

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 931: Addiction

Aina.

The name of the woman who was the wife of the Kal of the previous settlement. The new addition which Arona used as per Sam's instructions.

For the next few days, the journey actually stopped. The king spent most of the time with Aina. They made love like beasts on heat and he did it until the point of exhaustion. Even if he was not satisfied by then, he went to other women.

The balance in power has changed completely. The King didn't care, but the women became insecure about their positions. Even the time he spent after having his way with Aina is becoming less and less and with every meal, he is spending more time with Aina.

And the frustration in the rest of the women grew more and more.

They thought that King really fell in love with Aina.

But what they don't know is this is Sam's doing. He is using a special Aphrodisiac on the King mixed with the food.

He tinkered with the recipe of the drug to make it enhance the taste of the food as well as the libido.

And the King directed all this increased libido towards Aina without a second thought and Aina who is probably the best performer in the bed managed to hold him in place making sure that he got satisfied in every way. Both physically and mentally to the point that he didn't even bother thinking of other women.

Even his queen was barely remembered by him.

He stopped his journey temporarily for over a week to enjoy his time with Aina.

He was that high of Aphrodisiac and the pleasure, but he attributed all of it to Aina and her possible expertise in the matter.

And the next step started after three days of Aina and King's exploits.

Sam started changing the recipe a bit and from this point onwards Arona has to stay away from the King for a while which is easier than ever.

The debauchery went on for the whole week and the rest of the women are extremely frustrated. By day six and seven, he didn't even go for one of them and also fucked Aina to death.

Which prompted him to leave her alone for a while to recover. But his increased his libido didn't stop and finally the women started getting their much needed attention as they restarted their journey once again.

But this time, the King is not feeling as satisfied as he did with Aina which made him feel frustrated.

Another week went by when they reached the next settlement, he didn't have the same enthusiasm as before. He had high libido but no satisfaction. Not unless he did it with Aina. Otherwise, his libido is being wasted.

He couldn't focus on his partner and his erection is not lasting long.

Arona who is the only one within the posse who understood his situation looked at him with a deeply satisfied glee.

The suffering of the king made her feel good and she is more and more assured that Sam might achieve what he said he would.

While the libido of the women is increasing with every meal, they are feeling frustrated by King's lack of attention.

Aina who was crazy about the attention is lacking the energy to do it. And Arona once again did something according to Sam's instructions.

"Take these potions. They are good for keeping you energy and recovery."

"Where did you get these?"

"I made them myself. It is a secret. I didn't want the queen and others to know that I am taking things like these to please the King, they would kill me. But you are having a hard time because of your lack of energy. So, take these and you would be able to keep him with you for three days straight."

Aina was ecstatic, but still a bit suspicious. Arona had to take a sip before Aina could drink them.

The potions increased their activity once again.

The frustration between the posse increased to a whole new level by the time they started their journey once again.

The women felt their increasing libido extremely problematic to the point they put their disputes aside and started pleasing themselves.

Sam got the real time news from Arona as he noted down every single reaction from the group.

Since the start, every change that happened to the group is done by him. The Aphrodisiac, the drugs that increased the sexual frustration of the King when he is not doing with Aina, the drugs that increased the frustration of the women when they are not doing with them and finally the potions that Aina is drinking currently is almost the last phase of the plans.

Now he just has to wait for the results.

And soon he got them.

Because two of the ladies, the ones in middle stage of Astral Plane Pre-transcendence couldn't take it anymore and took the male guards with them to have sex.

As liberal as it may be in this world and men doesn't care that much about their sexual parnter's sexual partners, the King's Ego wouldn't allow him to share his women.

Arona whispered this in the ears of Aina who took this as an advantage and took the King to the same spot while they are fooling around.

The King looked at the guards and his women along with them.

And for the first time, he thought something else other than fucking Aina's brains out. He looked at them with boiling anger and his aura raged.

He took out the staff and Sam is looking through the telescope as he observed the reaction carefully.

"How dare you?"

He asked as he pressed his leg on the chest of the guard who is nearest to them.

"Lord, it was not my fault, she was the one that dragged me here."

He begged and pleaded as soon as he saw the rage of his King.

Sometimes it is easy to forget why king is the king when all he does is fuck around like a horny dog.

He smashed the staff on his head and killed him one strike before moving to the other guard.

The guard wanted to run away in a desperate attempt to safe his life.

But as the King swung the staff, a wind cannon smashed him on the back almost breaking the spine and making him crash into the ground.

The King hit him on the back of his neck which killed him.

He then finally turned to the two of his women. Unlike the guards, he didn't kill them with a single strike, instead he started beating the crap out of them.

"How dare you bitches sleep with someone behind my back?"

You nasty whores.

Once I said you are mine, then you are mine.

Only I can fuck you. Filthy whores."

He went on and on until they slowly bled to death.

Aina looked at them with a smirk. All she could see is the death of two of her competitors.

But what she failed observe is the beastiality of the man she is lusting after.

Meanwhile Arona looked at the situation and felt extremely satisfied with the way things are going.

The twins who saw the live broadcast from Arona were shocked by this and asked Sam.

"That tool killed his own women? How did you manage to do that?"

"I didn't actually. Credit goes to one of my subordinates currently doing some research in my home planet."

"Is it all from the drugs you put in the food?"

"Not all of them. The drugs in the food is just aphrodisiac, this is from the potions Aina is consuming. During sex a cultivator exchange their spiritual energy along with the bodily fluids and the potion I gave her is one of the reseach projects of my subordinate.

He is trying to create a medicine which would make the healing easier.

When a patient is in subconscious state, advanced healing that required for organ regeneration is hard. Particularly when they just went into shock due to a deadly battle.

The instinctual response of the body is to force the foreign energy out and the hardest part in the treatment is to dominate the energy and make it dormant for a while. Making the subconscious instincts to understand that it is useless to resist or that I was being done for their own good.

But it is hard for average healers which causes many people to die.

This potion works on the doctor and when it was taken, the doctor's energy will give out a mellow feeling which makes the subconscious instincts drop their guard and enjoy the soothing and mellow feeling of the spiritual energy.

But there is only one drawback, it is addictive and it messes with one's brain.

That is why he gave me the samples and recipe to see how we can fix that addictive factor, I research it in my spare time.

But currently, the unfinished drug is being useful."

"But how useful can a drug that is used for low-level users can be on an elite of Astral Plane?"

"Well as long as he keeps on taking it, it would be effective. After all, they are already sex-crazed and an addict, for one thing, could get addicted to another easily."

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 932: Plot

The things went on just like how Sam planned for the next few days.

Aina and the King are doing what they are doing and the rest of the women are being thankfully ignored only involved when Aina wanted some excitement in.

But the King is not getting that feeling.

They reached the next settlement and this time, the ceremony is almost non-existent. The King is fully focused on Aina, the Queen was completely sidelined and was told to pick the women she liked while he went into the Mansion along with Aina.

He was smitten with her and if not for the fact that she is sure that she wouldn't be able to defeat him, the Queen herself wanted to deal with him.

The orgy in this city was completely bland. He didn't make time for any new additions. He just kept on having sex with Aina for seven to eight hours a day. It is too much even for an Astral Plane cultivator.

But he got addicted to it.

Aina who was feeling good about this was having second thoughts, but when he saw the lost look on Queen's face and how the King couldn't even get himself turned on when he is trying it with Queen alone. He has to keep physical contact with Aina continuously.

He is getting more and more addicted to her and she is downing more and more potions into her body.

Arona who was not raped for more than ten days is feeling grateful and happy after a long time. She looked at the deprived state of the King and felt a sense of victory over him.

After the bland time they spent within the settlement once again, they went out to the next journey.

On the first night after they left the settlement, Aina came to meet Arona secretly.

"I just want to talk to you for some time. Can we do that?"

Arona nodded and both of them took a seat by the lake side. Aina looked exhausted and asked Arona.

"Why is the King so crazy? He was not like that when I met him for the first time. I never thought I would say this. But I don't want to have sex for a while."

"Maybe he fell in love with you."

"No, this is not love. I have seen love. My husband loved me. This is more like a crazy lust."

"Well, he is the king, he would do whatever he wants. Even if his lust is crazy nobody can do anything about it."

"I wish he would tone down his libido a bit. He is so out of control for a person of that cultivation level."

"Is it really that out of hand?"

"Well, he is acting more and more like a beast. There is no mind and thought put into that sex. He is like a beast in heat."

As they chatted, the Queen suddenly who is hiding in the rear heard these words and left to talk to her husband.

The King cannot be insulted like this and even the slightest of suspicion he gets would be answered with death.

And she has seen many of the concubines he keeps in the castle getting killed because of her snitching and she felt it would be the same.

At least that is what she hoped and the initial reaction is indeed so.

"AINA."

The King yelled out as soon as he got the complaint.

Aina and Arona went running towards him and he is indeed furious.

"Queen has something to say about you. Do you have an answer for that?"

The Queen repeated what she did and then pointed at Arona.

"She is there too, ask her if I am telling the truth."

She looked threateningly at Arona which is obviously an indication for her to not lie. But Arona behaved as if she never even saw that and spoke.

"Lord, I am sorry to say this, but the Queen came to us when we are speaking and she started yelling at Aina about her being a vixen and hogging you all for herself and she said that this would be the end of Aina's wicked plans.

She is just lying to make you angry so that you would punish Aina and she can have you all for herself."

She bowed down and spoke in a pitiful voice as if she was afraid to speak up.

Aina was dazed for a moment and it didn't take long before she took the hint.

She averted her gaze with tearful eyes and when King saw that he thought of his own answer and he took out the staff immediately and swung it at the queen.

The Queen was shocked. She was Queen not just because she is a good lay, rather she is most trustworthy to the King.

They practically grew up together. She is his political and business advisor and that is the reason he trusted her every time she reported something and it should have been the same at this moment.

But the King completely took the side of a woman who is nothing but a good lay. She has nothing to offer other than her body.

Even though, there are many thoughts running through her mind, protecting herself was the top priority and she did just that.

The staff hit her on the torso and she flew back and crashed into the tree as she spat out blood.

The King looked at her coldly and said.

"I am forgiving you because of all the things you have done for me, but there is no way I will let you off if you do something like this again."

The queen's face is filled with shock and pain.

She really wanted to retaliate, but she knew that her power is not equal to the King. She has to endure this.

She looked at Aina and Arona with a hateful stare which both of them ignored and went to finish their chat.

"You are really gutsy. You should have given me a heads up."

"You are going to be the next queen anyway, there is no problem. It is only a matter of days."

"But still; this is too early. What if she just kills us and be done with it."

Arona didn't say anything and stayed silent. At midnight she sent the report back to Sam and got a reply.

That night the exchange of notes went for quite a long time.

The next morning, she went to meet Aina again as soon as they got the chance,

"I have a plan for you. If you want to become a queen. Then you can become the queen and it would be announced in the next settlement. You can get rid of the Queen and her companions easily."

"Is there really such a good deal in this world? How can we get rid of them?"

"We are nearing the lair of a beast. I have a herb that attracts that beast and I have a plan. If you want to, tell me before we reach the settlement."

We would out of range of that beast lair after we reach the settlement."

After that she didn't stay in touch with Aina that much, but she did change the cooking pattern. Which means she changed the food for the queen and the rest of the women. It is also another drug that was still in research.

And this increased their aphrodisiac content and then came the effects of the new drug. It has the function of increasing the blood pressure.

This is for surgical purposes. Not everyone has so many elements like Sam, they couldn't control the blood flow in the middle of healing someone.

There is another drug that helps with slowing down the circulation too, but it has no use now.

As the queen and the rest got the new foods, they are becoming more and more out of control. There are many instances where they wanted to kill Aina directly and the Queen even thought of ideas of killing the King while he is doing Aina.

As she observed the changes in the behavior, Aina became more and more cautious and on second day she agreed to Arona's plan.

"Try to find a way to get all the women to a separate spot and make sure that King is a bit away but not too far. Try to talk him in to making this happen and the plan with succeeding easily. I will take care of the rest."

"But what if the beast manages to kill me."

"There is no chance. The beast would be more interested of the herb than us. And it cannot consume it directly, there is a large process it has to go through before eating it away and it would be very possessive of it.

So don't worry. As long as it gets the herb it will go away.

In fact, I will give the herb to you and you can throw it away whenever things go south. But one thing does make sure that the queen and the rest know that King is nearby, then only the plan will work."

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 933: Loss of Satisfaction

The next day, Arona proceeded along with the plan Sam sent her which she advocated as her plan to Aina.

She took three similar herbs that gave out some transparent liquid when squeezed out and applied it on Aina's arms. She only left one herb intact and Aina held on to it.

The women are all moving towards a spot which is supposed to have some special fruit which Aina believes extremely great addition to 'her cooking'.

As the King is a sucker for her and her cooking, he agreed without a second thought and sent all the ladies to collect the fruit. Since he killed his guards the ladies are the only ones left to do his work.

And somehow she even managed to make sure that he stays within a certain range.

Sam planted some berry bushes nearby to create a proper scenario and the ladies arrived there as they plucked the fruit.

At this moment, they sensed a presence coming from the side and before they knew it, the Raiju Elder already appeared near Aina, ignoring the remaining women.

The women who are already under the influence of the drug looked at the most hated person being attacked and didn't even bother to react.

They cannot kill her, as the King would be dealing with them if they did, but that doesn't mean they cannot just let her die on her when an external party attacked.

They are not her bodyguards after all.

They genuinely wished that Raiju elder would kill her. The Raiju elder caused a lot of ruckus and made some big moves and Aina started running towards the Queen.

Queen who is clearly stronger than Raiju elder in cultivation level didn't want to get involved in this. More than anyone else, she wished that Aina died on the spot.

So, she dodged to the side and let the beast have his go.

"Queen, you have to save me. Otherwise, the King wouldn't let you off."

"The King has to know before he makes a decision. And I am sure, no one here will be giving him the news."

As she spoke the rest of the women agreed and suddenly their eyes landed on Arona who is standing at the edge of the field.

"There is indeed a snitch here. It is possible he might know."

As she said she gestured for the women nearest to Arona to make a move. At this exact moment, the King came from his hiding.

"You filthy Whore."

He yelled at the Queen and looked at them coldly. Aina threw the herb into the air and the Raiju elder caught it before running away.

The King wanted to follow him and make a move, but as Raiju elder dove into the forest, he disappeared all of a sudden which cut his trail off.

After a futile search to look for the tracks and the cloud anger he has towards his wife and concubines, he walked out of the forest and went to the field where the women all gathered together, with the exception of Aina and Arona.

The latter is currently feeding some potions to the former.

"King, listen to me for a moment. Please."

The Queen asked as she tried to talk her way through this situation. But the King is already angry and his staff is already out.

The surrounding wind elemental energy is completely riled up. The Queen and the women tried to plead some more, but that all turned out to be futile. He didn't back down and slowly walk towards them as he channeled his energy into the staff.

Queen looked at his cold eyes and spat on the ground coldly before saying.

"I accompanied you through thick and thin for decades. I helped you become the king and offered you all kinds of assistance. I was there beside you in war protecting your back. I was there beside your bed when you were injured.

Now, because of a vixen you dare do this to me? How dare you? How dare you betray me like this?"

She yelled and sobbed at the same time, there is a burning resentment in her eyes.

The King looked at her with anger, disgust, and disdain in his eyes and without speaking anything lifted his staff.

And then the battle began. Aina broadcasted it live and Sam saw this along with the twins and his subordinates.

One must say that the Queen is quite strong. She is at least as strong as one of the twins and she has great battle instincts. She can think on her feet quickly and made some significant damage.

But unfortunately the King who mostly relied on the brute force still managed to overpower.

The battle lasted fifteen minutes and this gap he killed almost all of the women and only spared some as they begged and pleaded for mercy.

No one knows if he didn't kill them because he really showed mercy or if it is because he couldn't care less about them.

At the last clash between the King and the Queen, when the staff was about to make a contact, she used all her energy to thrust her sword into the arm that was holding the staff.

The staff landed and half of the bones in her body broke. She fell to the ground with blood coming from her orifices.

She had a smile on her face as she looked at Aina and said.

"She will be the end of you."

She closed her eyes and died.

He then looked at the women who are half dead and barely alive and said.

"I am leaving you alone for now, because you are just bystanders. But this is the final warning. Aina will be your new queen from today and you all have to respect her as you did to me. Do you understand?"

They nodded and knelt before Aina asking for forgiveness.

Aina was stunned for a moment. This is what she was yearning for. This is her goal and she achieved it just like that.

She can wear the golden shoulder pads and roam around the planet. She would be the dream woman of everyman but they cannot touch her and would even fear imagining something with her.

She would be a symbol of the tribe.

As she was reveling in her own fantasies, the King dragged her away to make love to distract himself and the rest of the women followed.

Arona was the last one to move behind them.

She got a new message.

And she was surprised when she read it.

But she did as she was told.

For the next few days, the wound on the King's hand didn't heal. For some reason, no matter how many times he took the required pills, the bleeding didn't stop and the wind elemental energy is not really a healing element.

He doesn't have any healers at hand. So, once again Arona came into play.

She went to meet Aina and used her to deliver another recipe which stopped the bleeding and made the wound scab, but the arm became a bit numb and he needs to give the arm some rest.

In the next two days, they reached the next settlement, where the King announced Aina as the new queen.

Even though everyone has many doubts in their minds, they didn't dare ask them out loud. King does whatever he wants.

This time he left the job to pick the new women in the city to some other women and directly took Aina inside to make some love on a comfortable bed.

But for some reason, in the middle of the sex, he lost the weird soothing sensation he always gets while doing it with Aina.

But he didn't stop, in fact, he increased his pace and started using all his strength.

Aina started screaming in pain and almost broke some bones which prompted him to leave her alone.

He went to the rest of the women and let Aina recover.

But for the next two days, no woman managed to give him any pleasure.

He felt like he lost a part of him. He felt incomplete.

The sex he liked so much felt like a tedious activity he was being forced to do to find that weird pleasure that made him smitten with Aina.

He couldn't find it anywhere and then he directly went to Aina who was still recovering and started raping her even though she tried to resist.

After knowing that he couldn't be controlled, she calmed down and went along with it while leading him on with her bedroom tricks.

He calmed down for a while and tried to enjoy it, there are a few traces of the joy he was searching. But he couldn't get a hold it.

It is almost like he is fishing with his hand and he could touch the fishtail and fins. But he couldn't get a grip on the fish no matter how hard he tried.

But at least with Aina's efforts, he was satisfied for the moment.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 934: Withdrawal

Addiction withdrawal.

Something that happens in humans quite often. No matter what kind of addiction it is, it might be an addiction to drugs, alcohol, some types of food, mobile devices, music, movies. People could be addicted to anything and when they are taken off of that and the supply for any of their addiction was cut off, you would see a whole new side of that particular person.

We can see the behavior they never even exhibited. The bravest man will show fear. The strongest man will show weakness, the most loving person would show ruthlessness and the most restrained man will show recklessness.

And currently, Sam figured out that even a strong cultivator is not exactly an exception for this case.

On the third day in the newest settlement, the King has already killed four maids and a local woman who was selected for his orgy which didn't take place.

Aina tried her best to control his urge but he cannot, because the food is still being laced with Aphrodisiac. There is no way to tone down his erection. But there is no way to stop the food. Because that is the only thing that is keeping him in check for a few hours a day and Aina doesn't know it has the aphrodisiacs in them.

If anyone in the sane mind has been in that situation, they would have looked for an anomaly. But only if they met this guy for the first time.

But no one cared about any anomaly, because of the King's crazy quirks, nobody thought that something might have happened to him.

Not until the fourth day, where his arms showed something else.

The muscle that was cut off of his hand because of the sword attack of his wife, didn't heal completely. The healing pills and potions he was taking were not working and the muscle seemed to be overgrown overnight and it is still growing.

At first, he thought that the muscle growth was normal but by that day, there is a lot more growth than it should have been, he could almost see the difference between the sizes of the two arms with his naked eye.

And this muscle overgrowth started hurting him.

He doesn't know why the overgrowth is not stopping, so he stopped taking the pills and potions. But the pain didn't go away.

If only he knew that as long as he didn't eat the food that he gorges down for five to seven times a day, this might have stopped, then he would have been okay.

But he didn't and nobody dared to do anything. Including asking for his well-being, checking up on him or taking care of him.

For the first time, on the fifth day, he remembered the queen he killed and even left the dead body in the middle of the forest as if it was a rotten carcass.

She used to care for him, she used to check upon him. Too bad, he was an asshole.

And when he remembered why he killed her like that, his thoughts led him to Aina, and then his thoughts led him to the warm soothing feeling he gets after having sex with her. And he ran into the room and started roughly doing her without a second thought.

"STOP. NOOO, STOP."

Aina started screaming in pain as she reached several orgasms but the pain overwhelmed the minute pleasure he got.

"Where is it?"

The king muttered which made her stop her screaming as she tried to listen to what he was saying. He didn't care whether she is screaming or not as he just tried his best to get that feeling.

"Where is it? Why could I not feel it?"

There is something wrong. There is something hidden.

I couldn't feel it. I want that feeling.

I want the sensation."

He started muttering all kinds of things and he increased his thrusting and almost made her bleed.

"MYYYY KKIIIIINNG"

She yelled at the top of her lungs and he came out of a daze. He saw the faint trace of blood coming out of her vagina, he immediately left her and went outside.

He ran into the forest to calm himself down and for that reason, he trained for the first time in a few months.

Aina immediately ran to Arona and said.

"He became crazy. I am a lot weaker than the Queen, I couldn't take this like she did. Help me please."

Arona gave her a few more potions and told her to get a rest before she went to send the message to Sam.

Sam who saw the symptoms smiled and sent a reply.

"Wait until you guys enter the forest and for the next settlement or any return.

Before that journey, use the last drug I gave you and I sent a scroll, use your blood and draw a line starting from the center of the scroll and towards the east while you are facing the east and inject your spiritual energy into the scroll.

Use the scroll only after you saw the first symptom listed down on the rest of the note. Good luck and don't go anywhere near him.

If he comes looking for sex use the scroll right away. He would be a beast for quite some time.

So, do be careful if you want to live."

She then proceeded to read the rest of the symptoms and instructions and sent the scroll away with the shadow mouse. She only carried the transference scroll and the last set of drugs to make sure everything goes right.

After two more days, they started their journey and this time the King brought a bunch of women with him from the settlement and he is having sex with them on that elephant-type beast continuously in search of that lost feeling.

Aina still has to recover for a few days, her bones were dislocated because of the rough sex he had.

And the first meal they stopped for after the start of the journey, Arona gave the last drug Sam wanted her to administer and soon after the meal when he was taking a rest something happened.

He clutched his left arm which has muscle overgrowth in pain. This is painful beyond anything he ever experienced.

He could see the overgrown twitching continuously. It is fighting off the original muscle fibers that are already present on the arm as if it was conscious. To be precise the rest of the body is rejecting that piece of muscle tissue.

Even his clutching is more painful than normal. This is the result of another set of experimental drugs. The ones that are created for torture. It is nowhere near finishing and it causes the pain receptors to become a hundred times more sensitive than normal.

At this moment, a single pinch would feel like a stab wound for him and one can only guess what would happen if he was really stabbed and in a situation like this, he is feeling the pain of muscle tissue being forcefully separated from the rest.

When Arona saw the change, she immediately took out the scroll and got ready to leave but at this moment, Aina came over and took a look at the King's situation and asked.

"What is happening to him?"

"He seems to be in pain. Residual effects to the stab in his arm. It must have injured a sensitive part of the arm.

Go and tell him, he would be okay. Give him a massage."

Aina nodded and left, Arona smirked and waited for the scene to play out. When Aina placed her hands on the muscle tissue and pressed it with her spiritual energy...

"AHHHHHHH..." The king screamed at the top of his lungs and swung his fist at her. She is not as strong as the original queen, to begin with, so she couldn't take the hit and die on the spot.

Arona laughed out loud and activated the scroll and when the King looked in her direction, all he saw is her disappearing in a streak and he got suspicious, before he could run, he felt the pain increased and knelt on the floor.

Arona reappeared in a forest patch and she waited there and soon Sam appeared in that spot on Sky and the first thing he did is give her some robes to cover herself. Since he came out of the city and traveling through the forest, he already wore clothes, this naked roaming around is not his thing.

She was glad to see full clothes, in this tribe anyone who wore clothes is taking an odd one and picked on, even dead and nobody would care.

She covered herself in the robes and felt secure after a long time.

"My beasts would be here with you. There is no strong predator in the surroundings and if there is any problem I would be getting notified immediately. I will come as fast as I can. I have to go back and take care of the King."

With that, he let Yanwu, ape, and Dia out before going back to the spot where the King is still screaming. The twins are also ready to deal with that guy now. They wouldn't be able to find him a weaker state.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 935: Pain

The twins are looking at the King from afar as they observed his symptoms. According to Sam, the pain will only get worse for the next few worse.

And they have to make a move only when the King tries to cut his hand off but fails, that is the best time for them to make their move as that would be the time the pain receptors reach the highest sensitivity.

Before the symptoms reached that point, Sam already arrived and took a look.

They had to wait for a good half-an-hour before they could make their move and this time, Sam didn't go himself into the field, he just flew upwards on the Sky as he looked down through the telescope.

The twins arrived in front of the King as he was about to chop his arm off, but the very little contact made him unable to continue. The small slash he left on it created a lot of pain and faint bleeding and he could only grit his teeth and endure as he took deep breaths.

The rest of the posse didn't even dare to come near him and disturb him and when the twins came and they felt their auras, they are even more stunned.

"Solar Fragments? What are you doing here?"

The King got vigilant and for a moment, he even forgot all about the pain. He took out his staff and raised his aura.

The twins didn't speak and the King continued.

"I know you guys. You are the bastard twins from the Solar fragments. Why are you here? Answer me, or your tribe might need to answer that later."

"No need to answer with words when we can do that with actions," Agar spoke and made a move first.

She directly went to full fire elemental fusion as she lunged towards the King who started spinning his staff with the wind element.

Both of them exchanged blows and when the hit connected, the King felt like his whole world is collapsing. In normal times, he wouldn't have even flinched when he was attacked like this, but now he felt like his whole body is burning in a furnace which made him close his eyes flinch as he lost focus.

Agar has no mind to not take advantage of that and she placed her palm on his chest before blasting a large golden fireball.

The King flew back as he groaned in pain. He could feel each muscle fiber burning up. This is torturous than any torture he put through.

If a seasoned warrior was in his place, he would have retreated. But this guy is not thinking straight from the withdrawal symptoms and he became angry because of the pain, but before he could get up, Argan landed from upwards and he cannonballed himself into the same spot of the chest with a large ball of fire under his legs.

A large crater appears on the ground with the King's body as the center and this time, the groaning became screaming for his life.

The twins took this as an advantage and constantly rained fire on the guy, keeping him in the pit without letting him come out of it.

The King felt his mind go numb. He stopped thinking clearly a long time ago, but he knew one thing, if things go wrong, he would be dying right there and then. He didn't want that to happen no matter what.

As he felt his flesh slowly burning with the golden flames, he shook himself out of his painful daze and used his wind elemental energy to block the incoming flame and as soon as he found the opening, he ran out and turned to escape.

He couldn't care less about the pride and face. As long as he was alive and as long as this painful phase is over, he can just go there and kill the whole Solar Fragment tribe if he wants to.

The twins started running after him as well and on their chase, the King destroyed the vegetation completely while the twins burned the same vegetation to ashes.

The twins started throwing ranged attacks which sometimes landed and sometimes missed. But every time it landed, they grew closer to the king who is already panting and sweating like crazy.

At this moment, as the King was running, he saw something in the front.

The former Queen before Aina. The Queen he killed when he was lost in lust.

He has seen that rear many times and he is seeing it now. If his mind was any clearer, he might have avoided it, but he is in desperation and he ran towards her. As soon as laid his hand on her back, the Queen turned over and stabbed a knife in his guts before biting him in the neck.

The king didn't even yell in pain this time. He couldn't even breathe properly. He almost went into a shock like that.

He finally managed to take a look at the Queen and then only he noticed the anomaly. The wounds he inflicted are still there but since they are mostly internal, he subconsciously ignored them. The one in front of him is an undead.

For some reason, he felt extremely angry. Angry at himself, angry at his lustful behavior and angry at the twins who are chasing him, and angry at the necromancer who used the Queen to be their tool.

He pulled the knife out of his guts and threw the undead away before turning back with his staff. He completely gave up. Since there is a high chance he would die, he might as well go all out in the battle.

As the twins ran towards him, he ran towards the twins with full speed while spinning his staff crazily.

When he was few feet away from them, he swung his staff in the air which created a massive wind blade that went towards the twins which they dodged easily. But in that brief moment, the King used wind elemental fusion and rode the wind as he appeared behind Argan and swung his staff.

The staff landed right on his back and the air cannon at the end made his organs shake inside his body as he crashed into the ground creating a crater.

But the cost of it is that Agar managed to sneak to his rear before slapping her palm on the neck but he got just a moment and dug her fingers into it before burning it with golden fires.

"AAAAHHHHHHHHH..."

He yelled in pain and could feel each cell in his throat burning up and by the end of the attack, he lost his voice and couldn't speak or yell.

But he still didn't give up, he swung his staff backward and the end of it grazed past her torso which caused a laceration and she fell backward as he lost her balance.

The King jumped towards and tried to slam the staff on her head and finish it with a single strike. The chaotic wind energy in the staff is an easy indication of that. But before he could land it, Argan came from the side and shoved his arm into the stab wound, and hugged him from the rear before firing it up.

The King couldn't even yell in pain as he almost felt like dying and be done with it. Almost.

Before he gave up, he suddenly changed his mind and gritted his teeth to throw an elbow and the head of Argan, which he tried to dodge, but the wind blade that was a result of the elbow couldn't be dodged as it sliced his temple and the nose a bit which caught him off guard and made him leave the guy.

By now the King became crazy, he used his full power without care for preservation or escape plan and directly attacked the duo in close combat, but the staff and the wind elemental strikes are much deadlier than the wind attacks he threw from a certain range.

Even on his last legs, this guy is an absolute beast. He started inflicting the wounds and the twins continuously, even though they are small, they are accumulating and create some serious trouble for them.

But almost couldn't avoid them. Every move turned into a Kamikaze. Every attack is being aimed at mutual destruction. It would be really hard to fight off a person like that. Particularly, when one is as strong as the King.

After a few minutes, the twins stood on one side and the King stood on the other, both not making a move. Now the twins are also panting and bleeding crazily but King is a lot worse. Many parts of his flesh are burned and they can even see the ribs on his torso.

He can only make one last move which is also the reason the twins became careful.

But at this moment, there is a large colorful explosion in the sky which made the Twins smile and the King frown. He couldn't understand while an explosion like that would happen at a moment like this. But before he could make sense, he saw someone falling from the sky. He couldn't make the silhouette but all he could see is that person is incomplete black color.

But he felt that person is stupid, not because of the height he was coming from, but because it is too eye-catching and extremely easy to spot which led him to a question. Why are the twins smiling?

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 936: Recruitment Drive

The King looked at Sam who is falling. His fall is too high. It would take at least thirty seconds for him to reach the point.

He decided to take care of the twins in these thirty seconds before he shifted his focus to Sam.

But as soon as he decided and was about to make a move, the twins lunged towards him directly and they held his hands with their bodies. Agar held the hand that held the staff and started heating the whole arm directly and Argan who is holding the hand with excess muscle which is being rejected by the rest of the flesh did the same.

The King was caught off guard. There is a reason why people don't usually make these kinds of moves. They might be easily executed once the opponent was caught off guard, but it was also dangerous for the ones who made the move and might backfire big time.

Particularly when the opponent is too strong.

And in this case that is how the situation should have turned out. But the pain receptors are at their most sensitive state which made the King almost pass out.

At this moment Argan canceled his fire elemental fusion and activated the light elemental fusion and injected the light elemental energy into the arm.

The muscle tissue that was being rejected finally found its backer it started absorbing the vitality from the light elemental energy and when the King tried to inject his own spiritual energy to numb the pain, he felt an even more soul-searing pain out of nowhere which almost wanted him to die. This is the most painful situation he has ever been in.

He couldn't even move his arms much less attack the targets that are right under his arms. While he tried to calm himself down, he remembered something and looked upwards.

Sam almost neared the ground and is only a few feet away.

He is in the merged state of shadow fusion and Space fusion and held the shadow sword in his hands.

As he moved towards the ground, he used the shadow sword to slash right behind the King and before he could touch the ground, he used the shadow and space elemental energies to turn into a puff of smoke and reappearing in front king.

The spatial tear to the Shadow world opened up and Sam's shadows hugged the King from the rear and the corrosive shadow energy started coming out of the tear crazily.

Sam used a spatial barrier shield combined with the shadow elemental energy to cover himself and the twins as they slowly pushed the King into the portal.

His pain didn't allow him to move the arm. His instincts are completely taking over and didn't let him try to do anything that increased the pain.

Agar held onto the staff tightly, but the King held on to it even tighter and didn't show any signs of losing it.

The staff is his life. There is no way he would give it up that easily.

But as he struggled the shadow's corrosive energy is seeping into his body which felt like a bug gnawing into his flesh. He felt exasperated as all his life revolved around and for the first time in the past few days, he has a moment of clarity.

When he remembered all the things that are happening to him. His obsession, his addiction, his debauchery, his arrogance, his Queen. All of the things that came to his mind. He understood that something is wrong. All of it cannot be a coincidence. If he was going to die, he at least needs some answer. He struggled with all the remaining energy.

But the twins and Sam are not worried. The King is already halfway through the tear. Now they waited for the spatial tear to close down.

Sam and King had eye contact and the King who knew that his demise is almost inevitable asked.

"Who are you?"

"I am your killer."

"Why are you trying to kill me? I don't think we have any enmity."

"Well, I would have told you to go and ask Hel. But it seems like it has been a long time since you guys contacted her. I don't know if you got the message or not, but I am Sam and I got a mission to get this staff."

"Would you leave me if I give up the staff?"

"I am sorry, I also made a deal that I would kill you if someone helped me set you up. And this is the end for you. It is not good to lose yourself in debauchery. Things wouldn't turn out properly when you indulge yourself too much. Now goodbye."

With that, the three of them kicked the King who gave up all the hope.

The space crack closed itself and the arm which held the staff was cut off there.

Sam took the staff from it and burned the rest of the arm.

The three of them then went back to the meeting spot where Arona is waiting.

They made the camp there and decided to stay for the night and leave the next day.

"If you are going to target powers like this, you need to increase your manpower. We wasted over a month for this guy, we cannot spend that long time."

"I wanted to do that too. In fact I wanted to recruit some of the guys from this race, but from the looks of it, they are not suitable for me."

"Why? Just because they are having sex openly?"

"No, they are having too much of it. Even though most of it is genetic and for the reasons unknown, it is still a problem for me. Did you see how easy we got that guy? All that took was time and for cultivators, time is not exactly a tight resource. We live for centuries and a month for killing a guy who is probably ten times stronger than me is not exactly a bad deal. Don't you agree?"

"But the list of the powers you are going after is quite long. You would need more people to do it faster."

"I know, all I am saying is the current situation is not as bad. But I would really like to recruit new members. In fact, you are going to do that from the rest of the powers you are about to raid. What I am going to lack is someone powerful. I need someone at your power level. Do you have any recommendations?"

The twins fell silent for a moment and after some thought Argan replied.

"It is hard for people at our level to deliberately accept someone's dominance over us. Even though we are not exactly some big deal in higher realms we can still do well for ourselves in the current realms, it is nigh impossible to convince that when you cannot give them something."

But Agar has different thoughts.

"That is generally true, but there are always anomalies. I have heard of some legends. Some solo cultivators do not belong to any organization or a power. There are quite a few of them with a power level equal to us or even powerful than us. I made a list of them a year ago when we hit a roadblock in our cultivation."

"Roadblock?"

"We thought we couldn't break through into the Late-stage, we were completely stuck. It is almost like we were caged. So, I wanted to find someone to take revenge. I was content with killing my brother and sending the news to our father."

"So, you broke through and the list became obsolete. I will take it. How many are there?"

"Ten, out of which three of them are in Late-stage Pre-transcendence. Four of them are in the peak stage of Pre-transcendence and the last three are in the Transcendent stage. One in Middle-stage and two in the Initial stage.

The list you made as your plan can be cleared by anyone of us. But these guys can go after the second phase of the plan easily on their own and if you can get them together, you will have an ultimate team that could sweep through the third phase of your plans and they would be a great help to the fourth phase."

She passed a scroll to Sam and he looked into it.

There is a list of names along with some general details. The realm, planet, and their possible location.

The ten members are indeed a great bunch. They will be extremely useful. And Sam went through their names before saying.

"Argan, you will go with my team and Raiju Elder to start the first phase of the list. The approach has simple steps, you go there. Make a big announcement. Tell them you are offering a deal for their heirloom and an offer for the strongest person on the planet, buy both of them if you can. If not raid the home, kill a few and capture the strongest and torture him with the pain drug until they sign a soul contract or anything equivalent to that. But find an assurance that they would be faithful and only bring one from one place.

Then bring them back with the heirloom. Keep them close, take them to the next spot, use them to make the announcement, and repeat.

I and Agar will go on a recruitment drive.

Oh, by the way, destroy every Hou Yi statue, you come across."

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 937: Five-Elemental King

Sam sent Argan with the rest of his team.

They will start from the families and organizations that are on the same level as the Starbow family and proceed to deal with a series of organizations until they finished the families on the same level as the Solar Fragment tribe.

All of these organizations are under Hou Yi's control. While Arkiv is dealing with the organizations under Hel's control.

After Argan finished the organizations he will help with Arkiv's tasks and then they will both move to the rest of the organizations on the same level under different people.

This first phase would take at least eight months and it might need a whole year. Even if they are easy and an organization would occupy at most a week, the sheer number would take a lot of time and the travel time, the planning time, and all the other conditions they have to consider along with the possible conflicts with other players would do some delays.

But he is sure that the first phase would take longer than the second phase of the plans anyway.

After sending him away with the details, Agar and him started going on a journey. But not before sending Arona to one of the planets under him to take up a job to manage a bar.

She doesn't want to get herself involved in fighting, sex and drugs. She wants to have a relatively peaceful life and she has an experience in a woman bar in the previous planet. If he can manage these crazy sex-driven maniacs in a bar, there is no need to worry about her management skills.

So, he threw her in one of the bars and that was the end of their deal.

After sending her away, Sam and Agar started their journey.

Their first target of the ten people is actually a Sick man.

"The Five-Elemental King. The man who can use five basic elements.

Fire, water, earth, metal, and wood.

He is a legend among all the Late-stage Astral Plane Pre-transcendent cultivators because he is the guy who killed most of the Peak stage Pre-transcendent stage cultivators.

He is too strong to be on the same cultivation as us. But he is.

He is good at using formations and inscriptions. Some say he is a good artisan too, but no one knows if it is true.

He walked through the realm like a crazy maniac and there was no one who could stop his growth and even his presence came out of nowhere. He appeared when he is a Mortal Plane Transcendent stage cultivator and they began his legend.

He roamed around defeating all kinds of geniuses that are considered on the same level as his and defeated them again and again as they broke through. He is the ruler of an era and he marked every single one of his victories by collecting treasures of various kinds in different levels of his cultivation. He has the best weapons, best medicines, best herbs, and the best materials that could be available in his realm which goes to say he is filthy rich.

He doesn't belong to any organization and there are only a few friends, but they are not some small fries.

But the legend has come to a stop a few years ago when he built himself a large formation of five elements in a valley and meditated there and before he settled like that, he announced that he is sick of something and as long as one gave him a plausible diagnosis and treated him he would work for them for the life.

He solely survived on the spiritual energy and he never came out of the valley and he cannot come out of it. That valley is the only thing that is keeping him stable.

For years, many people, famous healers, pill masters, potion makers tried to give him a proper diagnosis, but they couldn't do anything. Some said he doesn't have any illness. Some made some desperate attempts to luck out in a diagnosis, but nothing worked and soon the doctor's flow reduced.

The people slowly started forgetting him. But it changed a year ago when some greedy fellows who just broke through in the Peak stage of Astral Plane

Pre-transcendence wanted to get all the treasures he hoarded over the years and made a large elaborate plane.

But not before one of those idiots went into his valley and demanded that he should be given all the treasures. Nobody knows how he died and the rest of the idiots tried to kill him with numbers as they just barged into the valley.

He came out of his meditation and killed everyone within an hour as all of these guys are young masters the families and tribes they belonged to came looking for revenge. They thought the Five-Elemental King has turned soft and he let the wave of experts enter the valley and locked it in.

The screams of all of these people were heard throughout the surrounding area for a whole day and when people finally got access to the valley, they saw a valley full of blood and gore. Dead bodies are everywhere and in the center of the valley, the Five-Elemental King is sitting with his whole body soaked in blood as he meditated every so calmly.

That is the time I heard of him and I added him to the list, but after I found out about the illness and everything else, I didn't bother to even try.

But since you are good at drugs and stuff and this guy is the nearest to us, I figured you might want to try."

"The Five elemental King. I haven't seen someone using that many elements except by myself. Let us go and try our luck. I am hardly a doctor or a healer. I would take a look and see how lucky we are."

After that, both of them went to the realm where the Five elemental King is staying using the wormhole connecting the Hawking Planet and that realm.

The planet they entered is called the Star Prism and the family that holds the most power over there is called Cancid family and they belong to the Marhinad race.

They are a winged race and their wings are thin and translucent. They are razor sharp. They are almost like attached weapons to them as they use them in battle frequently.

As for why, it is relevant because the head of this family is a friend of the Five elemental kings and after that incident which happened a year ago, he decided to take control over the surroundings of the valley and had strict surveillance as well as monitoring the entry of the valley so that no one would disturb the King and get killed.

The image he left behind previously is still fresh in their minds.

And the reason why it is relevant to Sam is that they stopped the self-proclaimed healers to go into the valley so that they would try to piss off Five-Elemental king.

The popular opinion is that his friend the head of the Cancid family thinks to make his friend free from disturbance, the unpopular opinion is that the Five-elemental king warned him that he would tear the Cancid family a new one if something like this happens again.

Anyway, in both cases, Sam has to go through the test the Cancid family conducts and has to pass it with flying colors before he is allowed to go into the valley.

They even constructed a separate building within their family estate for these tests.

Agar led him to the building and let her attendant who came from the Solar Fragment tribe to finish the registration procedure.

Sam looked at the long line of applicants before him and asked.

"Is this what you mean by reduced traffic? They are around a three dozen of these guys."

"Of course, do you know how many guys are there on the first day the Five elemental kings announced that he would need this healing? Three hundred and twenty-five and on the second day the number climbed to eight hundred and fifty and by the end of the week, it is around one thousand nine hundred. You tell me, is flow less or not."

"Yeah, compared to that it is non-existent. But that doesn't change the fact that this is going to take a lot of time. Is there any way to skip these guys?"

"Not really. Bribes don't work, they are almost as strong as me. They are of decent backgrounds and threats don't work. In fact, a few people belong to the organizations that are on our list and most of them are in the third phase of it.

So if you piss them off now by offering a bribe or a threat, you might have to work on them a little earlier than normal. So it is better for you to stay low-key and wait."

"Do you know what the test is?"

"I don't know. But I do know that it was created by the five elemental King himself. It was done on a beast.

The applications would be closed by afternoon and the test would be conducted. They would check the diagnosis, document it, and select the few that got it correct and they will bring them to the valley tomorrow."

"Guess, all we can do is wait."

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 938: Test

Sam waited for twelve hours before he got his turn. As patient as he could be, it is really a bit frustrating.

He entered the exam site after a long time. It is a large room with a bunch of people supervising him. There is a beast. A reptile.

The Razor teeth Alligator. It is one of the beasts that live in water but doesn't have a water element to it. In fact, it is a neutral element. It is an extremely rare beast because the water elemental beasts like to eat this guy.

The taste of the meat is great and it is almost addictive. Cooked properly, it is a delicacy that makes even Sam drool for a taste.

But it has another function. A lab subject. It can be a great guinea pig for any sort of experiments related to poisons, toxins, potions, parasites.

It is actually a reptile spiritual beast version of a white lab rate.

The next thing Sam noticed is the behavior of the beast. Generally, these alligators are extremely active. As tasty as they can be, there are not many beasts at the same level within the water body that could eat them up.

They are fast, aggressive, and extremely cunning. But currently, the beast in front of him is completely tired. It has different skin tones in different places and its expression is showing pain, pleasure, lethargy, and numbness at the same time.

He became really curious about its condition. He went in there to take a look. He placed his hand on it and directly used the observation ability to check the whole body out at the same time.

And then what he saw shocked him.

The beast in front of him has different elemental energies nested up in its body. It is like a globe of an energy cocktail and each energy is flowing in a random direction, affecting various organs.

It is hard to keep such an energy lump in a body of a living being without having any effects. There must be an extremely sensitive balance maintained between them to have any form of stability. But once the balance broke, the energies wouldn't be stable anymore and the result is what he is seeing in front of his eyes.

The balance between the five energies is not just broken they are currently fighting with each other to corrupt the body and out of all these five elements, only the water element is not harming the beast.

Because it lives in the water even though it doesn't have any water elemental abilities, it does have a body that supports that elemental energy. At least it is immune to it.

As he observed the energies rampaging through the body, he felt more and more intrigued.

"Five elemental energy poison."

He muttered out loud as he looked at the beast.

The beast is not just suffering from the lack of balance or infiltration of the elemental energies, the elemental energies are in fact caused by the accumulation of the energy poison which he noticed when he observed the tissues of the body.

These poisons are similar to the Bi Fang fire poison. They have a similar texture and physical properties to that of a bodily fluid or a tissue and they merge in the body easily.

Due to the nature of the beast, the energy from all the poisons was accumulated in the center and once again merging with the flow because of the lack of the beast's ability to keep the balance. If one looked at it normally, one would only notice the elemental energies and the lack of balance. But once they look at it deeply and examined the muscle tissues and skin fragments, they would be able to notice this aspect.

But this all takes a lot of time to diagnose without the observation ability.

Which caused the room full of supervisors of the test to be shocked by the quick analysis.

"That was awfully quick. Seems like somebody from the supervisor team is snitching again."

The chief supervisor looked at the remaining four of his companions and said.

Sam looked at him in confusion.

"You don't need to put an act. You are barely in the middle stage of the Astral Plane Initiation. It is already a bit of a stretch to let you participate, but the Solar Fragment tribe's reputation still holds some weight, even though the tribe is on verge of destruction. That is why you got the chance.

Now you just slipped the attack by diagnosing it too quickly. You must be one of those insane kids who want the Five elemental kings to teach you.

Give me the name of the guy who gave you the answer and gets lost from here."

Sam raised an eyebrow as he looked at the condescending man. He is known to be condescending himself, but this felt a bit extreme even for him.

He just raised his hand and placed it on the beast again, before channeling his energy inside.

The beast is completely enveloped with glowing energy and Sam closed his eyes as he increased his focus, before the supervisor could do anything, the glow already receded and the beast is visible again.

But this time, the skin tone and the other symptoms are gone. The beast has its eyes closed as if it slept and it slowly opened its eyes and looked at Sam.

It licked him on the face twice before closing its eyes peacefully and drifting into sleep. Its body is too tired to be able to stay awake.

"Is this also part of the snitching you guys offer?"

Sam asked casually and walked out with Agar.

The supervisor came to his senses and ran towards the beast and made his own tests. After half an hour of testing, he couldn't find anything. Anything except reaching a conclusion that the beast is okay and there are no traces of the elemental poison anywhere.

It is completely clean of the elemental energies.

Sam and Agar went to their assigned tents to stay for the night and waited for the result.

The next day. There are five people including Sam who were selected and they were brought to the valley.

The valley is larger than what Sam actually thought. He just thought it would be a regular old valley, but it covers a few acres and the formation of that scale is extremely complex. Particularly when they are keeping the five elements in balance.

Even he would take a significant time to lay out a design for this kind of formation.

There are many fields where they are growing herbs and fruits of different elements within the valley and the Cancid family workers are maintaining the fields and managing the harvest.

Maybe the Five- elemental king is not the only reason they are keeping control over the valley.

After they reached a certain distance, there is a large patch of forest and there are many people entering it.

"This is the five elemental forest. This was actually a normal forest before he came in and placed his resting space in the middle of it, but after he laid the formation the forest area mutated. Many weak beasts migrated into this forest with his agreement and they brought some great vegetation.

This place gives access to some people who paid the entrance fee and they can search for the herbs or fruits that may have grown here. Hunting is completely prohibited. When you walk in, if you find any herb or fruit you want, you can keep it. But stay away from the beasts.

After we reach the center, you will be allowed to diagnose him in order."

The supervisor who came with them explained and he took them through a path in the forest.

After walking through, Sam felt like calling a forest is a bit of stretch, more like an overgrown garden full of trees.

Soon they reached the center of the valley which is also the center of the forest and there a man with long hair and beard sat cross-legged on a stone platform.

He is barechested only wearing the clothes that covered his lower off and anyone with decent energy sensory abilities could feel the five elemental energy being in the perfect balance around him.

Sam activated his energy vision to take a look at the surroundings and the man himself.

At this moment, the supervisor took out a scroll and said.

"Here is the order that you guys will have your turns.

First is Sam, then Lonava, Mariad, Ora..

But before the supervisor could finish one of the two girls in the five candidates raised her hand and interrupted.

"Excuse me, I think there is a mistake. I should be the first person on the list."

The supervisor frowned and looked at her in askance.

"I am Lonava from the Golden Blood Dark elf clan and also the disciple of Vardar. I am sure there is a mistake. There is no one here that could beat me in that little competition."

Sam raised an eyebrow and was about to say something. But Agar caught his hand and whispered.

"Don't butt heads with her. She is the disciple of someone who comes under your Phase four plans."

Sam stopped and looked at her in surprise.

Someone in Phase four means they are in Astral Plane Consummate stages. It would take a long time for Sam to even provoke them according to his current plans. So, it is indeed better not to mess with her.

But there is another question in his mind. What is a person who is a disciple of such a powerful person doing in a place like this?

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 939: Diagnosing

Sam doesn't know why this Lonava was here. But he knew he had to be low-key. Still, it is pretty hard to digest the fact that he should give up his place just like that. He hasn't done that in decades.

So, he thought for a moment and asked the Supervisor.

"May I know what the judging criterion is?"

The Supervisor looked at him and said.

"There are many variables, but the time is taken for the diagnosis and the details of the diagnosis are the main factors."

Sam sighed when he heard that. Because he knew this is going to be hard if he tried to hold on to his place. If he really revealed the results right now, that lady would be humiliated beyond belief.

Because, Sam's diagnosis barely took a minute for him to complete and in that minutes, half a minute was wasted as he observed the residual effects of the poisoning.

If he brought that up and things blew up this prideful girl might weep and he would be poking a hornet nest.

If it was any other day, he would have just did what he wanted to. But his forces are spread thinly and his organization is being run on a tight schedule. If something happens, things wouldn't go well and he has a lot to lose. Things were a lot simpler when he doesn't have anything significant to lose.

"I give up my spot to her. Just let the test go."

Sam said with another sigh. He is not worried that someone would treat the Five-Elemental King before him.

All the candidates will get an hour to directly examine the body and note down any valuable information and they will try to use that information to diagnose for over a day. If they can come up with a treatment plan which the Five-elemental King thinks would work, they would have a shot to really treat him and at that time the order is decided by himself.

So, there is no need for Sam to worry about. He just walked around and observed the surroundings and the man from afar with the energy vision.

Meanwhile, Lonava who took Sam's spot and saw him sigh was pretty prideful and walked towards the Five elemental King with her nose high in the air.

But what bothered Sam the most is the look she gave me. It is almost saying 'It's good that you know your place.' He almost wanted to take his word back and put that girl in her place. But he knew his pettiness is not something he could use here.

The girl went on with all kinds of tests she could think of and used her one hour pretty efficiently and she is also not an ordinary healer.

She is a wood and fire dual elemental user. Which is quite a rare combination. She used the wood elemental healing and fire element for making pills and potions. He must say she is skilled But not to the point it is impossible to catch up.

She has an above-average talent in all three fields and the only specialty about her is the ability to link the three fields she specialized in.

After making this observation he lost interest in her and as soon as she finished. Sam went towards the Five elemental King to take his turn. He placed his hand on that guy's back and spread his spiritual energy and closed his eyes as he used the observation ability.

First he focused on the hole body to get a view at cellular level. He wanted to observe the nature of every cell in his body and the first thing he observed when he did that, all the cells contained five elemental energies.

This should have been a normal scenario given that he is a five elemental user, but the five elements are not exactly in a balance. They are extremely disproportionate. The disproportion is minute given the amount of energy a cell can accumulate.

But when it was factored to the whole body which is basically a lump of cells, the disproportion is too large.

Another observation he made as he looked at the body of the whole is the energies from each cell are moving towards the center of the body and following the spine, it is moving out. Sam couldn't get a proper detail from it as the five energies are merged disproportionately. He needed a much more detailed observation.

After confirming that he started checking each part of the body from the heart, lungs, blood, and skin and so on, separately to get the specific details of each body part.

He checked each and every bone separately, the bone marrow was also tested. He even checked the eyes both from inside and from outside giving them a normal examination.

When he was done he stood beside the man in a confused state. He has a lot of time left. Barely twenty minutes passed in his allotted time.

He can brainstorm while checking the body more and more.

At first glance, it looked like five elemental poisonings. But Sam ruled it out pretty quickly. Even if the elemental poisoning is present it is a little more than a side effect. It is definitely not the main cause of the illness.

But a lot of other symptoms are aligned with the five elemental poisonings. The large presence of different energies in different organs.

For example, the liver is full of fire elemental energy. The heart is mixed with earth and metal elemental energy, the spleen and kidney are full of water elemental energy.

This is a classic sign of elemental poisoning. If Sam hadn't taken a look at the cells of the body, he would have also come to the same conclusion.

But that is not the case now. He understood why Elemental poisoning occurred as a symptom.

It is all caused by the disproportionate balance between the elements in the cells. The cells that made the liver all had more fire elemental energy than the rest of the energies which caused the liver to go through fire elemental poisoning.

Same with the lungs, heart, some bones, and all the other body parts. The only part that has five elements distributed evenly is the blood inside the body. But that is not helping, because each body part which is run by the blood is taking whatever energy it needed without any balance. The liver is taking more fire elemental energy, the heart is taking more earth and metal elemental energy, the spleen is taking more water elemental energy.

But this should be impossible. This type of disturbed balance at the cellular level should make the body collapse a long time. But it didn't. It stayed in its place.

And the reason for that is the formation. The five-elemental formation is not there to just provide energy. It is there to circulate energy. As the five elemental energies entered the body and the blood, they are being distributed to different body parts and the Five- elemental king is trying his best to consume the energy to live and move the rest of the energy to his center and back into the formation so that his body wouldn't collapse.

From the state of it, he would barely survive three to four hours in this state if the formation was turned off.

But there is one thing Sam couldn't understand, the origin of the problem. Unless he learned the origin of the problem he couldn't treat it.

Because since the defect is on a cellular level not on the level of a tissue or an organ as a whole, even if he treated him for the elemental poisoning and took the excess energy off of his body, the organs will only work normally temporarily, but once the effect wore off, the cells will revert back to the disproportionate nature which will make it absorb a lot more energy than normal to get back to the original state before the treatment.

This might make the organ collapse in failure.

The Five- elemental king must have tried a lot to maintain this balance. If he loses it by any chance, it would be hard to gain the new balance without hurting himself too much.

To cure this problem, he has to find the problem regarding the change in the cells and how to turn it back.

"I need to take some samples of your blood and skin, if possible the bone."

Sam asked and the Five elemental King nodded in consent. Sam took out a knife and cut some skin and drew some blood into a small blood collector and collected a small bone fragment from his toe.

He then took some potions and gave them to him before saying.

"You shouldn't be healed normally for these injuries. These are some potions with low efficacy and are made of the wood element. If you take them with a good enough gap between each dose, you would be able to maintain the balance while healing.

But I suggest you wait for the rest of the diagnosis to finish."

When Sam was about to leave, the Five elemental King opened his eyes for the first time since they came to the valley. He looked at Sam with a look of intrigue in his eyes.

"Thank You."

He said those two words and closed his eyes back again.

RE-BIRTH OF A GENIUS. CREATOR/DESTROYER

Chapter 940: Diagnosing-II

Sam didn't stay within the formation. He went back to the residence he was given and placed all kinds of concealment formations. He didn't even let Agar in. After making sure that no one is looking at him, he entered the divine dimension.

He directly went to the second floor and closed his eyes before creating a simulated version of the whole body of the Five-Elemental King.

He simulated the whole body except for the skin, and then the simulation of the energy flow, but the model collapsed as he didn't simulate the formation.

It would take a lot of time for him to do that, so simulated the functions of the formation. Absorbing the energy that was coming out of the body and injecting the energy into the body.

As he did that, the model finally stayed still.

The first thing he did is treat the model for elemental energy poisoning. He knew that the body wouldn't be able to take the backlash of the cells taking in the energy once again. But he has to know how much time he would have if he takes this route.

But he was disappointed by the result. Once the organs are forcefully cleaned of the poisoning there is barely ten minutes time.

Now all, he has to do is find the origin of the cellular change and see if he can think of a curing method that wouldn't involve the direct clearing of the elemental poisoning.

So he started checking the blood sample, the skin sample, and the bone sample he got as he used the observation ability to the maximum. Now that he is focusing all his energy on a small sample, he has better access to the cells and he can pick up things that he might have missed before.

But it is indeed difficult to find the problem is just by looking at it. The cell seemed pretty stable the only unstable thing about is the energy content of different elements.

After a long examination, he still couldn't find any anomalies.

He couldn't think of the reason for that instability and no matter how much he examined it there are no results and no changes.

He even tried the simulation techniques, introducing different medicines to see how it will really work, but an excess usage of any medicine even if it is perfectly balanced five elemental energy medicine it is still causing instability within the body which is killing him.

After even more tests, he finally got a conclusion. Even in this balanced state, this guy wouldn't be able to stay alive for a long time.

From the simulated figure, he observed that this guy even though is sitting there on the stone casually, is actually still cultivating. In fact, that cultivation process is what makes him stable. It took some time to understand that and the cultivation no matter how slow is increasing his level which would push him to the breakthrough and his body wouldn't survive another breakthrough.

He would definitely die.

The breakthrough will prompt the body to take all five elemental energies with even distribution to all corners, but the organs that are attracting different elemental energies will cause inevitable chaos which results in the body failure due to that large amount of energy involved in the breakthrough.

Which made it impossible for Sam to even put this matter to rest and take some time to think this through and do some proper research.

He has to finish this as fast as possible.

He came with a goal in his mind. To recruit this guy, but now he is obsessed with the problem. To solve this puzzle that stumped him like this.

He sat beside a lake as he skipped the stones over the water and made up of random thoughts inside his head that might relate him to the issue.

"What if the spiritual core is damaged?

What if the merge of the elemental energies is collapsed?

What if something in his body is making the five energies compete?

What if there are different types of parasites present?"

He kept on making up random assumptions and then rectified them himself. He is bouncing off of the ideas with the mirror image he could see in the water.

As he saw the ripples that were caused by the stones he is throwing he made a lackluster analogy. The stone is the problem that is causing the problem in the body while the water is the body and the ripples are the effects the body is going through.

As he threw stones, again and again, he suddenly kicked a large boulder which made an arc in the air and landed in the center of the lake.

The whole lake rippled and the boulder drowned, but the splash of water that raised into the air landed and caused even more ripples. Which is causing more chaos in the still water.

He suddenly had an epiphany.

'What if I am not looking at the ripples caused by the stone? What if I am looking at the ripples caused by the water itself?'

Suddenly his hand stopped and he thought more into this. All this while he was assuming that the instability of the energies is caused by some external problem. But what if it was caused by an internal problem. A problem that was triggered by something external but not relevant now since it is already gone.

This might be just the aftereffect of that. Just like how the boulder drowned quietly after it caused the initial splash and the ripple but after that, it became almost significant compared to the disturbance the water splash caused.

What if the problem is not with the five elements, but the five elements themselves are the problem?

When this thought came to mind, he couldn't let go of it.

He completely ignored the fact that the other party can use five elements and considered it as normal, because he himself can use multiple elements.

But this is not exactly normal. At least for the Five-element King who is a human, this is not exactly a normal thing to occur.

So why is he able to wield the five elements like that, he went back to his tent and started checking the samples once again.

But this time, he also took samples from his own body to take a look.

To compare the cells. His own body is the perfect specimen as he had almost ten elements in balance.

But the only problem is his body is not human anymore. His cells are all changed and every consists of the part-human cellular structure, part vampire structure and eight parts beast structures.

He knew that the comparison would not be ideal but still, it is better than nothing.

But when he saw what both of side by side, he was stunned in silence.

He immediately went out to meet Agar and asked.

"Find a human and get me some samples. Skin, blood, and bone. Please, hurry up."

Agar was surprised by Sam's agitated state. He was always calm, this is the first time she ever saw him show that many emotions on his face.

"What cultivation level?"

"Doesn't matter. Just needs to be pure human. No cross of another race."

"Sure."

She immediately went out and came back in fifteen minutes with the samples he asked her.

Sam took them back in and started testing them. He saw the comparison between the three cell structures.

This made him confirm that his shock is not just his overreaction.

Because when compared with the cellular structure, the cells of Five elemental King are closer to his than a normal human cell in similarities.

This is completely unexpected and almost impossible.

He saw the spiritual core of the five elemental king which has five different colors indicating the five different elements and it looked stable. This is also one of the reasons he overlooked the impossibility of five elements in the human body.

He once again went through the book he had on the spiritual cores and constitutions to get the information.

There is indeed a five elemental spiritual core, but it is not exactly the same as the one he saw in Five-Elemental King's body.

Something is extremely wrong and he has a conclusion in mind, but he doesn't dare confirm it.

He came out of the ten and asked Agar.

"Do you know any information on Five elemental King before he was famous? Where was he born? Where did he awaken? Where did he train in lower-level cultivation stages? Anything abnormal?"

"Not really, that information is not available anywhere. It was said that some of the friends of the Five elemental king asked him about that, but he said he suffered severe memory loss due to a battle and all he can remember from the past is the battle and the damage. Not the opponent, not the days and life he lived before that."

Sam took a deep breath.

He went back inside and did some other tests. In fact, he activated his vampire bloodline and tasted a few drops of the remaining blood in the sample after smelling it with Raiju bloodline.

And he finally reached the inevitable conclusion. The five elemental King is not a normal human.

He was not born this way. He didn't awaken five elements. He was made into this.

He is a laboratory experiment with the objective is making a person who can wield five elements artificially.

And if that is true which it has to be, then the current symptoms are all result of the failure of the experiment.

All this while he was content when he saw the stable structure of the cell but only the instability of the energies which made him ignore this, but that artificially stabilized structure of the cell is what made the energy unstable.

The problem is not affecting the body on the cellular level. The cell itself is the problem. Each and every one of them.