

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 791: Treatment-1

Rajan just stood there stunned as he looked at Aruna who is taking Ramya away. He really wanted to stop her, but he couldn't bring himself to. There is an enormous amount of guilt eating his heart away.

He couldn't even speak out a few words.

As he watched Aruna leave, his attention was diverted towards the two elders, the guards and finally Ramana.

All of them didn't even dare to move. Ramana who was clouded by anger and greed finally cleared his head and understood how dire the situation is for him.

He just bowed his head down and stood there.

Rajan walked to the two elders first and before they could speak, he slammed his two fists into their bodies and held them like that as the spiritual energy around them started riling up. The two elders looked at Rajan in disbelief, pain, and despair.

Soon some leaves started sprouting from various parts of their bodies and slowly their flesh and blood were being absorbed by those leaves which turned into small plants and finally some shrubs.

The corpses fell and the plants nested themselves into the ground and one couldn't even see the skeletons that are in midst of them.

Rajan then turned towards the guards and their fates are also the same. Particularly, when they looked at how emotionless Rajan's face is, they almost peed their pants. Soon, the only ones left standing there are Rajan, Ramana, and some guards who came after the cries of despair and some elders that learned of this through the guards.

Ramana was also nervous. He knew that he fucked up big time. But at this moment an elder came and stopped Rajan's hand before saying.

"I can understand your pain. But you shouldn't kill him. He is the only one left from your family line as your heir. You are reaching a certain age where you will be deployed to the higher realm sooner or later. Someone must take the spot to increase your lineage. Your daughter is also gone. He is the only heir. You have to bear with it."

As soon as those words were spoken, Ramana suddenly felt like he grabbed a life-saving straw and was pulled back from despair. Rajan also looked at him with a bit of hesitation, but that hesitation only lasted for a second. As soon as he saw the relieved expression on Ramana, he didn't want to leave him alone.

"If my family has to propagate from the likes of him, it is better dead. Who knows if he would sell his daughter to some other guys for a promotion? I will take this chance to get rid of this tumor. I should have done this a long time ago."

With that, he threw a punch and this time it didn't take long. Ramana is after all a Pre-transcendent stage cultivator. His body turned into a bloody meat past with that single punch, not even his skeleton remained in the place.

After finishing the deed, Rajan felt a bit empty and fell to his knees.

Meanwhile.

At Sam's residence.

Currently, the trio and Sam are feeling a bit lost as they looked at Raunak who is weeping like a baby as he held Ramya in his hands.

Sam looked at Ramya and noticed that she is still alive. He couldn't help but frown and walk towards Aruna before asking.

"She is still alive, right? Is there no antidote for this poison?"

Aruna looked at him for a second and answered with a sigh.

"It's Midday Green. The lethality of this poison is not its potency, it is a completely different poison. After taking it in, if one couldn't take the antidote within two minutes, it would be too late.

The poison mixes with bloodstream and it makes the meridians so dull that it would be impossible for spiritual energy to be absorbed. Nothing that entered the stomach wouldn't be digested and nothing that was injected into the body, even spiritual energy wouldn't be absorbed. She would be alive for another two hours and she would be able to hear what we are saying, but she just couldn't respond."

Sam was stunned. He didn't expect that there would be a poison like this in the world. This is completely new to him. And with those conditions, even the heavenly wine would have some problems.

But when he looked at Raunak's face, he took a deep breath and decided to try.

He walked towards him and patted on his shoulder before saying.

"What are you crying for? She is still alive. Bring her in."

Raunak looked at Sam with surprise.

"Do... Do you have a way to save her?" Suddenly Raunak saw a bit of hope, he remembered all the things that Sam pulled off and felt like if it was him then there might be a chance.

"I don't know yet, let's see."

With that, he walked in. Raunak and Aruna exchanged eye contact before walking inside. The trio also followed.

Raunak laid her on the bed. Sam placed his fingers on her forehead and started using his observation ability.

He started observing the flesh, blood, and the poison that is moving within that blood. He can see the meridians that are slowly closing down and clearly affected by the poison.

With a deep sigh, he took some heavenly wine and poured it in her mouth before slowly guiding it into her stomach.

The stomach which came into direct contact with the poison was slowly healing because of the wine, but other than that there is not much use, after the stomach healed, Sam poured some more and this slowed down the poison a bit, but it couldn't be absorbed completely and the wine just stayed there.

Even the energy emitted from that wine is completely useless at this point. Sam was really stumped by this.

The heavenly wine can even have alleviating effects even on hydra poison, but this Midday green which is nowhere near as potent as the hydra poison made it hard.

If only he was injected with that poison, then it wouldn't have been this hard to get rid of it, with the half-ass potency it wouldn't have even affected him.

As his thoughts of this, another thought came to his mind.

But he hesitated a bit.

Raunak observed Sam's actions carefully and when he saw that look of hesitation, he asked.

"What happened? Is there no way?"

"There is one way, but it is a bit complicated. One mistake and she will die immediately. You wouldn't even have these two hours with her."

Everyone stayed silent for a bit. Even Aruna didn't say anything and just stayed quiet as she looked at Raunak. It is his decision. But it didn't take long.

"Do it. At least this way there is a chance."

Sam looked at Aruna and said.

"I need a healer. A consummate level one. As soon as possible."

"A consummate level healer?" She was surprised a bit.

Sam nodded and once again observed the bloodstream. He really does have a plan, but it is dangerous. Extremely dangerous. He should be playing with the natural laws of the body and its functions. But that would be extremely dangerous. When he looked at the heart which is slowly being affected by the poison, he couldn't help look at Aruna who is still thinking.

When he saw his look of urgency, she ran out of the house and ran towards the estate. She is a hidden guard, she doesn't have contacts. There is only one healer she knew in this world that could help her.

And that also happened to be one person she is hating the most right now.

He is none other than Rajan.

When she reached the estate once again. Rajan is still standing on the same spot as he looked his daughter's residence. Aruna noticed the bushes that are formed over the skeletons of the people he killed.

She knew all too well what they are.

Rajan noticed her presence and asked.

"What happened? Did you give her to him?"

"I need your help." She didn't answer his question and directly came to the point.

"What do you need me for?"

"To save your daughter."

"It is impossible."

"There is a young man saying that there is a chance. You better make your quick, you are the only consummate level healer I know. I don't have time."

Rajan stood up and was surprised, but he didn't waste any questions and followed her. Soon they reached the residence and came inside.

Raunak was stunned and was about to explode when he looked at Rajan, but Sam gestured the trio who stopped him from doing so. They pinned him to the chair and closed his mouth as Philip slowly whispered something into his ear.

Rajan stood there and looked at Sam in askance.

"I want you to concentrate on her heart. No matter what happens, you have to heal it and make sure it works even without blood. Can you do that?"

"Only heart?"

"Yes, I will take care of the rest of the body, but make sure that you do not let the heart stop. It is really dangerous."

"I will do it."

"You can start now. Don't try to force the poison out, I will take care of it myself, if the heart is injured heal it immediately, no matter what happens it shouldn't fail."

With that Sam and Rajan, the two enemies who just wanted to kill each other a day before are trying to save the girl.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 792: Treatment-2

Rajan placed his arm on his daughter's chest and the wood elemental energy slowly enveloped her heart.

"The heart is already infected a bit." He spoke as he looked at Sam.

Sam is surprised a bit, because there are few healers who can actually inspect the infection level of internal organs without using some diagnosis techniques, maybe Rajan also used one, but this one is pretty advanced.

Sam nodded to show that he understood and started preparing for surgery. He cut open the cloth covering her stomach and directly touched her skin as he knelt beside the bed.

He closed his eyes and his body slowly started activating the water elemental energy. The heavenly wine which was stuck in the stomach was currently moving towards the intestine forcefully because of his water elemental control and the intestine which is the most infected part in the body at the moment, started healing.

But from the severity of that poison, it is hard for it to absorb directly and Sam has to force it which is causing damage to the insides of the intestine, Sam placed his second hand on the belly and used the light elemental healing.

The damaged intestine is being healed instantly while he forcefully threw the heavenly wine into the intestines.

The small intestines are okay for now, but they still didn't reach the level of their regular function.

Now starts the real problem. The rest of the body which is already infected by the poison also has to be treated, but for that he has to make sure that the blood is free of this persistent poison. But it is hard to separate the poison from the blood as it is mixed well on a cellular level.

Sam only has one way to do it.

He looked at Raunak and asked.

"Do you trust me?"

Raunak looked into his eyes and nodded his head.

"Then don't panic about what you see next?" Sam said and he placed removed the cloth covering Ramya's neck. He closed his eyes took a deep breath and a bloodline which he didn't like using activated. The Vampire bloodline.

His teeth slowly started turning into fangs and his skin turned pale. The elves in the room are stumped. They didn't expect this. The trio is a bit fearful. They didn't expect that Sam would have to resort to such means. They are also afraid that the elves would get panicked and do something to Sam.

Sam took another deep breath and bit into her neck as he started sucking the blood.

As he sucked the blood, his both hands are placed on her forehead and her stomach as light elemental energy completely surrounded her body and this energy went through his left hand which is placed on her stomach while the right hand had faint blue light which is the water element.

He used the water element to take the wine from the gourd and made it go through her lips and controlled the flow of the wine within her body.

While sucking the blood.

As Sam sucked the blood, the poison which is also part of that blood was also being sucked in. For the first time after he became a vampire he is drinking the blood of sentient creatures, he did drink the blood of the stone python, but that was still a beast.

This time he is drinking the blood of a creature that is close to a human. Even though his brain is screaming against it, he couldn't help but do this. He didn't see any other way.

As the blood is slowly being sucked in, Sam controlled the wine and forcefully sent it to the bone marrow which caused harm to the insides, which he started healing with his light element, he let the wine treat the bone marrows which are also infected with the poison.

He forcefully let the wine enter the bloodstream and used his elemental energy to separate both of them while he sent the wine to the bones and started treating them. As long as the poison was not in contact the already infected part could be treated properly.

After treating that, his light elemental energy surrounded the bone marrow and started increasing the vitality to make it function rapidly increasing the blood production.

As he sucked the poisoned blood the heart is currently devoid of any blood and Rajan also noticed this. In fact, he is the only one who can see the whole surgical process.

His diagnosing technique is almost similar to Sam's observation technique, but it is not as detailed, but he can still see what Sam is doing.

Surprise and shock can hardly define his reactions.

This is completely new to him. Sam's control over his energies is already hard for him to fathom and to control the energy delicately enough to treat the organs? It is impossible for him.

He focused all his energy on the heart.

Meanwhile, Sam is focusing on multiple things at the same time. As he sucked the poisoned blood, he is also observing the new blood coming out of the bone marrow.

Making the bone marrow generate the blood continuously and rapidly is a dangerous process. Normally it is not even possible. But Sam is using vitality control to make the bone marrow function rapidly. And since the marrow is already infected by poison and is still being treated, the blood coming out is also a bit poisonous.

He kept on sucking it in while creating new blood.

This is ridiculously going against the natural laws of the body.

And to create the new blood a lot of nutrition is required for Ramya's body and Sam's only one way to create that, the wine, but the digestive system is only partially healed and in the middle of healing completely. Until then he has to do everything himself.

Sam slowly but surely started dealing with everything. After the bone marrows are cleansed of the poison, he only made sure that blood is being generated and the digestive system was also cleansed of the poison which made it possible for him to stop the forceful application of the heavenly wine, all he has to do is make it flow into the stomach.

Sam finally opening his mouth and deactivated the vampire bloodline. His body has suffered a bit as he used the vampire abilities and light element at the same time. It is a bit problematic to use two conflicting things. At least if it is elemental, he could manage. One is physical and the other is elemental which made it easy for them to clash. At least, he is free now.

Now the body is digesting the heavenly wine and it is slowly sending the effects of the wine to the rest of the organs and now Sam has to do a lot less. The wine would do most of the work. But Ramya's body has become dormant for a while, so he still enhanced the healing process with the healing and soon they are done.

Rajan is the only one observing Ramya closely apart from Sam. The trio didn't understand the process, but they know Sam is having some trouble.

Raunak and Aruna are looking at Sam in surprise. Because he drank all the blood, at least it can be summarized as his taking some extreme measure, but even more surprising thing is that the blood is filled with midday green. But Sam is still working properly.

After the treatment is done, Rajan also looked at Sam and realized what he had done. The Midday green is not ordinary poison, but Sam is still alright after drinking the blood infested with it.

Sam didn't care what they thought. He finished the treatment. Ramya's skin also returned to normal, there is just a faint hue of green on her white skin which will go away with time.

But she is still unconscious because she is extremely weak not physically but mentally. She is sleeping for now.

Sam didn't even talk to them and just nodded at Raunak before leaving the room.

He went to his personal room and closed the door, not even letting the trio come in.

As soon as he entered the room, he knelt on the floor and felt his breath grow erratic. He tried his best to control this reaction.

His body is currently feeling a bit different and he is feeling a myriad of emotions from drinking the blood. He felt like puking it and he is trying so hard to do so, but it is not happening. At first, he wanted to suck the blood and create an outlet normally. But as soon as his lips touched the skin and started sucking the blood, his brain was a bit clouded and didn't have time to conflict the thought.

He can only clear it so the rest of the process wouldn't be interrupted.

But after a while, he was even more conflicted, particularly when the poisonous blood is gone, he has to put in a lot of effort to stop the constant craving for the blood he just consumed.

Even after finishing the treatment and walking out of the room, that is the only thought that is killing his mind. His eyes are currently blood red and want to create a rampage and drink all the blood.

Even his friends are looking like a juicy dinner. That is why he came out of that room and tried to calm himself down.

If not for the concealing formation, the rest of the people in the residence would have heard the agony he is going through.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 793: Big Money

It took around a half-an-hour for Sam to come to himself.

He tried his best to suppress the urges and instincts along with that feeling of him being a bloodthirsty monster that is bugging his mind constantly.

After trying his best to control, Sam became silent and sat in that same position as he closed his eyes and meditated.

He wants some peace at the moment and that moment continued for the rest of the day. He just sat there and meditated as if that is the only thing he wants to do in the world and only came out the next morning.

He finally lost that bugging feeling that is trying to take over his mind. He doesn't want to come to terms with that feeling, a feeling of being a monster. He has a feeling that once he accepted it, the rest of his life would be miserable and uncontrollable. His cold and emotionless mind which he uses to do business and create things wouldn't work like that anymore.

He might gain more power, but that didn't outweigh the damage he has to suffer and the things he has to lose.

No one outside knew what Sam was going through. They just thought that he needed some rest after such a delicate procedure.

They just let him be. Rajan is still there waiting in the courtyard. Aruna is standing guard outside Ramya's room, while Raunak stayed with Ramya.

Ramya woke up at dawn and managed to speak a few words with Raunak, but she is still a bit weak and exhausted.

When Sam came out, the trio is busy cooking in the kitchen. The three of them are not expert cooks, they barely know how to skin the meat and roast it on fire, so when Sam saw them trying their best to make something in the kitchen, he didn't know whether he has to laugh or cry.

"What the hell are you guys doing?"

He asked them which made them stop in their tracks.

Philip heaved a sigh and spoke.

"Thank god, you woke up. The atmosphere in the house is weird since last night. Rajan doesn't want to leave and stayed in the front yard which is already enough to get attention. While Aruna is wary of him and stood guard at the door and finally Raunak refused to even move a bit until he confirmed that she is alright.

And the awkwardness increased only after she woke up in the morning. Now Rajan is adamant about seeing her while Aruna is even more adamant on stopping him. Raunak who is the cause of all this is not even thinking of leaving the room.

At first, it was entertaining to see, but soon we realized we would be stuck in this if we don't excuse ourselves and here we are."

"You could have gone out. Why are you destroying the kitchen? Why are you cooking anyway?"

"Ramya is exhausted. As much as we are not against her staying here. We can't take it anymore. If she recovered, she would leave and all this awkwardness will be gone."

Sam shook his head with a smile and said.

"Get out, all three of you. I will cook."

The three of them left the kitchen helplessly and Sam went on to cook. After he finished a simple meal, he took it to Ramya's room. Aruna saw it was him and made way while looked at Rajan who is waiting in the front yard with a hostile gaze.

*Knock* *Knock*

Sam knocked on the door and after a minute, Raunak answered.

"Come in."

He went in and placed the food on the side table of the bed and asked Ramya.

"How are you feeling?"

Ramya is indeed a bit weak, but she is in a much better condition than last night. The green hue on her skin was gone and her aura is a bit stronger and stable. She gave a faint smile and said.

"I am feeling great. Thank you for saving me."

Sam also smiled involuntarily and said.

"Don't mention it. If you are any other person, I might not have gone through that trouble. I saved you because of Raunak. I apologize if I am being blunt, but that is indeed the truth."

"That doesn't make me feel any grateful."

Sam shook his head and said.

"Eat the food while it is still hot. After that, meet your father if you can. He is a major help in saving you. I don't have enough confidence to do that without his help."

With that, he patted Raunak's shoulder and left.

Sam went to meet Rajan.

"Why are you so adamant about meeting her now? Isn't it too late to make amends?" Sam asked casually.

Rajan didn't speak for a second and said.

"I apologize for all the things I did to you."

Sam just stayed silent.

"I am not here to make amends, I just want to say goodbye."

"Good luck then."

Sam went back to do his own thing.

After an hour, Ramya indeed met with Rajan and at that time, even Raunak was out of the room. Nobody knows what they talked about. But after they came out, Rajan didn't speak to anyone. He just thanked Sam and left the place.

That day's trial was canceled and a golden armored guy came and informed that Rajan will be fulfilling his agreement.

By evening, Sam is in a meeting with Professor and Galvin. They came for the products. But even they are baffled by the amount that was given out by Sam.

"Thirty Billion. The original price. With the discount I promised, it will be twenty-seven billion. And with a bet between the professor and me, it would be fifty-four billion. I would be okay with fifty billion."

When Sam gave these numbers, both of them felt their throats dry.

"Do you know how much fifty billion is? Even Rajan's family assets on the whole combined would only be around three hundred billion and there might only be two to three families that are richer than him."

Sam thought for a second and said.

"Elves are richer than I thought. I wonder how they managed to earn so much."

"Not as easily as you," Galvin said through the gritted teeth and took a deep breath before he continued.

"We can only offer a thirty-five billion to you."

"That's way too low. I am already losing ten billion out of courtesy. And you are even reducing another fifteen billion. That wouldn't happen."

"Thirty-seven"

"No."

"Forty."

"No way."

"Forty-two and that's final." We can't do any more than that.

Sam went into deep thought and after some time, he nodded his head.

"Sure, I will agree."

With that, the deal was signed. Sam is ecstatic inside, even though he is showing a sad expression.

But he won big in this deal. In fact this one of the biggest deals he ever made. In Desolate realm, he earns a lot and even a lot more than this, but that comes from the work of thousands of people. Now he just sold some plans and designs along with his workers training some other people, this is the easiest money he can ever make.

He is growing to like this place more and more.

After that, he went back to relax a bit.

Ramya stayed at their residence for the next three days. After that, she moved out and went to Raunak's residence.

All that was left is a wedding ceremony which they decided to arrange soon enough.

She didn't go to the higher realm selections anymore. On that day, they received the news of Ramana's death, this surprised them a lot. They didn't expect that Rajan can be so ruthless. Killing his own son, for his daughter, even made them think twice and reevaluate his love for Ramya.

After they settled in, Raunak decided to go back to his work. They couldn't decide on when to have their wedding, so he decided to wait for a while and finish the work.

It's about Sam's school.

He procured some land in the outskirts from the government and Sam bought it.

This is going to be the largest campus in the capital and it is going to be as large as a noble estate. In fact, more than half of the noble estates are not even as large as this.

Now Sam needs a construction company for this and ironically, Braman's is the best option he has.

He really wondered if Braman will take the deal, but to his surprise, he did take the deal and this time he is a lot of meek and tolerable.

The Biofuel treatment can treat stupidity to some extent.

This is great for Sam. Except for that stupid arrogance of that guy, there is nothing that Sam can fault him for.

He is good in all the other aspects.

The construction project was the biggest in the city and with this, their company will surpass their competitors by miles, so Braman called for every builder he has on his hands and decided to put all his manpower on this.

The plans are given by Sam which reduced his workload.

Sam is building the same campus he has on the desolate planet. He is building a school of exact replica.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 794: Confusion

The construction process is faster than what it took on the desolate planet. The manpower here is multiple times more than there and they are of even higher level. Sam saw some Pre-transcendent stage cultivators working like construction workers. Not doing anything but creating the concrete slabs.

This is completely new to him.

But this situation was only for a week. After that, some of the builders had to move to some emergency construction. Sam could easily guess what is.

The factory for the new products.

The One-star military unit is opening the factory right next to the grenade factory and half of the team from Braman's construction company has to go there.

Braman doesn't know why they are in such a hurry. He is much more interested in Sam's school project as this is the largest project he has seen and it will also increase his market value after it was done both financially and also a brand image.

Sam's designs are unique and they are going to be one of a kind in this majestic city which would attract a lot of people.

If only he knew what kind of this school this is going to be and how popular it can get, he would have never even let his construction team go.

But half of his construction workers have to go away. Because the professor insisted that the factory has to be completed as fast as possible and Braman fought tooth and nail to only send half of the team.

The war on Planet-2 is going insane and the troops are dying like flies. If this continues, no one can guarantee that the secret they had kept hidden for centuries would be kept secret anymore.

On this one matter, both the factions joined and this hidden faction led by the professor also supported fully.

They clearly know the depth of the situation and they are not petty in the face of it.

While the situation is like this, Sam got some news from the shadow mice. Rajan is going to Planet 2 and he seems to be joining the war.

The suicide attempt by Ramya must have impacted him too much.

He is looking for a way to let the steam out and this is the perfect chance for him.

And the war even required the consummate level cultivators to move, this made Sam remember the large pod he has seen and that creature that almost killed him.

He could only wish the troops good luck and hope that his products can give him a break.

The hidden faction was the happiest in this tense situation, because Sam also gave a batch of harpoon guns and some breathing devices along with a bunch of puppets when they made the business deal and he got news that they were already sold to the military. Even though there are only ten of each piece, the government made a test run and they made a small fortune just with this sample products.

And since the owner of the designs turned out to be the one-star military, according to this world's laws, the government cannot forcefully take it away from them.

This made the business even more possible.

Sam got all this news from Galvin and his team through a shadow mouse.

Out of all the members of the hidden faction, Sam knew of, only Braman is kept in the dark.

After the second week since the incident the foundations are already laid in Sam's school and one building already finished the next phase of construction the work is progressing greatly.

The same thing was happening on the side of factory construction.

The first thing they built is a large warehouse type room and they kept the equipment for making the breathing devices. This time, they managed to hire some already trained guys in the aspect of making breathing devices and started manufacturing.

They are the ones that are on top priority from the government and they started manufacturing them.

Soon, the One-star military unit was fully deployed to the sea shore to join the battle and these people went with the set of breathing devices and harpoon guns and the water element users even got the flat-fish puppets.

While the war side is heating up, the election is nearing and the campaigns are growing wild.

There are some illegal malpractices in the election like giving bribes to certain people to get votes.

There is an entire class of people who doesn't care what government that comes on top of them. And they include people in different sectors, like the workers in factories, the teachers in some educational institutions, some military units that are too dangerous and not controlled by any factions and least caring of them all are the common public that live the lowest of the lives in the financial pyramid of this society.

No matter what faction comes into power, these people wouldn't have too much of an impact and every government that makes different policies will only effect the general populace that already have a decent life to begin with.

But the majority of the people belong to the classes that are not effective, so they can only show them something more tangible, not some promises which they are sure not going to be fulfilled.

So, the faction 2 went for a more indirect way, by distributing the liquor here and then. They managed to develop some cheaper version on the drinks that Sam sold them and are distributing them freely, while the faction 1 went through a direct method by giving some tangible benefits like spirit stones, weapons and medicines.

The competition is high, on both the surface and in the shady grey area.

This also led to another thing, the fights and battles are starting to break out, the mercenaries are finding new jobs, the couriers are busy with carrying messages and goods.

The capital lost any state of calm.

Sam is taking it all in.

By the end of fourth week, which concluded a month since the incident, the factory was completed and the production has been going on full swing and the election campaign reached the new heights.

And the school is also on its finishing stages. Now Sam has to arrange the staff. He is not opening the school immediately, he has to bring the staff from the school in the desolate realm.

But for that, he would be needing some help and for the first time, Sam is going to use the services and some underhanded help of Raunak who is a high level official now.

His rank far outranks the City lord of the Planet 2's capital and due to Rajan's insistence on placing him within the educational department, they had to pay a certain price for that which gave him a higher rank.

And since he is a special officer he has some special privilege.

Giving the teacher's license.

The teacher's license is a special identity. Every person cannot be a teacher. They have to go through certain tests and the standards would be maintained by a special license officer. But Raunak has a special power regarding this.

So, Sam would be bringing his own staff from the desolate realm, where there is a new batch of excess teachers and researchers and bring them to his base in Planet 2.

Raunak will be conducting a mass scale teacher's license test in the Planet 2 capital and his staff will participate in it.

Sam's school has different requirements for teachers in different fields, but the government can only give permission for certain mainstream fields, so Sam's mode of operation is a bit limited for now, but he can still manage for the time being.

After the teachers are selected, they will get the license which has an added bonus of a civilian identity.

They will join Sam's school and enter the staff properly.

After that, Sam would open the school and the first target populace are obviously orphans.

Sam really wanted to see if he can continue the same thing he did in the desolate, create an overall manpower that excels in different ways by inducting orphans into his school and from the information he got from the teenager in the fruit street who also happened to be an orphan, and Raunak who was also an orphan, the number of orphans is actually quite high and there are many government funded orphanages in this place.

Anyone can donate or even constantly finance them, so Sam is currently concocted a new plan to gain a regular source of the orphans into the school the rest of it will be run by itself.

But that has to wait for a bit, because there is another important thing going on and it happened to be a wedding.

And this is the first wedding, Sam is attending since he came to this world more than thirteen years ago.

And the wedding is of Raunak and Ramya's.

The wedding was being arranged grandly and Sam was caught off guard with when he was told he was the chief guest. Raunak has helped him a lot, even though it was all a fair exchange between them, he liked that guy a bit. So, he helped him with that girl's problem.

Sam doesn't know what to give him as a gift. All he has is a lot of wealth which wouldn't be that appropriate to give.

And the trio is not helping either, they went on a search for their own gifts. There is only three days for the wedding and Sam was left confused.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 795: A Special Gift

Sam is a bit flustered. No matter how smart he is in the other aspects, in normal social conventions, he couldn't be smarter than a five year old.

In his two lives this happened to be the first time someone invited him to the wedding out of pure gratitude. Even in the organization or the company he had in his previous life, no one invited him normally, it is either out of fear or pure courtesy. There are some high level people that invited him, but it is to just suck up to him.

He felt like he obligated to give a nice present now.

Now that the trio is gone for their own gifts, he was left alone.

Currently, he is inside his house in a deep thought.

*Knock* *Knock*

He came out of his daze due to a door knock.

He went to open the door and was surprised to see Raunak and Ramya standing outside.

"Come in."

He walked back and gestured them to come in. It has been a while since he saw Ramya, she was a bit traumatized by the incident and didn't want to come out that much. He occasionally saw her when he went to meet Raunak, but that's it.

"Why are you guys here? Are you not busy with your wedding preparations?"

Raunak had an awkward smile on his face.

"We are indeed busy, but we want to ask you something?"

"Yeah, tell me."

Before Raunak could speak, Ramya cut him off and said.

"I want to work as a teacher in your school. I heard from Raunak that you are not just teaching awakened ones and also teaching the children who are not awakened and I heard you are also teaching them basic knowledge of the realm, language and something else. I would like to teach those kids. I don't have particular knowledge in the fields called sciences which you are teaching, but I have enough knowledge about this realm and the language. I even have a teacher license years ago. Would you consider me for the job?"

As she spoke, she took out her teacher's license and gave it to Sam.

Sam took it and looked at it a bit before saying.

"Are you sure you want to teach them? You would have to deal with a lot. Those children will be a handful."

"No problem. I am really interested. In fact, this is what I wanted to do for a while. But I couldn't make my father agree to it and no school in the city will even let me take their tests to be a teacher in their school."

"I indeed need someone who has knowledge in these categories, since you are eager let's try it out. We will see for one semester, even if you have flaws in the beginning, you will have a chance to improve and even after that if you don't have any improvement, I cannot continue to employ you. If you are okay with those conditions, then I am okay with that."

Ramya beamed with joy and said.

"Thank you. Thank you so much."

They chatted for a while and Sam couldn't help but notice his teeth marks on her neck.

He felt a little guilty and said.

"I am sorry for the scars. I should have healed it as soon as I finished the treatment. Now you have to bear it for the rest of your life."

Ramya just smiled and said.

"Please don't apologize. It might be a scar for the people who are looking at it, but for us it is a reminder and a symbol that you kept us safe when even my closest kin are looking to harm us. I cannot thank you enough, so please don't feel guilty about it."

Sam just smiled and didn't continue the topic.

After the couple left, Sam thought of Ramya's words and smiled a bit. He finally has an idea on what to give out as a gift.

He went into the room and started making it.

He took out the lump of crystal that he gathered from the tortoise's back and started melting and molding it as he worked for the rest of the day.

He carefully made and sculpted a crystal token. It is the emerald token with Sam's symbol on it. In the middle of the process, Sam inscribed a formation within the token and placed a drop of his blood inside and then he started adding other materials and inscriptions.

He worked through the whole night and only managed to create the token by the next morning.

He was finally done with his gift.

He placed it in a specially made box and wrote a letter along with it.

He is sure that this gift would surely come in handy for them. They would be able to find a use for it in the future. Maybe not in the near future, but in this lifetime, they might be able to use it.

On the wedding day, the trio returned, they also got their own gifts and they seemed to have a little competition regarding this, so they are hiding it pretty badly.

The wedding was held at night and it was grand. Many big shots came. Since Rajan's threat was completely gone, Raunak's status has grown in the capital. He is a high level official and the way he worked, he is bound reach greater heights no matter how they looked at it.

Many are convinced that he would leave this place soon enough and go to the higher realm. After all, he is only two promotions away from the ceiling of this place and the only higher officials that have higher status than him would be the King and the Elders.

He cannot become a king, but he can surely become an elder. But to be an elder, they have to work in the upper realm for a certain amount of time. Even those who went there, the cream of the crop would stay there and climb a different ladder and the some would return and sit on top of the whole Charbhum realm.

Either way, his prospects are higher than what they can reach and fathom.

Every senior official came and even a representative from the elders came to the wedding.

After the wedding ceremony, the couple got too busy with greeting all the people that came. One good thing is that no one came from Ramya's family saving the awkwardness. Even her father didn't come. Ramya seemed to have mixed feelings about this.

Sam gave his gift and so did the trio.

After the wedding was over, everyone left to their own way.

Raunak has bought a new house and the couple went to that house directly.

They are currently in the backyard of the house which has a small pond with some lotus flowers in it.

They sat in the garden under the full moon as they chatted in each other's embrace.

"Let's go through the presents shall we?" Ramya asked and Raunak complied.

All the presents are in their spatial rings. They took one after another and made fun of the people who gave them.

"All the presents are so diplomatic and clear signs of sucking up. I didn't expect that my situation in the bureaucrat circle will turn from being oppressed constantly to being sucked up to in a single night."

"Well, how do you like the feeling of someone sucking up, my dear officer?" Ramya asked playfully.

"Stop teasing alright, let's go through the remaining gifts. There are only four left. One is from Sam and the other three are from trio."

They went for the trio's gifts first and they were amazed.

"These fellows spent a fortune on these things. They really didn't hold back." Raunak said as he looked at the three gifts.

One of them is a large jar of honey, the other one is a special fruit and the last one is special herb.

These three are the specialties of the three planets. And they are extremely rare to the point that each unit will only be available for every decade. And they are auctioned off. The price would be in hundreds of millions.

Ramya hit him gently and said.

"Why are you calling them fellows? Aren't they Sam's friends? Give some respect."

"My dear Ramya. Can you stop revering anything associated with Sam. He is your savior, but not his friends. Its enough you respect them normally, you don't have put them on pedestal. Anyway, it is not that I don't like them. But you should see how they behave when Sam is not around. They are living nightmares."

"Okay, what is Sam's gift? What do you think he bought?"

"Who knows?"

They opened the gift and were surprised to find out the token and the letter. Ramya is looking at the token curiously while Raunak opened the letter.

The letter has few words.

"One day, I and my friends will disappear and you might have to leave this place and go somewhere else. And in that situation if you are in trouble and you can find any organization that is named after 'dusk' or you hear any information regarding me or my description, you can go to that place with this token and they will help you overcome no matter what problem it is.

This is a symbol that you are under my protection and it can be used for generations to come. But it can only be used once. So, please be careful and do not discuss it with me or anyone else after today.

Happy married life."

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 796: Another deal

Raunak was a bit stumped by the letter. He doesn't know how to react.

He always felt that Sam is a bit mysterious but he didn't know that he is far more mysterious than he could fathom.

This letter answered some of his questions, but created a lot more of them. Ramya is even more confused. But they didn't pursue the topic. It is their big day after all.

After that day, Raunak wanted to ask Sam about the letter many times, but he couldn't bring himself to and since Sam is also not keen on this and it was made clear within the letter, both of them didn't bring up the topic and just went on with their preparations.

First thing Sam did after the wedding is go to the Planet 2 directly and then he took up residence in his base along with the trio so that he could travel back and forth from desolate planet and bring his staff back.

Since many people graduate from the school and join the organization, and also from the time Sam sent the first batch of people to the banished realm, everyone is waiting for such a chance. Sam didn't bring those people from the banished realm, but many people heard stories from the dwarves.

Once they stayed in the desolate realm for a long while, there is a limit to what they can do and learn here, so there are many eager candidates that wants to leave this place and grow somewhere else, where the consummate realm cultivators are not the strongest anymore.

They want to experience that new world.

And along with that, many of these graduated and eager people are handpicked by the already established department heads, researchers and the professors of the school.

They are all eager to join a place like this.

And Sam decided to take around forty people this time. Even though it is far more than what he took to the banished realm, but there is a difference. The banished realm is a mutual exchange program for learning. He doesn't need much development within the banished realm due to its limited resources, but the charbhum realm is different.

He has a completely different set of plans for that realm.

He made trips and slowly made all his candidates merge in this place. Along with them, Sam also let out another group of people. The Vampires.

Precisely speaking, the vampire chess pieces. Once they entered the chess board, they are bound to it. And since Sam has multiple chess teams, he has made them fight each other non-stop and he finally broke through their minds.

They are bound to listen to Sam's orders and they are bound to work as a team. Now they are nothing more than brainwashed slaves with some bloodsucking habits.

But Sam didn't forget to feed them. Every day, he eats a lot and he collected the blood of the beasts he ate and gave it to the vampires, so they are slowly growing.

He even experimented with the blood of the sea folks, but only water element vampires have any use for that, the rest of them are extremely receptive of this.

The same thing happened to the ghouls, only water elemental ghouls can eat the flesh of the sea folks.

As for why Sam is interested in feeding them, it is because of the sting ray fish. The fish that ate and drank the flesh and blood of the sea folks had mutated.

The mutation is slight, but it can make a lot of difference when compared to a normal sting ray fish.

Most of the changes are physical, the stinger improved in size and shape along with the enhancement of the poison and even the body's physical characteristics are improved. The defense and the dexterity are amazing. These things really increase the strength of the sea creatures.

Now coming back to the vampires, he is going to leave them here as the secret guards. The chess board makes it possible for him to make them obey all the commands.

So, he is making them the secret guard of the school and the base. As for why he is not leaving the ghouls, wights or the Minotaur, they cannot merge into the society here with their looks.

It is that simple.

After arranging everything and all his personnel are in place, it is now time for Raunak to do his magic.

He is going to conduct mass examinations for the teacher's license in all three planets. Previously there are very rarely any teachers picked from the side planets, except for some special schools that are established within those planets.

But now, Raunak is changing the norm using his authority.

While Sam is waiting for the tests to be over, he heard a news which he can take advantage of. The news about the sea.

This shocked him a bit, because he knew that the situation improved since the products he gave started production and are being constantly produced and the government which is vastly wealthy is not holding back anything at all.

They are clearly putting all their efforts in, but it seems like they pissed off the sea folks even more. The sea folks created a large sea wave which is almost a miniature tsunami and flooded the border villages. The sea water launched itself through the woods and hit the towns and villages that are under right next to the forests separating the seas and the rest of the planet.

And this happened to every border town or village and the sea folks used this water as their advantage and are advancing into the villages and towns and slaughtering the people and the beasts in the forest. They are staying there until the next wave of water and are using it to take the corpses back along with them and are escaping.

Sam didn't get this news from the shadow mice or some other indirect way. He got this news from the people's gossip. The news was already all over the public and the people that are in those villages and towns are trying to reach the capital. The people are flooding over every day.

Sam couldn't help but shake his head. The soldiers didn't seem to get a hold of the weakness of the sea folks and are still fighting with them directly like fools. The first they should have done is send a team of elite to go deep into their territory and find as much information as they can. But they are just fighting them like brutes.

For the first time, in a while, Sam is thinking of selling something else this time. But not in exchange for the money, but for some permissions.

So, he left the Planet 2 and went to meet professor in the Planet 1.

"Didn't expect that a day would come for you to come and meet me. What do you want?"

"I am not here exactly just because I want something. But I also have something that you need. Which actually trumps what I want."

"What would that be?"

"The way to defeat the Sea folks."

Professor stayed silent for a while and looked at Sam right in the eyes.

After that brief pause he spoke.

"You knew about the sea folks before the war didn't you?"

Sam just smiled and stayed silent.

"So, what do you want and what do you have to offer?"

"First, let us talk about what I have to offer. I have a detailed hierarchal structure of the sea folks, their breeding methods, their weakness, strength everything you need to know about it, I know it. How valuable do you think it is?"

"Do you want more money? Just how much money do you need? You know that you are one of the wealthiest individuals in this realm right?"

"No, I don't need money. I just have too much of it."

Professor really wanted to smash his face.

"Then what do you want?"

"I want some approvals done."

"Approvals?"

"Yes, I need some government approvals. I would like to charge of the government funded orphanages."

"Why would you do that?"

"I am an orphan myself. It is just giving back to the society. I would take charge of the orphanages. All their needs will be taken care of."

"Its hard to get those approvals, if there is any mishap in the orphanage, the public will grill the government and the government will have to grill you which would be a bit problematic as you are a major tax payer and the bureaucrats don't want to piss you off."

"Don't worry, I have a way to convince you."

"How?"

"The new school is going to open its one research center and they have their own revenue system. Half of the revenue gained by that research center will go for the school and the other half is going to the orphanages.

The research base in the planet 2 also comes uses a similar scheme, but they will give one-third of their income to the orphanages."

"That's a lot of money."

"Of course, it is. So, now can I get those approvals?"

"Yeah, one of my students will contact you for the paperwork, it will take two days for the approval, and you can give me the data then."

"Are you sure you don't want it now?"

"I am not stupid enough to think that you would give it to me now."

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 797: Experts

Sam stayed in Planet 1 for the next two days. He waited for the procedures to complete. His tax documents were verified by some officers and after two days the procedures were completed easily.

Sam went to see the professor and told them everything related to their weakness. He didn't say anything related to the mutation of the sea creatures.

He told them about the breeding bases, the training bases, the egg pods, their weakness to the poison and their communication methods, their digestive habits of the corpses. Some of these things are already known to professors but some are new.

He didn't expect Sam to have this much information on hand. He instantly penned down everything and sent the details to the One-star military unit. This could become a military achievement.

But the war is already going on a large scale. Sam is pretty sure that this would become a long-lasting war. It would go on for at least three to four months continuously even with all the weakness they knew.

Because the large waves that are sweeping the villages could only be the result of the Consummate level sea folks trying to make a move and it could even be a collective move.

The soldiers are going to have a hard time.

"By the way, I want to make another business deal. Are you interested?" Sam asked after the exchange is completed.

"We are extremely low on funds. Do you know how many students I have squeeze dry to get the funds for the weapons?"

"I don't know, but I am sure that the number might be huge. But this time, I am not selling, I would like to buy."

"Buying? Wow, you are even willing to spend money? Tell me what do you want to buy?"

"The leftovers of the battle. I want the shells of the pods. From the smaller ones to the one occupied by the consummate level one."

The Professor was surprised and started thinking deeply.

"Don't think too much into it. I just want to do some research on it. Not everything I touch makes me money, you know? You guys might think I made the money easily, but I probably have worked harder than all of you combined to get what I want and I had to waste tons of spirit stones on things like this."

"Really? How long did it take to develop that harpoon gun? I am really fascinated by that."

"That would be too much information for you. Just tell me if you can sell them to them. I highly doubt any of your artisans could make anything out of it."

"Aren't you looking down on the elves too much?"

"A threat that was lurking around for centuries and an outsider like me had to create a plausible solution that could even have a minuscule of a chance to create an advantage. Your credentials speak for themselves, my credentials back up my words. It is not me looking down on you guys, rather it is me stressing a fact."

Professor smirked at those words and said.

"You really are a proud person. Let's do it that way then. The One-star military unit will get to choose the reward other than the merit for your information, I will ask them to choose the shells, but you have to pay for them. They might not be cheap."

"One billion for everything. You can take it or leave it."

"Two billion."

"One billion and two hundred million. You don't have any other buyer."

"One billion and five hundred million. You don't another seller too."

"Deal."

"Deal."

They shook their hands, but the professor couldn't help but ask.

"You have too much money. Why bother bargaining for this small amount?"

"It is money earned, not given. Every penny has its own worth. I don't want to splurge when I don't have to."

"You are the same age of all those young masters, but why the hell are you so different? It would have been easier for me if you were like them."

Sam just smiled and left the room.

The Professor wrote another letter and sent it through a different courier.

After the deal was completed, Sam went back to Planet 2 to oversee the situation of the tests. There is one problem in this scenario though. Currently, the people in Planet 2 are panicking and everyone is looking for civilian identities and escape to other planets.

Most of them went for soldier recruitment, but it was stopped because the government just deployed the new recruits back to the sea to fight the Sea Folks. So, they are stumped in that way and tried for other ways.

And then came this mass teacher license exam. There are three times the applications that are expected.

This delayed the process by a bit.

The forty people Sam brought are not just ordinary staff. Not one of them has cultivation less than Late-stage pre-transcendent stage and the strongest of them is a peak stage Transcendent stage.

Due to the constant potion sets that are being made to aid the breakthroughs of these people, the organization has a constant growth of powerhouses.

There are even some Consummates and even the Space gate association has four consummates in their ranks at the moment.

He wanted to bring some of them, but it would be a bit difficult to mask the powerhouses. There would be many doubts raising among them.

So, Sam has different plans for them. There are some zones in Planet 1 that are not really developed. They are deep forests or some dangerous mountain regions that are completely under the control of the beasts. Not the centaurs, elves, or humans, no one goes deeper into those areas.

So, Sam decided to use this to his advantage and he is sure those consummate stage cultivators would love it. Because, due to the lack of spiritual energy within that planet, they had to use every minuscule of energy that is available and absorbable to get where they are now.

Once they enter a spiritual energy-rich environment like this, they would have another boost and it wouldn't be an exaggeration to say that Sam would have some people who broke past the consummate level.

He is planning to bring the old shopkeeper too. As he has the most probability of breaking through.

The seal would have already gone and the after-effects of that seal would have also disappeared.

He might even be preparing for a breakthrough right at this moment.

While Raunak is struggling to take care of this mass selection and the war is going on intensely, Sam made his own plans.

He stayed there for the week and made sure that all forty of his candidates finished the tests and got their licenses.

He then brought them back to Planet 1 and arranged their quarters within the campus.

After dealing with that, he went on with the orphanage procedures.

The first thing he has to do is upgrade their living conditions, a proper food supply, and resources. Every orphan that is residing in these orphanages would be eligible for joining the school. For now, the school is not open to others.

Only orphans.

The little teenager informant from the fruit street got a message from Sam indicating the opening of the school.

He and some of his friends that has any aspirations of making their lives better entered the school. The school became a hot topic. The only restriction in the school is that the people that already have certain family backgrounds cannot join.

The orphans can join even if they are not awakened and the normal cultivators who are below Novice and don't have any family background that could help them grow has special access through a tough interview.

There is no disparity in fields of study. They can study any field of study and they can ever learn things that are not related to their own field of study.

As for the kids that haven't awakened, they are being taught about the basic sciences and other things just like the school of the desolate planet.

The students are given great food, proper accommodation, and enough monthly resources that aid their development properly.

After everything was settled in the next three weeks, Sam finally went on his journey to these special zones.

The zones that are very sparsely populated by the citizens are visited by Sam one after the other. Even though it is expensive to make so many trips back and forth from the desolate realm to this realm, it is still better as he would gain more security.

He made a total of five trips and set five consummate level cultivators. Two of them are in the early stages, two of them are in the middle stages. The last one is none other than the shopkeeper that is on verge of a breakthrough.

In fact, as soon as he came to this world, he felt like he would be able to breakthrough within two days.

It is about time anyway. He was already at the peak for years under the seal and even four to five years after the seal was removed. This is way too much suppression at least the suppression is because of the lack of spiritual energy in the environment of the desolate realm which didn't cause any harmful effects to his own body.

After Sam finished the visits to these places and came back to the school.

One expert after another appeared out of nowhere to join the school as teachers. These five experts raised the popularity of the school to another level.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 798: Great Massage

The issue of the school was finally resolved and even the orphanages are completely under control.

Sam kept the trio the in-charge of all the orphanages' redevelopment.

This went on for a few months. It even took longer than the construction of the whole school campus. And by now, it is election time.

The election for the King or Queen.

At first, Sam thought, only the people of Planet 1 are eligible for the vote, but it turned out the voting will be done in each and every village, town, and city. But the campaigns are only done on Planet 1.

Because the elves believed that the results of the rest of the villages, towns, and cities are already decided by what faction won there in their local elections.

Sam shook his head at this notion. Even though it is somewhat rational to think like that, it is not exactly a fact. There is still a chance and particularly when there is a long time for campaigning. They can use this chance to point out the faults and holes in the freshly elected places and try to get a win from there.

But it is not Sam's place to judge these guys, much less worry for them. He went there and threw a random vote over them and came back.

In the next few days, Sam was in constant meditation mode. There was a new residence for him on the school campus and this location is concealed to its limit. He is currently sitting in the middle of a large complex and complicated formation.

All the beasts that have a contract with him are sitting or standing around within a large circle and each of them is in the middle of a small formation that was fully charged with their respective elemental energies.

Sam sat in the middle of all those formations with another formation that is not only connected with those different formations but was also filled with normal spiritual energy stones. He is practically sitting on piles of stones and every time they are finished, they are being replaced with a mere wave of the hand.

Due to his constant activities, Sam really didn't have time to have these proper cultivation sessions very often.

Most of the time, the beasts cultivate and share their energy with him. But now that he is also in the picture, this cultivation session is going to be fruitful.

It has been almost a year since he came here and it has been a year and a half since the last palace of inheritance. He managed to create this base and power six months earlier than he predicted and now he has another six months' time to explore the high and low of this realm before going back to the desolate planet.

As for Arman leaving before that, Sam is not exactly worried. Even if Arman managed to gain an urge to ditch him and escape to another realm, Arkiv who is still in the desolate realm can help Sam with the location.

After all, Arkiv liked being in the desolate realm where not many people can touch him. Whereas every realm they went to, it has been a nightmare for him. Even in Naga Loka, he is the one that suffered the most.

So, he would definitely need Sam's help with that and for that, he has to wait for Sam.

Anyway, in these six months, Sam made some new plans. While the whole city is waiting for the election results, Sam was surprised by something.

The reward the trio asked for finally arrived. Even though two of them are fulfilled, the last one and the most important one of them all, the one thing the four of them came to this realm for arrived.

It is actually a special vine.

Sam couldn't help but marvel at the vine. This exactly what he wanted. This vine is extremely thin, long and finally, it is hollow. There is a liquid in that hollow vine structure that is slowly moving through it and it is full of wood elemental energy.

But the energy couldn't be felt from outside at all. The vine completely enveloped it. Along with the vine that was brought in a special storage device, there was also a small booklet along with that, which contained the details regarding the plant and its properties.

He first planted it in divine dimension for it to grow.

Now the major task was completed and he has to wait for the vines to grow and he can make a leisurely plan.

One of them is to find a good beast with wood elemental energy.

Sam's next major breakthrough is right around the corner, if he is not wrong about his body's condition, then he would be in peak stage Pre-transcendent stage ready to break through into the transcendent stage for the next palace of inheritance and he needs to find the beast.

Currently, there are two types of beasts, Sam has his eye on. One with the wood element and the other with the spatial element.

The charbhum realm is an elven realm, finding the wood elemental beast is more probable.

Along with that, he also has one last invention he came up with.

But he came up with it at the start of this journey. That is regarding the bagasse, scrap of sugarcane. The plywood made from that scrap would be an absolute treasure for the elves.

Before he left, that would be a good way to squeeze some money dry from this realm and leave.

And in the middle of that, there are two more things. One is to conduct research on the tortoiseshell and get it more if he can along with that he also has to research the egg pod shells.

If he can find a proper use for them, there would be something he can gift to the researchers back at home and also some researchers here.

Apart from that, there are some more miscellaneous things to do. Like collecting the raw materials and herbs of this place and taking them to the desolate realm.

But before they did any of these. There is one more thing the four of them decided to do.

That is some splurging and enjoying.

It has been a while since Sam came to this realm, but he didn't enjoy that much. With all the things they had done, it is time for some reward.

Sam is really eager to try the massage technique of this realm.

The trio is even singing praises for it to be the best of the best. If possible he also planned to recruit the people of some niche trades like this masseuse or somebody else. Anyway, he never planned to restrict the courses of the school to a certain range.

After discussing, they decided on their first stop. The largest luxury center in the capital.

It is almost a second home for all the spoiled brats of the city. Sam decided to go and relax there.

When he saw the area, he was completely surprised. The place is actually better than he thought it would be. It is even on par with the resort he built in Mirage city of Naga Loka.

It was built with wood and it covered a large expanse in the middle of the forest. There is a fresh waterfall which is giving a refreshing feel and the stream that is coming from this waterfall went through the middle of this establishment.

Most of the wooden cabins are constructed at the bank of this stream.

There are many people roaming around. Most of the staff are female and to Sam's surprise, most of them are elves. They are dressed in moderately skimpy silk outfits and they did their tasks.

Some of them are carrying fruits and beverages, some of them are in the arms of the young masters and some of them are in a different outfit which seemed to indicate that they are a masseuse.

As soon as the four of them entered, the manager who is a male elf came forward and greeted them.

"Hello, how may I help you?"

Sam looked at him and spoke.

"Do you have membership or package deals?"

"Yes, we have various classes of membership." The manager smiled and took out a scroll. Sam looked through it and his eyes directly went to the costliest one of all.

"Four Ruby memberships."

After that, he was given a special service booklet. It is the menu of the place and the first section happened to be the menu for bed chamber services, which he automatically ignored and looked for the best massage package.

"Four of those please."

With that, Sam passed a spatial ring with a boatload of spirit stones.

The Manager was all smiles and they were taken to a special cottage right next to the waterfalls.

The largest room of all and everything that is needed for service was already inside.

There are even special waitresses for this place and they are dressed even skimpily. Sam could only shake his head.

The elves really do know how to enjoy themselves. But he has no interest in having sex with them. He went on and removed their outer clothes and only stayed with a towel covering their lower halves and laid on the tables.

And then soon the masseuses came and Sam had the best massage he had in the two lifetimes.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 799: Sirens arrived

Sam came out with friends and it is already evening. He felt like his body is a thousand times lighter. Although the masseuse was scared a bit by the scars on his body, she slowly regained control and Sam fell asleep in the middle.

Not a complete deep sleep though. He held on to his consciousness and he can still feel the hands and the person that is moving those hands, he just didn't care about the rest of the room.

He decided to come here more often. He held the ruby card in his hands and went back to his residence.

The trio is stunned by how Sam was so satisfied and liked it so much. This is the first time Sam showed this much interest in something like this.

The reason Sam liked it is not because of just the pleasure it is giving him, the person who is doing the massage is actually using the wood elemental energy in such a precise way to cover a small portion of the body at a time and used the vitality to rejuvenate the cells in his body.

He was really impressed by her technique. When he looked at the profile of the masseuse given by the manager, he was even more impressed. She is specialized in many more types of massages and is the best of the best within the whole establishment and possibly even in the whole planet.

If not for the fact, that he was too lost in the massage, he would have even tried to recruit her.

But he is not in a hurry. There are still many techniques that he has to try and there is a lot of time for him to recruit her.

While Sam and his friends dedicated their time to enjoy themselves, something else is happening in the city. The day for the election result's announcement is going to be given out soon and the coronation of the new king or queen would be conducted.

So, there are some special guests in the city.

From the seashore of a town, a group of sirens emerged out of the water and started their journey to the Capital a few days ago and they reached the city on that very day.

The first thing they did to go and meet the elders and then went to their own residence that they have.

The whole city is in fervor upon their arrival.

This is the tradition between the sirens and the elves. For every coronation, the sirens will send the envoys over to give their wishes and gifts for them to show their support and continue their coexisting cooperation.

The sirens will take their time and enjoy themselves on the surface and experience the pleasures this world has to offer.

Along with that, there will be a series of meetings between the sirens and the elven officials discussing some things which are not disclosed to the public.

So, for the next few days, while Sam is enjoying himself with his friends. The remaining city is bustling, everyone is interested in impressing the sirens, all the business owners want to serve the sirens that are not from this place.

The trio is also discussing this as they found it interesting because the sirens don't pay normally with spirit stones, they give out some special rewards from the sea if they really like it, and turned out that the sirens are richer than the elves.

And another shocking news is, they are even larger in terms of population.

No wonder, the prideful elves wanted to coexist. Sam thought, but that is not the only thought Sam has when he remembered the three products he sold.

Maybe, there is a chance for the shift in the balance of power and this peaceful coexistence might not last long and if there is any chance that could happen, Sam might be able to take advantage of the current situation even more and get something else from someone else.

While Sam is thinking of the sirens while getting a different massage which is done by some soft vines coiling around him, what he doesn't know is that the sirens are currently talking about him.

Currently, there is a meeting happening between the envoys of the sirens and some elven officials.

"I heard that the war between you and the sea folks intensified? And you guys are showing the chances of winning. I must congratulate you. The Sea folks are pests that are hard to get rid of. If you manage to get rid of them, you would have a sea completely under your control."

The Siren envoy asked as he tasted the wine in front of him. This is one of the wines Sam created and is a new delicacy to sirens which they seemed to enjoy a lot.

"Thanks for the good wishes of Lord Varien. But it would still take some time before the sea folks are finished up. The consummate level creatures already on the move and they are creating big waves all over. It is a bit problematic."

"Well, I heard that you have some new weapons which helped you enter the sea and even attack there properly, it seems like you people became good at making things."

"haha, Lord Varien can truly jest. We are really not that great."

"Don't be too modest. I would like to meet the maker of these weapons if possible."

"That..."

"Why? Are we not eligible?"

"No, no, that is not what I meant. Currently, those weapons are produced by the One-star military unit and they are pretty discreet about the actual maker of the weapons. If you really want to, we will try and see what we can do."

"Then please do. We would stay here until we get to meet that person."

With that, the sirens left and went back to their arranged residence. The officials went to meet their superiors and the word began to pass.

These officials clearly understand what the presence of these weapons means. The elves are prideful by nature and it would be a joke if one believed that they really don't have any aspirations to conquer the seas.

These weapons are a clear show of that possibility and it has to be resolved as diplomatically as possible. The sirens don't have the disadvantages of the sea folks and they don't have to bid their time.

They can attack anytime they want and it would still be a doubt whether the elven government can sustain that attack.

So, they decided to arrange that meeting and soon the news reached the professor through the one-star military unit.

Professor was a bit stumped. No one knows that Sam was the one who created these products. Very few people know about it and they are the one-star military unit, the professor himself, his trusted aides, and finally the tax officer who is also the subordinate of the professor who managed to conceal what kind of product that Sam has sold to gain this much money.

Even Sam doesn't know that he was completely concealed regarding this. He didn't want to hide it and neither did he think that it was possible.

He already gave up the thought of hiding his actions as the tax regulations are quite strict here.

There is even a department for riding some people if they are suspected of tax evasion.

But they wouldn't go through the regular process of searching and digging, rather they would be asked to swear a tree spirit oath every now and then.

He didn't want to get mixed up with this and do something stupid while he stayed in this world.

What he doesn't know is, that the professor is not exactly comfortable with everyone knowing what Sam made.

It would be a bit of trouble if others coveted it and there are too many loopholes in their contract.

The main one is that the contract only states, that Sam can only sell the products or designs created in the research base of Planet 2 to the one-star military. But that doesn't include or restrict Sam from opening the new base, or the products that are solely made by himself without the involvement of the research base.

Elves are good at finding useful people and using them properly. If the remaining factions learned that Sam is making the waves in the weapon industry, then things wouldn't stay the same. The grenades are barely tolerable.

But he couldn't reject the Siren's request.

So, all he could do is send a request to Sam and also another request to the sirens that they would keep the creator of the weapons a secret.

After writing both the letters he waited.

When Sam got the letter, he was a bit surprised.

But he agreed to the meeting. It wouldn't hurt to meet a person from the race that is ruling the sea. What could go wrong?

But it seems like some were really bound to go wrong.

Since he liked the massage sessions so much and particularly by that one person, he paid for the rest of the month and completely booked her. He didn't even care if the service he took wouldn't be expensive enough to cover the cost. He just paid for the whole month with the most expensive package there is and made sure that she is available every time he comes here.

After some research of the tortoiseshell, he went to try a new massage technique, but the manager is currently standing before him with a faint smile and telling him that she is not available.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 800: Encounter

"Sir, you are our valuable customer. And we don't want to lose you. Please adjust for this one day."

The manager looked at Sam and said with a faint smile.

Sam looked at him coldly.

He took a deep breath and asked.

"Did I pay you for the whole month or not?"

"Yes, you did."

"Did I reserve her service in particular for the whole month or not?"

"Yes, you did."

"Then why am I not being provided by her service. The very reason I paid early is because, she might be stuck in somebody else's service when I come here. Why do you think I paid for her earlier?"

"I understand sir. But she is not available."

The manager just kept on that smiling face and looked at Sam. There is a sense of gloating in his eyes that could be clearly seen.

No matter what Sam said, it is like punching cotton. He couldn't land a proper blow with words.

The trio didn't come here today, so Sam is alone. But if they were here and saw his expression, they would have known that something is going to happen to this place.

"Give me one damn good reason, why I should wait?"

"Because, I am asking nicely, Sir."

Sam took another deep breath and asked.

"I will just wait here for a while. Do you mind if I play my flute while I am waiting?"

"By all means please do sir."

Sam sat down and took out his flute. The manager turned around and walked in. A supervisor who is in charge of the waitresses followed him and asked.

"Manager, what you are doing is wrong, if the boss finds out about this, we will be in big trouble. He is a valuable customer after all and he really did pay early just to avoid this scenario."

"What is he going to do? I don't even know where he got that money. He must be some kind of mercenary. But at the end of the day, he is just a human. Since when did they have any say in what Elves do? Anyway, the customer I am mainly concerned about is the young master inside. He brought a special guest, so do take care of them properly."

The supervisor shook her head and left.

At this exact moment, Sam's aura raged and music started spreading all over the establishment. At first, the music is not big of a deal, because it is extremely smooth and melodious even if it is loud.

But soon the situation changed bit by bit.

The first thing that happened, is the water in the waterfall has turned cold. And this caused the few people that are relaxing in the water-related massages and swimming in the stream to get cold all of a sudden and their pleasantness disappeared.

There are some cold winds around causing people to lose that warm and cozy, comfortable feeling.

When they are feeling the cold wind, then came the second problem. The wind currents turned hot. The hot and cold winds are hitting their bare bodies. They came here to relax, so they are not using their spiritual energy to block everything. Their bodies are currently closest to the normal body. Even though they are strengthened and wouldn't be hurt by these cold and hot winds, it is more of an irritation technique.

The next thing is the people whose feet are being relaxed in the mud. All of a sudden the mud turned dense and gripped their feet roughly causing them to streak in irritation.

The manager was stunned. The complaints are pouring in non-stop, but before he could reach another thing is happening. A wind current is carrying the fallen leaves, debris, and dirt all and rushed into the tent where the special baths are given to the customers. The special baths include the girls performing the special services.

While they are in the middle of it, this small dirt storm, went right into their private parts.

"ARGgggggghh."

One after another the customers are shrieking and calling the manager.

At this moment, the music suddenly stopped and all these weird things also stopped happening.

The manager looked at Sam in horror.

"What are you doing? Are you trying to cause trouble?"

He started yelling like crazy, but Sam didn't even care.

"Now, can I see my masseuse?"

The manager was stumped. This is some reaction he didn't expect.

"Do you know where you are and who you are speaking to?"

Before Sam could even answer, another young elf came out from the cottage and walked towards the manager.

"What is with all the disturbances?"

"Nothing young master. Someone is trying to cause trouble." After that, he started whispering everything into his ear, and then the young master looked at Sam.

"You are the one causing trouble. So, what if I have snatched your masseuse, I didn't snatch your wife, why are you so overreacting? Even if I did snatch your wife, you wouldn't be able to do anything. Do you know who I am and who I am accompanying today? It is your honor.."

Before he could finish his words, another person came out of the cottage and Sam understood why this young master popping so much. He is accompanying a siren.

Before the young master and siren could interact, Sam already held the young master by his hand and twisted so that he could make the young master face the ground and dropped an axe kick on the back of his head.

"Snatching my wife? Try and snatch my shoes and see if I would make you wish you were dead?"

"How dare you hit me? Do you know who my father is?"

"Why are you asking me? Your mother doesn't know or is she too embarrassed to tell you?" Everyone in the room almost bit their tongues.

While Sam is about to make another move, a fierce aura was focused on him making him halt.

"What is happening here?"

The manager was stunned. He looked around only to find a mature elven woman walking towards them and beside her, is the supervisor who is walking meekly.

The woman seems to be the boss of the place. She looked at the siren and then at the person that is lying under Sam's foot and said.

"Please leave him alone and tell me what happened."

"I am a ruby member and I paid for the highest service for the remaining of the month just so that I could reserve the masseuse and here I am to get the service and I was not allowed. May I know why?"

The boss looked at the supervisor who whispered something.

"I am sorry for the inconvenience. I will arrange for your service immediately."

"No need." With that, Sam walked towards the masseuse who just came out and gave a card.

"I am Sam. The person who established the new school. If you have an interest in teaching and also be the personal rejuvenator of the school, contact me. I am staying at this address. I would pay five times the money you get here annually and you don't want to wear the unwanted clothes and force yourself to do unwanted things.

All you have to do is make sure the injured students are healed and get rid of their fatigue and teach your techniques to the interested children."

With that, Sam turned around to leave.

The boss frowned and didn't like this at all. But she didn't do anything. But the siren who is silent all the while stopped Sam and spoke.

"Who are you?"

"I am Sam."

"Don't let me see you again. Otherwise, I will kill you."

"Seems like the massage worked wonders. You are even daydreaming."

Sam didn't stay any longer and left. He has to go for the meeting with the Siren envoys in the evening.

After Sam left the boss looked at the masseuse with complicated eyes. The situation was seen by a lot of people, and five times the salary is a lot of money. If she forcefully stopped her, it couldn't be hidden from the public eye and the reputation would take a hit.

But she is the top masseuse of the establishment. Even some transcendent and consummate stage cultivators come back for her massages regularly. She looked at the young master who barely stood up and the manager who is panicking.

She slapped the manager to the ground and looked at the young master before saying.

"You are really getting of hand aren't you? Tell your father to meet me this evening. I will have a good talk with him."

She didn't even care about the presence of the siren and left.

In the evening, Sam went to the meeting place arranged by the professor to meet the siren envoys.

As soon as Sam entered the room with his friends, he was stunned. Professor and Galvin are sitting along with some sirens while talking about something. Some sirens are standing behind the sirens who sat, clearly indicating their subordinate status.

But one of the subordinates looked at Sam and his eyes widened. His aura raged and he almost made a move. But before he could do that, the professor spoke.

"Here comes our guest. He is Sam. The inventor of three of these devices."

Varien stood up and shook Sam's hands.

"Nice to meet you. Mr. Sam."

"Nice to meet you too. Mr. Varien."

Both of them took the seat across each other and exchanged some pleasantries. Sam gave a provocative look to the subordinate standing behind here and then and continued to talk.