

dear lawyer 401

Chapter 401 Growing Up Too Quickly

Roe reacted quickly and looked at the kind middle-aged woman obediently. He answered in a nervous voice, "Hello, grandma!" "Oh, you're so well-behaved." Mrs. Lucia hugged Roe immediately and beamed with joy.

William rubbed his head and made a gesture to Alex. Alex nodded and pointed at his phone.

Then he strode away,

Seeing his mother love his son so much and hug him tightly, William finally said, "Mom, you have been on the flight for a long time. Why not just go inside and have a rest."

"Ok. How about my dear grandson shows me the way?" Mrs. Lucia didn't even look at William, Roe glanced at his bewildered mother and dad, nodding, and held Mrs. Lucia's hands to get inside.

Vivian walked in the last among them with an unsettled expression. Suddenly, William moved his hand and held Vivian's hand.

He whispered in a voice that could only be heard by them to comfort her, "Relax. Just take it easy."

The comfort was a release for Vivian at this point.

Vivian sighed with relief and then took a deep breath. Her eyes became firm when seeing Mrs. Lucia's figure.

When Mrs. Lucia brought Roe to sit on the sofa, the nanny made the scented tea instantly.

Vivian lowered her eyes and served her a cup of tea.

William said, "Mother, have a try. Vivian prepared this tea before you arrived. Try if it's the same taste as you drank before." Hearing this, Mrs. Lucia looked at William and then Vivian.

Vivian was pretty with gentle eyes and a good figure.

Mrs. Lucia was pleased about the native intelligence in her eyes.

Her first impression about Vivian was great.

She took Vivian's glass and drank it with a smile. She put down the glass and answered, "It's very kind of you." Vivian finally relaxed upon hearing this.

"I'm glad you like it." Vivian nodded with a smile.

However, Vivian still felt a little uneasy.

She really didn't know who prepared this scented tea.

"Your name is Vivian, right?" Mrs. Lucia looked Vivian up and down. However, her gaze was not annoying, instead, it was full of kindness and love, which comforted Vivian a lot.

William's eyes became sharp, and changed his lazy posture and straightened.

People who got in touch with the Lu Family knew that Mrs. Lucia was mild and amiable to others. Her gaze wouldn't make others have an aversion or feel despised.

However, William knew that his mother was good at hiding her emotions. She treated others in the same way. If she got mad at someone, it meant she released her true feelings.

William understood his mother truly loved Roe, however, as for Vivian, it was just her normal reaction towards strangers, Vivian nodded slightly. Her hands shrank without trace and answered, "Yes, my name is Vivian."

"That's a good name and you looks pretty young. If William hasn't told me your age, I can't tell from your look that you already have a child." Mrs. Lucia said while touching Roe's head and turned her eyes.

Vivian's heart fluttered.

William replied, "Vivian is similar with you, a nature beauty. You both look younger than your age. When I hang out with you, people might think you are my sister rather than my mum."

"That means you look old. You are not even 30 but looks like 40." Mrs. Lucia glanced at William and quickly moved her eyes in despise.

"Well, you are not happy about my compliment," William said.

Vivian almost laughed out.

"I just graduated from university when I was pregnant. Maybe it's because I am young and my body recovers fast." Vivian raised her head and explained.

William was going to avoid this topic, but his mother mentioned it again.

Mrs. Lucia watched Vivian seriously for several times.

There was no doubt that she wanted to test Vivian by saying these words. However, she never thought that Vivian would answer it explicitly.

Mrs. Lucia felt well-disposed towards her.

Hence, she didn't further make her embarrassed.

“It’s good for you to deliver baby at such a young age. I can take care of Roe if I can walk around by myself. If I wait until William finds another girl, there is little chance that I can have a grandson.” Mrs. Lucia clapped with a smile.

William said, “We haven’t seen each other for a long time. Why are you saying this? Your grandson is right in front of you. You can visit him anytime.”

“Nasty guy!” Mrs. Lucia starred at him when grabbing two boxes from her bag beside her.

“Vivian, this is my first time to see you. I’m not well-prepared. Here are the presents for you and Roe. Just take it. And I will bring you other good stuff next time I see you.”

Roe didn’t know whether to accept this gift or not. He looked at his father and then his mother.

Vivian shook, “Thanks, aunt. But I...”

“This is a gift from my mother, just take it.” William interrupted her.

Roe curled his lip and accepted the gift.

Mrs. Lucia didn’t say anything to Vivian, but looked excitedly to Roe, “Roe, open it. Do you like my gift?”

“Ok.” Roe answered and opened that green box.

There was a necklace in the box. It was made of white jade in a fine gloss, engraving with exquisite image of a vivid dragon.

Vivian knew it worth a great deal.

“Aunt, this is just too precious. Roe can’t take it.” Vivian wrinkled and almost stood up.

Mrs. Lucia was unhappy. She blocked Vivian and said, "This is my gift for my grandson. Roe is in poor health. This jade can bless him. Besides, we aren't lack of money."

Vivian wanted to insist, but William hinted her to stop talking.

Roe wanted to return this gift after seeing her mother' expression.

Seeing this, Mrs. Lucia handed over the necklace and put it on Roe's neck with joy, "Roe. This is the first time I give you something. Do you want to make me sad?"

Mrs. Lucia's eyes were filled with tears and made a grieved look.

Roe felt awkward. He was not a child anymore and could tell that his grandmother was pretending to be sad.

However, considering his grandmother loved him so much the first time they met, Roe shook his head and accepted this gift.

Vivian couldn't say anything.

"Mother, are you hungry? Vivian has prepared you some dishes. Do you want to have a taste?" William suggested.

Vivian also smiled, "I know you don't like the food served on the plane. I have prepared some dishes. Why not have a try?"

Chapter 402 His Concern

William was right that his mother couldn't get used to the flight meals.

As for the dishes, due to a limited time, Vivian only prepared homely dishes. Although she wanted Mrs. Lucia to have a try, she was still worried she wouldn't like it.

Mrs. Lucia's eyes brightened, "Can you cook?"

Nowadays, not many girls were willing to cook by themselves.

Vivian's cooking skill must be good if William let her to cook for him.

Mrs. Lucia was looking forward to it.

Vivian looked at her and answered embarrassedly, "Just some homely dishes." Mrs. Lucia waved her hands, meaning that she didn't mind.

Then she carried Roe in her arms and walked towards the kitchen.

Vivian stared at her in amazement.

However lean, Roe was taller than children of his age, and slightly heavy. Mrs. Lucia looked petite, but it was surprising that she could carry him so easily with no difficulty.

William saw through Vivian's thought and whispered, "My mom keeps exercising for years." In fact, it was the habit Mrs. Lucia had since she was young. And that was why she was in a good health for so many years.

Vivian felt a little ashamed, as she couldn't walk easily when carrying Roe.

Due to the limitation of time, there were only some simple dishes, such as stir-fries and staple food on the table. However, they varied in kinds and looked delicious.

Mrs. Lucia ate a lot and judged the dishes with a smile, "That's very delicious. I admire Roe and my son for being able to eat these every day."

"If you like, you can live here for several days and Vivian can cook for you." William replied and drew their attentions.

A flicker of wilderness passed over Vivian's heart.

Was William trying to impress Mr. Lucia with her cooking skills?

But she shook her head and denied this thought.

How could that be possible?

Even if William tried to leave a good impression to her mother, it could just be because of Roe.

Mrs. Lucia didn't say anything, but instead, she drank the soup and looked at William with a look of half-smile and half-doubt.

William raised his eyebrow and pretended to see nothing.

After Mrs. Lucia finishing eating and going upstairs, Vivian finally felt released.

Doctors and nurse arranged by William were living in another building. Seeing the clock, Vivian was going to take Roe for regular check.

Mrs. Lucia saw Vivian and Roe walking on the gravel road in the balcony, holding their hands tightly and laughing happily.

Roe behaved differently from the time with her downstairs. He smiled like a little kid when he was with his mother.

Mrs. Lucia couldn't help sighing, "It's been four years..."

William knew her meaning even if her sentence didn't complete.

He walked ahead for a few steps and put his hands on the handrail. William looked towards Vivian and Roe's figure gently; his eyes were full of pleasure, gratitude as well as regret.

"It's all my fault." The light spread down and shone on his hairs, blocking the darkness in his eyes.

Mrs. Lucia wrinkled, "Have you figured it out?"

"Mom, have I ever done something to make you and dad disappointed?" William asked confidently.

Mrs. Lucia starred at him, "You dare say this? Your son was raised by her mother for four years and you don't know anything." William remained silent.

The most important thing was that Vivian had been with him for several years, but she concealed the truth from him.

Damn it!

Mrs. Lucia's expression became serious, and said, "I understand why you bring me here in a hurry. This girl is...nice, at least better than I thought."

William smiled.

He knew his mother would like Vivian.

"But..." Mrs. Lucia wanted to talk about something else.

Seeing William look at her in a serious expression, she smiled, "You have two important problems to handle."

"The first thing you should know is that you must choose to love only one girl. I know you love Vivian, so just cut off your other relationships. It's good for all of you." Mrs. Lucia wrinkled when thinking of Angie. She met her in front of the door and that girl's mouth was really dirty..

A flicker of fidgets passed over William's eyes.

"I know, mom. I will handle it as soon as possible." If it wasn't for that cunning Alan, he would throw Angie away as soon as possible.

Mrs. Lucia was not satisfied with her son's attitude.

However, considering her son might still couldn't let Angie go because they had been together for a long time, Mrs. Lucia didn't answer him. She sighed and accepted his reply.

Then Mrs. Lucia said, "And, the most important thing is how you are going to tell your grandfather?" William was in a silence with firm expression in his eyes.

"Your grandfather loves you the most. But you never listen to him and do things as he expected. For example, he is already not satisfied because you chose to be a lawyer. If you marry a woman he doesn't like, you know the consequence of your other two brothers."

William's face changed suddenly.

He clenched his fists.

Thinking about what happened to his brother, he felt a sense of coldness coming from every part of his body. His face was filled with regrets and unspeakable sense of crisis.

Mrs. Lucia sighed, "Your grandfather already gets used to make arbitrary decisions and take peremptory actions. However, he was old and weak now. You and Vivian already have Roe. Hence, you still get a chance and don't worry about this."

“Well, there weren’t much people who know me in this city. If your grandfather doesn’t know this, I will help you cover it up. I...1 will find a chance to explain to him.” William felt a bit relaxed, but there was still anxiety in his eyes.

Mrs. Lucia nodded worriedly.

Jin’an was far from the city his grandfather lived. Besides, William was good at covering up his identity. Hence, there was few people who would connect him with the eminent Lu Family. His grandfather was staying at his house all day, drinking tea and fishing. Except state affairs, he wouldn’t care about what happened in the outside world.

It was easy to cover things up, Mrs. Lucia thought.

Mrs. Lucia left to have a rest after talking with William for a while.

William lit a cigarette on the balcony and stared at the empty gravel road for quite a long before he left.

Chapter 403 What is Wrong with You

Vivian helped fix Roe’s arm, after a tube of blood was drawn.

Though this little guy did not even blink as he got used to this pain, it was hard for Vivian to watch as a mother.

She gently massaged Roe’s arm, and asked the nurse, “Is it over?”

“Yes Miss Vivian, the examination for Roe is all done today. I will get the result for him at 7 P.M. You can leave now.” said the nurse.

Vivian nodded, and left with Roe.

William indeed put lots of efforts in the design. There was a specific building served as a medical facility not far from where they lived and abundant flowers blossoming along the whole way.

However, Vivian seemed mind-wandering the whole time.

Roe noticed and looked at her several times. Seeing that his mom was not responding to his stares at all, Roe stopped walking.

“Mom, is there anything bothering you?” said Roe.

Vivian was speechless for a second, and said jokingly, “What can bother me? Even if there is something in my mind, you could not help me with it.”

Well, the response just upset Roe.

He thumped his chest confidently. Come on... he was a man, Ok?

“Is it because Grandma is here?” Roe directly got to the point.

“Why do you think like that?” Vivian got astonished for a second.

“Because you have been acting weirdly ever since this morning, when you knew Grandma was coming. You are even weirder after seeing her. Mom, don’t you like Grandma? If you do not like her, I would not like her either.” said Roe.

He opened eyes widely and looked at Vivian seriously.

Vivian laughed out of relief. She pinched Roe’s nose. “Grandma treats you so well. How sad she will be if she heard your words.” Roe pouted. Except his dear mother, he did not care if others were sad or not!

Vivian got what Roe was thinking immediately after seeing that pouted face.

She knew her own son very well.

Roe’s little puffy face was full of seriousness and loyalty, highly similar to that of William.

Looking at her son, Vivian could not help feeling warmed and happy, and most of those worries seemingly went away.

Yeah, she should always trust her bonding with Roe and his love for her.

“Roe, don’t think too much, Ok? Grandma loves you so much and brings you expensive gift. You should treat Grandma well too, Ok?” said Vivian.

In this way, even if William stopped caring about Roe after getting more kids with other women, at least people in William’s family would not despise her son.

Roe acted like he was pondering for a while, then nodded.

Vivian finally felt relieved.

When they were almost home, her cell phone started ringing.

She signaled Roe to go in first, and peeked at the screen. It was Selina.

Damn! She just realized that William’s decision was so urgent that she did not even have a chance to tell Selina about what was going on. Maybe Selina was worried, looking for her in the hospital.

“Hey Selina” Vivian was guilty, “Sorry I left the hospital in a hurry and didn’t tell you.”

“Yeah I know. Someone had told me already. I am in front of the manor right now. What the hell is wrong with those dumbass security guards? They don’t even let me in!” Selina sounded upset.

“Um... I am kind of dumb.” thought Vivian.

How could William’s actions escape Grace’s information network? How could Grace not tell Selina?

“Selina, wait for a moment. Let’s talk when we meet.” Vivian did not answer her directly after pondering for a while.

Expectedly, Selina was stunted for a while, and then blew up, "What is wrong, Vivian? Such a huge manor is not open to me for a visit? Or William confined you, and banned others to get in? Huh?"

Vivian sighed, "Wait for a moment. I am getting to you."

Selina knew Vivian well as a close friend. Of course, she would not really blame her for that. She was simply blaming William the asshole in her mind.

Sitting in the car, Selina glared at the two security guards unpleasantly, feeling stressed out.

She randomly looked out of the window, and saw the building in front of that magnificent manor. William was really a freaking rich guy.

An avenue shaded by trees caught her attention. What was behind was a private playground inside the manor surrounded by fences. Outside, there was a delicate road with two lines of exuberant trees on both sides.

An inconspicuous car parked over there, almost blended in with the environment in its grayness.

"Wait..." Selina found that car kind of familiar.

Curiously, she got off the car to get a clearer look. While approaching the car, she suddenly realized why it looked familiar.

This was Angie's car!

Did that mean that Angie was also blocked outside?

Gloating over this thought, Selina felt much better.

"What are you looking at?" Angie noticed her while she was approaching in the beginning. Selina's gloating face especially annoyed her, so she rolled down the window to glare at her.

Selina folded her arms over the chest with a smirk look, "Wow, look at that, isn't that Miss Angie? I guess she is here to visit her boyfriend. Oh, I heard that he is inside right now. Why won't Miss Angie go in? Or... did she just break up with him? Umm..."

"Selina! What the heck is wrong with you?" Angie got mad when her inner thought got exposed, "How does that have anything to do with you? Who do you think you are? You are just a stupid dog of that bitch Vivian. Don't even try to act like somebody! Just remember, I will teach you a lesson someday."

"OMG, I am so scared!" Selina pretentiously shivered and laughed, "The great Miss Angie no longer acts sweet anymore, but starts screaming like a shrew now. Oh, who knows if William will suffer from insomnia tonight after seeing the real you?"

"Se-li-na!" Angie glared at her with full hatred. The coldness in her eyes could have killed Selina for a thousand times.

However, Selina did not give that mad look a shit, and was still smiling with a smirk face. This was what always drove Angie crazy.

Suddenly, the two guards opened the door, and someone walked out.

Chapter 404 Go to Hell

It was Vivian! Selina brightened up, ignoring Angie, and ran towards Vivian excitedly, "My sis! You finally came out." "The sun is so bright. Why did you get off the car?" said Vivian.

"I saw a dumb dog, so I couldn't hold my curiosity." Selina gave a mysterious smile, "This is the first time William does something right."

"What? What are you talking about?" Vivian looked at her in confusion.

Selina raised one eyebrow, pointing her chin to the avenue.

Following her eyes, Vivian saw Angie's car too.

After seeing Vivian walking out, Angie felt smothered by full anger, jealousy and hatred, and she grabbed on the wheel tightly.

Vivian!

She was not sure if the woman in the car earlier was Vivian, but it was clear that William did let Vivian in, while leaving her outside.

She could not know better about what this meant.

But how! How could that be possible?

She was William's girlfriend! She was William's true love. They had beautiful past and were getting married soon.

How could this bitch ruin all this? How?

With anxieties arising from waiting in the morning, anger towards Vivian, and mocking from Selina, Angie lost her last sanity.

Before her brain could react, she stepped on the accelerator and fully turned the wheel, hearing nothing but the car's booming noises.

"Did she lose her mind?" Selina tightly gripped Vivian's hand, screaming as the car was rushing into them.

Vivian's face paled with fear as the car was approaching.

Nobody could keep calm in front of a deadly threat like this.

“Watch out!” Vivian immediately pulled Selina to dodge the car, looking back at the car fearfully.

A high-pitched braking sound startled a flock of birds flying toward the sky.

“Are you Ok?” Vivian checked with Selina up and down worriedly.

After astonishment, Selina was totally enraged, and walked towards Angie’s car.

“Angie, you are a crazy woman! Do you want to kill me? You...”

Angie was still trying to catch a breath in the car, feeling pleasant to see Selina and Vivian’s reactions.

Now hearing Selina’s angry voice, she sneered.

Kill them?

She was afraid of nothing!

Yes, she wanted to run over the two bitches!

Turning around immediately, the car soon rushed towards Vivian and Selina again in full speed. It seemed that it had to take their lives to compensate the booming sound.

“Go to hell, all of you!” Angie’s eyes turned totally red. She stepped on the accelerator and got super excited, staring at them.

The two guards finally noticed this situation, and guarded up against this mad woman with two electric sticks.

“Over here, Miss Vivian!” one guard jumped in front of them and pointed to one direction.

Vivian dragged Selina and ran towards the door.

Soon, the two guards stopped Angie's car.

Angie was gasping for oxygen, laying on the wheel and sweating all over in the car.

"Vivian! Are you Ok?" Selina fell on the floor, and asked Vivian with concern.

Looking at Angie who just got pulled out of the car by guards, Vivian shook her head, "I am ok."

"Let me go! Hey! I said let me go!" Angie struggled with two guards but could not run off because they were way too strong, gripping her arms tightly.

Angie shouted, "What do you want from me? I am Miss Angie, you assholes, let go! You are dirty!"

"Vivian! Tell them to let me go, or I will make you regret!" Angie was not stupid, directly shouting at Vivian after getting no responses from the two guards.

Vivian held a pillar to stand up slowly. She glared directly at Angie, with an extremely cold vibe rarely shown before.

That cold staring made her look like a total stranger.

Angie lost one heartbeat under the staring, but kept going, "You are deaf or what? Tell them to let me go!"

"Angie, I just realized I was wrong", said Vivian out of blue.

Angie sneered and laughed, "Ah, now you know you did something wrong? You shouldn't have fought with me for my boyfriend! Vivian, I will never accept your apology!"

She even sounded flattered and gave Vivian a contemptuous look.

She thought this woman was scare of death.

If she had known it better, she would have threatened her with a knife. That would have saved her a lot of time and effort.

Vivian sneered, "No, I was wrong because I tolerated you for such a long time."

"You..." said Angie.

"You dared to murder me in public, why do I even think that you would let a kid go? Angie, no matter what happens, I will not give you any more chances to hurt Roe." Vivian was determined.

It seemed that she just knew this old girlfriend today.

She admitted that she was guilty to Angie for her relationship with William, which was also why she never regretted leaving William, covering Roe's existence and making herself look bad in front of William.

However, that did not mean Angie could go so far and even tried to harm Roe for several times. She thought that even without their old friendship, at least Angie would keep her consciences.

What happened today was what really gave her a clear understanding of Angie.

She has no conscience.

Law and life were nothing in her eyes.

Biting her lips bitterly, Vivian wanted to laugh at her own innocence.

What happened between them on earth? How did things turn out this way?

Was it all her fault?

Was it because that she fell in love with the wrong guy and pursued the wrong love?

In any case, all these paybacks should not go to Roe. She was trying to fix the situation.

Angie was scared, "Vivian, what do you want?"

Selina grabbed Angie's arm, "Miss Angie from Jing family tried to murder people but failed. I wonder if this headline tomorrow was shocking enough."

Chapter 405 You Still Love Me

When Angie heard this, the look on her face totally changed.

Great family background was her biggest strength.

Her father was of high social status, but reputation was significant to him.

If it was not Selina who threatened her like that, Angie might not be afraid.

Selina was different, as she was from a great family with great power. And William cared more about Vivian because of that son of a bitch.

Angie clenched her fists and bit her own lips tightly, unwilling to concede their argument.

"Selina. no one will believe you. Why would I commit such a crime as murder? Do you think people are blind and without their sense of judgement? Do you think you can talk nonsense as you want, just because you come from a family of high status?" Angie raised his head suddenly and refuted loudly as if doing so could make herself more confident.

Angie's such behavior seemed to be a threat, but in fact it might be a persuasion to herself.

Vivian said, "Angie, this is a manor with most advanced security and supervision systems." There weren't many security guards around the gate, but the intelligent security systems in this manor was quite advanced.

Angie blinked her eyes and said, "Vivian, William will not let you do what you want to do to me. Don't forget I am William's girlfriend. We love each other so much. You, just get William's temporary attention because of that son of a bitch. Do really see yourself as William's wife?"

The look in Vivian's eyes became gloomy.

Vivian thought Angie was right. What William would do was still unknown yet. As she said, they loved each other so much.

What Angie said did affect Vivian's thought about William. Seeing it, Angie became more confident and snorted, "I waited for the moment when things happen in an opposite way."

Vivian trembled a little bit.

After a few minutes, William came.

William must know what happened at the gate.

The instant Angie saw William, the look on her face changed, and tears were welling up in her eyes before she could spoke anything.

Vivian lowered her eyelid, coldly looking at Angie who are walking quickly toward William's arms.

William turned his body slightly to avoid Angie, looking at the three of them, not treating anyone specially, and asked coldly, "What happened?"

"William, I couldn't find you in the hospital. I tried my best to find out where you are and wanted to bring some food to you in the morning. But those security guards wouldn't let me in. William, this definitely was not your idea, right?" Angie said and then looked at Vivian as if she was implying that it was Vivian who made the order without William's consent.

Being falsely accused by Angie, Vivian frowned and tried to defend herself.

But when Vivian saw William's uninterested look in his eyes, her desire to defend herself was suddenly diminished, feeling sad for herself.

Angie continued her drama, "but I didn't want to give up. I just wanted to see whether you are okay. I waited at the gate for a while. Then the two of them showed up and mocked at me with the two security guards. They said you wanted to break up with me and it was humiliating for me to plague you and not to be willing to face the reality. William, I knew they were lying to me.

Clearly, you love me the most." Angie said so, and was trying to lean on William.

After the previous incident, traces of struggle could be seen on the three women. It seemed that they had a big fight.

Surely, the fact was more serious than a fight.

Selina made an I-want-to-puke face to show her disgust for Angie. She glared at Angie, "Shame on you! You were such a drama queen. It was you who were telling lies and it was you who wanted to hit us with a car. Now you dare to accuse Vivian of the whole drama you make. Did you really think no one saw what you did? Did you really consider those cameras are for decoration?"

"Selina, stop making false accusation. People here will make their own judgments. I believe William will stand by me. You two are so malicious. Vivian, it's in vain for me to be nice to you. I thought if you would leave William, I will treat Roe well. But I didn't know you are trying to take the place of me by using Roe. How vicious you are!" Angie said.

She then started to weep as if she were deeply wronged, with one of her hand grabbing William's sleeve. Angie avoided Selina and Vivian as though they were monsters that would harm her.

Selina rolled up her sleeves and said, "What the fuck! I can't bear this anymore. You bitch!"

Selina thought, 'If I hadn't scared by her attempt to hit us with that car, I would have beaten her. If I don't beat her today, I am not Selina.

Angie was terrified. Seeing Selina clenching her fist, Angie quickly hid behind William.

Angie hated Selina. But she was really afraid of her since she was beaten by Selina last time.

When Selina was about to hit Angie, William became impatient. He grabbed Selina's hand and said, "Enough."

Selina glared at William, "William, let go of me!"

William suppressed his anger and said, "It's enough. If you want to beat Angie, get the hell out of here with her and do whatever you want. Don't mess around here."

For William, he was getting sick of all this stuff. He withdrew from the hospital to this place, yet he still had to bear their noisy fight.

Selina turned her head and stared at Vivian, who was looking down and traces of coldness could be seen on Vivian's face.

"Forget it, Selina." Vivian said in a light tone.

William glanced at Vivian.

Selina said angrily, "Vivian, Are you silly? Where is that determined Vivian a few minutes ago? If you let her get away with this today, she won't miss any chance to hurt you and Roe."

Vivian kept silent for a while, and Selina was upset, stamping her feet on the ground angrily.

Angie raised the corners of her mouth with a smile, but said to William with tears, "William, I know you still love me." William frowned and said, "you..."

Vivian cut William off by saying, "William, I don't want you to get into our fight. But could you get me a copy of the videotape of what happened at the manor's gate just now?"

"Vivian, what do you want to do?" Angie's voice quivered and even became a bit sharp.

Vivian raised her head and said, "Since you couldn't treat us fairly, I will let law do it. Angie, I cherish my life. I won't let Roe and myself be exposed to danger again and again.

"Be exposed to danger?" William was guessing what these words mean and suddenly looked at Angie coldly with the look in his eyes like two icicles that could pierce into Angie.

Angie waved her hands and moved her head from side to side, terrified, and said, "No. I didn't. You can't trust their version of the story easily without hearing mine.

Chapter 406 Let Go of Her

Before William could say anything, Selina shouted, "Our version of the story? Let' cut the crap here. Now that you consider what we are saying is just our version of the story, let's go and watch the videotape. Then we would know whose version is true.

Angie, you wouldn't admit you are lying until we watch the videotape, would you? Everyone would know you were lying a few minutes later. Let me remind you I gave you chance to admit what you did.

Angie looked terrified. She looked at William with tears, and also expectation and suffering from injustice.

William squinted and said to Angie in a low voice, "Follow me."

Angie seemed to be surprised by William's decision, and her eyes suddenly brightened.

Was she in a different situation now?

William still loved her.

Following William, Angie happily glanced at Vivian and Selina who was stamping on the ground. There was disdain in Angie's eyes.

"Bang", the door was closed, and Vivian suffered a heartache for what William did.

"What the heck is William doing? How could he still favor that bitch in situation like this? What an asshole! I praised him for finally making the good decision just a moment ago. Why would I say that?"

Selina said so and kicked the sofa hard with her high-heel. Her pointed heel sank into the sofa. Selina kicked so hard that the sofa was into a U shape for a long time.

Vivian's face darkened and raised the corners of her mouth to make a fake smile, "Isn't this normal? I already got used to this." Vivian already got used to William's consideration for Angie, but her heart would still ache.

"Vivian..." Selina was worried about Vivian. She looked at her and wanted to comfort her but didn't know how.

Vivian took a deep breath and said, "I know what you want to say. There is no need to worry about me. I am okay. I am already over William. I am just worried about Roe."

It seemed that she couldn't let Roe live with William.

Although William assured her that he would take good care of Roe and arrange doctor for Roe's cardiac illness. But she couldn't take risks.

She couldn't even take 0.0001% risk with regard to her son.

Whether William could keep his promise was still unknown.

If there was 0.0001% of chances that William would break his promise, Roe could be dead.

Selina nodded seriously and said, "I know. Vivi, whatever you want to do, I will support you. You don't need to think much about such things. We are best friends."

Looking at Selina's supportive eyes, Vivian almost burst into tears.

In order to protect her ego, she made a deal with William for Roe's huge medical expense, but she forgot her doing so would make her loved one feel sad for her.

Holding Selina's hands, Vivian smiled with tears and said, "Thank you, Selina."

They looked at each other and smiled at each other with encouragement.

It was not long before William and Angie came out of the study. Angie walked out of the room with joy, seemed to make herself tidy inside. The traces of struggle in her were gone, and she looked great now.

William came out a few steps behind Angie. William looked straight at Vivian the moment he came out. He saw Vivian's eyes were reddish, which shocked him.

Did she just cry?

William suddenly doubted whether his previous behavior was right. But he believed it was not a good idea to send Angie to the police station.

"William, I am going home. Don't forget to call me when you are cured. I will wait for your call." Angie said with a lovely air.

When Angie passed Vivian and Selina, she looked at them disdainfully. She lowered her voice so that only the two of them could hear what she said, "I am waiting for you to sue me."

Selina almost wanted to hit smug Angie on the face with her fists.

Selina angrily said to William, "William, you just let her get away with that? Don't you think you owe Vivian an answer?" It vexed Selina to see Angie left without being punished.

The look in William's eyes stayed unchanged. He ignored Selina and said to Vivian in a low voice, "Don't imagine things blindly. I will give you an answer in regard to what happened today, but not now."

Selina was completely irritated.

Vivian raised the corner of her mouth and said coldly, "Not necessary. William, Angie is right. Indeed, she is your fiancée. I totally understand why you favor her. But I hope you could take Roe into consideration at this moment. Now that you acknowledge he is your son, please be responsible for his safety. I will not allow Roe stay in a dangerous environment."

"What do you mean?" William squinted at Vivian, knowing something bad was going to happen.

Vivian said in a light voice, "I would like to cancel our previous agreement. I want to take Roe away from here."

"Vivian, do you really think you can provide the best medical treatment for Roe?" William's chest heaved slightly. He was totally irked.

The anger in his eyes seemed to be able to set Vivian on fire.

Vivian raised her eyelids and looked at William straight in the eyes. "If I can't do that, my friend will help me. I will do my best to provide medical care to Roe. I can borrow money. I will have Roe live well no matter what I do, but I will not let Roe live with you."

"Hmm, you do have the guts." William mocked at Vivian, "If you want to do so, I am okay with it. But we'll see how you can take Roe away from me. Vivian, wait for being called to the court. You will accept your losing the case willingly. By then, you can only beg me for a visit to Roe."

Vivian looked pale and anxious, her palms getting sweaty.

This was the part that made her most insecure. William was a lawyer. He had wealth and connections. He had ten thousand ways to win the case and to win the custody of Roe.

The rim of Vivian's eyes got reddish as she said, "William, could you think about Roe's feelings?"

"A four-year-old was not fully mentally mature, which meant he was easily influenced by adult around him. Therefore, I didn't need to think about Roe's feelings. By the time I got his custody, I have many ways to make him only remember his father and forget his mother." William continued his heart-breaking speech, and coldly stared at Vivian's miserable look in her eyes.

Selina couldn't stand by. She held Vivian's hands and glared at William, "William, are you a normal human being? You already made Vivian suffer enough from this. What do you want more?"

"Miss Selina, this is very a personal business between me and Vivian. You have nothing to do with this. I advised you not to involve yourself in our business. By the way, you are not welcome here." William said drily. Then he turned to his staff and said to them, "See Miss Selina off."

"William, what the fuck..." Selina was taken away by William's staff, cursing William.

Chapter 407 Are You a Dog

"Selina!" Vivian was surprised and was about to help when a strong arm stopped her on her waist. She turned around and saw William with an indifferent look, hard to understand. "What are you doing? Selina is just a girl." Vivian said with anger.

"Don't worry. She's quite strong. She won't get hurt." William laughed.

Selina was the apple of Grace's eye. If not for her annoying temper, he wouldn't have kept her out.

"Worrying about others? You'd better worry about yourself." William sneered, holding Vivian in his arms.

Vivian bit her lips and cried out, "Let go of me, you jerk. Let go now!" She seemed to smell some strange perfume around his nose, which reminded her that William and Angie had stayed together in the study for some time. She felt like vomiting at the thought of that.

One of William's shoulders hadn't recovered yet but the other one was strong enough to carry Vivian. He strode forward despite of her rebellious struggle.

Vivian was still fighting against William who was carrying her even tighter. She was so pissed off that she bit him on his shoulder hard. William felt the hurt and threw her onto the couch. Bang! Her head hit on the couch.

"Are you a dog?" William took off his coat and found his shoulder bruised. He knew she was really angry based on his experience these years.

Vivian stared at him and spat, "I told you to let go of me!" William rolled his eyes and asked, "What's the fight for? If it's because of Angie, I can only tell you it's not the time. As for Roe, I have promised you he will be totally safe. Stop being irrational, Ok?"

"I'm not being irrational. I mean every word of it." Vivian said word by word and scornfully, "I don't believe you." She must be stupid enough to believe William. How come she had trusted him before? He should have never had credit with her. She thought to herself and went back to her room before William had time to argue.

William watched her disappeared in his view for quite a while and finally left in anger.

Mrs. Lucia, William's mother, was awoken by the noise and came out to see what happened in the living room. When they all left, she thought of something. Seeing what had just happened, she had quite a different opinion about Vivian who was gentle yet powerful in some aspects. And it seemed that she didn't care about the marriage. It was her son who... Suddenly, she glanced at a small figure, crouching in a corner. It was so small that she could hardly see if she didn't see carefully.

Shocked, she called cautiously, "Roe?" The little boy looked up, sad. She felt sorry for him. When the parents quarreled, kids were the ones who suffer most. She went up to hug him and asked, "Good Roe, when did you come out?"

"I've been here for some time." Roe was unhappy.

She was worried, "Did you see what happened just now?" "Yeah."

She touched his head and comforted him tenderly, "Mom and Dad were just joking. Don't take it seriously. Go and have some good sleep. Everything's gonna be fine."

"They were not!" Roe argued.

"What?" She was shocked.

"Mom and Dad are always quarreling. Angie is a villain. She had set me up several times and made me suffer from my illness.

Dad is also a bad guy. He said he loved Mom and would take good care of us. But he's always with Angie to bully Mom. He's a liar."

Mrs. Lucia frowned and asked, "Angie made you suffer from your illness? Who told you that?" She thought Roe might get this idea from Vivian. Otherwise, how would a little kid, less than 4-year-old know it.

"Nobody told me. I happened to hear the conversation between Mom and Aunt one day." Roe murmured.

"Really?" Mrs. Lucia was astonished and then she asked, "Roe, if Mom and Dad won't get married, would you like to stay with Mom or Dad?" She regretted asking such a question. Roe had just called his Dad a bad guy so his choice was quite obvious.

Not a surprise, Roe replied without hesitation, "I wanna stay with Mom."

Although she knew that Roe was raised by Vivian, Mrs. Lucia still felt sad. She looked at him with sorrow and said, "But Dad stays with Grandma. So you wanna leave Grandma?"

Roe seemed to be in a dilemma for a while but then he replied firmly, "I wanna stay with my Mom. And I will come to visit you when I grow up." This was a great comfort for Mrs. Lucia.

“Good Roe!” Mrs. Lucia fondled Roe’s head with more tenderness and sighed, “What a pity!” After comforting Roe and sending him to his room, Mrs. Lucia went to William’s room with anger. William was applying medicine on his wound with one hand. His face looked indifferent without any change. But as his mother, who was familiar with her son, Mrs. Lucia immediately experienced his anger.

“Let me help you!” She came over and took his bandage. Blood seeped from the wound on his shoulder due to his strenuous move just now. Mrs. Lucia sighed when touching the swelling wound.

“What’s your plan?” Mrs. Lucia whispered, applying the medicine to his shoulder skillfully. She continued, “I have been thinking about this since the phone call yesterday. I forgot to ask your opinion. Do you want to marry Vivian or you just want Roe?” Although he seemed to have been paving the way for Vivian, it was just out of her guess. Maybe she was wrong about it.

William puffed impatiently. He didn’t want to answer.

“Don’t you dare to keep her as your secrete mistress, do you?” Mrs. Lucia raised her voice.

“Of course not. I’ll marry her.” William answered.

Mrs. Lucia pressed his wound deliberately and said scornfully, “How? In the way you two quarrel or the way she’s getting a divorce with you?”

What a sore point! William felt annoyed, “Mom, there are some issues that need to be solved. Otherwise, she won’t break off.” Thinking of the news he just got, he became upset again.

“What do you mean?” Mrs. Lucia looked at him suspiciously.

“You’ll find out.” William said with a sneer.

Mrs. Lucia stared at him, holding back her impulse to hit him on his wound.

Chapter 408 Game of Words

Having left the manor, Angie was not that happy as Vivian and Selina thought she might be. When in her car, she started to feel angry. She was not dumb. She could definitely feel that William's attitude towards her had changed. He had been giving her the turnaround, being more and more indifferent to her.

Although William helped her out this time, it didn't mean anything. At least it was Vivian who was living with him in the manor and they had a son together.

Thinking of these two big troubles, Angie felt raged, regretting not having hit her to death with her car just now. Suddenly she thought of someone. That was him! She almost forgot him. She sneered, "What a two-timer bitch! Did she really think she could fool those men?" She was sure to see her suffer one day.

"Hello?" John answered the phone frowning. He was not in the mood and he wasn't expecting Angie's call.

"I want to see you, John. I have something important for you." Angie snickered.

"Sorry. I don't have time for you now." John refused directly.

Angie felt embarrassed and then she sneered, "You are looking for Vivian and Roe, aren't you? She moved away without telling you. Don't you want to know where she is now?"

As expected, John was anxious about Vivian and Roe. He said, "Where are you?"

"I'll see you in Shangyue Cafe in half an hour," Angie said and then hung up the phone.

Angie grinned and thought of what happened today. It was inconsiderate of her that she was nearly busted by Selina. But she wouldn't let it happen again. With her wisdom, she would make sure that Vivian was ruined and left Jin'an City with nothing. She would kick Vivian out of the upper class, leaving no room for her in Jin'an.

At the thought of this, Angie felt happy as if she was already witnessing Vivian's bitter life with her dumb son. She was looking forward to it.

A few minutes ago, John was anxiously inquiring doctors about Vivian. Now, he calmed down, holding his phone and started to ponder, "What a jerk, William!" An idea came to his mind.

Half an hour later, they met in Shangyue Coffee. In a quiet corner, they sat face to face. John looked gentle yet indifferent without a smile.

"What have you been through? You have changed a lot in such a short time." Angie was happy to see that, because the deeper he loved Vivian, the better.

"Where are Vivian and Roe?" John asked, leaning on his back and staring at Angie indifferently.

"Don't worry, John. I'm curious about how much you know about Vivian. It's been almost one day since she left. And she didn't contact you or even leave you a message. Aren't you angry with that?" Angie asked, raising her eyebrows. To be frank, she was quite impressed by John's love for Vivian. If William could treat her the same way, she wouldn't let go of him.

John had a sip of the coffee, letting out his anger and smiled at Angie, "Listen, Angie! I don't have time for your craps. I know Vivian better than anyone else. She is just busy with something so she doesn't call me. Why should I be angry?"

Angie was not pleased as the talk didn't go well as she had expected.

John continued, "It's William whom you should be worried about, not me. Why do you still not get it? Whatever you do to hurt Vivian and Roe, it won't do you any good, except pushing William away from you. There will be someone else if not for Vivian.

You should be working on William rather than dealing with her."

Angie was shocked and bewildered.

John sneered at her reaction and looked out of the window. Seeing the heavy traffic on the street, he felt lost, which he didn't notice either.

He turned to Angie, "You two have not been together for 4 years, which is long enough for anything to happen. I'm a man. I know what men think. You were just his first love, which he may miss. If you lose that very least advantage, what will you end up with? Even if Vivian leaves him, can you guarantee that William will choose you?" John asked powerfully.

Angie clenched her fists in anger. Biting her lips, her mind started wandering. She could lie to others that William only loved her and they were true love for each other, but she couldn't fool herself because she was crystal clear that there had been a wide gap between her and William. John was right.

John was drinking coffee casually. He seemed to be fine with the time passed. He felt melancholy for a second. After all, he really didn't want to win Vivian with the tactics that he had been using in business. But he had to do something to stop Vivian from leaving him. He would do anything to have Vivian back to him.

Angie knew what was best for her. It was not long before Angie suddenly raised her head, saying firmly, "Let's cooperate!"

John blinked, his finger stopped touching the cup, and then said directly, "I want to make sure that Vivian and Roe are perfectly safe. Besides, I don't want to work with an idiot."

Angie was awkward with a long face and said indignantly, "Ok, John! I promise I won't do anything to Vivian and Roe during our cooperation. You can talk to me anytime if there's any problem."

"Are you playing Game of words with me? What's 'during cooperation'?" John said scornfully. Her tricks could only work for the dumb William but not for John.

Seeing his smiling face, Angie felt scared out of nowhere. John was really something as the successor of the He Family.

Chapter 409 Big Red Envelope for the...

John didn't go to find them the first time after he got the address where Vivian and Roe was living now from Angie. After several phone calls to Vivian but no one answered, he contacted Selina.

At this time, Selina came down from the mountain with great anger.

She swore while driving in the luxury car which caused the dust-laden automobile exhaust, aroused a lot of jealous look alongside.

What a rate of second glance she had attracted!

“Hello?” Selina was still aggrieved about William’s attitude towards her, how could he dare to let people throw her out? She had never been treated like this since she grew up!

This man was nothing but a love rat!

John said, “Selina, where is Vivian? Do you have any news of Vivian? I can’t find her and Roe in the hospital.”

John’s voice was soothing and gentle, like a trickle, which cheered up her unconsciously.

Selina’s anger strangely subsided.

“Why don’t you call Vivian?”

An idea suddenly came out from Selina’s mind, she couldn’t help asking.

John was somewhat upset, “I made a lot of phone calls, but she did not answer, so I was worried about whether something happened to Vivian.”

Selina opened her eyes wide, and suddenly stopped the car.

John waited.

Then she said, "Fuck! William, what a love rat, it must be his fault!"

On the other side of the phone, John raised his eyebrows slightly.

Without waiting for him to speak, Selina said a lot as if she was pouring out the beans, "Let me tell you that William is really an asshole. It must be him who secretly took Vivian's mobile phone and blackened you. Otherwise, how could Vivian miss your call? I did talk to Vivian on the phone in the morning. By the way, he just indulges Angie bullying me and Vivian."

John was really nice to Vivian and Roe. Selina had always known, and even thought about it more than once: if Vivian lives with John, she would be very happy.

However, William blocked in the middle and really made them uncomfortable.

At the moment, Selina was undefended in John's words, and just came over from the expulsion humiliation brought by William, and before she could vent her anger, she naturally wanted to find someone to talk to. So after telling John all the things that happened before, she felt much better.

Finally she added, "Vivian now lives in the manor on the mountainside of XX, which is very expensive and mysterious, and the security at the door is very tight. If you are going to find Vivian, you can meet her outside in order to avoid conflicts. I'll let Vivian call you later."

Selina was really her best friend and helped him to think everything over.

Therefore, John could say nothing but thanks.

Selina waved her hand, "Never mind! Remember when you get married; you will seal a big red envelope for me, the bridesmaid." "Thank you for your kind words." John smiled.

He was very pleasant to hear such words.

After hung up the phone, he waited very patiently, and secretly wrote down what William did in his mind.

No need to wait Selina to call Vivian, her phone has already been called.

Selina grinned, it was through heart.

“Selina, who did you call just now? Your line is always busy?” Vivian asked.

Selina said, “It was John. Vivian, did you not answer his phone? He couldn’t find you all the time, and you didn’t answer his phone. What happened?”

Vivian stunned, checked the phone, and there was nothing wrong with it.

But there were no missed calls.

“I didn’t get his call ...”

“Look at your blacklist!” Selina was familiar with the operation.

Vivian opened the blacklist with a tangle, impressively laid inside a string of numbers, and it was John’s indeed.

She didn’t speak, but Selina could imagine the expression on her face.

Selina then said with a hum, “Humph, William is really naive. He can do all the things that primary school students can do. I knew it must be his fault. How did you let him touch your mobile phone? This is a personal item.”

A few pictures flashed through Vivian's mind, she thought of what happened last night, and her face immediately turned red.

There were shame and anger.

Regardless the gentle touch last night, he held another woman into the study this morning. Was William thinking about meeting two women at a time?

Vivian quickly recovered John from the blacklist without hesitation.

"No, I'll pay attention next time. By the way, Selina, are you all right? I'm sorry about what happened just now. How are you now? Where are you? May I come to see you?" Vivian thought of her original intention of calling, and was somewhat worried.

Selina said easily, "Don't worry, don't you know who I am? Those stupid men, I'm just afraid that I'll hurt them. Otherwise, how can they drag me away?"

Of course, Vivian didn't believe her.

But being able to joke like this proved that Selina was really all right.

"Ok, I see, but you should have a good check when you go back. If you bump or run into somewhere, you will be ugly." Vivian told.

Selina cleaned her ears, "I see, my housekeeper. I'll take off my clothes and check it carefully. If you don't trust me, I'll send you photos."

Vivian rolled her eyes in bad spirit, "Send it to your Grace"

Selina hung up the phone immediately.

Vivian smiled, felt warm in her heart for having such a good friend.

After hanging up, it didn't take long for her to call John.

John looked at the calling number, smiled.

His lifted heart finally fell down.

Even if Vivian's love for him was not enough, it was not without feelings.

He believed that as long as he was willing to wait, and as long as he was kind to her, the love flowing slowly would be more profound than the vigorous young impulse.

"Vivi..." He said softly.

Vivian slightly lowered her eyes, with guilt, "John, sorry, I didn't mean to miss your call."

"I understand, Vivian, we don't need to explain such a small matter." John pretended to be natural and unrestrained.

The more considerate he was, the more uncomfortable Vivian felt.

"John, let's meet. I have something to tell you." Before John could speak, Vivian was determined to say.

John stunned, then said happily, "OK, it's noon. What would you like to eat? I'll make a reservation first. Do you want me to pick you up?"

"No, it's convenient for me to go out." William arranged a lot of cars in the manor.

Chapter 410 Let's Get Married

After Vivian made an appointment with John, she went out alone without informing William.

Although William brought some men, he did not restrict her freedom.

In view of the fact that there was no taxi around, Vivian went directly to the garage and drove a low-key car, and left under the confused eyes of two security guards at the door.

When William got the news, she had already left the manor.

William was angry, and he almost asked someone to change all security password.

William's mother laughed at him, "Vivian is not a bird in your cage. You didn't say you wouldn't let her out." William's face grew darker and darker.

He was worried that she would go out to meet John, and someone would take this opportunity against him, but what he worried most was that she would be gone forever. After all, they had just finished quarreling.

The more he thought, the more he felt uncomfortable in heart; William drove away in the joking eyes of his mother

John made an appointment in a good restaurant, and the two went there more than once. When Vivian arrived, she was familiar with the place.

Sure, John had already been here waiting for her.

'I ordered some dishes you like. Here, see what else do you want to add.'" John handed Vivian the menu and explained.

Vivian shook her head, "That's enough."

John said nothing and let people serve two cups of fruit juice first.

"William took you and Roe out of the hospital? Where do you live now?" John cut to the chase.

Vivian said an address which John knew before. He was naturally not surprised, just smiled, but said helplessly, "I thought before that I was better than William at least in family background. But now, it seems that he is hidden too deep! That is not the place where you can live in just by money. William should not be a dude of any big family.”

Vivian stunned.

She saw William’s mother today.

Without hesitation, she gave Roe a valuable piece of white jade. According to her, it must worth at least one million. Now, it seemed that she may underestimate it.

This indicated that William’s family was really rich and powerful.

Vivian’s fingers tightened and the joints of her fingers turned slightly white.

John looked in her eyes, then opened his mouth, “Vivian, what did you think about what I told you?” Vivian looked at him hesitantly, said slightly, “I haven’t thought about it yet, I...”

She didn’t have many thoughts about William, but her son was different. She wanted Roe to get a better life, and wanted him to be treated like an ordinary child. It was an indisputable fact that Roe liked William.

John hanged his eyes, and suddenly said, “I saw Angie this morning before I saw you today. She said she had just come back from looking for you.”

“What?” Vivian suddenly looked up.

John banged on the desktop with his index finger, looked at Vivian with love, “Vivian, is it worth it? I won’t judge what kind of person William is, but you can feel it. Why put yourself in such a desperate situation for a heartless man?”

“But...He is Roe’s father.” Vivian lowered her head with escape.

John shook his head, "This is never a problem. I can provide you and Roe with what you want and what you need. Why do you have to hang yourself on William? Have you ever thought about what kind of situation you and Roe will fall into?"

"Angie told me that William has reached an agreement with her. After a period of time, when Roe's registered permanent residence falls under William's name, her wedding with William will be put on the agenda. Do you dare to let Roe face Angie day by day? Do you really believe that William can protect Roe when Roe and Angie live under the same roof?"

"To speak honestly, even if Angie doesn't touch, even if William is kind to Roe, what about Angie having her own child? Do you think they can tolerate the existence of Roe? Or Roe in front of the three of them won't have any dark psychology?"

Every time John said something, Vivian's face went pale little by little. When he finally stopped, Vivian was already trembling and her face was as white as a blank sheet of paper.

"Jo...John..."She couldn't help crying out loud.

She won't, of course she won't.

She could suffer and pay any price for her actions, but this does not include her child.

Roe was innocent!

He should grow up healthily in this world and live a perfect life.

John held her in his arms.

If he could, he wouldn't let her collapse like this, but he couldn't let William tie her around with a so-called custody, humiliating her wantonly, but never showing his attitude.

He couldn't stand the woman he loved so much be with someone else!

Vivian grabbed his clothes, lifted up her head, her eyelashes trembling with tears, "John, can you really help me get the custody of Roe?"

John didn't guarantee, just said full of firm in his eyes, "Vivian, I can only assure you that I will do my best to help you get the custody of Roe."

Vivian's body was trembling and her mind was out of control.

William, as a lawyer, had never lost a case, and this record made all lawyers in Jin'an City think he was invincible.

She was afraid, she was afraid that she would lose everything and broke up with him, so she didn't even have the possibility to see Roe.

John saw this and gave a dose of cardio tonic, "Vivian, if you don't try, you will never have a chance to succeed. Besides, even if you fail, the biggest disadvantage is the same as what I said before, but do you really dare not even try? If you succeed, Roe will be yours in the future, and no one can take him away."

"I...What should I do?" Vivian lowered her eyes, with red eyes, and brought into tears in her voice.

John felt distressed, but still firmly pull Vivian away, eyes riveted on her crying red eyes, "Vivian, do you believe in me?" Vivian looked at him with confused eyes. Like a traveler who couldn't find a road, the whole world was white.

John gritted his teeth, "Vivian, let's get married."

"Get...Get married?" Vivian got a touch of clarity in her eyes.

John nodded seriously, "Yes, get married. As long as we get married, we will be a complete family, and we will have a greater legal certainty to take Roe back."

Vivian was trembling on her teeth and couldn't stop it.

This was not the first time he mentioned it, but it was the first time that she was very tangled.

She didn't want to delay John's life, but was she willing to let a tragedy happen on Roe?