged through him. He didn't go after the beasts, that is Raiju's domain and he went after the cultivators.

When they saw the two of them becoming active and their beasts becoming passive, they immediately called their beasts back, but not for saving them. Instead, they fed some pills to the beasts, even though they are clearly unwilling to do so.

Their eyes turned blood red and their fur stood straight as they looked at Sam and Raiju with lots of bloodlust.

Sam frowned and looked at the cultivators who also took another type of pills and their auras skyrocketed.

He looked at them quickly surrounding him. Sam turned on partial fusion with a lightning element and moved like a silver flash as he slammed his staff in the opponent right in front of him.

Lightning passed through the opponent's body as he collapsed to the ground immediately with a tear on his shoulder along with the flesh being charred black.

He didn't plan to entertain them with too much time and effort as he attacked at full strength. Half of them died within two hits and the rest survived albeit barely. Even though, he is outnumbered he is dominating the fight easily.

He didn't hesitate to kill all of them, but left the leader alone, while Raiju also finished suppressed the beasts. They have missing limbs and deep bites all over along with the lightning char all over their fur.

Raiju got some scars on his body with blood completely coating his fur from silver to red.

He called him back and sent him into the divine dimension, while he examined the beasts, four of them died as they couldn't take the attacks, as for the rest, their bodies are completely rattled inside and the internal organs seemed to have been in deep trouble.

The pill made work on them. He tried his best to give them initial aid and sent them inside the divine dimension while instructing ape to take care of them give medicine and herbs timely to heal them back to normal condition.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 614: Bigger plot

Sam is sitting inside the cave as he looked at the leader of the canine squad. The battlefield is cleaned up and Chatur is sorting out the items from the Spatial rings to see if he can find any items inside that would give some information.

But there is nothing inside and now he is looking at the leader to see if he could cough up. He still didn't start the interrogation as he just asked him casually.

"I am not saying shit. Kill me if you can."

The leader said with a cold tone, because Sam actually restrained his cultivation to prevent him from committing suicide.

"I will give you some time to think things through. If you don't make the correct decision, then you will regret it."

He then walked to the Flavos empire's special commander who is eating some meat Sam gave him.

His cultivation was restrained for two days and he didn't get a chance to cultivate and replenish his energy. The fastest and easiest way to do that is to consume food with spiritual energy.

"Thank you once again for saving me. When can we go back?"

"Not at the moment. I need to know some things. First, tell me who gave you the idea to come here or what made you to attack this resource point."

That guy seemed to be offended and said.

"What do you mean by who gave me this idea? I thought it all myself and why are you asking that? Is it because only you can attack and take back the resource point?"

Sam became incensed and there is no change of expression. He looked at the guy dead in the eyes and said coldly.

"I am not ready to deal with your ungrateful crap at this moment. Remember one thing, I saved you ass and I can take that sorry life of yours if I want to. All I have to say is that you are already dead before I came here and I will make that leader confess that one way or the other. Do you believe that I can do that?"

"How dare you threaten me? I will..." Before he could finish his words, Sam immediately slapped him straight on his face and slammed his head into the cave walls.

"One more word and that too about your imperial family crap, I will skin you alive. Just answer the question."

With that he let go of him and asked one more time.

"Why did you attack this place?"

"I got a tip from Sectum's team. He got intelligence that defense of this place is weakened because of some issue that happened in the sect. He is planning to make a move on this place. But I decided to make a move to beat him to it."

Sam looked at Chatur and asked.

"Who is sectum?"

"The Special commander from Rubrum empire."

Sam frowned.

"Any survivors from the squad?" He asked once again and Chatur only shook his head.

"Then how did the information get to the Nagin castle that he is holding up continuously. It is one thing for the information to come and every time it came it is wrong information. Who gave the information to Castle these three days?"

Sam muttered o himself and Chatur also realized something is really fishy at the moment.

"I want to know who brought the news to the castle." Sam said seriously.

"It will take time, I need to go to the castle and come back."

"How much?"

"Eight hours."

Sam thought for a moment and waved his hand.

Raiju came out and Sam said to him.

"Activate lightning fusion and move as fast as you can."

He then threw the gourd of wine to Chatur and said.

"Feed him some whenever he got tired and directly go the Volcanic cannon. Tomorrow morning it is giving out something and I am going to miss it. Tell them this guy is safe, but I am not sending him back immediately."

Sam then sat down before the Canine team leader. He is a Naga and he is in his battle form. He took out a dagger and held his tail in his hand as he coldly said.

"I am only asking you one last time, how did you guys set this trap up and what is your exact plan. Someone from inside is with you and I want an honest answer."

"Or what?"

Sam didn't reply and slashed on his tail, the scales left the skin and showed the flesh of his tail.

"AHHHHHHHHHHH.."

Sam didn't stop even when the cave resounded with the screams, he started peeling the scales off of the tail as if he is peeling the vegetables.

There is not even change of expression on his face.

The cave resounded with screams for over an hour before that person broke and said.

"Its sectum. He is the guy who made a deal with our Boss. He sold you out."

"And?"

"He gave the information that you are the one who attacked the two resource points and the base and he also gave all your personal information regarding your relation with the Mov empire and Yodha.

His plan is that he would lure this guy here and make sure that news reaches the castle and the outside world. In this place, you are the only one capable of freeing him and ensure his life.

But he also gave us the news that you are going to the Mermen Planet.

So, we picked that day to hatch out the plan. He will send this guy to this place by feeding him some bullshit and then we lock him up and blow up the war to create a deadlock situation so that no one would pay attention to this place.

You will come here and we kill you, then Sectum will make the Nagin castle lose this war and leave half of its resource points and will also support Union sect when a new resource point appears in the dimension.

He will gain most merit and also use you two and blame you both for triggering the war and causing to lose half the area and will make your empires pay the price while you two will die in the hands of the sect."

"What else?"

Sam asked as soon as he stopped.

"There is nothing more."

Sam peeled another scale making him scream.

"Do you think I am an idiot? If both of us are going to die here, you wouldn't make let him live all this while. Particularly, when you guys are manipulating the information that came to the castle anyway, there is no need for you to keep him alive until I came.

You could have killed him and went on bullshitting the information and when I get back, you can kill me. Now, are you going to tell me the information or not?"

Sam was about to move his dagger once more, but he already gave in.

"The Union sect wants to start a civil war in the Nagin castle. When the fight broke out with you, we are going to kill you but not here, we will be killing you after taking you far away from this cave and at that time, 'coincidentally' his restrictions would be going off and he would 'find' his spatial ring that we already took at the entrance of the cave.

Inside that there is a recording crystal of Sectum and our boss' conversation, then the management would be split and they will fight amongst themselves and we will proceed with defeating them and take all the resource points in a single sweep."

Sam threw the dagger straight into his throat and killed him after he got his information. He checked the cave and found the spatial ring they planted and looked for the recording crystal.

He took the guy from Flavos and asked.

"What's your name?"

"Yogesh." He is still afraid of Sam and said it in a calm voice.

"Look, I am going to send you back to the Origin castle and you are going back. Don't come back anymore until I come out of this goddamn place. Because the shit is about to go crazy and the situation is going to turn extremely wild and chaotic.

If you do the same stupid shit you do and they try to attack me once again using you, I would kill you first before I do them. So, if I see you back here again before I leave."

After that he took out another recording crystal that could copy stuff and gave it to him before saying.

"Give one to Flavos emperor and give one to Mov emperor. Don't forget. This is a matter of national importance and if you don't do that, you will bear the responsibility for whatever that falls on us."

All this while, he kept nodding his head.

Sam then brought him to the origin castle and sent him away. Before leaving to Volcanic cannon as he thought about the scheme the union sect played.

At a glance it looked like something that aimed at Nagin castle, but he has a hunch that it is mostly aimed at the empires themselves and he hoped his hunch was wrong, because he is not really much interested in another which he has to train newbie soldiers and had to defend his business at the same time.

He has his hands full at this moment.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 615: Recruiting Chatur

Sam doesn't know if he is being paranoid or not. But he felt that there is more to the story than what meets the eye.

Even if the sect really only wanted to cause the civil war within the dimension, there is no way the perpetrator who is smart enough to orchestrate all this doesn't know that it would cause a war between the nations themselves.

The thing that is bothering him most is that he is being used without even his knowledge and they almost succeeded.

He would collect his debts no matter what.

But before that, he should receive some rewards for all the effort he put in the past week.

When he reached the Volcanic cannon, there are many people already there. This is the only place where the war deadlock didn't reach the resource point itself.

Due to Sam's arrangement through which he called for squad earlier and maintain the defense the war here is not as intense as in other places.

The same goes for Pearl lake and as for the Bamboo forest, Sam is not too interested in that place. Even though the water tasted good, it is not extremely useful for him. At most, it would be some expensive water for him to drink.

At the Volcanic cannon, Chatur is already waiting for him along with Raiju.

It is nearly midnight. They immediately went to a tent Chatur already set up and started discussing the information.

"The rubrum emperor's commander is in charge of the intelligence. He only took charge for a week and his subordinates are the ones who brought the news from the hill."

"Subordinates? You mean it is not a single person who carried the news?"

"No, for the three days the updates of the battle are brought by three different people. All three of them are supposedly stationed at three different places near the hill and all three people gave reports of three different supposedly happened battles which didn't happen at all."

"Where are they now?"

"They were rewarded for their 'merit' and because you took over the rescue into your hands, they were assigned to another place and all three places are farthest from the Nagin castle."

"What do you know about the factions of the Rubrum empire within the Nagin Castle?"

"They are tightknit. Everyone from the Rubrum empire, might be human, Naga, or half-Naga. But they will only join a squad that is fully under the control of the Rubrum empire.

They wouldn't take in outsiders. There are some exceptions and the main requirement is that the person shouldn't have any affiliation with the other nations' forces. He should be a lone wolf, without any form of link with any other faction.

But the individual members of the rubrum empire will try to get in touch with other squads and factions to get information and sell it to the top dogs of their faction to get into squads.

Even though, the rest of the castle members knew that they can do little about that. They are not selling the information on the families and such, at most they will be able to get the information on the resource points or other places where some gains could be obtained.

This happens all the time and all the factions try to pull this, but these people do it more. Apart from that, there is nothing abnormal about them.

I don't know much about Sectum, but the normal commander from the Rubrum empire is his brother and his name Salvan. He is scheming. I don't know how he got his hands on the head of intelligence position, but he did.

He is the one who got more gains than all the five commanders. He has a pretty good network in the dimension and has contacts with other races and other castles."

Sam thought for a moment and looked at chatur before saying.

"I have an important matter for you to do. But before that, I want to know the exact truth of who you are what your situation is."

"Didn't I tell you all that before?" Chatur sounded a bit nervous.

"I know you are hiding something and I didn't bother to call that off, because I couldn't bother to mind your business. But now, someone is trying to dig a grave for me, I cannot afford that.

You either tell me what is it or you can go away."

Chatur stayed silent for a moment and said.

"I didn't like. I was really cast aside because of my lack of combat prowess and I have a relatively useless ability only painting can bring out.

My spiritual core is a little different. I have an affinity with the water elements, but I cannot use it much for an attack because the amount of water I conjure with spiritual energy is extremely small and not dense enough.

But that is not even the main problem. My body is completely against the circulation of energy in the form of those attacks and if that is not enough, I have a weird ability I discovered when I started learning painting to let go of the stress.

If I use my ability and energy to draw something, it gains sentience for a short amount of time."

He paused and took out his brush as he drew in the air with his brush, his spiritual energy started conjuring into the water and the water changed color before forming a bird in the air.

The bird started flying around Sam.

"I could control it, but I cannot make it attack. Even if I ask it to crash into the wall, the attack power is not being enough. The only good thing is, it doesn't need too much energy and as long as it stays sentient, it absorbs the energy from the surroundings and stays in shape. My energy consumption will be reduced.

All I can do is scout a bit and gather information. As for combat, there is nothing I could do.

Added with the fact that I am the bastard son of my family and that too a family full of soldiers, my father is just a bit away from kicking me out. I couldn't do anything. Even the entry to this place was because of the noble blood in my body.

My brother who is the current Mov Empire commander made sure that I couldn't get the recognition for my skills and I am being suppressed and he has no intention of letting you take all the glory. But I heard about you, a lot actually and I wanted to use this opportunity to put my skills to us.

As you have seen, I might be useless in combat. But I am good at many other things. I can make connections, draw maps, and create architectural designs.

I wanted to use you to get some recognition and fall in the eye of someone who can put my skills to use. That is it. Apart from that, I don't have any other intention."

Sam once again went into deep thought.

"I believe you. At least, most of it. Then I can offer you something.

Help me for the next few months. You will use all your means to finish the tasks. I might not be able to recommend to you someone who can use your abilities. But, if you want you can work with me. Not only will I teach you how to use your ability properly, but I will also teach you how to attack and defend with it.

You really don't understand what your ability can do. You are no defective, in fact, you have a gift many people can only dream about. But there is a catch."

"What is it?" He sounded extremely hopeful.

"I need you to take this pill." Sam took out the Pill of servitude.

Chatur looked at him with a puzzled expression.

"It is not that I don't trust you Chatur. But I cannot take a chance. You will know exactly what is it stake for me. I cannot let someone who I cannot trust with my life stay around me. There are a lot of lives depending on me and I cannot gamble them all away.

I built everything I have on my own, if one day you were in a rock and hard place and decided to give up on me, it wouldn't be just me who will be in jeopardy. In fact, I am confident I can save myself, but all that I built will be lost completely. I don't think I can afford that gamble with just your word.

You can think it over and answer me. If you don't want to do that, I can just contact someone within the military, but you will be stuck on this planet. I can take you out of Naga Loka.

You can see the other world. Think it over."

Before he could finish his words, he already took the pill and threw it in his mouth. Sam smiled and said.

"From today onwards, you don't have to worry about going unnoticed. You will leave a mark of yours in this world, that the generations will never dare to forget."

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 616: Union Sects Plan

The next day, Sam is waiting for the volcanic cannon to shoot the resource out and so did everybody else from Nagin castle and there are also some mermen here who want to give it a try.

This is a part of a deal with the Mermen. Sam already sent a message to Nagin castle that he would be claiming the next resource, but they didn't seem to listen, but he didn't care much.

All he has to do is catch whatever comes without giving others a chance.

Everyone who wants to participate is on the flying beasts and got ready to move as soon as the volcano spits out the item.

They could feel the energy surging from the volcano and Sam also got ready. But he didn't take Sky or Yanwu. He just stood there waiting for it to launch.

In a few minutes, a red glowing orb was spat out of the Volcano high in the sky and Sam made his move, he took out the harbinger and moved like a flash as he increased his altitude along with the steep volcano. The rest of the participants also followed, but the beasts are nowhere near as fast as a harbinger and they couldn't keep up.

Sam launched himself to the top and raised his altitude as much as he can with the volcano as his base and caught the falling red orb.

As soon as the orb touched his hands, it popped like a balloon, and a red-colored transparent crystal bottle with a crystal cork and full of a liquid that seemed to have contained a lot of fire elemental energy was in his hands.

Along with that, there is a string of data in his head.

The name made him surprised.

"Firebird Blood essence."

Firebird is one of the beasts that have a good enough bloodline. Even though it is not as great as the top rate beasts, it is still much better considering the Naga Loka.

But the only disappointing thing is the next string of data. The firebird the blood essence extracted from is just a Pre-transcendent one. At least, it will still be helpful for Yanwu.

He stored it away and started slowly reduced his altitude. Some of the participants are catching up and a lady didn't even bother to halt as she directly attacked. Sam just dodged and passed through the gaps like water passing through a complex ridge and already went out of the encirclement before they could understand what is happening.

He looked at them and waved goodbye as stored the Harbinger and let Sky out and picked up Chatur before flying towards Pearl Lake.

The next day, it is going to give out the pearl and Sam is not missing that. Not after the number of spirit stones, he invested in it.

But when he reached he saw many people already waiting there for the pearl.

The squad members clearly saw loads of spirit stones and they also felt that something is up with the lake and they reported back to the castle after Sam left. Some top dogs within the castle made time out of this war situation and came here to see what they can get.

But when Sam came, they are having conflicting thoughts. He looked at everyone and said with a cold smile.

"I already said, I will break the legs of everyone who tries to get a piece of it. This lake is mine for as long as I stay within the Union dimension. You know what? I am claiming this lake to myself. Get lost everyone."

"You can't do that. This is the property of Nagin Castle and everyone here is as entitled as you with an equal right to share this resource point." One of the Nagas from the Rubrum empire yelled.

"The place was the property of the Union sect when they took it over and I and I alone took it back from them. At first, I only wanted to have it for a few weeks. But what can I do, you ungrateful assholes got greedy and now you want to get a share of it, I am taking it all. Get the fuck out before I make you go away.

But don't expect me to pull punches. I may not stop at the legs,"

He made his point and went to the bank of the lake and Chatur started making the tent and started the barbeque.

Sam sat on the bank of the lake and placed his legs into the water to relax a bit. The pearl would be ready by the next day.

He stayed there like that and the remaining people who wanted to try their hand left the place after considering the war situation and Sam's ruthlessness. He killed too many people and if he killed them here and blamed it on the Union sect, there is no one who could trace it back to them.

The next day, the Oyster opened and Sam took out the pearl. Compared to the previous one, this pearl has a lot more spiritual energy and this can actually be used for the cultivation of a Nascent stage cultivator.

Chatur who is standing not so far away could also feel the spiritual energy emitting from the pearl. It has the spiritual energy of a hundred thousand spirit stones.

Even though, that much spiritual energy could only be used for some partial development of a person's cultivation within the Nascent stage and could provide assistance in breaking through the sub-stages. This pearl is different.

It has a hundred percent absorption rate and it can easily be used to break through a level, at least within the middle-stage.

But Sam doesn't have that much of a luxury, because the energy would be shared by all of his beasts and himself. He can devour four to five of them in succession and he still might not have a breakthrough and he is not even looking for one.

He could like to stay at this same level for another few months.

He threw the pearl to Chatur and said.

"Take this as your first salary for the past week. I don't need it."

Chatur held the pearl-like it was a hot potato and was about to reject it, but Sam didn't seem to care at all and waved his hand gesturing him to keep his mouth shut.

Sam wanted to experiment a little more and this time, he threw water elemental stones inside the lake and looked at Chatur.

"Find out which place has a most chaotic situation. The news of that flower boy from Flavos leaving safely and me rescuing would have already reached the Union sect top dogs and the war will take some turn in the next two to three days.

We will be present in the most chaotic place and reap the most out of the situation."

Chatur nodded and left the place.

Meanwhile, within the Union sect headquarters.

There are three people sitting in a private room around a small round table. A Naga, A Yaksha, and a Merman. There is no human here.

"We got the news that the guy from Flavos was rescued and Sam went away scot-free. We don't know where the video is or if the video was seen by anyone. From Sam's style until now, he didn't interrogate anyone and just killed from long-range. Direct battles and interrogation doesn't seem to be his style." The merman spoke and the other two understood what he was implying.

"You might be right. But we cannot be sure that he didn't see the video. After all, he also collects the spatial rings and he might have seen the video."

"Even that is okay. The worst-case scenario is the video reaching the emperors. The six commanders are young and they will be impulsive to make the decision to start the fight between themselves. But once the video reaches any of the emperors, they will immediately understand what is happening and the plan will not go as it should be."

The Yaksha said.

"What other way do we have? We should do something about the current deadlock. We cannot maintain it for a long time. We have to either create a conflict within the Nagin castle or directly finish off the war.

If the situation is still as calm as it is now, then the emperors will send other elites. We heard that some new humans came to the Nagin Planet and are all extremely proficient in combat. They are elite of the elite and this Sam also appeared at the same time.

So, it would be better if we do what we have to do before they came. Otherwise, we would be in trouble." The Naga man said.

"We should first see if the news of us trying this was revealed or not. So, we have to observe the situation first. If there is no unrest within the enemies, then we would just go ahead with the war and crippled the troops.

Sectum will definitely try to get in touch with us because of our sudden change of plans of not leaving the other half of the resource points for him and we can use that situation to leak the information to the troops.

Even if the emperors came to know about our plan, if we could finish all this before they react, the war between the nations is bound to escalate."

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 617: Necromancy

For the next two days, Sam only stayed at the lake as he experimented with it. For starters, he collected some lake water and created a small puddle near the lake, and dropped a fish in to see if there would be any change to it.

And he soon noticed, the fish didn't survive for long. There is no vitality in the water at all.

Just like that, he performed many experiments.

On the second day's night, Chatur came back. He has taken a wolf from the Canine squad and has been using it. With his disguise techniques and its speed. He can easily escape any threat in the union dimension.

He got the required information and Sam was extremely excited to see this. Because the most chaotic of the battle-fields are three and all three of them have someone from the Rubrum empire as the lead.

One of them has sectum, the other Salvan, and the third one was led by some other rubrum guy. All of the rubrum emperor squads are on three battlefields only.

When Sam thought about this, he couldn't help but feel ecstatic.

He already decided to make the rubrum empire people have a taste of his revenge for plotting against him and with how the current situation is, he can not only make them pay a price, he can also make the Union sect suffer some losses.

Sam wanted to brush off his necromancy skills. Even though he is not interested in the normal undead necromancy, he still studied some basics of that category and one of them is just making the undead. Generally, a necromancer who wants to have his own undead army wouldn't be able to keep all of them no matter how many corpses he has. Because the mental energy keeps a limit.

But they can still make the undead, but just couldn't control them. But it wouldn't stay for long as the energy the necromancer injected will soon disappear due to the connection and the corpse would return to his actual state.

He felt like he could use this as he didn't want to make his involvement known. His foundation in the Naga Loka is too shaky and he couldn't just cause a war between rubrum and Mov to satisfy his own revenge.

But there is no way he would not kill them.

Sam and Chatur started making their move, but this time a little discreetly. Everyone knew they left the lake but no one knew where they went.

Their first target is the third person-in-charge of the rubrum squads other than Sectum and Salvan.

Currently, the clash is going on intensely and both sides are having skirmishes in a direct head-on battlefield.

Due to some long intervals, both sides created their temporary bases and fortified them with the formations and defensive battle formations.

They would meet on the battlefield now and then.

And they had a tacit agreement not to fight at night. This stemmed from their original agreement between the rubrum and the sect.

He stayed at a relatively hidden place as there is a resource point nearby and Chatur has layout ready for Sam to find a hiding point and sent the shadow mice out. Now he doesn't just have ten shadow mice. Currently, he has fourteen and there is six more newborns which would make them twenty.

He could cover more ground now and get the information easily.

After some time, they came back to help with the detailed report as he plotted the land and the marks they noted to him.

The terrain is plain and there are rocks and boulders everywhere. This is what Sam actually wanted. Then he started plotting something else and gave spatial rings contained huge dark element energy cells, that too in a large quantity along with the grenades of decaying gas, that would cause the green decaying flame.

The mice went away once again. But Sam and Chatur didn't stay, they also went with their own techniques as they disguised themselves in the night.

They worked through the whole night for hours until a few minutes before dawn. They escaped right before the battle began.

They took the nearest vantage point that could give a clear look and waited for things to unfold. He was trying out a special formation he came up across when he was brushing off his necromancy.

This is a dangerous formation and as long as the dark elemental energy is directly supplied to it, it will go on making the results dangerous.

This is a great trap and is a go-to defensive measure for any necromancer. This could be used in a war perfectly. But the collateral damage and resources it took are extreme and that is the only reason most people wouldn't create one.

But Sam wanted to see if the trial would work out properly.

The two sides started moving against each other and met in the middle. But Sam could see that the situation is more intense than he thought and all the other battle-fields are equally intense at the moment.

That is because the union sect decided to make their move and speed the battle to cause more losses to the Nagin castle so that they can implement their secondary plan of using sectum to start the civil war.

Currently, the union sect's troops in this battle-field are mostly Nagas and Yakshas. These Naga scale colors are something Sam has never seen in Nagin's planet or base. So they are definitely from other planets.

As they ran into the middle of the battle-field, Sam is waiting for the presents he left for them to show themselves and they didn't disappoint.

BOOM

BOOM

BOOM

A series of explosions happened as the green and blue flames erupted all over the battle-field. Everyone is stunned for a second because more than forty people were hit directly and half of them are on verge of dying as the decaying flames incinerated their bodies and started rotting their flesh.

As for the rest of the forty, they are mostly in the aftershock of the explosion and have severe damage.

The grenades are not powerful enough to blast their limbs off and turn their bodies into mush and most of their bodies are intact.

The first step of the plan was a success. The two parties are stunned for a second but that didn't stop the battle. In fact, it intensified because the explosions are not of an extremely large scale and everyone was blaming the other party, even though both parties clearly suffered losses.

They went on with fighting it off with the intensity.

But what they don't know is after the few dead bodies sprawled on the ground, a black patch started spreading across the soil. It is not truly black, more like black spiritual energy, and will only be noticed if someone concentrates their spiritual senses.

As the fight became intense, all of a sudden one of the soldiers in the corner felt a bite on his leg.

When he saw the dead body with all his guts blasted out biting him, he couldn't help but kick the head off of that. He just felt like the other party has his last breath and is trying to help his comrades even in death, but before he could recover his true opponent already stabbed him in the heart with a spear.

Before the opponent could relish in his victory, he felt a bite on his neck and someone sucking his life force and energy from behind.

The undead has only one desire and that is to kill all the dead by sucking their life force. They will try to sustain that life force and energy to maintain stay undead. But without the mental connection, it wouldn't be able to do that and no matter how much energy it has, it will soon run dry and the undead will go back to being dead.

The battlefield suddenly turned extremely chaotic, because both parties noticed that several incidents are happening all around and they tried to mitigate it by killing the undead.

But before they could do so, the newly dead are also turning into undead and they have better bodies which made them more dangerous.

It is almost like a zombie virus spreading all over within a group of people.

One of the undead left the formation area without attacking anyone. But after a few steps after the formation, it fell off and became a dead body again due to the loss of power supply.

Many people noticed this, but they don't know that a formation boundary existed in the first place and started running in different directions. But Sam already took out his sniper and started shooting.

Everyone who was about to cross the boundary was shot. He didn't even use energy cell bullets or vital shots, all he did is immobilize them and they became an addition to the undead and soon the whole battle-field turned undead zone.

There are hundreds of undead inside the formation. But Sam didn't do anything, he just stayed there and waited. The undead soon realized with their instincts that if they go out a certain boundary they will be gone like the rest of their companions. But the energy cells powering the formation soon ran dry and the bodies started to fall back to the ground.

The whole area is emitting death energy. Sam released his new shadows. He felt like it is about time, he grew his own shadows and selected them carefully. Two of them are beasts, from the canine squad that went berserk due to the pills as for the rest, they are one Yaksha, one Naga and one Merman.

The shadow ran towards the battle-field as they absorbed the death energy to feed on themselves and at the same time, Sam tried to see if he can raise any shadows from the dead bodies.

Since they are already turned into undead, it is not possible to summon their shadows, as they would have already disappeared. But there are still a couple of them and he let his own shadows absorb them to increase their energy.

Sam looked at the place satisfied and beckoned Chatur who was stuck with fright move as they made their journey to the next location.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 618: Interrogation

Sam and Chatur left as silently as they came. But the news about the death of everyone in the battle-field being dead was heard and both sides suffered the losses. But no one knew what happened. Even though the news traveled fast, they couldn't figure it out and no one is free enough to care about this place.

Even Sectum and Salvan couldn't do anything about their troops as they felt they had a much bigger problem on their hands.

The Union sect is not honoring their agreement as per which they would definitely put on a show along with the rubrum squads and leave half of the resource points, no matter what happens regarding Sam. They already knew that Sam is dangerous and they didn't want to leave the deal to his death.

So, they made a clause that even if Sam didn't die, their end of the deal is finished since they lured him to the hill, so they demanded that they should get what they asked for. The sect agreed at that time, but now they are clearly breaking the deal as they are not ready to face the losses of around six hundred people for nothing.

They might be bosses of the sect in this layer, but the real boss is out there somewhere within the Naga Loka and everything they are doing is based on his words and plans. They don't have any real say. And they are not planning to honor their words from the beginning anyway.

All they did is make some changes.

Sam reached second place, the place where Salvan is trying his best to get a victory.

They are battling over a mountain range and the terrain is good for guerilla war far and both sides are doing just that.

Both sides are only trying to wear each other out as they sent small groups across the mountain to the enemy's camps and trying to chip each other down.

Sam wanted to take advantage of this and wanted to create chaos. Even though he cannot use the undead formation here as the results would be too disappointing with that, he had other plans.

He could just use this to improve his shadows.

Sam let out all his shadows and started dealing with small groups of five to ten within the mountains and he didn't just stop there, first, he made your shadows devour the shadow energy of the dead bodies and stored them inside the divine dimension, before turning them into the undead.

Sam couldn't control this undead normally if there are no mental connections, but things are different once he made them within his divine dimension, they cannot do anything there.

He collected undead like that and after collecting a decent amount, he went near the camp of the rubrum empire and released them all.

They wouldn't last long as there is no energy supply, but Sam doesn't need them last long as his shadows, he and his beasts also joined the fray.

He let go of all his beasts, including Mia as they hunted the camp like crazy.

Sam didn't just fight, he made every dead body into an undead after making a nearby shadow of his absorb the shadow energy.

Soon, the whole camp is full of corpses emitting death energy which was also absorbed by the shadows.

He once again collected the corpses and threw them in this divine dimension before moving to another camp.

He repeated the process and due to the higher numbers, he let the owls out and made them help him with the cleaning.

The continuous success almost convinced Sam to continue improving his necromancy, almost because Sam was never in his top condition throughout the battle as every undead he created drained his energy for the creation itself.

Even though, there is no mental connection and continuous energy supply the sheer number of creations made him feel exhausted. But this is the best way to increase his shadow energy and also clear the battlefield fast enough.

Just like that he cleared two battle-fields and his last target from the Rubrum empire, Sectum is also feeling that something off about the whole situation as two of his armies disappeared just like that.

He is not ready to take risks and wanted to talk with the Union sect boss as he planned to retreat after sorting out the deal. He has too much at stake in the current situation and didn't want to back out without any benefits.

He has been trying to meet with the boss of the union sect for the past two days, but he couldn't just get a hold of them as they deliberately ignored him.

But at this moment, even the Union sect's bosses are feeling that something was off as the two battle-fields they concentrated the most disappeared just like that.

They couldn't help but feel targeted but they still have no choice but to go through with their plan. They know better than anyone how much competition they had to endure. Their orders were to make sure this civil war happened no matter the cost and they are going to do so. If they backed out because of the losses and reported back to ask for advice, there is no way they would escape scot-free.

Their positions that they earned with all that effort were not something they are willing to let go of easily.

So, they accepted the request from Sectum and arranged a meeting place and time, but Sam who doesn't know anything about was already proceeding with his plan.

Due to their meeting plan, the two troops are in a temporary truce of retreat.

And Sam who doesn't know why this calm is just didn't bother rejecting such an opportunity and a bunch of undead assaulted the tents of Sectum's camp on that night along with the shadows as they assassinated many soldiers adding a few more undead.

The camp soon turned chaotic and it soon reached Sectum's tent which is the middle of it all.

He was surrounded by undead all around, but there are not too many by this time as many have lost the energy and became cold corpses again.

As Sectum started fighting with the undead, Sam slowly walked towards him kicking a few undead that wanted to do make a move on him.

When Sectum saw Sam, his eyes widened and he felt like he understood what is happening.

He almost forgot that he was in the middle of the battle and even the sounds of his troops slowly dying didn't wake him up out of his stupor. He just pointed a finger at Sam and tried to say something. But no words came out of his mouth.

Sam let the undead have their way with him as they slowly bit him off, but he didn't just let him die. Just before he couldn't take it anymore, he healed him.

This made Sectum to scream in anguish as he cried, wept, cursed, and begged Sam to kill him.

"If you answer a few questions, then I would let you go."

"Y... Yes."

"Whose plan is it trap me? Yours or the Union sect's?"

"It's mine." Even though he knew that he might receive another round of torture, he didn't have enough mind to lie at this point.

"Where did you contact the boss? How can I meet them?"

"They contacted me directly, I don't know how to directly get in touch with him, all I can do is try through their right-hand men. But there is a way for you to meet them."

Sam just stood there waiting for him to finish.

"We arranged a meeting tomorrow morning and it is within a cave three kilometers to Northwest. That is why we have a temporary truce."

Sam nodded and finished him off as he promised as he let the undead slowly disappeared, before collecting some more corpses.

He went back to the hiding spot as he thought of what to do. He was deciding whether he should contact the boss and deal with him or go to the base and destroy it. After some time, he thought of an idea and went back to the said cave first.

He took out Murali's inscription paintbrush as he started etching all of the cave walls and he spent four hours like that. It is almost dawn when he was done and he immediately sneaked out and reached the camp once again.

He sat in a hiding spot waiting for one of the two things to happen. One thing is the soldiers in the base finding out their opponents are already dead and another one is a signal from the cave he visited.

The first doesn't seem likely to happen as the truce is still present. But after an hour, Sam smiled as the second this happened.

He immediately went on with his usual plan as he unleashed a wave of undead over this place. For the next two and a half hours, all he could hear was howling and screaming as they cried their last words.

Sam sent the corpses to the second floor of the divine dimension. Generally, the corpses wouldn't be suitable to make them undead after a day and he might not need undead for the next day. But he is not willing to let them go and he used this cheat to keep them fresh.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 619: Catching a Boss

After cleaning the battle-field Sam and Chatur started moving to the cave. The previous night, Sam has made some critical modifications to the cave walls and now it has become a cave of one-way access.

Once someone stepped in they cannot go out. At least someone in this layer.

He also enchanted the inscribed formation and a spiritual imprint to get a message when someone stepped in. He could also feel someone else trying to destroy the formation and the seal.

Sam didn't care though. He is not worried someone would destroy it before he came.

After a short while, they are already near the cave. He saw a merman and a Naga trying their best to destroy the barrier of the cave. But as they are damaging the barrier bit by bit, the barrier is reflecting the attacks back at them and they are trying their best to dodge.

It is the same case inside the cave. No matter what the Yaksha inside is trying to do, every attack is being reflected back at him.

They don't have balls to attack with full power because, they are afraid that they would die due the reflection even if the barrier is destroyed.

When they saw Sky landing and Sam jumping off of him, they were stunned for a second. They saw Sam's picture. Their information network is too wide.

They instantly understood what happened.

"I heard the boss is coming here. Who is the boss of the three?"

"Why don't you find out?" The Naga said and got ready to attack and even the Merman diverted their attention to Sam.

"Are you sure you want to do this? I mean you would have a better chance to last more than three minutes if you have that friend of yours to come out. I would wait until you get him out. It might take some time, but I can wait."

"Well, we are trying to get him out and easiest way is kicking your ass and make you to take him out."

"You are more delusional that I thought."

As he said that Sam took out his staff and made his move. He jumped up into the sky and his body was covered with silver lightning as he shot himself down towards the two of them.

When they felt Sam's aura they are already having second thoughts. Sam might not have the best cultivation level of the Nascent stage cultivators, but his strength already reached the peak a Nascent could have. At least within this realm.

Even when the two of them moved to the side, Sam didn't care and landed on the spot as he stabbed the staff to the ground.

The shockwave was in the form of ripples as the lightning hit the surroundings in the form of consecutive waves making them stunned for a brief instant.

That was all he needed and Sam immediately made his move as he kicked the ground and launched himself to the Naga.

The staff hit the Naga like a lightning strike and made him paralyzed for an instant and Sam used this chance to give another good hit to his head.

The Naga who is in original form was sprawled on the ground as he has spasms all over his muscles and twitched as sparks crackled.

Sam diverted his attention to the Merman on the side who is stepping back in fright. He immediately took out what looked like a jade token, but it was completely covered in dark elemental energy, to be precise, it is shadow energy.

Sam frowned at this, but before he could make a move, that guy immediately broke the token and disappeared into his own shadow.

Meanwhile, the Yaksha inside the barrier also did the same. Sam instantly changed his focus back to the Naga he battered.

He is also trying to take out his token, but Sam stomped on his hand breaking his bones and holding his tail as he dragged him inside the cave.

When Sam walked, the barrier automatically removed itself as if it has life. The spirit is working properly.

Sam threw the guy inside and called Chatur over and gave him some pills to heal the Naga.

The Naga has black scales. He is definitely from the Nagin planet.

After he healed a bit, Sam took out the dagger and said.

"Listen to me. I will only ask a question once and if you don't answer it to me immediately, I wouldn't ask the second time, I will make you answer.

Now, out of three who is the boss of this layer of the Union sect?"

The Naga stayed silent and Sam looked at him with a smirk before stabbing the dagger into the tail.

"ARRRRGGGGG"

He groaned loudly and Sam didn't stop there, he slowly started cutting through the tail as he slit the end of the tail into two.

"AAAAAHHHHHHHHH."

Sam didn't stop though, he took out some fire elemental wine and started pouring on the split tail.

The screams increased and when he saw he is still adamant in not answering, Sam just threw a spark of flames on the spot and the tail started burning.

The blood that is seeping out of the tail was also burning giving off a metallic scent.

He started to roll over the ground, but Sam didn't let him. He held the tail and made him stay in a single place as he made sure that the fire wouldn't spread to his body.

He still held the fire elemental wine and looked at the Naga dead in the eyes as he started pouring on the flames as it slowly but surely started spreading upwards.

"I WILL TALK. I WILL TALK."

Sam put the fire out and looked him.

"We three are of equal status. I am from Nagin. My name Ishkar. The merman is Martya, the Yakha is Reye. We are appointed at the three people in-charge of this layer of the Union sect.

One of manages intelligence, one the troops and the other resource points."

"Now tell me, what your plan is regarding this civil war."

"We are only following the orders. We don't know details. All we are asked is to eliminate the Nagin castle's influence and at the same time try to find a way to start a dispute strong enough that the six commanders will kill each other."

"So, you chose me as a catalyst for all of this because?"

"Sectum came to us and offered you up. We don't know exactly who you are and what your goal is when you went on rampage and took out so many of our people. While we are trying to find out, Sectum came to us and gave the information about you and wanted to make a deal.

He wanted to undermine the Mov empire and eliminate the influence they have in the Union dimension.

So, we cut a deal and started planning this."

The interrogation went on and on continuously as Sam got every information he needed. This Naga happened to be the person who in charge of the troops assignment and Sam now knew which squad went where.

After that he put restrictions on him and decided to escort him to the Origin Castle.

He would let Chatur take him there out of this place and give him away to the officials of the country he was part of. The Mavros country. The Nagas with Black scales are the rules of this empire.

Apparently, every Union member is a convicted felon of a nation or the offspring of the senior Union officials.

And from the interrogation he learned that this guy is a convicted felon and actually murdered the son of a minister of the Mavros. He is worth a lot of bounty. But Sam is not after that. He after the favor of this minister and he would let Chatur deliver the message on who the minister clearly owes.

So, Sam drafted a letter up and gave it to Chatur before taking both of them to the Origin Castle and he personally made sure to see them both out.

He is not worried that someone would steal his credit, after all he is an expert at taking it back and Chatur can be trusted because of the Pill.

After handing that over, Sam made his move as he started his journey of dealing with the Union sect all by himself.

He is really glad that he had learned necromancy. Because he was not interested in making these people submit and train the soldiers and process the situations and he is also glad that he is not facing them head on.

All the while, he is going to ambush them and that too while they are in middle of intense battles.

Although draining, all he has to do is drink the heavenly wine. The only problem is that he is afraid he would turn into an alcoholic.

While flying on Sky, Sam started looking at the details that were given to him by Chatur. These are details of all the resource points under or supposedly under the Nagin castle.

Every place is a warzone now and he now has all the layouts and maps he needed. Now he also has the details regarding their resource output.

He is planning his target in an order, in which he would get some benefits from the resource points immediately after he cleared the battle-field.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Sam went to his first target army.

This is the point where most of Mov empire's troops are present and they are facing the heat of some elite squads of the Union sect.

Sam first decided to target this place as his main responsibility is towards the Mov empire's troops. He would put the Emperor in a difficult spot if he deliberately chose to ignore them and he might be able win some favors as many of the top dogs from the empire has sent their offspring to get chances here.

So, Sam decided to first spread his claws in this area.

But this time, he didn't work alone. He let all his beasts out as they are stuck inside the divine dimension for a long time as the Naga Loka is not a place they could come out openly. Except for Mia, everyone would have a hard time.

But since they can come out now, he decided to let them loose.

His first target was on a large grassland and he decided to make use of the chaos of the battle and enter the temporary base of the Union sect.

Half of the troops are currently on the battle-field and the other half are waiting to shuffle with them.

In this place, the Nagin castle still held the base as they used the castle to fight defensively. The Union sect is trying their best to wear them down and are shuffling. So, the first half always attacks until they are exhausted and will retreat slowly as the second half joins the front line.

Sam is waiting for the exhausted half to come to this place as that would be easier for him to deal with.

He prepared the undead around a fifty of them.

Currently, there are three hundred soldiers in the camp and another three hundred on the battle-field.

Sam waited until all these soldiers moved and entered the base camp as the other half are slowly making their way.

When they went to tents to take the necessary medical help and rest, Sam decided to make his move. His beasts all started their attacks from different directions. They rushed in with the attacks as Sam started running through the camp as he dropped the undead here and there meanwhile, his shadows that hid within some tents of the commanding personnel started their assassinations.

The camp turned into chaos and Sam started collecting the dead bodies as he has other uses for that.

It was continuous massacre. You couldn't help but smile when the Ape ran rampage straight through the tents when usually he would be handling all kinds of delicate works during wine brewing and such.

The owls surrounded the camp as they only had one task at hand and that is to not let anyone escape.

After an hour, Sam collected all the bodies and started moving towards the base where the fight is happening.

When he reached a certain point, he went into the divine dimension along with others and started making undead of all the three hundred corpses he collected. He was extremely exhausted and strained to the point that his skin went dry and he had nose bleeds.

He gulped the wine hard as he threw one undead after another as soon as he made them.

The beasts are also in the divine dimension for now and sensing the energy fluctuations from the castle, the undead started walking towards that direction.

When the Union sect forces saw the weak and injured bodies of their comrades, they felt like something is wrong and grew alert but they are not alert regarding their 'comrades' rather they thought an army is coming from the back. Only after they got close and bit one of their comrades did they understand what is happening.

After that, Sam already came out and he sat on Sky's back as he tried his best to recover his energy. He looked like a depraved otaku who hasn't eat and slept for days and spent all his time in front of a computer without even proper hydration.

It would take some time for him to recover. But there is not much he has to do. His beasts lined up beside him to defend him if he anyone attacks him and the Nagin Castle's troops from the castle too advantage and went full-scale.

There are some losses on their side but they still managed to win the war.

Sam once again collected the new corpses at least as many as he can and threw them inside the second floor of the tower.

Then walked into the castle casually.

This castle is a special one as this is also a resource point and a monthly resource point at that. The competition for this is extremely high because every month it will give a pill and the pill is not a medicine it is a memory pill much like the divine wills in the library of the divine dimension.

The pills contain memories regarding battle-techniques or cultivation of some high-level cultivators. They are extremely useful and when a fist user devours a pill contained fist techniques, he will improve faster with new insights.

Tomorrow is the time for the next pill to be out.

Sam just sat there before the room in which the pill appears without talking to anyone. He knew it would be futile to reason with these guys. He worked and killed for them and he knew they are the ones who will benefit with his actions in long run.

Particularly when he is sure that he would taking the most heat from the Union sect and would definitely fall into the eyes of some high-level character of the Union sect.

There is no way he would let go of any opportunity that could compensate for the suffering he would have to go through.

The next day morning, the door opened and inside the room there is a platform on which there is a small orb glowing.

Sam walked in and caught hold of it. No one talked even though many of them wanted to voice their objections.

Sam got a message in his mind.

This pill contains the insights of light element healing. He was surprised by this and stored it away before leaving the place.

"What pill is it?" The leader of the troops asked in a low voice.

Sam didn't reply though. He didn't want to say anything because he wanted to keep this to himself. The light element healing is a big thing in Naga Loka. Because most of them follow the wood element healing and for some reason, Nagas are not born with light element and are extremely rare and even them are not that talented. But light element healing has most immediate effects and everyone wanted it.

He would be pestered a lot.

That guy wanted to stop Sam but his deputy standing on the side stopped him.

Sam didn't care much as he came out and went away on Sky. He didn't want to use his energy to travel as he would need the energy for the necromancy and would need as much as he can have.

After reaching the next battle-field he almost followed the same tactics as he previously did for the next few days he killed hundreds of people clearing the battle-fields until finally he stopped killing and went to the Pearl Lake.

This time nobody dare to say a thing to Sam when he came and took the Pearl.

This time, the pearl has extremely concentrated water elemental energy and he threw it to Mia who absorbed and seemed to be pretty happy.

Sam took out a fire element stone and threw it inside the lake.

He observed as he saw the fire elemental energy getting into the oyster and the rest of the energy absorption from the atmosphere stopped.

Sam smiled at this and threw a load of fire elemental stones inside to see what would happen in the next week.

That day he went and joined another battlefield and took care of another squad. And after this, the Union sect suddenly retreated as they ran to their main base. They even abandoned their secondary bases and resource points as they were afraid of the sudden death named Sam.

By this time, Sam's name has already reached the upper layers of the Union dimension and the upper echelons of the Union sect.

Chatur came back the day after as Sam got his own castle. He came back with messages from the Minister of Marvos and the Mov Emperor.

The Minister said that he would owe Sam one and would pay it back when the time arises and the Emperor thanked him for the good job and also for saving the Flower boy from the Flavos.

Sam was also promised a special reward from Flavos, but what surprised him most is that there would be a new batch of candidates coming to the Union dimension and when he saw the list he was surprised because most of the names are familiar as they are his fellow players.

Even Arman is coming. He knew his leisurely time is about to be over and he has to speed up on the process of getting the herbs.