Chapter 771 The Variant Boss

While everyone was playing the game of Political Chess and progressing in their own plans quietly; there was one person who was oblivious about the upcoming storm as he and his entourage focused on their journey.

Even without doing anything this time... Kahn was going to be blamed for another 'massacre' of a chosen hero's party just so the top ruling powers of the Elven Empire could shirk the blame for their incompetence and irresponsibility on him to hide their secrets.

10 Days Later.

"Phew! This is enough for today. We will rest and recuperate for a day here.

Tomorrow, we will go for the 91st Floor Boss." commanded Kahn as they rested on the 90th floor.

After killing the Elder Hydra, they didn't face many problems and in the meantime, all the varieties of monsters that appeared on these floors were killed by their group.

But now that no one was watching, Kahn and Ceril decided to use this opportunity to raise the number of their respective armies.

Kahn absorbed the abilities of these mobs and then turned them into new members of the Legion. In the past 10 days alone, he added 50 thousand more new subordinates from varying and unseen species, all of whom had different uses, skills and fighting abilities.

Some of them were even useful to fight in a sea-like terrain and Kahn also gained a few water elemental abilities and attack skills.

Ceril on the other end, created 150 thousand undead soldiers and monsters instead after causing a great massacre with a maniacal look on his face as if he was competing against everyone.

So their journey in the past 10 days had been fruitful despite being time-consuming. And finally... they were prepared to face the next dungeon boss.

Kahn and the company had no idea that this boss was the reason behind the death of a 5th stage high elf saint swordsman, specifically the one who sneered at Legolas in front of the dungeon entrance and called him lowlife trash.

However, the Hero of Life and Hero of Darkness had different types of supporters. The former's allies were standard and mainstream fighting class saints found throughout the world while the latter's group was filled with unique monsters that had legendary rank abilities, bloodlines and strength that far exceeded the norm.

And with the confidence in their eyes as well as thoroughly planning a few battle strategies...

The group entered the next floor.

A vast and unending ocean filled with dark blue waters and raging tides came into sight. The rainstorm on this floor was so strong that even flying metallic ships would have a hard time navigating in the sky. As for saints...

They were lucky that the mana and world energy was accessible on this floor. Otherwise, all of them would've dropped inside the deep waters as soon as they appeared out of the suspending entry door in the sky.

There were only 4 to 5 stone platforms in the nearby 50 kilometers radius while the rest was nothing but cold and erratic sea.

Rumble!

Rumble!

The lightning flashes in the sky rumbled as the dark and cloudy clouds poured rain all over their bodies.

"Where is the boss?" queried Ceril.

Kahn and Ronin both activated the Hunter Domain which expanded to 45 kilometers based on their current rank, allowing both to track and locate living creatures whether they were in the sky or the ground.

But as soon as they used their skills to detect the floor boss, the latter itself detected them instead.

BOOM!!

A massive pillar of saltwater erupted, spanning 500 meters in radius alone and the strong tide rose even higher as a ginormous being revealed itself.

A 3 kilometers tall water elemental monster with a massive 100 meter tall head that had glowing red eyes and hundreds of octopus-like tentacles wriggling around its mouth.

GROWL!!

The shape of this enormously humongous being that even made Blackwall in his true form look like a dwarf in comparison, growled and sent shivers in their spines with its tremendously oppressive killing intent.

The two 600 meters wide massive and fleshly wings in its back which allowed it to fly in the sky spread open majestically and flapped consequently.

Just the strong gales from these wings were akin to natural tornadoes that would destroy large living areas in a single gust.

ROARRR!!!

And finally, its full figure was revealed to the group as the Floor Boss roared loudly, challenging the intruders to a deathmatch with its dreary and tyrannical warcry.

But as soon as they saw the Floor Boss... everyone including even Rathnaar, who only watched from Kahn's soul, spoke in a dejected voice...

"We should've given up."

Everyone had bamboozled and ashen expressions on their countenances as they maintained a distance of 40 kilometers, not daring to move by a single step lest they make the boss of this floor attack them.

"No wonder we got so many sea monsters and laws associated with water on the previous floors.

It was just a Calm before the Storm." said Kahn who was now in his original appearance.

"Master... we have no terrain advantage or many useful abilities to use against it even if we all turn into our true monster forms." spoke Omega in a gloomy voice.

"Yes, human. Even I can't fight it inside the sea if I turn into my real form." said Rudra, admitting his shortcomings in front of this enemy that was glaring at them from afar.

"What about you, Oliver?" asked Kahn.

"I can get rid of the storms, the clouds and those lightning strikes while using them to attack it instead. But I don't think it'll make much difference." said the Emerald Archer general.

"As for me... my movements will be restricted as soon as I drop inside the deep sea." said Blackwall.

The rest of the group had no confidence in themselves either.

But right at this moment, the system notified quickly.

[The host has found a variant Primordial Titan of Water Element.

It is advised to the host to kill it and absorb its abilities.]

"So this thing is a variant Primordial Titan in Vantrea?

I wondered if it was a Godbeast instead." said Kahn as he chuckled.

"It's a good thing that we no longer have to hold back since Edmund isn't here." spoke Kahn and gave an order.

BOOM!!

BOOM!!

One after another, all of their auras suddenly changed and turned more potent and powerful.

This time... all of them had quickly equipped their legendary rank armors and weapons made by Throk.

As for Kahn... he instantly summoned the Drakos Armor while the Dragon Bloodline effect turned his skin gray, his hair long white and eyes started glowing red.

Because their opponent was a mythical rank creature, comparable to a peak 5th stage that was very famous in mythology even on earth.

The variant Primordial Titan they were facing was...

A Cthulhu.

Chapter 772 Ruler Of The Sea

After facing the domineering and ginormous boss that was three times the size of Blackwall's original form and approaching them at a steady pace, the group had somber expressions.

If there was solid ground, all of them would've chosen to use their true forms and massive bodies to overpower them.

But other than Ceril, Ronin and Oliver, none of them could fly in their legendary and mythical rank forms. Thus, it would've troubled their group instead.

And now with the legendary armors and weapons in play, they decided to go all out from the start.

[System, tell me its abilities.] ordered Kahn.

[The mythical floor boss named Cthulhu has abilities such as Instant Regeneration, Impervious Defense to all elements, Absolute monarchy over Water element and a long list of aquatic skills and abilities that allows it to control the nearby 50 kilometers of the sea to attack and defend at the same time.] reported the system.

But it continued in a lifeless tone again...

[However, the Cthulhu has a very unique ability because of its physiology.] it iterated.

"What is it?"

The system then told Kahn about the unique ability.

Kahn sneered with discontent after hearing the details.

"Seriously... it's like the creators of this dungeon didn't want people to clear the dungeon at all.

This one is just too OP even as a floor boss." he spoke with an indignant expression.

"And weaknesses?"

System quickly revealed the weaknesses of the floor boss that was rapidly heading towards them.

"I see. Then I guess we have a plan." said Kahn and then devised a battle strategy in mere seconds.

"Let's go!" he commended his allies.

Blackwall in his Atlas Armor while equipping Aegis and Heracles quickly took the front of their formation.

Soon, the ginormous, to whom these intruders were even smaller than ants, decided to launch a barrage of massive water cannon-like attacks towards all of them.

Blackwall quickly activated the Iron Will skill that came with his armor and created a 50 meter wide brown barrier made of world energy.

Bang!

Clang!

He then used Gluttony and Royalguard skill effects from Aegis shield while facing these massive cannonballs that were no different than heavy stone boulders because of their density.

His main purpose was to absorb and build water elements resistance while defending his group.

However... his hopes didn't take long to crash down.

Whooom!

Whoosh!

Rumble!

Right before their eyes, the dark and pouring clouds in the sky resonated with the high tides from the sea that arose whooping 100 meters under Cthulhu's control.

But right at this moment...

Swoosh!

Oliver in his Hawkman form while donning Shu Armor and Neith Bow flew high, breaking the sound barrier consequently as he used the Jetstream skill.

As soon as he reached the troposphere of this floor. His body emanated a blue and golden aura, quickly spreading in the 10 kilometers radius as Oliver activated his Sky Domain.

The moment he assumed command of the sky, all the pouring clouds stopped while the rumbling and erratic lightning stopped.

ROARR!!

The Cthulhu roared in rage as it detected that Oliver had hijacked this perimeter, breaking his control. In the end, it was a water elemental being, not a wind elemental creature who controlled the sky like Oliver.

The Thunderbird general had now taken away the advantage of using the storm and lightning strikes to attack the intruders.

Sizzle!

Sizzle!

Right then... 5 massive 500 meters long tridents made of blistering and sizzling magma came to be in Cthulhu's sight.

Because finally, Rudra was using his trident warrior skills to create these threatening weapons made of his corrosive magma and pointed them towards the incoming boss.

He had been practicing for months from an instructor and even used the 51st Floor Boss as his punching bag to test his mastery. So now, it was time to display his skills against a powerful opponent.

But suddenly, a massive 10 kilometer radius red-colored dome came into existence as soon as the boss came close to them.

Jugram activated his Hell Domain and the temperature instantly rose to 500-degree celsius. Making most of the water on Cthulhu's body and the surface of the sea evaporate at visible rate.

As a result, the floor boss' physical defenses decreased by 50% because of his domain while Oliver's Sky Domain also reduced its agility and dexterity.

Shing!

However, this wasn't the end of the surprise.

Omega, who was donning the Twilight Armor and hovered on the left side, also activated his Gravity Domain, instantly pressuring the boss and halting its steps to a great degree.

He was fully capable of fighting Cthulhu on his own just like Rudra. But they were not acting out based on their instinct because of Kahn's orders.

RAWWRRRR!!

The massive blue-bodied Cthulhu roared, sending shockwaves in the surrounding 5 kilometer radius to break free from these domains. However... how could breaking free from domains, that were created by associating laws of nature, be that easy?

Soon, the 20 kilometers of the region was covered under a visible black dome as Kahn activated Dimensional Domain, instantly reducing all of Cthulhu's physical stats and ability effects by 50%.

Armin who was wearing Nirvana Armor and had Hermes Staff in his hands put various buff effects on all of their skills and the damage output of killer moves.

"Activate it!" shouted Kahn.

Kahn's voice reverberated in the surroundings.

Without waiting for a grand reveal... all the generals and Omega let out a grin and soon, 7 different archaic formations appeared above their bodies, each containing their different colors and auras with their respective owners.

7 massive pillars rose and formed a net that spread across the 30 kilometers radius of the battlefield. And finally... 5 Dragon heads appeared and formed a Pentagram-shaped barrier around this battlefield.

All of their physical Strength Stat rose by 3 times and Mana capacity as well as skill damage output rose by 2 times under the effect of their biggest battlefield killer formation.

Just for a single floor boss... they were going to the extreme preparations as if they were fighting a chosen Hero like they fought in the Vulcan empire.

Why?

Because after hearing about Cthulhu's unique abilities the system told Kahn, he realized one thing very clearly.

All of their killer moves, overbearing domains and the powerful pendragon formation, which should be an overkill to face this Ruler of the Sea...

Were not enough.

Chapter 773 Overpowered Enemy

While Kahn and the group were preparing to face the mythical rank Cthulhu... the outside of the Immortal Dungeon was in an uproar.

Because at this moment, thousands of people had surrounded the dungeon while making hundreds of camps and barracks in the nearby region within 5 kilometers radius. All these people belonged to different forces and organizations.

As for the Military... they left a long time ago.

Cling!

Cling!

Soon, a massive spherical formation in front of the Immortal Dungeon glowed bright blue and over 30 figures appeared.

"Finally! We're outside!" exclaimed a female elf saint.

"I'm alive! I'm fucking alive!" shouted a human berserker saint, his eyes tearing up in joy.

All of them had downtrodden countenances while most of them were gravely injured and covered in blood.

Soon, the people started thanking their God of Life for helping them survive the hellish nightmare called the Immortal Dungeon.

Hundreds of people who were observing this entrance from their respective bases flocked towards this group.

The newly arrived group was comprised of their leaders. And every one of these survivors... was a Saint.

Lagertha, whose body was full of lacerations and shallow wounds looked around.

Her heart was filled with dejection and guilt. Because out of the 12 Saints they had...

Only 7 came back alive. And even her close friends such as Rose Hightower and the Vice-guildmaster had already died during the fight.

The other groups were also no different.

Out of the two 5th-stage saints that were part of the previous alliance... both of them were already dead.

As for the origin of their miserable state...

It was the 81st Floor Boss.

Back then... Ervalen and the Hero's Party had taken care of it and Kahn's group arrived just within a week so they didn't have to fight it.

But when Lagertha and the other saints, who were the last force to arrive there... it was well past 10 days and the boss had respawned.

Just remembering its monstrous appearance sent shivers down her spine and rose goosebumps on her skin.

Why?

Because for the survival of the masses... a sacrifice was made.

When they couldn't take down the mythical rank floor boss and there seemed to be no way; they had to abandon some of their allies behind to distract the boss and enter the safe zones and had to be out of combat for quite some time.

And only then did they manage to use their dungeon passes to exit the Immortal Dungeon and come out alive.

A survival that greatly cost them and the guilt would forever weigh on her mind.

Lagertha was escorted to a medical bay quickly and the remaining people were getting healed.

She then asked one of her people that was a peak grandmaster golden masked assassin who was the head of her intel group.

"Who else exited before us?"

"There was only one person, a High Elf priestess. I believe she was part of the Hero's Party.

But as soon as she came, the military generals escorted her and left this place within an hour." reported the assassin in black light armor.

"Then what about them?" she queried while panting slowly.

"The Mithios guild... is still inside." informed the assassin in a rustic voice.

Lagertha was speechless after hearing the reply. Why?

Because if the Mithios guild didn't come out... then it could lead to only two conclusions.

"Means they're all either dead... or they're still exploring the dungeon."

In the meantime, Kahn and his group were done with setting their battle formations and encircling the boss from all sides. Yet the size of Cthulhu was way too big for them to even make a significant injury.

As for why Kahn used all of their trump cards since the very beginning?

Because the biggest disadvantage here was the battlefield itself. The floor boss could use the water from the sea to fight them back, using it like its ally while fighting on multiple fronts at the same time.

And it could also use the deep sea to escape easily. A battlefield catering to the boss while making endless trouble for the intruders.

And even though Kahn had few S Rank skills to swim and breathe in water... how could he compare against Cthulhu, the Ruler of the Sea?

Plus, only Kahn, Omega and Rudra had the physical strength as well as rank to withstand its pressure in a close-range fight.

Others like Ceril and Armin wouldn't even be able to move under that pressure.

Thus, closing off its route to escape was the best thing while reducing most of its stats to bring it down to the level of a being comparable to a 4th stage saint.

"Everyone, start attacking now!" shouted Kahn and he himself quickly activated Dragon Strike, even mixing Darkness element in it right from the start.

Ceril then used the Book of the Damned and Chains of Judgment. These skills boosted his mana capacity and spell output by 5 times. He could even fight a 4th stage saint despite only being a peak 2nd stage saint with these skills.

However, the skills weren't enough to hold back this monster called one of the old sea gods on earth.

Swoosh!

BANG!

Five titanic sizzling tridents, each being 500 meters long and made of magma, struck the Cthulhu which was moving slowly because of the several debuff effects from 4 different domains on its body.

Sizzle!

Sizzle!

Roarrrr!!

The tridents plunged into Cthulhu's chest, shoulders and thighs in a succession.

But in just 10 seconds, all the injuries created by these enormous tridents that could even destroy a warship in a single hit, were instantly regenerated.

Although Rudra's Corrosive Magma attacks were helpful because he activated Atlan's ability to harness the Guardian Dragon's will to use the Dragon's aura... the creature was not receiving any significant damage.

Slash!

At this exact moment, Kahn also acted out after Dragon Strike failed to make a deep injury and used the Dimensional Cut skill as his intangible slashing move made of space force swung quickly towards the neck of Cthulhu.

Slash!!

A shockwave resounded in the 2 kilometer radius.

But instead of giving them any satisfaction... the Cthulhu gave a mocking look to Kahn.

Because even Kahn's strongest attack skill, which was unrivaled by all of their group's killer moves...

Couldn't even cut Cthulhu's neck.

Chapter 774 Final Option

Even Kahn was bamboozled at this point because even his unparalleled and probably one of the most sure-shot killing moves aka the Dimensional Cut that could cut anything in 3 kilometers range with a single swing at this point... failed to cut off Cthulhu's head.

"What the hell happened here? Is its unique ability that much overpowered?" asked Kahn himself in a befuddled voice.

The system had already informed him about Cthulhu's unique ability. If even an entire arm was cut down, it could reattach and recover instantly without any ramifications.

But the neck region was always the weakest part and an unrivaled attack skill like Dimensional Cut should've been enough to cut off Cthulhu's head.

[Boy... your attack did cut its neck. But the cells regenerated and healed it so fast that you couldn't even see it happening.] informed Rathnaar in Kahn's mind.

"Katon Surasshu!"

BANG!!

While Kahn was taken aback because of this incident, Omega in Twilight Armor quickly used Kojin while harnessing the dragonfire to make a powerful katana slash strike.

This was one of his newly created skills that killed the legendary rank Venialkarto monster in a single swing.

RAWWRRR!!

The Cthulhu roared in pain for the first time as he was hit with the attack and although the massive 100 meter long katana didn't penetrate its defense... the Dragonfire still spread across its entire body.

But even after getting burned alive by the strongest fire on the planet...

Its instant regeneration ability was healing it continuously and it completely recovered in just 15 seconds.

"Truly worthy of being a descendant of the Primordial Titans." said Kahn with an incredulous and hateful expression, almost jealous at this point.

With their current attack skills, restrictions placed by domains on the physical stats such as attack, defense, agility and health... even the Elder Hydra would've died easily because of this unified onslaught.

But the Cthulhu was so strong, being impervious to most of their attacks. Even the strongest attack skills Kahn, Omega and Rudra had were just barely enough to temporarily injure it.

This regeneration speed was even 5 times faster than the Elder Hydra.

GROWL!!

This time, the Cthulhu revealed a murderous aura, much denser than before because it was thoroughly infuriated from the previous attack.

And to counter this onslaught, the Cthulhu just waved its hands and its eyes glowed even brighter.

Swoom!

Swoom!!

Soon, hundreds of massive pillars of whirling water rose and thousands of blades made of high-pressured water came to be.

All of these creations rotated in a circular motion and encircled the massive titan descendant, creating an impenetrable wall of protection.

The nearby 3 kilometers of area was now full of this typhoon-like barrier and all three of them were forced to retreat.

Because these blades were more than capable of injuring their bodies even if they could make only shallow cuts. However, if thousands of those blades attacked together... even someone like Rudra, who had the strongest defense in their crew, would be turned into minced meat after some time.

Blackwall was holding one front but in the end, the enemy was still 15 times stronger than him and there was very little he could do.

Even Cthulhu's command of water was simply too powerful.

Just the water blades made of incomprehensible pressure were big and sharp enough to cut through Adamantine and Orichalcum, two of the hardest metals in this world easily.

If they weren't using all these domains and pendragon formation to repress the floor boss, all of them would already be dead.

This creature was a descendant of the primordial titans. Those beings existed even before Dragons and Godbeasts in the world.

Even the Legendary rank Mountain Titan they fought in Verlassen was something they barely managed to kill because of luck and Dimensional Cut divine ability.

"Looks like all our methods are useless.

Even Dimensional Cut won't kill it because it'd be able to regenerate instantly even if I cut the core." spoke Kahn in dejection.

The regeneration abilities and impenetrable defenses made it a nigh-invincible enemy. And a prolonged battle would only benefit Cthulhu because of the unending supply of water from the sea.

In the end, it'd be them who ran out of world energy while the boss simply stood quietly without even having a scratch on its body.

"Even destroying its core won't do the job." said Kahn.

This was the 2nd unique ability of Cthulhu.

Even if they destroyed its heart, cut the core or even butchered its entire body... the mythical rank boss would still be able to pull back all of its destroyed body parts and regenerate on the spot.

In simple words... Cthulhu was unkillable with their current skills and abilities.

"I can use a skill to get out of this situation. But losing the core would be way too big a loss. I'm pretty sure the Elder Hydra would've given me a lot of useful abilities if I wasn't forced to destroy its core.

So this time... let's kill and harvest the body properly." Kahn declared his intention.

Just then, Rathnaar decided to speak.

[Kid... you have no choice but to use that.]

To his voice, Kahn replied with a somber expression.

"Yeah... but I still can't fully control it and it's really taxing on mind and burdens my soul greatly." he iterated.

Because Kahn remembered the only weakness of Cthulhu that system told him about.

Sigh!

Kahn sighed in helplessness but the following moment, his expression turned full of fortitude and sovereignty.

Crack!

Crack!

Suddenly, a dimensional void crack appeared beside Kahn.

Flick!

Flickr!

A massive orb emanating black, white, red and yellow light came out from the True Dimension.

Even the Cthulhu was instantly alarmed and faltered in its steps.

ROAR!!

The mythical rank boss roared in anger as it felt the threat from this 5 meter tall object.

"Tell me. Do you bleed?"

He spoke in an overbearing voice and suddenly and the next second...

BOOM!!

A horrifying and insurmountable aura arose from this object, terrifying the boss for the first time since the battle began.

"You will."

Kahn declared majestically and the orb started raging wildly as intense and scalding flames arose from it.

Since even the Dragonfire wasn't being helpful against Cthulhu, a big comparable to God in their eyes.

Kahn had his own Godkiller.

At this moment, he decided to utilize the strongest weapon he currently possessed.

The Divine Weapon... Amaterasu.

Chapter 775 The Godkiller

For the first time since he got it, Kahn was now using the Hero of Fire's divine weapon aka Amaterasu.

Currently, he only had partial ownership of it and the Divine Weapon itself hadn't completely submitted to Kahn as if it had a sentience of its own.

Kahn couldn't even store it inside his Dimensional Domain because this thing would literally burn everything and everyone it touched.

Thus, Kahn could only keep it inside the True Dimension and subconsciously carry it with him since even the laws of space couldn't destroy the divine weapon. The plus point here was that Amaterasu also couldn't harm anything from the real world.

The only problem here was that the current Kahn couldn't use it for more than one attack based on his current control on the weapon and his rank.

If he had complete ownership... maybe he'd be able to use it just like Axel did during their fight.

[Dammit! It's already pressuring my soul and consciousness.] thought Kahn as he felt a mountainous burden on his entire being.

[Don't worry, kid.

I'll help you use it. But still, it has to be your own Soul Essence to make the attack.] spoke Rathnaar.

Kahn did not know how to use his Soul Essence or harness it to use a Divine Weapon since he didn't have his own. Plus no one had taught him anything about it. And this wasn't the time to start learning it either.

[System, allow him to take control of only the required portion of my soul essence.] ordered Kahn vigilantly.

Rathnaar then took control of a small 10% of Kahn's soul which the latter allowed through the system.

Suddenly, a massive 100 meter tall archaic formation appeared ahead of Amaterasu and emitted a terrifying aura of a godly creation.

[Oliver, now!] he commanded hurriedly.

Oliver, who was maintaining the Sky Domain distance for a while and flying 10 kilometers away in the sky, finally reacted.

He used Neith bow and suddenly, a 100 meter long and glowing white phantom bow appeared in the sky.

A blue lightning element arrow appeared. And at the tip of the arrow, was a 5 meter tall white orb made of mystical energy.

Shoot!

Oliver shot the arrow at the speed of light, breaking the sound barrier in succession.

BOOM!!

This time, Cthulhu's ginormous body itself became the biggest disadvantage and the arrow struck its back.

Bang!

However, the attack didn't even hurt the floor boss because it had a perfect defense against lightning.

But the next moment...

SHRILL!!

The white orb that came with the arrow suddenly let out a shrilling noise and exploded.

Even Cthulhu's 3 kilometers tall being faltered in its steps, almost dropping to its knees as aftermath.

Soul Distortion!

This was one of the unique skills for Oliver. Although Kahn could use it... Oliver was just many times faster and more effective compared to him.

The Cthulhu lost control over its body as its soul was damaged. This was the type of attack its instant regeneration skill couldn't recover from easily.

And finally... with visible pain on his face and beads of sweat dripping from his forehead, it's entire body stopped moving.

Nonetheless, this was a window and the perfect situation for Kahn to attack.

Shoot!!

BOOM!

A massive white superbeam attack that could pulverize mountains, was instantly launched from the archaic magic formation and hit the Cthulhu's torso region, incinerating everything in its wake and creating a 100 meter wide hole in its chest while the right side of the torso including the arm and shoulder were simply obliterated.

Sizzle!

Crackle!

And unlike before, even the instant regeneration was failing to rapidly recover the burnt flesh, a feat even the Dragonfire couldn't achieve against Cthulhu.

[Ronin, now!] commanded Kahn quickly.

Just then... Ronin, who had been using Existence Concealment since the battle began, appeared inside the massive chest after he used Phase Shift to bypass the stormy barrier made by Cthulhu, completely uninjured.

His gaze landed on the beating heart on the left side of Cthulhu's remaining torso.

BOOM!

A shockwave was released as he took his mythical rank form and using his 50 meters long arms, he pulled out the 100 meter tall blue and spherical heart from Cthulhu's body.

But without wasting another moment, he quickly threw it towards Omega, who had switched to Moonlight Armor and raised his speed by 4 times, to appear close to the floor boss instantly.

Omega pointed his left palm towards the heart that was flung in his direction.

Gravity Extraction!

Omega used his newly created skill for the second time so far and pulled the core towards him instantly using his gravity law skill.

Ronin on the other end quickly jumped out and the hole itself was healed and closed. Yet, hundreds of fleshy vines and tentacles flew after the heart, trying to get it back.

[It's just like the system said.] thought Kahn with an expectant gaze.

This was the 2nd unique ability Cthulhu had which the system warned Kahn about.

Cthulhu could survive without its heart for many hours as long as there was some sort of intangible connection between them.

On top of it, could even break its own heart and the core into pieces and then absorb it back inside its body, regenerating it easily.

This was a power that was not found even in any descendant monsters of Godbeasts.

Making it even more difficult to kill even than the Elder Hydra.

Back to the present moment.

The heart was instantly shot at light speed towards Kahn who flew 5 kilometers away in the sky and was already prepared.

"All right. I leave this to you guys now." he said.

Using his saint pressure like the Force, Kahn stopped the heart midair and deactivated the Dimensional Domain while pulling the heart inside his pocket dimension.

ROAARRR!!

The Cthulhu was furious and went into a frenzied state and flapped its wings to fly towards Kahn.

Given his size, it only took it 12 seconds to cross 5 kilometers of distance. But before it could attack...

Kahn let out a devious smirk and quickly created a Dimensional Void and entered inside.

And just like that... The connection between Cthulhu and its main source of power aka the Core was severed.

With the heart and body connection severed... the mythical rank boss went berserk, losing its rationality.

BOOM!

BANG!

Swing!

It started attacking all the subordinates frantically in rage.

And because Dimensional Domain was removed, most of its strength returned, making it even more dangerous than before.

Omega and Rudra were no longer its match so all they could do was run around and dodge its attacks.

For the next 3 hours... all the generals, Omega and Rudra could only run away, dodging and evading the attacks from the flying boss that was using the remainder of its world energy to attack them.

But suddenly...

GRRRR!!

Cthulhu groaned in exhaustion and its body started becoming docile.

As time flew by... it couldn't even move properly as if it no longer had any energy to even take a single step.

Thud!!

Finally, its titanic body dropped on one of the 1 kilometer widespread stone platforms in the open sea, its breathing becoming slower each moment.

Another 30 minutes passed. None of the subordinates even attacked it and instead, they spectated its last moments from afar.

Without using any over-the-top battle skills, causing explosions and destroying the battlefield... they strategically dominated the battle and let the enemy run out of its life force with time.

Finally... the floor boss' glowing red eyes turned dim and became pitch black.

The mythical rank boss Cthulhu, an existence that none of them could defeat on their own... had finally died.

Chapter 776 The New Title

As soon as the 91st floor boss died, a void rift opened and a man in black and blue longcoat attire jumped out.

Huff!

Huff!

Huff!

Kahn panted loudly and descended on the dead Cthulhu's body while his entire countenance was that of an exhausted man.

"Phew! I'll still need a few days to recover." he said as big beads of sweat dropped from his forehead and chin.

Using Amaterasu to land that fatal strike at the expense of his soul essence had taken a huge toll on Kahn's body, mind and soul all at once.

Even after 3 hours, he was still in a weakened state and out of breath.

"System... How many?" he queried with a pained expression.

[All of the Host's physical stats have dropped by 15 levels while the soul is at 90% capacity.] reported the system.

"Ah, 15 levels and 10% of my soul essence sacrificed to kill one unkillable enemy...

I guess I have no right to complain." he spoke, letting out a contained sigh.

Swoosh!

Armin quickly landed on Cthulhu's corpse and started using the Soul Reformation skill to heal Kahn's soul while using his saint rank healing skills to lessen the burden on his body.

And now... Kahn did what was of the utmost priority.

[Ability Absorption activated.]

16 Hours Later.

The divine ability finally did its job after such a long time despite Kahn being a 3rd stage saint at this point and having reduced the ability absorption period by manyfolds. So because of this extended time, Kahn could already foresee that rewards were going to be amazing.

"System, report." he ordered with an expectant expression.

[Following are the newly gained abilities and skills :

Instant Regeneration (Legendary Rank) (Active) :

Allows the host to instantly regenerate any body part or an organ by using the world energy and life force stored inside the body as long as the host's brain (mind) and heart (core) are still intact.

The host also may recover a detached body part, the severed body part will be rejuvenated and reattached while making a complete recovery instantly.

This ability applies to all body parts including the Head and the Heart.

Note : The host can also forcefully sacrifice his levels and physical stats to keep regenerating his injuries even after he runs out of world energy reserves.

Ocean Eddies (Legendary Rank) (Active) :

Allows the host to cause underwater whirlpools, hurricanes and all forms of water storms in a 15 kilometer radius while manipulating their height at will.

Note : There must be a large amount of open water bodies available for this skill to work.

Waterblades Hurricane (Legendary Rank) (Active) :

Allows the host to create a domain comprised of millions of high-pressure water blades akin to a storm and surrounds the host as a form of protection barrier as well as a battlefield that is completely under the host's control.

Note : The host needs to practice this skill to increase his mastery and efficiency of this skill.

Current range : 5 Kilometers radius from the host's body.

Psychokinesis/Telekinesis (Legendary Rank) (Active) :

Allows the host to influence and move outside objects at will using an intangible mind force regardless of their size or state of matter.

Note : This was supposed to be only a Saint Rank skill. But due to the host's immense mental fortitude and adaptability to exert mental pressure caused by constantly managing the host's doppelgangers, the gained ability enhanced itself to fit the host's current physical and mental endurance.

Aquatic Resonance (Legendary Rank) (Passive) :

The host now possesses an extremely high affinity with the Water Element of nature and can easily breathe underwater and even survive the deep sea pressure without any repercussions on the body.

Congratulations to the host!

From now on, all the physical stats and movement skills will be unhindered in water and the host can control all water bodies and mass easily at will.

Primordial Titan Immunity (Legendary Rank) (Passive) :

Congratulations to the host!

Because the host now has complete bloodlines of legendary rank Mountain Titan and mythical rank Cthulhu; 2 descendant species of the Primordial Titans and Invimarak, a descendant of Godbeast Behemoth... the host's physiology has undergone a transmutation.

Henceforth, all the physical damage received from any elemental attack, skills and spells except for the Light and Lightning element will be reduced by 70% regardless of their output.

Note : The total immunity received will increase with the host's rank.

100% immunity can be achieved if the host becomes a Peak Saint.

King of the Sea (Legendary Rank) (Passive) :

The host can now communicate with water elemental and sea creatures telepathically as well as command and subdue them at will as their Sovereign ruler.

Note : This ability will work only on creatures who are weaker than the host in terms of rank and levels.

Congratulations to the host for gaining a new Title!

Monarch of Water (Legendary Rank) (Passive) :

The host now has complete invulnerability against water elemental attacks, skills, spells and creatures with water elemental affinity.

The host also can travel at the speed of sound by propelling himself underwater while facing zero resistance on his body.

Bloodline acquired : Cthulhu

Current Bloodline purity : 100%

Primordial Titan bloodline collected : 50%

Note : The host still needs 2 more different elemental descendants of Primordial Titans to complete the bloodline.] reported the system.

At this moment, Kahn's entire body was shivering... in excitement.

He looked at the ginormous body of the Cthulhu he was standing on, which he still couldn't see completely because of its size.

"Ha ha ha!

Ha ha ha!!

HAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA!!!"

Kahn started laughing maniacally. This was a sight only seen when he gets way too many overpowered abilities or too much money.

"Goddamn 8 Legendary Rank abilities and skills!

Fucking 8 legendary rank abilities and skill!" he shouted as if experiencing peak euphoria.

"This is why descendants of Godbeasts and Primordial Titans are the best!

They always give the most OP abilities!" he exclaimed in an elated voice.

"The gains this time are too immense. I wouldn't have found any of such skills if we hadn't persevered till this floor and given up halfway." spoke Kahn, barely able to contain his happiness even now.

Fighting an enemy that was many times stronger than them and seemed insurmountable at the beginning...

All of their struggles till this point were worth it!

Chapter 777 Worth The Journey

At the present moment, traveling till the 91st floor while risking their lives from the past couple of months had finally shown how it was worth the journey.

Kahn was overjoyed after counting the fruits of their labor. All the abilities he received from Cthulhu were of Legendary Rank and every single one of them was mind-boggling and overpowered to the point even Kahn couldn't hide his happiness.

Instant Regeneration was already the quickest regeneration ability he gained till this point. It could even help him reattach his severed head instantly and even help him recover his heart.

Paired with Psychokinesis/Telekinesis, even if someone cut off his arms, legs and head... he would still be able to reconnect or regenerate them at will as long as his mind and core were intact.

This greatly worked in Kahn's favor more than it did for Cthulhu, the original owner of these tremendously powerful and handy skills.

"If I put my heart inside the true dimension, I can't be killed as long as the Space around me isn't sealed." he spoke with an evil grin.

Because Kahn had the Dimensional Shift skill that came with his Dimensional Law divine ability. This skill allowed him to temporarily shift his body parts and organs inside the True Dimension as long as he wasn't caught off guard and had enough space force reserves in his body.

Currently, Kahn could shift 4 organs at 3rd stage saint rank. Means he could always send both his head and heart inside the other dimension of reality while consistently regenerating during a battle. Making him an opponent who couldn't be killed easily even if the enemy was stronger and more powerful than Kahn.

This was a deadly combo of different skills that basically made Kahn invincible in a way.

As for other abilities... they had their own circumstantial but amazing usage.

Water Element was always the last element Kahn had any mastery over because he didn't have any affinity to it till this point and neither did he study it wholeheartedly due to its limited usage.

And as for opponents fighting inside a battlefield surrounded by water or in a sea... he didn't have a single S Rank skill that could be used in such scenarios.

But now... Monarch of Water, Ocean Eddies, Aquatic Resonance and King of Sea skills, all of which were at legendary rank solved his shortcomings because with these skills, he was extremely powerful even underwater without having a single flaw or disadvantage.

Plus he now achieved perfect immunity against Water Element, making it the 3rd element of nature he was impervious against since Kahn already had complete Darkness and Fire element immunity because of the Monarch of Darkness title and absorbing Divine Key : Flamescion respectively.

Moreover, his immense gains didn't stop just here.

Invimarak both Titan bloodlines he gained till now made a huge change on his body.

Primordial Titan Immunity.

This innate ability that was just created on the spot, was something he cherished the most.

Why?

Given his War Deity Body, defensive abilities that he had till this point such as Somir Scales, Dragon Scales, Invimarak skin and many others... Kahn was already a tougher opponent to kill for someone of the same rank as him.

But due to Primordial Titan Immunity ability, he was now greatly resistant to most of the elemental attacks and their damages as long it wasn't Light or Lightning element.

But as a reminder...

Kahn already had Phase Shift to pass through many attacks regardless of their element. So even in life-threatening situations, he was less likely to get injured at this point in his new life.

Then Telekinesis/Psychokinesis ability in itself was something he wanted since long ago.

The immense mental pressure he had been bearing for the past 2 years ever since he started training his Blacksmithing skills and learned to endure while using his 15 doppelgangers at that time... they evolved the ability during the Ability Absorption procedure and now, he was basically Magneto, who could control everything; not just metals.

Although he had gravity law skills, his attainment and mastery were negligible compared to Omega.

On top of it, he could use only one skill such as Attraction, Repulsion, Upforce and Downforce only one at a time and not move objects in the desired direction or fashion he wanted.

As for the Waterblade Hurricane... this ability was just too OP.

When Kahn, Omega and Rudra engaged in a direct clash with Cthulhu, all of them could see how this skill would be able to kill millions of enemies easily.

Since Kahn couldn't always use Dimensional Domain in a fight because it would reveal his identity as the Hero of Darkness... this was akin to having his own auxiliary or secondary domain that could be used to fool enemies once he became a 5th stage saint.

In the future, with those high-pressure blades that could cut through metals and even Godbeast bodies... Kahn could turn the tide of the battle in his favor as long as he raised his combat mastery in that skill.

The only demerit was he needed to be close to a pond, a lake or a sea. But Kahn had no complaints because it was better than having nothing. Because they could always find a way to access enough water supply.

"Should I grow a long and grizzly beard?"

Because with all these water elemental skills and abilities... I'm basically Aquaman now." spoke Kahn in a shameless voice.

"Alright, system. Impart all the suitable skills to my subordinates." he ordered.

[Command Accepted.] responded the system.

However, it quickly alerted him the very next moment.

[None of these skills can be imparted to any of the subordinates.]

"Huh? Why?" queried Kahn with a curious tone.

[Because their respective bloodlines and unique physiology associated with different elements of nature are incompatible with each other.

As for the subordinates from the Legion, they are too low leveled and weak in terms of rank to handle any of these abilities, even the aquatic species subordinates are no exception to it.] informed the system in a lifeless voice.

"Dammit!"

Looks like I have no choice." said Kahn.

Swoosh!

Suddenly, he pulled the massive blue-colored and spherical heart of the Cthulhu out of his dimensional domain and looked around.

He looked at a particular subordinate who was among the two weakest members of their crew.

"Alright, time to evolve." he said with a confident smile.

Thud!

One of the generals landed on Cthulhu's corpse and gave an understanding nod to Kahn.

As anyone with a good memory and at least two brain cells would guess...

It was Blackwall.

Chapter 778 The Amalgamation

Kahn started the Synthesis divine ability while using the Cthulhu's core and body to merge with Blackwall instead of choosing it to power himself up to make up for the lost levels and become a 4th stage saint instead.

Why?

Because using your Soul Essence and sacrificing your levels also made his body unable to level up for a considerable amount of time.

While healing Kahn, Armin already told him that given his rank and levels, he'd need at least 7 days to make a complete recovery and become able to absorb world energy again.

So instead of waiting, he decided to evolve Blackwall who was the only candidate that fit the bill.

Besides, System had already informed Kahn about how Blackwall could gather different Primordial Titan bloodlines and inherit their powers altogether ever since their time in Verlassen. And now... it was time for the Kronos general who stayed the weakest in the current story arc so far, to gain an immense boost.

9 Hours Later.

The Synthesis divine ability took its time and Kahn along with the rest of the crew were already at 12 kilometers of distance in the sky as none of them wanted to get blown up because of the aftermath. And finally...

BOOOOMMMMM!!!

An enormously destructive explosion made of a brown and blue aura suddenly erupted and spread across 10 kilometers of open sea while causing tsunamis and typhoons made of large water bodies and tides as well as clouds made of evaporated water.

The sky almost cracked as thunderous noises filled and parted the dark clouds forcefully while the height of the explosion itself rose whooping 5 kilometers high.

The mushroom-shaped explosion finally subsided but an unnatural phenomenon suddenly occurred that changed the entire terrain.

Rumble!

Rumble!

One after another, dozens of solid mountains arose from the deep sea while whirlwinds and storms made of high-pressure waterblades encompassed the 5 kilometer radius from the origin.

Even from afar, all the onlookers had their clothes fluttering wildly from the shockwaves caused by Blackwall's evolution.

GRRR!!

A terrifying growl that sent shivers even to Kahn, Omega and Rudra suddenly resounded in the 25 kilometers perimeter, sending tremors in the sea while an insurmountable pressure almost made all of them drop into the sea below.

"System, what the hell is happening?!" asked Kahn in surprise.

[The system detects that because of small traces of the Mythical rank Metamorphosis bloodline that the host imparted to the subordinate, an unexpected transmutation has occurred.] reported the system hurriedly.

[How?] queried Kahn again.

[The system detects that although both primordial titan bloodlines are of the same origin, the superior one obtained from Cthulhu tried to take over the one acquired from the Mountain Titan as the former was a mythical rank creature while the latter was only a beginner-level legendary monster.

The mythical rank Metamorphosis bloodline obtained from the Jatvuarym monster was suddenly triggered during Synthesis and while acting as a catalyst, it reformed the entire physical structure to perfectly balance both uneven bloodlines, causing this Transmutation.] explained the system in detail.

ROARRR!!

An ear-deafening bellow of a monster suddenly resounded in the surrounding at this moment and finally, Blackwall's unexpectedly transformed figure came into sight amidst the storm and mountains.

A titanic 3 kilometers tall humanoid figure filled with red and gray fleshy skin with thousands of massive thorn-like spikes coming out of all the limbs, joints and skin appeared.

A massive 300 meter long tail waved behind it while 6 massive spider-limb boney extensions came out of the back.

At the center of the chest, was a large and wide red hole that looked identical to the mouth of an active volcano as scalding red fire arose from it.

The entire ribcage of this monstrous being was covered in bone-like exoskeleton armor and had 3 sets of glowing red eyes on each side while being separated by skeletal spikes. So in total.. there were 18 eyes.

The torso and shoulders were covered under this fleshly and boney armor, providing it the maximum defense while the clawed arms were so massive and ripped that even a mountain could be excavated in a single swoop.

As for the head... the mouth was nothing but a maw made of thousands of sharp and pointy teeth while the top had 3 large and sturdy horns. However... the eyes were no longer on the head but transferred to the chest.

But similar to Cthulhu, dozens of massive fleshly tentacles extended below the mouth, akin to his own beard.

Kahn saw this new transformed state with a stupefied expression and asked himself...

"What the hell is this? Isn't he supposed to look like a Titan?"

Why is he looking more like a combination of Godzilla and Gundam?"

Although he was aware that the metamorphosis bloodline balanced both primordial titan bloodlines and caused a transmutation... this new form was still way too out of the norm.

Blackwall was now a creature that was even more terrifying than the Mountain Titan and Cthulhu. Even the Elder Hydra, Rudra in his true appearance would look like cute little snake babies.

As for the terrifying and ginormously mountain-like appearance...

Forget the kids... It will give their parents nightmares.

"System, show me all the abilities." commanded Kahn.

[Following are the Stats, Abilities and Skills of the subordinate named Blackwall :

Name : Blackwall

Species : Kronos (Variant Titan)

Job : Abyss Knight (Ancient Rank)

Rank : Mythical Rank

Bloodline : Primordial Titan

Current Bloodline purity : 50%

Note : The Host is advised to acquire more primordial titan bloodlines to evolve general Blackwall as he now has the highest potential to surpass all Godbeasts and Dragons.] reported the system.

Kahn relayed this information to all the subordinates and just like him, they were also too stunned to speak.

Blackwall not only became a Mythical Rank creature; but based on his levels and stats alone, he was now the strongest subordinate among them all.

Even if both Omega and Rudra fought him together, they'd be able to do nothing against him based on his bloodline abilities alone.

As far as the standards of comparisons went... Blackwall outmatched everyone including Kahn. Because at this moment, he was...

A 5th Stage Saint.

Chapter 779 The Incredible Gain

Blackwall was now comparable to a legitimate 5th stage saint based on levels and stats while having a total of 10 Saint Rank skills along with 8 Legendary Rank skills. This was the highest number of powerful skills than any of the generals, Omega and Rudra had.

In every aspect, he was far superior to all of them since other than Kahn, nobody else here possessed any skills that could kill him even if they all banded together during a battle to the death against Blackwall.

But things didn't just end here.

"Master... I have finally acquired one of my own." a monstrously terrifying and domineering voice resounded as if lightning struck the ground.

And the very next second...

Rumble!

Rumble!

Crackle!

The dozens of tall mountains that arose from the deep sea suddenly during Blackwall's evolution... started rumbling and in the following moments, massive pillars of brown aura erupted and acted as a triggering mechanism for something ominous.

Soon, all those pillars rose as high as 10 kilometers (32808 feet) in the sky and spread like a spider's web, connecting themselves and forming a 50 kilometers wide radius dome.

But things didn't end there... soon, hundreds of massive and whirling pillars of water arose from the surrounding deep sea and formed waterblade storms in the entire 50 kilometers perimeter, making the whole region inside the dome full of hurricanes while these pillars exuded a blue visible aura spread and encapsulate everyone's bodies including Kahn.

At this moment, everyone felt their bodies experiencing extreme danger as the immense pressure not only froze them on the spot, making them unable to move. But soon, their physical strength also underwent huge suppression.

All of them instantly understood what was happening.

A DOMAIN!

This entire 50 kilometers radius dome was Blackwall's newly created domain!

Even Kahn was stupefied because so far, only Kahn, Oliver, Omega and Jugram among their group had a domain of their own. And now, Blackwall finally created one of his own after evolving into a mythical rank being.

"System... give me all the details." ordered Kahn.

The system conducted an analysis and finally gave a detailed report.

[Following are the effects of general Blackwall's new domain :

Any enemy or hostile entity surrounded by the Abyss Knight general's domain will have all of their physical movements such as Agility and Dexterity reduced by 30%.

All of the Physical and Armor defense regardless of their rank will be reduced by 50%.

Every enemy's health regeneration abilities will lose 40% of their effectiveness inside the Kronos general's domain.

General Blackwall can also forcefully extract the enemy's blood, which contains water because of his new abilities obtained from Cthulhu.

And due to enemy bodies getting dehydrated, the general can also affect and weaken their consciousness with time.

Thousands of stone pebbles and waterblades can be controlled by general Blackwall using newly acquired Telekinesis skill and he can target all the enemies inside the domain endlessly to attack from any desired direction at will. as long as there is earth and water available in the 50 kilometers radius.

General Blackwall will have absolute control and authority over earth and water elements like a peak sovereign of these two elements.

If any creature or enemy also has Earth or Water Elemental affinity or skills, the general is now able to completely control their bodies, making them his puppets inside the domain.

Furthermore, inside this domain, general Blackwall's Defense and Attack stats are multiplied by 500% (5 times).

Additionally, the Health regeneration ability is boosted by 2 times.

Durability against all elements including Darkness and Lightning is increased by 50% when the general is using his new Domain.

As time goes by... the more battle progresses and more enemies killed, general Blackwall will get a 30% increase in all physical stats per hour.] reported the system, dropping a bomb.

Kahn shared this detail with everyone else and now all of them were simply stupefied and perplexed. Nobody dared to even speak a word, lest they incur the anger of this general.

Why?

Because he was even stronger than the Floor Boss aka Cthulhu they barely managed to survive against.

"Thank goodness, he's my subordinate and not an enemy.

If Cthulhu had this domain... forget killing it... all of us would be turned into dried jerky first before we could even attack it." spoke Kahn in a dumbfounded tone.

Because inside this domain... most of their physical attributes were suppressed and Blackwall himself had an immense boost in attack and defense. Paired with his regeneration abilities and terrain manipulation skill... even a couple of 5th stage saints will have trouble facing him in a head-on battle.

The same strategy they used to kill Cthulhu such as pulling out his heart and throwing it inside the True Dimension would become very difficult to achieve because progressing inside the domain was already extremely hard.

They'd be attacked by thousands of stone spears and waterblades from unpredictable directions and manners at the same time and just getting close to Blackwall would be impossible.

Only Kahn had the ability to do so because he could use the True Dimension.

As for others... only Ronin could come close to Blackwall in a frontal clash while the others wouldn't even be able to come close to 5 kilometers before getting their blood sucked out of their bodies.

Based on boosts and abilities... Blackwall was already capable of fighting a peak 5th stage saint despite being a beginner. But inside this new Domain... he could easily face an intermediate 6th stage saint by himself without a doubt.

And if the fight was a battle of attrition... then the enemy would lose for sure.

So simply... Blackwall was now their biggest and strongest fighter who was akin to an indestructible and impenetrable war fortress.

"Master, give it a fitting name." Blackwall requested, yet his voice still sounded overbearing to everyone because of his massive form.

"Hmm... able to control both Earth and Water at the same time. I know of only one good name that is befitting for this amazing domain.

From now on, it shall be called... The Gaia Domain." declared Kahn confidently.

"Gaia Domain... I like it." declared Blackwall majestically while exuding a dreary and prideful aura at the same time.

Swoosh!

Blackwall returned to his humanoid form. This appearance hadn't changed much apart from the previously spread yellow archaic runes all over his body now also had dozens of blue glowing runes.

Unless he was bare naked, no one would be able to see them so they did not need to worry about keeping them a secret.

"Alright. We're all at our peak form now.

With all of our legendary armors and weapons equipped as well as Blackwall's new evolution, we are not weaker than the Hero of Life's party." spoke Kahn and declared his intention.

"Onto the final floor." he commanded and their group departed towards the exit door.

What they didn't know was that the world would always balance out both gains and losses.

Today, they achieved a very huge gain... as for the loss...

It was just waiting for them.

Chapter 780 Meeting The Dungeon Boss

10 Days Later.

This time, their journey had been much easier and less time-consuming because every floor that came after the 91st floor was either sea-themed related or one of the elements their group excelled in using.

In majority of them, Blackwall's new skills played a huge part and saved them all from many life-threatening situations since he could basically command the terrain and open paths for them at will.

As for the 100th floor... there was no access to world energy and had 20 times the normal gravitational force. On top of it, no one could use any of their bloodline abilities or fighting profession skills.

But the most peculiar thing was this entire dungeon floor had no ground or sea in it, only white clouds with no end or bottom below.

Kahn and the group kept falling for 30 minutes.

Only then did Oliver somehow forcefully manage to transform into his Thunderbird form and carry everyone on his back.

He kept flying in this endless, bottomless, borderless and unimaginably vast floor for an hour. Luckily... this seemed to be the clearing conditions for this floor as suddenly, the exit door and a 500 meter wide steel platform suddenly appeared out of thin air.

After landing on the steel platform, they finally regained their ability to use world energy and access to their skills.

Although their group was no weaker than the Hero's Party at this point before they arrived in the Immortal Dungeon... the laws of reality on each floor along with the conditions that needed to be met were always tricky.

"Are you guys ready? It's the final floor and we will see the dungeon boss after we enter." said Kahn.

But after seeing how everyone was already over the edge, he spoke in a thoughtful voice...

"If we see something that we can't handle... We will leave quickly.

No treasure is worth risking our lives."

Others nodded in unison and soon, all of them started discussing their plans to attack, escape and plot based on any possible scenario they might face on the final floor.

And finally... they entered the 101st floor aka the final floor.

Swoom!

Swoom!

The bright white light faded and 9 figures finally entered from the flashing 100 meter wide door.

Clang!

But the very next moment, the door closed loudly and disappeared from the spot.

"Man... is that a death flag?" asked Kahn to himself.

Every time something like this happened... he pretty much died. So Kahn could already sense a foreboding of trouble.

Bang!

Rumble!

Crackle!

Their group's gazes landed on the terrain filled with charred soil, dark and cloudy storms as well as thousands of massive lightning bolts thundering constantly while destroying the ground below while forming pits of magma.

The entire floor was full of thunderstorms and the 60 kilometers of the radius was more like a hovering island covered under innumerable and ginormous archaic formations that span for dozens of kilometers on their own while covering the entire floor like a net made of highly condensed world energy.

[Boy! Use your passes! This isn't a dungeon floor.

It's an Arcane Prison!] suddenly, Rathnaar shouted in Kahn's mind and warned haphazardly.

GROWL!

Rumble!

Finally, amidst the smoke and massive lightning bolts... a being revealed its existence.

Two massive glowing red eyes with vertical irises in them came out of a fog.

Thud!

Shatter!

The dungeon boss stood out on its hind legs and its height went as far as 7 kilometers. Although Kahn and the group couldn't see its full appearance covered in smoke and lighting from 20 kilometers away... its size was still the biggest they had seen inside this dungeon.

Even someone like Cthulhu seemed like a normal average man in front of this being.

"Oh hell no! We're leaving." spoke Kahn and decided to leave. All the subordinates felt the same emotion.

All of them quickly took out their dungeon passes. But just then...

"Where do you think you're going?"

A ghastly voice resounded, sending tremors in the surroundings and before anyone could even react...

Crack!

BANG!

Suddenly, all of their dungeon passes exploded before they could even activate them.

With their only way of leaving getting turned into dust... Kahn and the group were extremely alarmed and took a defensive stance while activating all of their legendary rank armors and weapons while Kahn also activated his own one.

[Fuck! This can't be happening!] cursed Kahn his luck.

[Boy... we should leave no matter what.

Even if hundreds of people like your group fight it together... You can't do anything.] spoke the peak saint in his mind.

However, the next moment...

SHRILL!!

Suddenly, all their bodies were frozen, unable to even bat an eyelid.

The grim voice continued in an amused tone...

"Oh... how curious. It's a Hero of Darkness this time.

Come here, child... You seem very unique." spoke the dungeon boss and pointed its claw towards them.

"Let me decide if I should kill you instantly... or torture you to death."

As everyone was lifted into the sky and stood like lifeless mannequins... they were pulled by the dungeon boss and stopped only 5 kilometers away in the air.

The dungeon boss was so big that even a small grain of sugar would be an overstretch while comparing their heights and size against the dungeon boss.

"Hmm... You're different compared to the Hero of Darkness I used to know.

By the way... how come there's another hero of a different god?

Is it because I already killed the Hero of Life?

Have the Abyss Empire and Zivot Empire joined hands?" the ginormous and terrifying being questioned.

"Wait, there is something different about you."

But the very next second... his gaze turns furious.

"What kind of abomination are you?!"

You shouldn't be existing!" he bellowed in rage after detecting multiple bloodlines from Kahn's body.

The intense pressure exuding from this dungeon boss's body was comparable to a peak 6th stage saint. However, given its majestic aura... all of them were certain that even a 7th stage saint wouldn't be able to face this tyrannical creature.

Right at this moment... Rathnaar spoke in Kahn's mind with absolute dominance.

[Boy... let me take control.]
