

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 741: Hidden Observer

"There are no sirens on this Planet," Raunak said in a surprised tone.

"No Sirens?"

"Yes. Because there is no sea on this Planet."

"No Sea? That is impossible."

"Why is it impossible? There is really no sea. Not a single person has seen this."

Sam didn't reply and went on deep thought. From what he learned, there is a decent water cycle happening on this planet. There are even monsoons happening now and then. That wouldn't happen without a decent-sized ocean on the planet.

Otherwise, with the consumption rate they have in the form of fruits, crops, and other things, there is no way the groundwater source can sustain. The planet's core is not a water elemental cultivator that can easily covert the active spiritual energy into the water.

Something is wrong with this.

He took out a map of the planet and saw the layout. There is really no sea mapped in and he didn't observe that at first because he was so fixated on the business and promotion. After some thought, he didn't proceed on the topic too much and said.

"Okay, I have a different product, but I don't know which department to consult."

"What product is it?"

"A food product. Made of coconut and wheat."

Sam spoke and took out a coconut biscuit.

The biscuit is not that special compared to the wine and everything else, but this thing can be really useful in battle. The coconuts here have high healing factors along with a calming effect on the brain. But what they lack is enough spiritual energy. Most of the spiritual energy is present in coconut water, which itself is a great supplement. The white flesh of the coconut has some healing and calming effects just like the water, but there is no water.

It is mostly used as an eating product just for its taste, there is not much use to it without the water.

But Sam found a way. He made a coconut biscuit. Just some normal recipes from the earth are extremely useful here and can make the spirit stones rain over his head.

Raunak ate the biscuit and was surprised by the effect. He could feel the taste of the rich coconut flesh but also the wheat flavor and the blend of both of them.

Sam made a small cut on Raunak's hand and the energy that entered his body because of the biscuit is mostly channeled to the wound, while removing his pain, calming his brain all the while increasing his natural speed of recovery.

This is a great thing that can be used between battles. Sam decided to take this back to his organization.

This really is a great addition to them.

"How many do you have like this? How difficult is the procedure?"

"It is not that difficult, but I am surprised that you guys didn't think of this a long time ago. After all you have both of these main ingredients for hundreds of years and it is easy to make. I couldn't find a plausible reason for not making this except for the sheer stupidity and ignorance."

Raunak ignored all the comments and said.

"Give me dozen, for now, I will meet a few people that might want to buy it. But this time the deal might be a bit hard to make. Faction 1 is avoiding you a bit and faction 2 just moved too many funds to buy things from you.

I never expected that they would have to use almost five billion to just get the wine recipes. I don't even know if that is worth it."

"Of course, you wouldn't. Do you really think they are okay with losing a stable market that was in the same state for centuries to a guy that just came out of nowhere? Much less there is a possibility that they would have lost it to faction 1 that is their rival since who knows when.

They couldn't only buy with overwhelming money. In fact, they are not really that valuable, but the necessity made them that valuable."

"Anyway, you are the one who made the money. But please do be careful. We learned that there are different people entering the city nowadays and most of them are mercenaries.

They are a bit dangerous and operate in the grey areas.

There is enough reason to suspect that they came to rob you out. You are just too enticing."

"I will be careful."

"Where are your friends?"

"They left to do something for me."

"I don't think this is a good time for that."

"They can save themselves."

Raunak just shrugged his shoulders and left the place along with a few boxes of coconut biscuits.

He first contacted Ragad and sent him a couple of biscuits but there is no response from him and the same thing happened with Ananya.

There is no response. He can understand this with Ananya because the lack of response is due to the lack of funds.

But Ragad has no excuse to do so. Raunak is a bit anxious when he noticed the change in the attitude of Ragad.

He couldn't help but think about that one person that could have possibly influenced faction 1 to go against him. Even though there is a possibility he didn't want to think worse of him and decided to ask someone that can verify it.

He hired a courier guy to send a box of biscuits and a wooden token with the information back to his mentor and waited for a reply. He really didn't want to ask his mentor for any help, but he is the only one who has enough connections to change anything in this deadlock.

Soon the night came and Sam is still in the camp. He is grilling the fish on the fire. The smell is spreading all over and some beasts in the forest are disturbed by it, but he didn't seem to care.

He just behaved as if he is in his own backyard.

After cooking the fish, he sat down and ate as he enjoyed the wine and the cold breeze. He is really enjoying the atmosphere of this place.

If only the people watching him from the dark that is standing not too far away, things would have been better and Sam would have let the beasts out to have an even pleasant time. Particularly the panthers. They didn't come out in a long while.

While Sam is eating, a group of people that didn't know that Sam already noticed their presence is trying to close the distance as stealthily as possible.

They are all Half-elves and all of them have a spear in their hands. Their movements, actions, and even the way they took breath are all same.

They all wore black clothes that are emitting a dark veil-like aura masking their presence. If it was anyone else they would have really gotten off unnoticed.

But the current situation is a bit different. Sam had energy vision for quite a while and this stealth is not good enough to fool that.

So, what the group doesn't know is that they are moving forward for their inevitable doom.

Sam didn't even bother to make a move directly and just activated the traps with a mere thought. He made some traps that could be masked by any form of scanning and detection. A person has to be at least Transcendent late-stage and also skilled in detection to find anything.

So, when the traps are activated, half of the group was already soaked in the biofuel.

Sam stood up from his makeshift dining table and took out his bow.

This action and the traps made the mercenary team anxious and they immediately made their move.

They are just too confident in their stealth that they believed that they are not the easy targets they are.

Sam shot one arrow after another that just brushed past the targets. Which increased their confidence in their abilities.

But if they saw the smirk on Sam's face, they would have thought otherwise. Sam deliberately made the arrows miss so that he can let their guards down.

He nocked another arrow and this time it was surrounded by a layer of flames and the arrow also caught extremely high temperature.

So when the arrow grazed past the half-elf, the result is not the same as before. The target started burning in orange flames in the middle of the forest.

The whole group finally noticed their trouble, but it was already too late. They are too near to Sam and too clear as targets, the next thing that happened in the arrows burning the team that was soaked in the biofuel.

As for the remaining, they wanted to escape in the fear of the fate of being burned alive. Sam wanted to make them experience this. But he is not going to let them get away.

And the reason for this is not his satanic pleasures, rather another message to someone else that is watching him from another corner.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 742: Testing

The shadow mice are doing their job extremely well. The first group of half-elves is easily noticed by Sam due to their movement. But there is a bigger threat hiding far away from the place that is watching him with a piece of special equipment.

He is too far away from Sam's spiritual sense, energy vision, and even with the zooming ability combined with his eye technique is not enough to get a clear image of that person. They are deep inside the forest kilometers away.

In fact, they were only noticed because shadow mice made a long trip around the forest on Sam's order so that he could use the whole forest as his operating base and set traps to defend himself.

They noticed this person who is completely covered in black clothes, almost similar to Sam's dark-cloaked attire and from the descriptions of the mice that saw him, he is using a device similar to a small telescope to look at Sam.

Sam only learned this now, but he didn't make any move against him. He wants to see what his goal is.

That is why he is creating such a gruesome and painful picture to his eyes so that he could see what Sam could do.

Anyway, it would be hard to observe all the minor details with just the naked vision. He wouldn't even be able to observe the traps from that far. Unless he is as resourceful as Sam.

Sam wanted to see to what extent that guy would stay there and how long he is willing to observe him and also send a small message to the people that sent this guy here.

After his goal was achieved, he went back to rest in his tent.

The next morning. The City guards once again came and asked about the mercenary team that moved to the forest last night after taking an assignment from the city guards and didn't report back and they are only met with a bunch of burned trees and Sam's lie of not seeing them.

The dead bodies disappeared after all.

And with Sam's necromancy, he found out that these mercenaries are only after him for the money. No one sent them here. So, this is just a minor case for him.

But Sam's plans slowed down a bit because of them. According to his own plan, he has to meet with that senior official who is in charge of the city guard who ordered the subordinate to send those ten criminals to Sam.

Then he would burn that house and that guy too and get his memories along with that. That was his original plan. But now because of this intervention, he has to change his plan.

The next day, Sam just went on with his relaxation. He ate fish, went hunting, cooked, and ate happily.

And at night, since no one came, he left one of the chess pieces in the tent and left to the city.

He didn't use the same approach as the day before though. The target is peacefully cultivating in the middle of the house and since he is a transcendent Sam decided to be a bit more cautious and first activated the soul formation to attack his mentality.

His caution was correct because, as soon as the formation disc appeared in the house, this guy became alerted and came moved towards the formation disc. But the activating didn't take as much time and the souls attacked his soul.

"ARRRRRRGGGGGGGGHhhh...."

The target held his head and screamed on top of his lungs.

Sam used this chance to throw the bottle at him which actually missed, but he is not disappointed. The other party has high senses and reaction time, but that doesn't mean they are invincible. The formation just started.

Sam threw a barrage of the bottles and soon the target and the rest of the house is soaked in the Biofuel.

Today Sam is not just looking to kill this guy, he also wants to test something, because this guy is a water element user along with the wood element.

He would like to see how the Bio-Fuel would work on him.

Sam set the house on fire and looked at the guy as he rolled on the ground. He is using the water element to put the fire off. Even though it is indeed resisting the fire a lot, it is not completely extinguishing it.

He mostly succeeded in stopping the spread of the flames than stopping the flame itself. The biofuel is continuously burning until it is completely burned out until the energy in it is completely consumed.

Sam just stood there and observed as he threw one bottle after bottle at the struggling person and soon that guy gave up. The bio-fuel is just too much. The quantity itself overwhelmed him.

But before he could completely burn out, the people are already surrounding the house that is burning.

Sam completed the necromancy and left the house.

After he returned, he replaced his chess piece and started contemplating the effects of the biofuel.

The main drawback is that the level of the sugar cane. The fuel can certainly destroy someone who is within a transcendent realm. But from the intensity, Sam could guess that it wouldn't do much to a consummate realm cultivator.

It can at most hurt them a little bit, but killing would be a problem.

It is just like Methane, but methane can be created by different beasts of different levels. All they have to be is pure fire elemental beasts.

But the sugar cane is different, it is the genetic property of the cane to be at that level, it doesn't have any natural upgrade directly to the next level where the biofuel made of that could seriously hurt the elves at Consummate realm.

After noting down the observations, he went through the obtained memories.

This time the memories revealed a familiar person. Sam saw this person many times and met with him.

He is none other than Ragad. He is the one that gave out the order. He placed a hit on Sam.

Sam is really a bit surprised.

The first thought that came to his mind is the beating Sam gave to him. But he dismissed that idea.

Because the five percent 'discount' is actually to make him stop having those thoughts. At least a normal person who is driven by the benefits will think twice before doing anything to Sam. It is a bribe so that they can put that behind them and continue with their business.

That is what it meant and he is sure that Ragad got the message. From what he knew through Raunak there is no report to the faction 1 members whatsoever that there is a five percent discount. It is a complete secret between Sam and Ragad.

There must be some reason behind this.

While he is thinking, Raunak came running to the camp and asked.

"What have you done? Why are you continuously killing people?"

"Why are you asking now? You didn't ask me before when that small-time official was burned down."

"Because I knew my place to not ask too much and I am sure that he is the guy that sent the criminals. But the person you killed tonight is the second in command of the city. In fact, if there is a crisis, he would be the real person in charge.

Do you even know the depth of these actions?

Do you know how big of an issue it is?"

Sam cut a coconut open and gave him to drink the water.

"Just because he is a guy with status, do you think I would just let them be? You are sorely mistaken. No one would be safe once they try something on me or my friends. It is just a natural consequence.

Just like how natural it is for fire to be hot and the ice to be cold."

"Those are natural laws, are you really comparing your revenge to natural law? Law is never a choice. But your revenge is an action made by your own choice."

"My choice is the Law."

"You are being too arrogant Sam. Not only will you implicate yourself, but you will also implicate your friends and me too."

Sam smiled at this and said.

"From how adamant you are sounding it seems like there is more to it than just your concern of your own implication.

You didn't react this strongly when I almost killed the Envoy from faction 2. You were pretty okay with that. Why are you so worried now? Are you hiding something from me?"

Raunak was stumped.

"I... I..."

He wanted to say something, but no words came out. Sam just shook his head and went back to enjoying his coconut.

Raunak took a breath to calm himself down and spoke.

"I suspect that someone I know might be involved in this."

"Someone you know means, the father of your lover?"

Raunak didn't say anything and just stayed silent.

"I am sorry if that is supposed to stop me from paying back, it wouldn't. The clash is inevitable if he is really involved. I can guarantee that your love wouldn't be involved in this any manner. Unless and of course, she comes and messes with me, I wouldn't do anything to her.

And that is because of our partnership.

But that immunity wouldn't apply to her father. If he is really involved you better think of a way to find out soon and make up your mind."

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 743: Buying the land

Days passed.

It has been a week since the biscuit samples were sent to Raunak's mentor.

Sam is silent for this week. There are some mercenaries here and there trying to attack him. But the one he cared most about is still the person that is watching him from a long distance. By now, Sam already installed his surveillance devices near that person's position with the help of shadow mice and is watching the whole scene.

And it turned out, it is not a single person that is watching him. They are taking turns. And once this became clear, Sam sent a mouse to follow one of the people that are leaving and it led to a cave in distance.

There is a tunnel inside that cave that led to an underground cave. The shadow mice didn't manage to infiltrate that place, because in their own words. They sensed an aura of a natural predator inside.

They didn't want to go inside. Sam also didn't push them. For now, he has an idea of their exact location. So, he can prepare for something.

As for his next target on this side, Ragad, Sam didn't want to make a move immediately. For now, it is easy for him if faction 1 makes a deal with him if Ragad was present here.

He doesn't want to make the new substitute understand what exactly is happening.

But what he doesn't know is, Ragad is currently quaking in his boots as he sat on his bed within the City.

It has been a while since he even dared to come out. All his personal guards are outside his room and he even called for some extra help with the local faction 1 members.

But the problem is even faction 1 and faction 2 are alerted with the continuous deaths and disappearances.

Everyone in the official positions knew that the mercenaries that are going into the forest are all going there for Sam. But all of them are disappearing by the time city guards get there.

As for the deaths of two officials and one of them being the person in charge of the whole city, security is causing a serious backlash.

Particularly, to the newly elected city lord. Faction 1 won this time and with a significant margin. They are managed to push faction 2 back. Sam didn't influence these elections much, so he didn't care. But it has something to do with most towns getting faction 1 as their leader.

Now as soon as faction 1 took over two officials died and everyone knows that both of them belonged to faction 1.

This not only caused unrest in the people, even faction 2 is trying to take advantage of the situation. They are questioning the credibility and competence of the new city lord blatantly and the faction 1 officials are trying their best to defend.

But both parties knew who is responsible for the deaths. Even though they didn't believe that Sam killed them directly and there is no proof of significant evidence supporting their suspicions, they are sure that 'people behind him' are responsible for the deaths.

Only one person in the city has benefitted and that is Raunak. Even though he is tense and anxious because of the possibility of a conflict between Sam and his future in-law, he is really relieved with all kinds of tensions.

No one has found trouble with him in the past few days. He was as free as bird.

On this day, he finally got a reply from his mentor.

There are two separate documents. The first one is the document regarding the coconut biscuits. There is a high-grade military official that wants to send someone to discuss the deal. But they don't just want the recipe. They want an already established factory.

The best part of this is that the military officer is not from any faction. He is a person just like Raunak, he was an orphan who grew up with his own achievements without any support. Now he is supporting some of these neutral members within the military.

They are an elite force and they have quite a bit of sway within the military.

But the second document is something that is making him feel a bit conflicted.

It was mentioned that it is indeed the father of his lover that placed a hit on Sam's head.

This made him more angry than anxious.

He is angry because there is a pact between them. He was promised that he wouldn't be disturbed in his growth. He even wanted to ask for an oath. But he didn't want to hurt the feelings of his lover and now it seems like he made a mistake.

He didn't want to think the worst of the people. Even when he was an orphan and struggling, he didn't think the worst of the world because someone helped him get out of that situation. But as time passed and the more he experienced, the more wrong he felt.

He slowly walked out of his residence and made his way to Sam's camp.

Currently, Sam is cooking some wish. He is trying to make a curry and the smell is spreading far and wide.

For the past few days, he is trying to recreate the dishes of earth. He might be in grave danger, but he is not that worried. As far as he was concerned, the situation is still under complete control.

When Raunak came with that gloomy face, Sam asked.

"Is there any news? It has already been a week."

"There is some news, a military official is willing to purchase that. But they just don't want the recipe, they also want a factory in which they can easily make the biscuits."

"That's not a problem, but they should be willing to pay for that too."

"Of course, there is no problem regarding the budget. As long as it is not overpriced that is. They are a special unit in the military and they have enough funds."

"Then that wouldn't be a problem, just look for a property..."

But Sam wasn't even able to give the requirements before he was interrupted.

"No, you wouldn't be able to buy anything in the city. Nobody would be selling you anything."

"Really? Since the people are unwilling, what about the government?"

"The government?"

"Yes, I would like to buy this area."

Sam said as he extended his hands and pointed to the expanse they are in.

"You want to buy this area."

"Yes, from what I know this forest doesn't come under the city limits, but it would still be under the city's authority. Since you are a special office, try to use that to strong-arm them into selling this area to me. They have no reason to reject this since it is extra revenue for the city.

This would also help you clear some targets in your tax. After all, tax is essentially revenue, so you can make the case and add this to your required target. If there is any opposition, just tell them that you would meet with the Elder's committee."

Raunak thought for a bit and nodded his head.

"Then what about your future father-in-law. Have you gotten any information on that end?"

Sam asked and this made the atmosphere tense.

Raunak's reaction of clenching his fists and the gloomy face clearly showed what is happening.

"Why is he targeting me? Is it just because he wanted to mess your plans or is there any other reason?"

"No, there is nothing else. He just wants to stop my promotion."

"You are smart and cautious enough to ask me to give you that forest spirit oath. Why didn't you do the same to that guy? Don't tell me, you thought that he would keep his word just for his daughter."

Raunak's face turned even uglier which made Sam understand that his guess was spot on.

"What a naïve kid you are.

Anyway, don't worry too much. He wouldn't be able to do anything to me. All you have to do is make sure that you keep the procedures in the administration wouldn't encounter any problems. I will take care of everything on this site.

By the way, how much do you think this land costs."

"Around thirty million."

"That much? Why is a land so pricey here?"

"It is because of the elven culture, they just value the land a lot. Since we worship the forest and agriculture, every piece of land is valuable to us."

"With your elves, everything has become expensive here. I never thought I would be earning money this easily but also spending that easily.

Just finish with the procedures. Money is not a problem anyway.

Is there a way to hire any artisans that are specialized in construction?"

"I think that would also be a problem. There is not a single person in the city that wants a business deal with you."

"Well, that's okay. At least they cannot violate the existing agreements. I will take care of the construction. But speed up the procedures, I want to start it early and I don't want to get in trouble with the government as soon as I start the construction."

"Sure."

Raunak was about to leave and turned around to ask Sam.

"Are there more targets in your mind?"

"Yes."

"Who is the next one?"

"Some stalkers and then our old business partner."

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 744: Therapy

Raunak finished the procedures on the same day. He is especially fast and he is clearly seemed disturbed.

He brought the documents to Sam by evening.

Sam already paid for this.

It really is expensive for such a small piece of land. Even though the area is considered huge for even a mansion, it is still too much to pay thirty million for such a land.

"Do you have any backlash to add this to your target amount?"

"No, they agreed immediately. There is no problem with normal officials. Only the officials that are completely involved with factions are giving me trouble.

For some reason, my situation seemed to have spread through the upper administration of the city. Faction 1 is trying to suppress me with that infamous disdain and faction 2 is distancing themselves from me so that they wouldn't end up helping me in case I join faction 1 in the future."

Raunak explained.

Sam gave out a beer and asked him to take a seat before speaking.

"But this doesn't seem to be the problem that is bugging you. Do you want to talk about it?"

"It's just...." Raunak wanted to say something, but it is as if he couldn't find any words.

"The world is so fucking unfair?"

Raunak nodded.

"I thought you were an orphan."

"I am."

"Then why didn't learn this earlier?"

"Learn what?"

"That the world is unfair. You should be one of the people that should know that the world is not supposed to be fair."

"But why?" Raunak asked him in a weak voice.

Sam just smiled and let him continue.

"Why is it so unfair? Is it really too much to ask that I get what I work hard for? Is it too much to ask that?"

"Of course, it is too much. Why should you get what you want just because you worked hard? Everyone works hard. Every single creature works hard. It is the easiest thing one can do.

If you want something, you have to prove that you want it, you have to show that you need it, you have to need it as much as you need air to breathe as if you would die if you don't have it. But there would be people trying to steal that too.

Because, because of your desire, they are losing something they desire, you have to fight for it. But they are strong, the world has only one goal, to bring you to your knees, but you have to resist, refuse, deny and grit your teeth to stand up.

Not whine and cry.

You seemed to have gotten help at a very young age.

But you were just lucky.

And luck runs out soon and you would come to a point where you have to make your own luck and this is one of those points.

You just have to face it."

Raunak really wanted to say something, but he couldn't. His throat is feeling heavy and he is feeling extremely conflicted. He is really feeling that everything is unfair. He wants to scream to the sky and question everything and anything about why it is happening to him.

Sam couldn't help but chuckle. He was like that. But when he was in that state, he is a lot younger. Way too young to contemplate the fairness and unfairness. He doesn't even know what that actually meant.

Maybe that helped him adjust easier. Since he knew little he was able to satisfy himself with that.

But Raunak is different, he seemed to have been rescued from the honest reality with some help and now he is facing real pressure.

Maybe this incident is the breaking point, but Sam is sure that there are a lot of accumulated incidents that must have lead to this point.

He could have already experienced most of it in the school he went for his bureaucracy. But the love of his life made him reach this point.

Sam looked at him and said.

"If you want to cry, then cry. But make sure no one sees it. A person's tears are extremely valuable. You cannot let the world see you shedding them for its cruelty. It would take that weak point and tear you apart.

You can only cry in the embrace of the person you love the most or you in the company of the person you trust the most.

So, hold those tears until you meet your lover. Trust me on one thing. If I see a man crying in front of me, the first thing that comes to my mind is not to help him wipe them off. It is to think of a way to use it against him so that he would be useful to me.

So, you better not cry in front of me."

"What should I do to escape this madness? What should I do? I feel so lost and powerless."

"Then find a way to get that power."

"How?"

"How did they get it?"

Sam asked in return.

Raunak looked a bit confused.

"How did the people in power get their power? They have to gain it themselves. It is not going to fall in your hands, if it does you will have to struggle to keep it there.

You have to struggle for the power you need. Struggle every day to be more powerful than yesterday. Your every step and every breath should be focused on that one goal to gain what you want.

If you are not that desperate, then the world will eat you alive."

Raunak took a deep breath and he asked Sam.

"Tell me what to do. I will do anything to get out of my plight."

"Don't make promises you can't keep. For now, let us get out of this situation. The more these people try to stop you, the faster you have to finish your task. You are right under their eyes, completely giving away your every step.

The first step you have to take is to blind them to their knowledge.

Stop playing by the rules they set in the game. If you want to change the game don't be so passive. There are many other active ways, beating them in their own game, changing the rules to your own advantage, or destroying the whole fucking game.

Now go home and think of a way to change the way you play. I can give you instructions, but if I did, you would be needing them for your whole life.

So, you better think of it on your own and get out of their grip then you can think of making your own power."

With that he sent Raunak back.

Looking at that leaving elf, Sam couldn't help but shake his head.

"What is wrong with me? Giving these therapy sessions. It almost felt like I am life coach or something."

He muttered to himself and went back to work.

The first thing he did is to remove the tent and cleared the area. He uprooted the trees, grass, bushes, plants, everything that is not land was taken away and the earth element really did help him do that easily within the night.

Soon there is a large expanse of normal land ready for construction.

But there are not many suitable materials nearby that could support the structural integrity he needed. But Raunak is sure that he wouldn't be able to buy any of these things as they are monopolized by the construction companies themselves.

So, Sam has to take everything out of his divine dimension, which would lead to another problem. The administration would grill him about the origin of the material.

Sam is thinking of a proper alternative and soon he got one. He cannot use the resources that are not from here, but he can manipulate and modify the available resources a bit and think of a way out.

So, the first thing he did it, take out the ingredients for the cement that was created by one of the students.

After the cement was invented with the residues and extracts of plants and animals, Sam kept those plants and animals in divine dimension, breeding them.

This cement might come in handy someday and that someday is right here.

He went looking through the expanse and gathered all the rocks irrespective of size and gathered the sand from the bed of the lake.

He laid down a formation to dry it so that he can eliminate all the foreign materials like the stone fragments, carcasses, and all the other waste that was deposited under that lake.

After separating them with the earth elemental energy and mixing the cement in various proportions he started making concrete with the stones and rocks he gathered to create a decently solid structure without any elemental usage or modification is done on it.

If the structure is solid enough without any of Sam's extra modifications, he decided to fuse the whole structure to a granular level to provide extra strength.

For the next two days, he went on with the experiments and finally got what he wanted. Now, it is about time he started the construction.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 745: Visiting the Stalker

Sam is not alone in his construction. He did the first step which is making the concrete slabs on his own and he would need to continue doing so. But the rest of the work could be left to someone else.

For example, his shadows. Even though he can take his beasts out too, he is not exactly comfortable with that hidden observer breathing down his neck.

As for why he is not going and dealing with them directly, he was waiting for the word from Raunak about the involvement of his future father-in-law. He wanted to know this information to decide on his approach.

If he was not involved, he would have just dealt with them and be done with it. But now that his involvement is there, he would have to think of a different way. He has to make sure that his message goes through.

Even if this group of people particularly didn't come from that guy, he would make use of them to give that message.

As for why this future father in law has special treatment, it is simple. If it is a political backlash, Sam would only need power but doesn't have to show it all to the opponent and leave them in mystery so that they can hold them back.

After all, fighting for power will still make them have some reservations, they have to be treated in such a way that there is an unexplored terrain in front of them. They shouldn't know what they are stepping into. Their only knowledge should be that the terrain is dangerous.

But when they are fighting for their pride, ego, and any other emotions, they have to be given a mad scare. It will either provoke them to the point they can no longer keep their sanity or they would be scared enough to keep mum for a significant amount of time.

So, before he did something to them, he is keen on finishing this construction. This would also send a different kind of message.

That he wouldn't be stopped just because of the restrictions he placed on him.

Sam worked fast. Most of the lifting and placing was done by the shadows. He deliberated on taking the MInotaurs out, but after some thought, he didn't think it was a good idea.

As for placing the slabs on top of each other, those things are done by Sky.

The most difficult and time taking thing is creating the slabs themselves. Not the stacking them or even fusing them.

For the next four days, he was working on it continuously. After getting a hang of mixing this concrete, he left that work for the Ape and mostly focused on fusing them.

He even laid down a formation to reduce the hardening time by a lot.

Except for the occasional meteorite attacks, the construction went on smoothly.

Within ten days it was done.

He was satisfied with the work he had done. Even though it is not aesthetically pleasing to the eye and the color is not exactly what someone wants to look at, it is a structure that would hold up.

After finishing the construction, Sam went to visit Raunak.

In the past few days, all the city people are curious about Sam. Many of them knew that he pissed off some officials. But they don't know exactly what he did. They were completely denied to sell anything to him.

They are wondering how he would survive as they knew that he is a businessman. A businessman with no other businessmen in touch, which would be a hard thing to overcome.

But they came to know that he is building something in the forest without anyone's help. Everything was done on his own.

This is enough to raise their interest.

Particularly, some men in the construction business are extremely interested in this, so when they saw Sam coming into the city, they have some expressions of greed and there are some people moving into the forest.

Sam went to meet with Raunak. He had to wait a while because Raunak is busy with something. Only after a few minutes, did Raunak came out of the office of the City lord. His expression is cold and unfeeling. Completely unlike his usual self.

"Factory is finished."

Sam didn't beat around the bush and make any small talk.

"Let's go then. All I have to do is record some images of the factory and send them back. Then they would send their representative here."

Both of them started walking to the camp.

"Was all the land you bought used up?" Raunak asked as they walked.

"Not really. There is a lot of space left. The factory for biscuits is not that big. It at most used up half the land."

"Then can I rent a place from you? I need a new office."

"New office?"

"Yes, didn't you say that I need to get out of their grip? In the city lord's office, everyone from faction 1 holds certain high places. They are all keeping an eye on me and they only have one agenda to make life difficult for me. Even though they are not interrupting my administrative matters for some reason, they are sending all the news to that guy.

It would be hard to know what might happen if I was there. At least for now, the deal involved the military and this unit is too special for them to make any move. So, they wouldn't do anything for now. But the same couldn't be said to other deals.

Since I don't need too many approvals from the city lord's office, I decided to distance myself from them. Except for the land dealings and the involvement inside the city, I wouldn't come into contact with them."

"Sure, you can stay there. I don't have any problem."

As they reached the camp, there are sounds of agony coming from there.

Raunak was surprised a bit and asked.

"What happened?"

"Some people might have entered the factory."

They entered the camp only to see some people on the ground crying in pain. They have cut limbs, broken bones and there is even a person that died.

Sam walked into seeing that Ape and Sky are still doing their work. They are currently ordering the shadows around and making the biscuits.

Raunak was a bit surprised to see the five shadows, but he remembered the account of some farmers in cane town about these shadows that helped them in guarding the fields.

He started recording some images of the factory and some images of the production line before going back to the city to hire a courier to send them back.

The couriers are special occupations, to be a qualified courier, one has to meet certain criteria and normal people cannot be couriers. Only civilians can. Because the courier should have permission to travel between different planets.

If a human or centaur can become a civilian, they wouldn't become couriers as they would have a significant status already.

So, couriers are all elves.

They also have to take a forest spirit oath, that they wouldn't compromise the information or any item that was on their hands no matter how valuable it is. They would be dead before they betrayed the information.

They are the category of the people that could be blindly trusted by most of them. Anyway, the information was addressed to that special military unit. The factions wouldn't even have the balls to steal it.

After sending the courier. He worked with Sam to make an office for himself. He shifted most of the documents that should be placed in the office here.

With Sam's help, they have enough defensive measures.

The city lord sent some more documents to fill in the remaining administrative procedures for the shifting of the office.

Now they are two things to do. The first one is to wait for the envoy that would be sent by the military unit and the second one is getting rid of the observers.

Sam is thinking of various ways to deal with them. Burning alive is certainly an option. But he has to think of a different way, only one message is never enough.

He has to make it traumatic enough.

Not just for the people that experienced it, but also for the people that hear about it.

After some thought, he decided to become a mad scientist once again. He started taking various poisons and other plant extracts and made a simple modification to his claws.

In his previous life, claws are Sam's favorite of all weapons, with all the tweaks he made to them, he used them as a go-to in any close combat situation. But when he came here, he has so many other options and there was no longer that burning desire to wear those claws.

That special bond or savagery that was hidden inside him prompted him to wear claws every time has disappeared and he would only use them when he is extremely angry and has a desire to tear some lives apart.

In fact, he is a bit happy that this happened. Now they are nothing but normal weapons to them.

And he is going to use them in special situations where they are needed to do something not normal.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 746: Entering the Cave

That night, Sam left the camp with the help of the shadow mice. He left the shadows in the camp as they worked to make an illusion that he is still ordering them around.

Soon, Sam reached the spot where the observer is located.

There is a large rock on which the observer sprawled on the ground and looked through that small telescope without any movement. He is extremely stable and there are not too many energy waves around him.

A normal cultivator can easily ignore him if he hid like this.

Sam came out of the divine dimension. He is currently wearing his cloaked black clothes and is in his shadow mode.

The observer flinched a bit and turned around to look in the direction where he felt an extra presence looking at him.

But he didn't find anything. He just looked around for a bit and after finding out there is nothing, he went back to his observation. But as soon as he turned, his body jerked.

He turned his head around as much as possible to look at what is on top of him only to see a dark shadowy figure leaning onto him with a metallic claw impaled into his back.

Sam held the observed in his place and placed his second claw on his neck and pressed it so that he would stay quiet while the first claw is working.

Sam made a very simple but detailed modification to the claws. It is around the small hole left there to make poison flow through the claws, this time, he created an extremely small hollow compartment in which he can either secrete poison directly into or place some external liquid.

When he impaled the claws, he would be able to inject the contents into other's bodies more effectively than just scratching. But this would take a little more time. At least three seconds which is actually a short but also long time within the battle.

He even made a special modification where he can place a small cartridge on the rear of the claws which is directly connected to these hollow compartments. The liquid in the cartridge will be constantly moved to the hollow compartments which in turn can be used for injection.

Currently, Sam is using three different liquids in the body. The first one is the paralytic poison, the second one is actually a medicine that is a blood essence of a fire-type beast and the third one is the blood essence of an ice-type beast.

And he is injecting the last two liquids in large quantities.

From the side, there is a bee puppet recording everything that is happening. After injecting everything, Sam could feel the energy fluctuations inside the observer's body. He then took out medicine that can alleviate the effects of the paralytic poison and force-fed that guy before getting up and setting him free.

The observer wanted to attack Sam, but he felt like his body is collapsing. His whole body is feeling like burning and freezing all at the same time. He couldn't even speak.

He wanted to yell and scream but no voice is coming out.

After noticing that Sam is not making a move, he decided to try his last chance at survival that is to meet the rest of his companions. He forcefully stood up and tried to run, but he couldn't. His legs are also acting in a weird way.

He walked down stumbling here and there for every step to reach his team before something happens. He has a feeling that as long as he got rid of his hot and cold energy, he can live.

Sam didn't follow him. He just let the bee puppet follow that guy and record everything while he picked up the telescope that was left behind.

It is not that long. It is at most as long as the forearm.

Sam looked through it and he was surprised to see the range. He can not only see the camp but even the city wall and the city.

There are many inscriptions placed on it and there are many options. He was clearly not expecting such a piece of work to be here.

There are many things he can learn and refer to this and he can see himself getting new ideas. He could really use a meeting with a person that made this.

He stored the telescope away and followed the route the observer did.

Soon he caught up. He didn't do much too observed. The paralytic poison is not just to keep him stationary, but also to make his bodily functions halt a little bit which would let the two blood essences that are being injected mix with the blood easily.

Now that they are mixed and they are injected in such a large quantity and also since they are also two different elements that are extremely conflicting, they are trying to take over the bloodstream and combating each other. And on top of that, the elemental energy of the person himself is also in question which would try to battle the two foreign entities that are taking their own home ground as their battlefield.

If only fire blood essence or the ice blood essence were injected, the effect wouldn't have been this great.

Three elements clashing is causing him to have a seizure. If he wasn't injected with the paralytic poison, then he would have had a minute chance to stop the foreign elements from wreaking havoc.

But now it was gone.

Sam leisurely followed him as he timed the speed of that guy.

He injected the quantity with a certain estimation of the time. But it didn't reach the desired effect. He wanted the person to struggle until he reached the underground cave entrance and see his companions before he died, but it didn't seem to be the cave.

Because as soon as he reached the outer cave entrance he fell. He is weaker than Sam thought.

Sam just went towards him and extracted the soul and made the specter get the memories.

He wants to see if there is anything useful and soon some useful info did come out. When he saw the images, he couldn't help but feel a bit surprised and excited.

The memories confirmed many of Sam's suspicions. One of them is that this group is responsible for meteorite attacks. But it is not an attack of a single person. It is a group attack.

The second thing, they indeed belong to faction 1 and they are indeed sent by the Raunak's future inlaw.

He knew this because he asked for the images of that guy and his daughter before doing this.

And it turned out that guy just didn't send any other force. This force is something directly under his control and he gave the orders to them directly without any intermediary like how the attacks on him through the criminals took place.

In fact, that criminal attack is just to gauge his strength. It was to make these observers understand just how strong he is.

Sam was surprised that he got so much information just from one scout.

He looked at the body that is still under the influence of the two opposite elements clashing. The hair is burning on one side while it is frozen on the other. One arm has become an ice while the other was cooked.

He cut open the chest and placed something in his body before kicking him down the slope that leads to the underground cave.

The Bee puppet followed the body recording everything while Sam followed the puppet down the way.

After the body hit the ground, some limbs that are frozen collapsed. There are several cloaked figures inside the underground cave all waiting.

There are a total of twenty-nine people all cultivating or practicing their battle skills when the body hit the ground.

The nearest to the entrance looked at their comrade's dead body that too in such a weird state, couldn't help but feel angry and run towards it.

When they saw that there is something in the chest of the body, they are even more infuriated.

There is no way they could tolerate it.

They tried to pull the metallic thing out and it is actually a grenade. But it is not a grenade with a trigger switch, rather is a grenade with a pin all it takes is a small modification after all.

Sam locked the pin with a bone in the rib cage, so when they pulled it forcefully, the pin was removed and before they knew what is happening, the grenade exploded within the hand of the holder.

The group moved back, while that one person has his hands mangled.

Sam who is slowly descending the slope and staying in the place with his earth elemental energy, looked at the explosion and couldn't help but smile.

Whenever he pulled out these grenades in a new place, he managed to fool them easily.

They don't really think twice about what that thing could have been before pressing or triggering it leading to their foolish loss.

He jumped down the slope to land down along with the bee puppet that slowly descended beside him.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 747: Great Team

Sam looked at the twenty-nine people who are all wearing cloaked clothes. In fact, Sam could nicely blend in.

But he is not supposed to ask that because of the killing intent that the twenty-nine members emitting. It is not an appropriate thing to ask or even think about.

He looked at the person whose hand was mangled and blood is seeping out.

That man is an elf and Sam could only guess that from the scent of the blood. These guys are that covered up. Except for the Centaurs though. Only their faces and the torso are covered. Their body is too big and huge to hide.

A person who is similarly cloaked walked forward and looked at Sam before asking.

"Who are you?"

"Someone you might be looking for."

The person who seemed to be the leader of the group narrowed his eyes and looked at Sam carefully. It is as if he is trying to pick on anything that could give Sam's identity away.

"Why would we look for you?"

"Then why would you be placing this guy there? To look at bathing ladies in the city?" Sam asked as he pointed at the first observer.

The group was offended and was about to make a move. For some reason, the rest of the group is not talking. Sam couldn't only think of two reasons. One is the team being a great team with proper hierarchy in place and everyone accepting it and being in their place.

Or the second reason which could be probable brainwashing of the team that they wouldn't talk when their leader is talking.

Both cases make the team multiple times dangerous than it would normally is when they are separated and have their own thoughts.

But Sam is not worried. He observed the body language of everyone. They are all in a battle stance ready to attack him anytime waiting for their leader's order.

"We are observing Sam. If you are here on his behalf, we would like to know what your relationship with him is. In fact, we can talk this out and settle without a need for battle and bloodshed."

"Really, how do you think that would work?"

"It is really simple. Our main problem is not with the way you are operating or the businesses that you are starting. It is the fact that you are helping the business official Raunak.

We don't like that. So we are here asking you to stop it. If you do that, not only will you be able to avoid the problems that are coming to Sam at the moment, we can even help you buy whatever businesses you have and give you a reasonable price for that.

Apart from that, you can also join the faction. With your battle ability and the battle ability of Sam which we observed in the past few days, you will be highly valued.

This is a great deal if you ask me. If I was in your position I would take it."

"You were never my position. So don't give me that advice. Anyway, I am not taking it. So what is the other option you might suggest?"

"Then we have to use forceful measures to make you stop."

"Like those meteors, you guys have been throwing down from the sky?"

Everyone was stumped for a second.

"Do you really think that you are so hidden and so stealthy? You are all over the place if you ask me."

This time the leader didn't reply. He took a deep breath and said.

"Battle formation 8. Engage."

As soon as he spoke, the twenty-nine members moved. All of them spread all over the cave with their energies riling up.

The cave is not too big. Even these thirty members don't have any privacy here.

They are all staying in a small space. It would actually be disadvantageous to the group itself. If an attack misses, Sam would be able to escape and even use another team member as a meat shield. Every time, he dodges, the attack would hurt some other person.

Sam activated energy vision to give a quick scan over the area to see if there are any traps of inscriptions and formations.

That is what he would do to have a better defense. But these guys seemed to have too much faith in their stealth that they didn't make any of such preparations.

But Sam learned that he was sorely mistaken and underestimated his foes.

They are not just a proper team, but they also know how a team fight if they want to lose. They didn't do any of the common mistakes which Sam could easily take advantage of. They didn't underestimate him. They didn't hold back and they worked as a team.

There are many earth element users in the team and they are all channeling their energy to the ground surface through which they started the first attack.

Their first target move is to create a sudden pit under Sam's feet with an element of surprise.

But Sam didn't fall for that, he was using energy vision at that point and if he wasn't this would have worked. He escaped it at a last-minute and jumped from the spot. But at this moment, a large rocky protrusion came from the side of the cave wall to slam into Sam.

Sam who is in the middle of the air used his incredible dexterity to its limit and managed to change the position of his body and kicked the protrusion to move to a different side.

But there is another protrusion already waiting for him in that direction.

Sam once again used the same method, but this time as soon as he kicked the protrusion, the surface changed and instead of a solid protrusion it turned into a trap that could hold his leg in the place.

Sam had to use the water and wind element to create a pressurized explosion to escape the trap and he used the wind energy to reduce the fall.

But when he was falling down another protrusion came from the floor.

Sam didn't like playing this game anymore and his body underwent earth elemental fusion. Even though it is partial he is sure that it is sufficient for the current fight.

He slammed the foot into the coming protrusion with a maximum force which made the protrusion turn into a bunch of rocky rubble.

Sam landed on the ground and he stomped on the surface while injected the earth elemental energy into it as his own energy overtook the position of the opponent's energy with the ripple style.

When that happened, he quickly made sure that the surrounding earth is under his control and slowly started spreading the energy so that enemies wouldn't be able to do anything.

All this while only the earth elemental users attacked. Which are half of them. The rest of them didn't attack at all.

Sam looked at them coldly.

This is one tough team and there is even a faint trace of admiration in his heart towards them. But that is probably not a good thing. Because whenever Sam felt admiration towards his friends, he would grow closer with them. But when it was for enemies, he thought of ways to kill them faster.

And now he is doing exactly the same.

He looked at the protrusions that are coming from all directions. Currently, he is wearing claws, which will not give much access to the punching ability, but he can use chops, elbows, and even some palm strikes.

So he decided to go with it and started destroying every protrusion that came near him. He didn't use any of his elements.

The leader who is watching the situation closely frowned. He clearly noticed that Sam used the water element and wind element along with the earth element. Even though three elemental users are rare in the desolate realm and the Naga Loka. It is actually common in this realm.

It is rare but not to the point of making people feel extreme shock. Because, the elves are gifted with wood elements by nature and due to their innately superior body and talent, they easily awaken another element and some talented ones even awaken two elements.

So, three is not much of a big deal. But there is no wood element in Sam's attacks which made it hard for the leader to digest this.

All this time, he has a feeling that Sam might be an elf.

As there is speculation about the person behind Sam and it was always imagined and discussed as an elf living in recluse.

But now he has other thoughts.

And he is also thinking about why Sam is not using the water element and wind element when he is being barraged by the attacks.

He made some gestures with his hands and the cultivators are all moving. The remaining half joined the first half and only the team leader stood in the center.

Soon, the protrusions and the rocky throws are enveloped with fire attacking Sam with a fused attack from all sides.

This made it a little difficult for Sam, but what they don't understand is subconsciously they are feeling a little heavier than useful as if their weight has been increased.

Even though they didn't seem to have noticed this, it could be clearly seen in their actions, they are all using excess energy to move at a normal speed.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 748: Stone Pythons

The battle went on and on, but Sam only used earth element and smashed the attack as if he was a brute.

The leader didn't feel happy about it though, because it would be crazy and extremely idiotic of him to expect a person who could go past his realm of cultivation and burn a transcendent person alive just by acting like a brute.

It would be extremely stupid of him if he really did think so.

He started thinking and observing the surroundings. Soon, he did realize one thing. The team is struggling a bit. They had to make more effort to move and also more effort to create the protrusions or the rocks that are flying towards Sam.

There is a faint resistance that they are unable to notice in the heat of the battle. In fact, he felt that he wouldn't be able to notice it if he is the middle of the battle.

After observing the situation, he looked at his own feet and body and tried to walk a bit without using any spiritual energy and it confirmed his guess.

There is indeed a significant resistance but it seems to have gradually grown which made it seem insignificant.

He looked at Sam in shock.

Sam looked back at him and couldn't help but feel a bit surprised himself. The opponent realized his trick faster than he thought.

He felt like he would be able to trick them a bit more.

Since it is not going to happen, Sam decided to make a move. Before the team leader could issue any commands, Sam's energy riled up and the gravity in the whole cave skyrocketed immediately.

Everyone's knees buckled due to the sudden force of attraction that is pulling them down.

Sam took advantage of the situation and made his move. He lunged at the two nearest targets and impaled the claws into their throats and started injecting the blood essences.

There are two main reasons for using the blood essences. One of them is that he wanted to inflict the pain that couldn't be alleviated normally by any medicine of normal treatment. A pain that makes them feel helpless.

The second reason is to see what kind of reactions a body would have when it was forcefully injected by the blood essences.

The Intake of blood essences is actually a common thing. Many people do that, but the blood essence had to go through a series of refinements that would make it possible for a cultivator to digest them easily.

There are some cultivators that can take the blood essence in its raw form. For example, the beast cultivators, the beast-men, and cultivators of extremely superior bloodline can dominate any form of a beast bloodline that was injected into their body.

Even though elves are portrayed as the most superior race in modern earth's myths, they are not that great actually. They are right above the Yakshas, who are slightly superior to Nagas and the humans.

The blood essences are causing the required effect.

Sam injected into their throats and they couldn't do anything about it.

They held their throats due to the pain that was caused by the claws, but they don't know that the worst is yet to come.

Both of them are earth element users and they are humans. They don't have a second element, so Sam injected fire and ice once again.

The body started reacting to the blood essence and the clash began. His skin color is shifting from red and icy blue.

Sam didn't stop there, he has to take advantage and finish as many people as possible in one sweep.

He went on and injected two more people. By this time, the rest of the team forcefully overcame the gravity and tried to make a move on Sam.

But as soon as they stood up, Sam made the gravity revert to normal, but due to the excess force they used when running, they flew into the air and slammed into cave walls.

Three people directly came flying towards Sam.

Out of which he dealt with two and injected the blood essences, all the while keeping the third man under him.

The third person is the fire elemental user.

So, Sam used different elements this time. The Ice and lightning elements.

Lightning doesn't have much conflict with the fire element, but it also doesn't have a propagating effect on the fire element.

He injected the ice element to make it conflict with the fire element and he used the lightning element which is extremely tyrannical and damaging to wreak havoc while the two are clashing.

The leader who was in a daze for a second was surprised to see the sudden development.

He immediately reacted and ran towards Sam. But before he could do anything, Sam already jumped away from the spot and reached the nearest centaur.

He didn't attack the centaur directly. He held the forelegs of the centaur and his body moved like a snake as he made his way to the back of the centaur all the while dangling from his body.

He is like a slippery loach that made the centaur feel frustrated and angry as he couldn't reach Sam who is stuck on his back and the rest of the body.

Sam started carving the body up with the claws and made him bleed crazily. Centaurs have better bodies than humans and if not for the high regenerative ability of the elves, then they would have better bodies than the elves. Their endurance is too high since the team is extremely stuck together and fighting in unison, Sam decided to slowly chip their strength away.

After making the centaur bleed from significant cuts, the creature realized that he couldn't move his body and there is something wrong with his bloodstream.

This is the work of Sam's poison. Now Sam took advantage of the situation and injected two blood essences and jumped away.

Everything happened in a flash. The whole process didn't even take six seconds in which three seconds are just for injecting process.

Sam didn't stop and moved to the next step. The leader is feeling the most helpless. After he joined the battle, he couldn't get a hold of Sam. Even though the place is small, Sam is using it to his advantage. Every time he moved, he is making another member of the team be under the attacking range and even using them as meat shields.

And at every candidate, all it is taking is a couple of slashes from the claws and a three-second injection to make them useless.

Within a few minutes, Sam is done with half of the team. This is not even a battle. Sam is not even contending. He is like a monkey playing with a bunch of small animals by stealing their food. They couldn't catch him and every time they had a chance they escaped.

The leader gritted his teeth and slammed his fist into the ground with a lump of energy.

Cracks appeared all over the ground and started spreading to the walls.

The whole team halted in their tracks and didn't dare move. They are moving away from the cracks that are spreading on the wall.

Sam also halted in his tracks and looked at the cracks. He activated his energy vision. There is nothing he could see.

All of a sudden from the cracks of the wall Sam noticed a pattern.

There are two places the cracks are concentrated and it is clear that they are breaking a layer of the rocky surface.

As he observed and tried to use his eye techniques to see what is happening, he finally saw something, but it was too late.

Two large snakes one from each side jumped out and coiled around Sam.

Sam was stunned for a second as he saw large snakes that are two times as large as python and coiling around him.

One snake is coiling his legs, while the second is coiling around his upper body. He is too small to be in between them. He is not even visible after a few seconds and even his face was covered.

Sam is extremely surprised. He didn't expect that there would be a creature that could escape his energy vision.

That too, both of them are beasts. But after coming out of the initial shock, he started comparing the image of the snakes to the knowledge in his mind and soon found a match.

The Stone Pythons.

These creatures have a weird ability. To merge with any stone surface and be one with it. In that state, they are extremely dormant and wouldn't show a single energy fluctuation. But that doesn't mean there is no fluctuation at all. It is just that the fluctuation is too small and Sam's technique is not mature enough to capture it.

But that is not his current problem. His major problem is now escaping the grip of these stone snakes before they turn him into a meat paste.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 749: Sending a Message

Sam felt his body being crushed in the middle of all the coiling.

At this exact moment, he felt stabbing pain at various places in his body, including several places where his meridians are at. Stopping his energy circulation.

He wanted to scream in pain, but held back and took deep breathes to calm himself down.

After looking at the current situation, he knew that he is in a pinch. The energy in his body is not exactly working as he wanted it to. He is cursing himself for falling into such a trap.

After calming down, he looked at the body of the stone python that is right in front of his mouth. He bit into the cloth that is covering his mouth and tore it slowly before spitting it out so that his mouth has access. He took a deep breath and opened his mouth wide and bit the python.

HISSESSSSSS

The python gave out a hissing sound in pain.

Sam's teeth can no longer be treated as normal teeth, they are almost fangs due to his vampire part of the body. He can munch into any flesh easily.

When Sam bit into the flesh of the python, there is something in his body that felt excited as the blood seeped into his mouth. Without him even knowing, he started sucking the blood in slowly and subconsciously, he is relishing in the taste of the blood.

His eyes started turning blood red from black and every cell of his body is feeling the excitement of the blood being sucked in.

The python tried to struggle and wiggle, but soon it gave up on its own life as Sam just consumed every single drop of its blood and only the flesh was left.

Only after the blood is completely sucked did Sam come out of his trance-like state and he shook his head vigorously.

He felt like he lost his soul in the middle of the process and he couldn't believe that it is him who has such a lust for blood.

But he doesn't have that much time to think about it. He noticed that his energy is back to full again and he is burning with vigor.

they are trapped in such a small space along with the fact that many team members already died, they are at an inherent disadvantage.

In the middle of it, Sam halted right next to the dead bodies of the two pythons and looked at the rest of the team that is already feeling the effects of the poison.

He extended his hand at the python and the death energy riled up. Soon, the python that has an intact body started moving again. But as an undead creature.

The team became terrified. There is a reason that they didn't mess with the pythons when they are coming out of the crack.

They are not their pets, they are equal team members just like any of them and they would only listen to the leader's commands.

But still, they are beasts and predators.

They are not to be messed with. If everything went well, Sam would have been their meal, but one of them became Sam's meal and now became Sam's companion.

Now, Sam started going after them one at a time and started injecting the blood essences.

The leader who is the last person to be picked looked at his team members and said to Sam with a gritted teeth.

"You don't belong in a normal world. You belong in hell."

"Really?"

"Yes. What kind of a twisted psycho are you to make them feel this much torment. End their life if you want to. But you don't have to torment them like that."

"You can only blame your own luck for that. Don't worry, you wouldn't die right away. I have something for you to do."

"Do you really think, I would do something for you?"

"I am giving you a chance to go back to your boss to talk to him. Maybe you can get your revenge if you are good enough at persuading people."

"Wh..." Before the leader could say anything, Sam knocked him out with an anesthesia shot and started performing surgery.

He placed a small metallic object right next to his heart and sealed him back up. The man woke up after three hours and he was there alone with the rest of the corpses lying around.

There is a note left for him.

"You better leave this place and reach to your boss within two days and take this with you and show it to your boss. Tell him, that the next team will suffer even more and no one would be able to send the new back to him at that point."

The leader saw that there is a recording crystal near that note. He took it and left the place. As he was walking, he noticed that there is a faint pain in his chest, but when he scanned his own body, there is nothing he could find.

He traveled to the city and used the wormholes that are connected to planet 1 and directly traveled to the estate of his boss.

All this while, he couldn't help but feel tormented by the image of Sam's actions in that cave.

He saw the struggle his team members went through to just die. Those blood essences created chaos within their bodies. With one organ after another failing and dying.

This is the most gruesome death he has seen and there is no blood spilled to kill that person or any other torturous action done to them.

All it took was two stabs and the blood came out because those stabs are also not that high.

Many times, he just wanted to scream and cry. But he couldn't stop in his tracks at all and soon reached the estate of his boss.

When the attendants saw him, they are surprised. They knew that this team was sent on a mission. For the leader to come back in the middle of a mission and that too in a sorry state, there is no way they could stay calm.

They informed their boss immediately and soon the team leader is in a private audience with Raunak's future father-in-law.

"What are you doing here? Are you not supposed to be in the middle of the task I gave you?"

The leader couldn't stand anymore and knelt on the floor as he took out the recording crystal with his two hands shaking and shivering.

The boss took the crystal with a confused look on his face and infused his spiritual energy into it.

Soon he saw the video playing in and he was shocked to see the rest of the events.

The battle was recorded from start to finish. But the most focus was on the torment the members went through.

Their bodies collapsing and their face writhing in soul-searing pain. Even the man who didn't care much about his subordinates and the man who is a member of faction 1 which only sees the people at the value they can provide, couldn't help but flinch at the torment.

The leader who saw it all over again couldn't take it and, fainted on the spot.

The boss stood up and called for the attendants.

"Take him to rest and call me when he woke up."

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 750: Demonstration

Rajan. The father of Ramya, the girl Raunak fell in love with.

Rajan is currently sitting in his private office where he is trying to go through the video once again. Sam is moving like he owned the cave and treated the whole group like they are little kids, he could see the claws doing the work.

The situation is extremely one-sided. At least until there are thirty members in the team, they had a chance to do something to him.

But once Sam got hang of it, he kicked everyone's ass.

After looking at it many times, he couldn't help but feel angry. This is a blatant provocation. A provocation right to his face. Sam is directly asking him what he would do and what he could about this.

He recently heard about the continuous deaths of the officials. But when he learned that Ragad is completely alright, he relaxed a bit and thought that Sam doesn't have the balls to do anything to a direct member of faction 1.

But it seems like the other party just focused on a different target.

Soon, he got the news that the team leader has woken up. So he went there to ask about the details.

"I don't know anything about him. He is in that cloaked dress from start to finish. He is completely unfazed. It is as if killing us is just like breathing air to him. Even the soldiers in military units that are seasoned in the killing wouldn't be this unfeeling.

He is like a cold-blooded person. And those eyes. There is not a single fluctuation of emotions in those eyes even when he is tormenting the team members. He just watched them scream, groan, writhe in pain as if he is watching nothing."

As he spoke, his voice was shaking and it got worse. One has to wonder how much he feared Sam's actions.

The more he thought about it, the more the thought is eating his brain away. He couldn't keep his composure.

As Rajan looked at the team leader who used to be one of the most competent soldiers, he couldn't help but shake his head in disappointment. But he is also a bit conflicted about his next move. He has many people watching him.

If he moved the transcendent stage cultivators casually, he would be noted down and get unwanted attention from the unwanted people.

That is the reason he sent the Pre-transcendent team. The best team in fact. There are some cases, where they managed to take down initial stage Transcendent stage cultivators with proper ambush and planning.

But Sam just came in slaughtered them all.

It seems like he kicked a really solid plate this time.

As he was thinking about what to do with this team leader, he felt an energy fluctuation.

He looked at the team leader, who is holding his chest tightly as he tried hard to breathe.

"Call a healer. Quick."

Rajan ordered the attendant, but soon he couldn't feel any signs of life from Raunak.

Boom

Then came a small explosion that created a hole in the team leader's chest. The rib cage was destroyed and inside, the lungs and the heart are sliced neatly into pieces and there is a lump of metallic thread inside rolled around a bone, completely knotted.

He pulled that lump of string out only to see a small metal plate inside. He looked at the metal plate with words written on it.

'FUCK YOU'

Those are the words written on it.

As soon as he read those words, the atmosphere in the room changed a lot. The spiritual energy riled up and the attendants couldn't help but feel the pressure and spit out the blood.

It took a while for him to calm down.

He left his room.

At this moment, he got a glimpse of his daughter who is making herself busy with something. He got angrier in an instant and wanted to do something.

He walked to his room and asked his attendant to call for someone else.

By evening someone came and that person also has cloaked clothes, but this time he has blood red-cloaked clothes.

Rajan threw a wooden token onto the table and the guy that came just took the token and left.

Ramya who came at this moment looked at the blood red-cloaked guy who is leaving and clenched her fists.

She looked at Rajan and said.

"If you break the agreement, I wouldn't care if you are my father. I would just go to the King or Queen's court to make you pay."

With that, she stormed out.

This made the already angry old lose it and slam the desk into smithereens before he muttered.

"I will see what you are going to do when I am done with him."

With that, he went out of the estate and went near the elder's estate.

There he met with the elders and made some preparations.

No one knew what he has done. He even asked the administrators to keep the thing on the down low.

While Rajan is plotting on what to do to kill Sam and that supposed person in the background all the while breaking Raunak's spirit, Sam is currently in a meeting with a human and an elf.

They are in a military uniform sitting in Sam's makeshift office beside Raunak's office.

"We are from the Star One Military unit. We are here to discuss the deal of the coconut biscuits."

The one who spoke is the human, not the elf. Even when Sam asked them to take a seat, only the human took the seat, the elf didn't take the seat at all and stood straight clearly showing their rankings.

It is new for Sam.

"I was told you are coming. Do you want to take the tour around the factory first? We can talk about the price later."

"Sure."

Sam took them to the factory where the shadows are working to produce the biscuits. One place is for drying the coconut, the second one is for grating the dried coconut, then the flour preparation, and finally the last place where the cookies are baked in a large stone oven.

After the small tour was over, Sam said.

"I couldn't hire the workers from the city, so I have to make do with these shadows."

"Shadow necromancy and using it for making food is really a pity." The human said

"Well, it wouldn't be long. Since you guys are going to take over, I can put the shadows back to their proper use."

"So, shall we discuss the price?"

"How much do you want to offer?"

"A half-a-billion seems like a fair price."

"Let's go a bit higher, Shall we?"

"Six hundred?"

"Eight hundred."

"But that is just a recipe. Do you really think it is worth it?"

"It is not about the recipe. The land itself is a bit expensive and the construction took a lot out of me. You must have heard, but I couldn't hire any workers or any other construction company to do the construction. I had to finish the construction all by myself from the scratch.

It is not exactly a pleasant feeling, but I still held my end of the deal. Apart from that, the recipe itself has too many effects that could help the elves. I might be human, but I have an elf helping with the tasting.

A liquor recipe can go for a billion, don't tell me that this is not worth it. If it is not for the effects, don't tell me you are here just for its taste."

"Seven fifty. That's as high as we can get."

"Deal."

They shook the hands.

"I noticed that you said you built the whole factory yourself. How is that possible? Even the stones seem like they are a bit different."

"It's because of creation from a subordinate of mine. It helps in construction. In fact, it is faster than any of the traditional construction methods."

"Can we see?"

"Why not?"

Sam led them out and he started mixing some cement and showed the process. After joining two rocks and pouring a concrete slab. He spoke.

"If you would stay for the night, you can see the results."

"We would wait."

"Then let us eat something. I don't cook for others very often, it might be your lucky day."

Sam then led them and started grilling steaks and made some mashed potato.

He even took some liquors for their taste and they had a pleasant dinner in which even Raunak joined.

They talked about a lot of things.

"I would like to ask something if you don't mind," Sam said as they enjoyed the meal.

"Please do."

"Do you buy weapons?"

"Weapons? Don't you know that it is illegal for others to sell weapons? We can only buy weapons from the military armory."

"Then what about special weapons? Things that are not available in the armory."

"Depends on how special the weapon is. But even then, it would be hard for you to get the approval to sell the weapons, you can sell designs though."

"Oh, thanks for the information."

Then the whole table fell silent and they went back to enjoying the food as if nothing happened.