

Domain 821

Chapter 821

“The next time she comes, I should ask her to create a sun here,” Ryan said. “Then, I will be able to think more freely while looking at the sunset.”

Ryan had planned to train most of his skills to learn the ins and outs while they level up, but in the end, time was limited. So, he couldn't just choose randomly, he had to choose the ones that could be useful in all battles, and he was having a hard time thanks to it.

“What do you think, buddy?” Ryan asked Furball. “Should I train the skills I have or focus on leveling up new classes and getting new special classes? Raise your left paw for the first option and the right for the second.”

Weirdly enough, Furball raised the right paw without hesitation. Perhaps he was more intelligent than Ryan thought... After checking the list of classes, Ryan saw that he had only a couple of classes that were anywhere close to reaching the max level, but that is something that always happens. Then he would ignore them for a while, and then suddenly, they would level up like crazy in the middle of a difficult battle.

“All right, I am bored, and I don't know what to train, so you are going to help me here,” Ryan said and then used Skill Bestowal on Furball. “Now, attack me with the elemental spells.”

Ryan wished that he could use Gravity magic, but he couldn't. Now that he thought about it, he could manipulate darkness and shadows, but there were no shadows to manipulate since they were in the middle of a tropical island that doesn't know the night.

Congratulations! The skill Fire Resistance has leveled up.

Congratulations! The skill Cold Resistance has leveled up.

Congratulations! The skill Electric Resistance has leveled up.

While Ryan was making himself more resilient against elemental attacks, Femradiel was doing some reconnaissance work for Isis. She was pretty good at sensing others, and she was pretty good at hiding from others as well. So, she was perfect for that kind of job. Not to mention, she had the same skills as Rya, so she could see pretty much everything in outer space without being noticed.

Right at that moment, Femradiel wasn't much further away from Egypt. She was pretty close to checking things in Europe. Things were getting pretty tense there since, thanks to Hypnos, the elder gods lost their path to the pendragons' world, and even though those who knew where they could find the mithril were creating new dungeons there, it would take a while for that to bore any fruit.

"What a mess..." Femradiel said.

Basically, every single dungeon in Europe had dozens of thousands of monsters behind, and all of them were working to an elder god. They offered some prizes to the dungeon masters to join their sides. Thanks to that, the Greek gods were obtaining a lot of power, but the Norse gods weren't staying behind in the North. While Loki obtained a domain and he was a pain in their asses, the Norse gods, probably still the largest armies since few humans got on their path.

As soon as she obtained intel regarding the types of monsters and the numbers each side has, Femradiel returned to Egypt, and she was informed that Isis was waiting for her in her Oasis. That was weird since she didn't leave Egypt in the last few days since Hypnos caused trouble, but Femradiel soon realized why she was there, and when Femradiel arrived, she confirmed her assumptions. Athena and Loki were with her.

"Are you alone today, little miss dragon?" Loki asked.

"Bite me," Femradiel said.

"It seems someone is on edge for some reason," Loki shrugged while smiling.

"Why did you tell him?" Femradiel asked while looking at Isis.

“He would discover sooner or later about Ryan,” Isis said. “Instead of letting him cause trouble to gather intel, we saved ourselves from the hassle. So, can you share with us what you learned today?”

The elder gods couldn't leave their domains or use magic that often now that all the others were around. Even if Isis, Athena, and Loki were to use Clairvoyance, they would leave traces for the other elder gods, and that would make them look suspicious.

After Femradiel shared the information with them, Athena began to tap on the round table in front of them. She looked even more serious than usual... probably because a massive fight was about to break out, and the world would be the one who would suffer the most damage.

“It seems we can divide the globe into five parts now,” Isis said and then created a hologram-like map with magic. “The demons have taken over half of Africa already, and they are quickly marching North. They are also moving their armies to wipe out all humans from America and the Northern parts of Asia. The people in Russia and America might resist for a while, but things won't go well if the demon generals join the fight.”

Femradiel realized that perhaps Isis had planned that meeting to happen and keep it as a secret from Ryan. Knowing him, he wouldn't let the demons take over the American continent. Even if he had to face all the remaining five by himself, he would fight them until his last breath. He would die trying because he was the type who wouldn't last, demons defile the lands he came from.

“Most parts of Asia are under the control of Indians or the Chinese since they are strong and have many guardians and fallen heroes on their sides, neither demons nor the elder gods will try to attack them for the time being. However, they are bound to move if a fight breaks out around our territories. They know that the victor may become the most troublesome enemy, after all. In the end, things will start here... the Mediterranean.”

Chapter 822

Femradiel looked at the map and then nodded. All the elder gods from Greek Mythology were located around there, and the Norse Elder gods will attack much sooner than later. Once that happens, the demons in Northern Asia and in the Southern part of Africa will move to take advantage of the situation... All in all, the Greek gods will be attacked by three forces.

“The Greek gods won’t ask for help, even though they could fight alongside the angels since they are equally in a difficult situation,” Isis said. “Is that right, Athena?”

“That is right,” Athena nodded.

“Considering all that, our best option is to halt the advance of the demons on the South and the Norse gods on the North,” Isis said. “If we succeed in doing that, then we can avoid the worst-case scenario.”

“How can we do that?” Femradiel asked.

“I planned this meeting so that I could hear your opinions on the matter. To tell you the truth, I don’t know how we can stop those two armies,” Isis said.

“How about we make your draconic friends in South America receive the same boost in power that you did in the dragons’ world?” Loki asked while looking at Femradiel. “With that power, they can stop the demons’ generals by themselves. Without Lilith, Baal, and Mephisto to back them up, Beelzebub and Belial won’t risk facing so many elder gods.”

It was the first time that Femradiel had heard the name of the remaining demon generals, but that wasn’t the important part right now. While that seemed the best course of action, it seemed too risky.

“We can’t afford to try that, it will take too long, and those five might suffer from the same problem Ryan is facing right now,” Femradiel said. “If that were to happen, the situation will only get even more chaotic.”

“Speaking of which, when are we going to negotiate about Belphegor’s domain?” Loki asked.

“Once, I am sure that you won’t cause problems for the pendragons,” Femradiel said. “They are our allies now, and until we are one hundred percent sure that you aren’t a threat for them, there won’t be any negotiations.”

“Relax, little missy, I am just interested in the mithril,” Loki said. “You should trust more on your allies.”

“You can talk about that later,” Isis said. “What do you think we should do here, Loki? Athena is fairly knowledgeable regarding tactics, but things look troublesome even from her perspective. How do you think we should proceed?”

“Just let the battle begin and focus on defense,” Loki said.

“What is the point of focusing on defense when we already are at a disadvantage?” Isis asked.

“You treat war like just some child’s game,” Loki said. “You don’t have what it takes to make some sacrifices, and you try to avoid the worst-case scenario, but you still can’t see how that can be useful to you.”

“Enlighten me,” Isis said.

“If the Norse gods decide to start an all-out war against the Greek gods, they will show their backs to the domain that I acquired,” Loki said.

“The domain that we acquired,” Femradriel corrected him.

“That is just a minor detail right now,” Loki said. “Anyway, they will show their backs to me. Even though they don’t know yet who is the dungeon master of that domain, they only know that Ryan defeated the previous one. Once they expose their backs, I will attack, and then you guys can join the fray as well to eliminate their armies in a single swoop.”

Isis agreed that was a good plan, but it probably was something that Athena thought but couldn’t consider since it relied on trusting Loki. Although he made it sound simple, Isis and Athena will have to focus most of their forces on trying to hold the enemies back while Loki destroys them from behind. If he were to betray them, Isis and Athena’s people would see themselves in a very difficult position.

“That was why I also wanted Belphegor’s domain because even if they don’t become our allies, we can help the angels destroy the Northern armies with a somewhat pincer attack,” Loki said.

Femradiel also could see that Belphegor's domain had some tactical value. Still, it was hard to tell if he really wanted that domain to help or just to become even more resourceful. Of all the possible enemies, the one that Femradiel considered the most annoying was Loki since it could tell his end goal.

"What do you want to give in exchange for that domain?" Femradiel asked.

"Aside from my promise that I won't harm your friends?" Loki asked.

"Maybe we should sell it to someone else..." Femradiel said.

"Geez, why does no one here know how to take a joke?" Loki shrugged. "How about some Asgardian Blood? If he obtains that, he might recover faster since it will grant a real boost on his divinity level."

"If you can help Ryan like that, then..." Isis said.

"Hold your horses," Loki said. "Just like he can't give the domain for free even though that might help us in the long run, I also can't make a human join our ranks like that," Loki said. "We are a warrior race, and we are direct descendants from the primordial gods. That isn't something a human should become that easily."

Loki was as annoying as he was persuasive. After saying that, no one could refute his words. Besides, that probably was one of the worst things he could do to annoy the other elder gods from Norse mythology. Still, it was weird that someone like him obtained that kind of item... what were the chances that someone working for him would obtain that kind of drop?"

"... All right then," Femradiel said. "We will give you the domain, but only after Ryan wakes up. He is the current owner, so only he can pass you the rights over the domain."

"That is not a problem. Even unconscious, he can pass the rights to me," Loki said. "You just have to teleport him there."

Annoying and persuasive indeed...

Chapter 823

“So, he wants Belphegor’s domain in exchange for a single bottle of blood?” Ryan asked when Femradiel explained what happened during the meeting.

Isis asked Femradiel to keep a secret for the time being the parts that might make Ryan return no matter what, but she ignored that. She couldn’t keep secrets from Ryan. Besides, she knew that he wasn’t stupid or insane... not all that much, at least.

“Yeah, what do you think?” Femradiel asked.

“I think that you need to improve your negotiation skills,” Ryan said. “I mean, for how long do you guys think I need to rest here?”

“We have no idea. You are still burning up,” Femradiel said. “Seriously, water is evaporating from your head despite the fact that I cast a spell to make the room as cold as possible without bothering anyone.”

It seemed that Ryan didn’t understand his situation completely. He thought that he would be back on his feet in a week or so. He didn’t have any idea how serious his situation was since he never got really sick before.

“Well, let’s just hope that will work,” Ryan said. “If that doesn’t work, we will have to search for the god of medicines or the god of herbs... does Isis know people who have that title?”

“I don’t think so...” Femradiel frowned.

In the end, Femradiel teleported Ryan to the domain in just a few minutes, and much to her surprise, she found Loki waiting for them there. Although the barrier was filled with mana, they knew it wasn’t unbreachable... still, Loki probably used other methods to enter.

“Wow, he looks really bad,” Loki said. “Can I talk with him there?”

“What for?” Femradiel asked.

“I don’t like to do business in an indirect way,” Loki said. “Besides, it has been a while, and I want to see him in person.”

Although that seemed suspicious, Femradiel decided to summon Loki in the Void World. Ryan wasn’t the type to lower his guard, so if Loki were to show his true colors, that would be the perfect moment to deal with him. Ryan still was letting Furball hit him with magic attacks when Loki appeared. Weirdly enough, both of them frowned when they saw each other.

“What are you doing here?” Ryan asked.

“Why is everyone so cold towards me?” Loki asked.

“Are you messing with me?” Ryan furrowed his eyebrows.

“Relax, I was just joking,” Loki said. “I see... it seems that despite everything, you haven’t changed all that much. Interesting.”

Ryan frowned again. He knew that Loki was weird and suspicious, but it seemed that his weirdness was only increasing lately. It seemed that Loki could see things that most people couldn’t.

“I came to confirm that you are fine with the terms of our agreement,” Loki said.

“Yes, I am,” Ryan said. “I wasn’t planning to tell you this since it is pretty much obvious, but I can’t let this chance go. Don’t betray us, Loki, not even just to amuse yourself. If you cause problems to those that I consider my allies, and they get hurt thanks to it, I won’t think twice about attacking you with all I have. I might lose in the end, and right now, I think that I will probably lose, but I won’t go down without making you regret deeply.”

“Why aren’t you confident in your victory?” Loki asked. “I mean, you have the record of defeating tough elder gods.”

“Just a gut feeling,” Ryan said.

“I see...” Loki said. “Well then, I’d better get going. I need to prepare many things.”

Once Loki disappeared, Ryan couldn’t help but wonder why he felt like Loki would be hard to kill. He sure was different from the other elder gods he faced, but he didn’t look anywhere dangerous if compared to them. Maybe that was the fact that bothered him the most.

Congratulations! You obtained and absorbed Asgardians blood.

You obtained 01 status points.

Congratulations! You have learned the skill: Superhuman Endurance.

Effect: It grants you the power to receive minor damage from all types of physical attacks. This skill also passively increases your endurance by one hundred points per level.

You obtained 01 status points.

The skills seemed more straightforward than Ryan imagined considering that he received by obtaining the DNA of a special race of warriors. Still, even in his spiritual form, he felt much better than before... if anything, it seems they received the real deal from Loki. That being said, Ryan couldn't help but worry that Femradiel made him drink the blood like that without informing him first. After a while, Femradiel appeared and informed Ryan that they were back in Egypt already.

"Your fever decreased a little," Femradiel said. "How do you feel?"

"Pretty good, actually," Ryan said. "Since I am bored here, I am letting Furball train my endurance. Perhaps I will recover faster than before. Since all the issues this time are due to my weak body and weak spirit."

"Well, that is good then..." Femradiel said. "If you don't mind, I am going to rest here for a while."

After saying that, Femradiel sat down and then laid her back against Ryan's back. That was right, she was much as exhausted as Ryan before, but she still was working hard in the real world. She was so exhausted that Ryan noticed that she quickly fell asleep.

"Let's do something else, for the time being, buddy," Ryan said to Furball. "She deserves this rest, and we don't want to wake her up."

Chapter 824

Without moving his body, the only thing that Ryan could actually do was to use magic or train his skill with bows. Thanks to those few moments of absolute peace, Ryan noticed that something was off... the classes: Artemis' Disciple, Frozen Spellcaster, and William Tell's Apprentice already reached level 99, but they were taking their time leveling up...

"Based on my experience and on the things, I know, I should be able to make them level up even without fighting," Ryan muttered. "Still, maybe the rules are different since they are special classes."

Although Ryan considered that, deep down, he knew it couldn't be true. After all, he received classes that granted much more bonuses in attributes like the draconic classes and the ones he obtained after defeating the elder gods. Training Artemis' Disciple should be easy. Ryan just has to ask Femradiel to create a fake moon in that world... Still, it was hard to know if the skill reached a level where she could do something like that.

Since he didn't have anything better to do, Ryan used his archery skills related to those classes for several hours. Even though the classes were still taking their time leveling up, others still were like Eagle Eyes and Concentration. After twenty or so hours doing that non-stop, he finally had some results.

Congratulations! The class, Artemis' Disciple, has reached the max level.

Congratulations! The class Sorcerer has reached the max level. Reach the max level with another class to sacrifice them and obtain a special class! Don't worry. You won't lose the bonuses in status and skills you acquired by sacrificing those classes.

"Now, I just need to level up Spell Caster... Still, what class am I going to obtain by sacrificing those?" Ryan rubbed his chin thoughtfully. "This is getting kind of exciting."

That was going to be a real pain in the ass since Ryan didn't have any skill that increased the level-up speed of his magic-related skills. Still, it had to be done. Before continuing that, Ryan couldn't help but wonder for how long Femradiel was going to sleep... he knew that time, in reality, was passing slower if compared to the Void World, but still... something smells fishy.

"Are you sleeping, Femradiel?" Ryan asked.

Ryan didn't hear an answer; still, he wasn't convinced. While her negotiating skills needed some work, her acting skills were pretty decent. Waking her up didn't seem like the right thing to do, but he would make a lot of noise while using the Spell Caster's class spells.

"What do you think, buddy?" Ryan asked. "Is he asleep or not? I bet your senses are better than mine. Raise your left paw if you think she is sleeping or raise your right if you think she is awake."

For some reason, Furball didn't do either... maybe his senses were getting dull, or maybe he had muscles for the brain like Ryan. Still, that whole situation seemed even more fishier... Furball usually obeys Ryan's commands, so why didn't he try anything?

"If you lick her face, we will know if she is awake, buddy," Ryan said. "Go on, show how much you love her."

For some odd reason, Furball reacted to Ryan's words this time, but then he stopped and gave up on licking Femradiel's face when she suddenly opened her eyes. He understood the message in the blink of an eye.

"You traitor," Femradiel said.

"I would say that he stayed right in the fence," Ryan said. "There is no point in procrastinating when you are not tired. Staying off pretending that you are sleeping, you should use this place to train. After all, it costs tons of mana to keep it up and to run.

Things got really noisy after that since Ryan cast Thunder Storm. The few survivors that were training there couldn't help but stop and see the lightning bolts falling in the distance like rain. They sure were impressed, and Ryan couldn't but imagine how they would react if he used Draconic Transformation and used the skill which would be ten times stronger...

Congratulations! You have reached the requirements to obtain a special class. Do you wish to sacrifice the classes: Artemis' Disciple, Spell Caster, and William Tell's Apprentice? Y/N?

Congratulations! You received the class Apocalyptic Archer. You learned the skills: Meteor Arrow, Fungus Arrow, and Twilight. Your intelligence and mana have increased and will increase by thirty points whenever this class level up. Your health, stamina, recovery, and willpower have increased and will increase by fifteen points whenever this class level up.

Congratulations! You have learned the skill: Meteor Arrow.

Effect: It grants you the power to fire a powerful arrow that will hit the target near instantly. The farther the target is, the more damage you will cause, the increase in damage will increase by one percent per ten kilometers, and the level of the skill determines the bonus damage.

Cost: 5000 mana

You obtained 01 status points.

Congratulations! You have learned the skill: Fungus Arrow.

Effect: It grants you the power to fire an arrow filled with a fungus that will devour the target's flesh and cause extra damage per second while the fungus is active.

Cost: 1000 mana

You obtained 01 status points.

Congratulations! You have learned the skill: Twilight.

Effect: It grants you extra damage while you fight without receiving any damage. The bonus will be equal to one percent per minute, and the maximum bonus is determined by the level of the skill, and it will reset after every battle and when any damage is suffered.

You obtained 01 status points.

“Not bad, not bad at all,” Ryan nodded to himself in satisfaction. “This is one hell of a new class. Still, I guess I will have to return to my endurance training.”

“Why? While the bonus in status isn't as impressive as the draconic classes, they sure are impressive,” Femradial said. “Not to mention, the skills...”

“Yeah, but more ways of attacking won’t help me recover faster,” Ryan said. “Making my body and mind stronger probably will. Let’s get going buddy. You will continue helping me here.”

Femradiel once again confirmed that Ryan had muscles for the brain.

Chapter 825

While Ryan was trying to overcome his weakness, which was his inability to endure high amounts of damage, Femradiel decided to warn the people that they knew that things were about to become serious.

When Femradiel showed up at Rio de Janeiro, Gustavo and his friends couldn’t help but raise their guard. They never saw Femradiel after she assumed her physical form, and her presence was powerful just like them, even though they couldn’t feel a dragon inside her.

“Hey, it is just me, Femradiel,” Femradiel said while she raised her arms. “There is no need to attack me, I just came to talk a little.”

Gustavo, Bianca, and Fernanda frowned when they heard. While they knew that dragons had many powers, they didn’t expect that they could assume human form. At least, the dragons inside them never said that they could do something like that. However, they did recognize her voice.

“Where is Ryan?” Gustavo asked. “Is the pact between you two still active?”

“Yeah, he is sick right now, do you want to meet him?” Femradiel asked.

Gustavo, Fernanda, and Bianca looked at each other. That didn’t seem like a good idea since they didn’t have much free time. Still, Femradiel easily put them to sleep and then summoned them to the Void World. Ryan couldn’t help but frown when they appeared.

“What is this? A resort?” Ryan asked after he facepalmed. “Is Femradiel selling tickets in the real world?”

“What happened? Where are we?” Gustavo asked. “Are you really Ryan?”

“I know that I look out of place here, but there’s no real reason to think that I am a fake,” Ryan said.

In fact, Gustavo asked that because Furball was attacking Ryan, and he wasn’t doing anything, not even trying to protect himself. As for the others that were there, they already got used to the scene.

“... I heard that you were sick, but I didn’t think it was that kind of sickness,” Gustavo said.

“Are you messing with me?” Ryan frowned. “I am sick, this is why I am in this place, a world where only my spiritual body exists... Why doesn’t Femradiel never explain anything?”

It took a while, but eventually, those three understood that Ryan was the real deal. It was for them to imagine going to another world facing several armies and then defeating Hephaestus, but once Ryan showed up with the mithril hammer, things easily solved themselves.

“What do you want now?” Hephaestus asked.

“Nothing, I am just showing proof of my trip to them,” Ryan said. “Hephaestus is a bit grumpy. So, he doesn’t talk all that much, Poseidon will curse us if I let him out, Thanatos will do the same thing. Do you want to talk with Hypnos?”

“No... it is fine,” Gustavo said. “Anyway... are you getting better?”

“Only Femradiel can tell you that, I can check my condition outside this place,” Ryan said. “Come to think of it, maybe one of you guys should stay here and spar with me, I am bored out of my mind. Time passes faster here, so you don’t have to worry about it too much.”

“I am going to pass,” Gustavo said.

“I am grateful for the offer, but I believe it wouldn’t be a spar,” Bianca said.

“I am Sorry,” Fernanda said.

“You guys are so boring...” Ryan said and then sighed.

After that, Femradiel pulled those three out of the Void World. They had no idea how Femradiel could do that so easily, but in the end, they knew that she wasn't the enemy.

“That is the gist of the things,” Femradiel said. “The next few days, many battles will start, so you will need to stay focused because a battle here might cause the start of another in Europe. You should help Lucas because he is the one in the most difficult position. Since you can communicate with him via Telepathy, I will rely on you to pass the news. Things are a lot more serious in Europe, so we might not be able to come and help in case something happens.”

“I understand, but about Ryan's situation...” Gustavo hesitated.

“... it has been two days since he is burning up and he only got a little better because he obtained a certain bloodline,” Femradiel explained. “We don't know when he will be back, but I can't imagine him coming back in the next two weeks.”

After hearing that, those two couldn't help but worry. Even if Ryan couldn't help them directly, it was evident that he impacts the several battles even while they happen far away from each other. Regardless, time was of the essence, so Femradiel left after saying that. One hour after talking with Gustavo and his friends, Femradiel showed up at the underground base, and she was already surrounded by the people there even though they were inside the domain barrier. Not only was her presence powerful, but the fact that no one aside from Mia knew her to put all the survivors on guard. Femradiel ignored all that and just waited for Mia to show up.

It has been a while since they saw each other, and Femradiel couldn't help but frown since Arthur was already at least eight years old looking at his eight. In any case, that wasn't really the issue there. Loud and in a clear tone, Femradiel explained to them the situation. Where the enemies were located, what their obvious move would be, and what they were planning to accomplish. Since they never left the country, they had no idea how bad the situation really was.

“If you are going to face the demons, you should hurry up and defeat them before they increase their armies even further,” Femradiel said. “Just focus on the defense this time won’t work since they can very well ignore this domain and focus on stabilizing their strength throughout the whole continent.”

“Our people already are working on that, so you don’t have to worry,” Mia said. “Thank you for warning us and Ryan my regards.”

Chapter 826

Mia sounded weirdly calm compared to the last time Femradiel saw her. She accepted the harshness of the situation better than most people. Now that Femradiel thought about it, the people around her didn’t even flinch when they heard that a massive battle was about to take place around the whole world.

“That makes me wonder if they believed in my words...” Femradiel said.

Fortunately, Femradiel contacted Alissa, and she was already back with her soldiers, and she knew more or less how things were and how they should proceed. That was one less thing to worry about. As long as Alissa and Gustavo’s group do their parts, the worst-case scenario can be avoided.

“Now I just have to contact Yahiko, pay for the dragon hearts he saved to Ryan and then contact that Russian girl,” Femradiel said. “I am starting to get bored of this...”

While Femradiel was complaining, Ryan was spinning in the air in the lotus position, he was already running out of ideas on how to pass the time in the Void World, and he just realized that letting Furball attack him for dozens of hours straight it was only working to make him feel even more impatient. Regardless, he was spinning in the air in order to make the blood flow better and then make his brain even better... even though he was in his spiritual form, and that wasn’t helping anything.

“What do I do with those 2 billion and half coins?” Ryan asked.

There were many options in the dungeon shop, but once again, Ryan had no idea which would help him most, considering his fighting style. His last big purchase, Word Magic, helped him a lot, but not as much as he had envisioned, probably because of the enemies he faced after that, he didn't know much about them. Thanks to that, he wanted a skill that would help him in all situations no matter what.

Gravity Manipulation tome

Effect: it grants you the power to control the effects of gravity on you and those in your field of vision. Each level makes you able to control gravity ten percent more compared to the last one.

Price: 2.000.000.000 coins.

The most obvious option was the Gravity manipulation tome. Ryan knew very well how annoying that spell could be. After thinking for a while, Ryan realized that his fighting style that relied mostly upon bows and crossbows was just too primitive... it would be difficult to make it work with other advanced skills like the control of gravity. Despite that, the idea of abandoning his current fighting style never crossed his mind. The reasons were simple because he survived until now, putting into practice the knowledge he obtained from his father and because despite their crazy powers, the elder gods still used weapons that could be considered primitives. Maybe it was due to their own legends or for some other weird reason, but it didn't matter. They could show their true might using those weapons, and Ryan was planning to do the same.

Mana Magnetism Tome

Effect: it grants you the power to attract the mana of your surroundings and absorb it. You will be able to recover one hundred points of mana per second and per level.

Price: 2.500.000.000

"I guess this will do," Ryan said. "It would be awesome if this skill could restore health and stamina as well, but then it would be too overpowered."

As soon as Ryan learned the skill, he already put its effects into good use. He made Furball attack him again, and Ryan used Sapphire Arrows to recover his mana. Although it was boring, Ryan already could notice a difference thanks to the results of that training. Not only physically but mentally as well. Ryan could feel himself more patient since a lot of patience was necessary to endure that kind of training. Not to mention, the cold, the shock, and the burns weren't bothering him as much as before.

Although Ryan didn't complete the set of elemental resistances yet, he still decided to focus on that kind of training for as long as possible. He also made a mental note to find a way to obtain the last version of those skills since Elemental Absorption probably was the previous level.

Congratulations! The skill Fire Absorption has leveled up.

Congratulations! The skill Cold Absorption has leveled up.

Congratulations! The skill Wind Resistance has leveled up.

Ryan had decided to train his elemental skills until Femradiel showed up. Still, after almost fifty hours of non-stop training, he changed his mind since she was probably too busy alerting everyone. Still, with their speed, it shouldn't take more than ten hours to travel the whole globe, so that makes Ryan wonder: which level Void World already was... he wanted to train his as well, but he couldn't while he was inside another.

"Let's take a break from this type of training, buddy," Ryan said. "Before I start liking it."

Ryan was missing the time where he could get classes pretty much every day, so he decided to check which classes were about to reach the max level. In a world like that, he had to do things like that to feel even a little bit of excitement. Much to Ryan's surprise, he had four classes pretty close to reaching that mark. Expert Archer and Necromancer were at level 95, while Demon Hunter and Demon Hunter were almost at level 90. Putting the necromancer class aside, the other three had some correlation, so Ryan assumed that he would gain another special class like Artemis' Disciple or William Tell's Apprentice. However, the idea of mixing Necromancer among those also seemed pretty interesting.

After thinking for a while, Ryan concluded that it would be wiser to sacrifice the Necromancer class with other magic classes. Perhaps he could obtain an even more interesting class if compared to necromancer that way. Ryan was missing some action, but if he focuses on training his strengths and his weaknesses at the same time, he will probably make time pass faster there.

Chapter 827

“How is he?” Isis asked when she suddenly entered the room where Ryan was resting.

“For the time being, he is okay,” Femradiel said with her eyes closed as she watched the Void World. “But he is starting to run out of ideas of how to kill time. I guess this plan of yours is making time there pass faster by using more mana will only make a mess out of the things.”

“You know him better than anyone, so you are probably correct,” Isis said. “But you decided to take the risk anyway.”

Femradiel couldn't even say otherwise because she assumed that probably helped Ryan become stronger faster. Until now, they survived by trying really hard, even when they faced Tyr and Hephaestus at the same time, but things were about to reach a whole new level on Earth. Femradiel and Isis couldn't imagine Ryan facing only one or two elder gods at a time now that he was fairly well-known among them.

“How did your friends react after you told them the news?” Isis asked.

“They aren't my friends, they are Ryan's... even though he will never admit that,” Femradiel said and then frowned. “The guys in Brazil and North America will be a huge help, as for the other group in America... it is hard to say. Yahiko, and Natasha are going to do what they can, but Yahiko can't make his whole army leave his country and help those that might become enemies in the future. As for Natasha, she isn't the only leader there and the other two are two blockheads.”

Things were looking pretty grim. The people that Isis could count were basically her people, Athena, Ryan, and Femradiel. Loki was just that difficult to trust, and he probably didn't want to look trustworthy to anyone. From his perspective, things would be more interesting that way.

For the time being, those three couldn't openly rebel against others because they would be targeted and treated as traitors. Loki could act like that because everyone knew the type of elder god he was.

Things could be a bit different if they could lead all the survivors' camps in the world, but that wasn't going to happen.

"Anyway, are we going to face the demons in the South?" Femradiel asked. "If we want to delay their movements, we should do it as soon as possible. Unless I give some regular reports to Ryan, he will probably find a way to leave the Void World and join the fights and I don't want to lie to him."

"I know... the demons are one week away from us, they won't attack until they obtain a base in the region," Isis said. "So, we should use all this free time to strengthen our soldiers."

Every day, Femradiel would make a group of twenty survivors go to the Void World, and thanks to the amount of mana Femradiel was using and considering the level of the skill, time was passing already five times faster in that world. So, even though Ryan wasn't helping them, Femradiel was using Skill Bestowal, and they were training some crazy skills on their own.

"Now that I think about it," Femradiel rubbed her chin thoughtfully. "Maybe we should make him accept the survivors as students. He can do at least that much, I am sure."

"Yes, you are probably right," Isis said and then laughed when she saw Femradiel rubbing her chin since it was the same way Ryan thinks seriously about certain things.

"Why are you laughing?" Femradiel asked while frowning.

"For no particular reason," Isis said.

Convincing Ryan of accepting students didn't take too long, fortunately. Femradiel used the dragon hearts she obtained from Yahiko, and thanks to it, his mood improved a lot.

"All right, I will do that," Ryan said after a long sigh. "I can't see how that will change anything since not a single one you sent was a true archer."

"Just show them some useful skills that can be highly effective against an army and that will be plenty," Femradiel said.

“Against an army, huh... when the next fight is going to happen?” Ryan asked.

“Considering the flow of time here, perhaps forty days,” Femradiel said. “Regardless, unless one of the demon generals shows up, you don’t have any reason to join the fight.”

Ryan nodded after hearing that. He didn’t have to win all the battles by himself. After all, the world was going to be his alone. Still, he wanted to participate in the battles where all the demons were involved. He had a debt to pay and not only to Baal, Mephisto, and Lilith.

“Anyway, soon enough, I will capture a powerful monster and send it to this place to keep you entertained,” Femradiel said before leaving. “So, help these guys as much as possible.”

Ryan frowned when he heard that. It looked like Femradiel was implying that Ryan was a battle freak. While he did enjoy winning difficult fights, he didn’t want to spend the rest of his life fighting... or did he? Now that Ryan thought about it, he had no idea what he was going to do once all the enemies are defeated, and the human race has some peace again. What will happen then? Considering that all humans will have crazy powers, it was hard to imagine them creating a peaceful world. A good number of people will try to stand above others, and... that doesn’t matter. What did matter was the fact that Ryan had no idea of his goals after fighting against those that want to take over Earth?

“I guess this is as good a time as any to think about the future...” Ryan said, and then he turned around to face the new survivors who were going to stay for a while in the Void World with him. “Before that... let’s get this over with.”

Ryan registered the new people as his students and then proceeded to help them learn skills like Vampirism, Magic Vampirism, and Magic Bows. It took a while, but they eventually learned... Ryan couldn’t help but think if he should ask them for payment. After all, he made them save more than one hundred million coins.

Chapter 828

Once Ryan finished teaching everyone those skills, he asked them to use those against him. They would need a powerful target to make those skills level up faster, and Ryan could be that target. Ryan made some rapid-fire crossbows for them in order to make things proceed more quickly.

Congratulations! The skill Spiritual Resistance has leveled up.

Congratulations! The skill Fatigue Resistance has leveled up.

Congratulations! The skill Spiritual Resistance has leveled up.

Congratulations! The skill Fatigue Resistance has leveled up.

Ryan couldn't counter Vampirism directly, but he could decrease the effects of his variants. While he didn't face many enemies that could use those types of skills lately, he decided to level it up as much as possible. He and the other survivors trained that constantly for a while, but then when that group left, Ryan noticed that the next one didn't come. However, Femradiel showed up.

"Did something happen?" Ryan asked.

"Isis decided to position her soldiers a bit sooner than planned," Femradiel said.

"Should I feel worried about that?" Ryan asked. "What about the condition of my body?"

"No, it is fine. Your condition is improving, but you probably won't join us in the next battle." Femradiel replied. "We are relatively confident in our plans. Rather than that, I came to make some changes here. I had an idea to keep you occupied in this place. What about I partially free the elder gods in this world to fight with you."

"... What?" Ryan frowned.

"While you can use your magic weapons here, they still exist outside," Femradiel said. "I can move their spirits to this world. To make sure that nothing suspicious will happen, I will seal a part of their mana pool."

“That is a pretty interesting idea, but their status still will grant them the chance to recover a lot of mana,” Ryan said. “I still don’t know the ins and outs of this technique, but I think it is kind of risky to give them this much freedom while we are about to have a difficult fight.”

“I know, but we also think that if you become physically and mentally stronger faster, you will recover sooner as well,” Femradiel said. “We might have ended up letting one of them escape, but it is a risk we will have to accept. Besides, we already defeated them once and not even those guys will be able to escape Isis’s domain that easily.”

“Hmm... I suppose so,” Ryan nodded. “Well, let’s be careful and summon only one of them at a time. Belphegor should be fine for the time being, since he is lazy, he probably won’t try to escape.”

“Well, if you say so,” Femradiel hesitated while frowning since she imagined Belphegor would be the most useless one to help Ryan train.

Femradiel disappeared, and after a few moments, Belphegor showed up. It worked faster than Ryan had imagined considering that Femradiel only knew the theory behind that kind of possibility.

“Aw, come one...” Belphegor said with a dejected expression on his face.

“It is time to make yourself useful, Belphegor,” Ryan said. “You don’t have to fight if you don’t have to, I already know that fighting someone lazy will be a pain in the ass. Still, you lay on the ground and use your magic on me. After that, you will summon your sloth demons to damage me.”

“Well, I suppose this is better than nothing...” Belphegor said and then sighed.

Belphegor was really depressing with his laziness. Still, he was probably the one who would make Ryan gain some status points faster than others. Before anything, Ryan asked him to use his magic to make Ryan feel the exhaustion of a full day in a single instant. When he did that, Ryan almost fell to the ground since that feeling of exhaustion had been intense... Ryan thought that he had leveled up his Fatigue Resistance quite a bit. However, it still wasn’t at the level where it would be useful against Belphegor.

Congratulations! The skill Fatigue Resistance has leveled up.

Congratulations! The skill Fatigue Resistance has leveled up.

Congratulations! The skill Fatigue Resistance has leveled up.

“Is that all?” Belphegor asked. “Can I return to the weapon now?”

“Of course not... dumbass,” Ryan said. “Let’s see, you made me lose ninety percent of my stamina. I will use Draconic Transformation to make that more efficient.”

-- ---

While Ryan was training, Femradiel decided to look for some dungeons and obtain some classes as well. While she was almost at his level in terms of statuses and skills, she felt that she was still behind in a far more fundamental level. Still, she couldn’t pinpoint what that was... Regardless, Femradiel also knew that things from that moment onwards will get more complicated, and while they defeated many elder gods, the other remaining that saw Ryan as an enemy would be even more dangerous. While she thought that Ryan could fight and win against most of them, Femradiel knew that Ryan couldn’t face some enemies because Ryan wasn’t compatible with their skills.

“The dungeon Isis mentioned must be around here,” Femradiel said while she was teleporting around the Atlantic Ocean.

Eventually, Femradiel frowned at a certain island that had an underwater dungeon nearby. Thanks to that, the island was crawling with two types of monsters: Mermen and Mermaids. While they weren’t that strong, their numbers and their skills were something else. In any case, Femradiel flew towards it and then fired Ice Spears and completely destroyed dozens of Mermaids every single instance... she only attacked them.

“Ryan will laugh at me so hard if he discovers this...” Femradiel said while holding her face due to embarrassment. “Whatever... Let’s hurry up and finish this. I don’t have much time to train.”

Congratulations! The skill Charm Resistance has leveled up.

Congratulations! The skill Charm Resistance has leveled up.

Congratulations! The skill Charm Resistance has leveled up.

Once Femradiel killed all the Mermaids on the island, she let the Merman use their magic on her. While that made her feel weird, she easily solved the problem by using Purification. That was a weird type of training indeed...

Chapter 829

Congratulations! You have become a Level one Celestial Bard!

The Celestial Bard class allows you to simultaneously attack enemies and support allies with heavenly fire skills.

You obtained the following skills: Ethereal Lyre, The Will of Music, and Entrancement.

Your intelligence and mana will increase by six points. Your stamina, health, willpower, and mentality will increase by three points whenever you level up your class.

Congratulations! You have learned the skill: Ethereal Lyre.

Effect: Summons a magical lyre that, when strummed, will summon musical notes made of solar fire. The notes are fast and will pursue their targets. When an enemy is struck, they will take damage equal to your intelligence + dexterity + 150%, but when an ally is struck, they will gain a temporary bonus of 1% to a stat of the user's choice, per level

Cost: 500 mana

You obtained 01 status points.

Congratulations! You have learned the skill: The Will of Music.

Effect: Playing any song on any instrument will provide any nearby allies with a 3% boost in a specified stat. The music will also decrease the statuses of the enemies by the same amount in a specified stat. Effect will last for 5 minutes

Cost: 800 mana per second

You obtained 01 status points.

Congratulations! You have learned the skill: Entrancement.

Effect: Grants you the ability to put your enemy into a trance-like state for 20 seconds. If their willpower is less than yours, they will be unable to move or react

Cost: 2500 mana

You obtained 01 status points.

"Those are interesting skills, where did you get this class?" Ryan asked. "I bet that I can automate my attacks even more with this class."

"I found it when I was exploring the Atlantic," Femradiel replied while she was trying to avoid Ryan's eyes. "Anyway, how is your training going?"

“... Belphegor is easy to keep on leash, I just have to threaten him a little saying that if he doesn't cooperate, I will tell Lucifer that he could have won if tried a bit harder,” Ryan replied. “Anyway, you seem weird today.”

“It must be your imagination,” Femradiel forced a smile. “Well, I am leaving.”

Before Ryan could say anything, Femradiel left. As expected, something happened, but it didn't seem bad per se. Otherwise, Femradiel would be depressed instead of just looking extremely uncomfortable.

“Enough resting, Belphegor,” Ryan said. “Summon your sloth demons and make them explode near me again.”

“... Yes,” Belphegor said while he was slowly getting up.

As soon as she returned, Femradiel checked Ryan's fever. She could tell that it had decreased. Still, his resistance training wasn't showing as much result as they expected... Femradiel couldn't understand why that was happening to him. Many other humans gained power extremely fast, but she didn't hear of them getting sick like that because of it. The main example of that was Alissa and Yahiko. As soon as they obtained their powers, they were able to fight and defeat dragons... a power-up like that was supposed to be more taxing to their bodies than Ryan's... Perhaps it was due to the fact that he nearly doubled his dexterity while he was on the pendragon's world. Only someone insane would try to use so many status points in a single parameter.

Regardless, after she left that room, Femradiel looked for Isis, and she found her standing above the walls that were built to protect Cairo. She seemed lost in thought, probably because those walls wouldn't be of much use once the magic barrier falls.

“We are out of time, Femradiel,” Isis said. “Things are proceeding faster than we imagined, and it seems the fight will start in five days. The demons noticed that they won't obtain much rewards if we are attacked from three sides, so they are planning to go all out. I know that you want to train to prepare for the battle against certain enemies, but you will need a certain power to buy Ryan enough time for him to recover and for our allies not to fall in droves.”

“What kind of power?” Femradiel asked.

“The power to summon monsters freely... Echidna’s power,” Isis replied.

“I thought she gave birth instead of summoning,” Femradiel frowned.

“Originally, she did that,” Isis nodded. “But eventually, she turned that characteristic and created a powerful relic that gives her the power to summon most types of monsters. It is very similar to how the dungeon system works. However, it is much more powerful, since she can control the power of all the monsters she summons freely.”

“That kind of power wouldn’t be more powerful in your hands?” Femradiel asked.

“No, much like Ryan, I am more of a single target and long-ranged fighter,” Isis replied. “You think that I am wrong in saying that he is a single target fighter with his weapons, but trust me, he is much more effective fighting against a single target than many. Regardless, summoning spells isn’t something I like to use or feel comfortable with. While you have and use only a few familiars, your magic powers make you a more suitable user for that power.”

Femradiel doubted that, but considering the allies, she couldn’t say that she was completely wrong. Athena was a melee fighter, Loki was a mage-type, but at the same time, he didn’t stay in the backlines forever. However, something still was bothering her...

“Will I be able to take her down and her minions in only four days while I keep the Void World active?” Femradiel asked.

“I honestly don’t know, we can only hope that you will succeed,” Isis replied. “You will find her on a certain island East of Africa. She has many monsters guarding her territory. So, you will be able to recover a lot of mana. Still, things might get messy, so you might want to prepare for a one-on-one fight pretty early on.”

Femradiel nodded and then decided to check Ryan’s spatial storage. While Ryan didn’t have many things that would come in handy against Echidna, Femradiel took out certain things that would be useful in most types of situations.

Chapter 830

Femradiel was fully aware that Ryan would notice her absence, and unless she has a decent explanation, he will discover that she went to fight alone against a troublesome foe. Knowing Ryan, he would feel pretty pissed at being left behind, and then he would feel a bit depressed while he looked cute. From her weird perspective like that, she decided to look at a dungeon that would grant her another useful class. At the same time, she headed toward Echidna's base.

Fortunately, her luck was good. She found one dungeon in the Eastern side of Africa that had been recently cleaned. She only found a few hundred Cyclops guarding the place, and once she found the classes there, it made sense that people would often come to clear it.

Congratulations! You have cleared the dungeon and obtained its treasure! As a reward for your achievement, you can obtain one of the three following classes: Shura, Poison Archer, and Arcanist.

Please be aware that clearing this dungeon again won't give you the chance to unlock the other remaining classes. If you want to obtain them, you will have to search for those in other dungeons.

Congratulations! You have become a Level one Shura!

You obtained the following skills: Heat Wave, Hell Thrust, and Health Gain.

Your strength and health will increase by six points. Your mana, stamina, endurance, and mentality will increase by three points whenever you level up your class.

Congratulations! You have learned the skill: Heat Wave.

Effect: By concentrating all of your power, you can create a heatwave by attacking with a weapon or without one that will cause physical damage and magical fire damage.

Cost: 400 stamina

You obtained 01 status points.

Congratulations! You have learned the skill: Hell Thrust.

Effect: It grants you the chance to land a critical hit on the opponent that will add the bleed status on the enemy for thirty seconds.

Cost: 500 stamina.

You obtained 01 status points.

Congratulations! You have learned the skill: Health Gain.

Effect: When clearing dungeons, you have the opportunity to increase your health by one point per level.

You obtained 01 status points.

“Nice... this one will be good enough to keep him from asking too many questions,” Femradiel said.
“Well then... it is time to start the mission.”

The sun had set a few hours ago when Femradiel found the island. Although she was using Mana Concealment, she could tell that all the monsters on the island were on guard. That was weird, she couldn't see any signs of battles, and she hadn't been found yet, so the monsters had no reason to be on guard.

The first type of monster Femradiel found was Scylla. According to from what she heard, Femradiel thought that Scylla was one of the creatures Echidna gave birth to. Still, it seemed she had no qualms in mass-producing copies of her own children. Still, considering the stories of how she treated some of the species that served her, it wasn't that surprising.

"I can't use Clairvoyance, otherwise, I will be found out," Femradiel muttered. "Before that happens, I need to decrease those numbers as much as possible."

Feramdiel summoned her familiar Drake and then made the creature run over water while she changed her location. It didn't take long for the Scylla to notice the creature, but they didn't have the chance to do anything. Drake dashed forward with lightning speed, and just the fact that the familiar passed a few meters away from them it had been enough to electrocute them. Those that were paralyzed got kicked in their heads, and with the power of two kicks, their heads exploded.

If Ryan had seen that, he would have frowned. It seemed that Femradiel's familiars got much stronger than he had imagined. That was probably truer for Furball, but Ryan couldn't notice it since he had been fighting some crazy enemies lately.

The other Scyllas tried to attack Drake. Still, the creature moved around with lightning speed. It kept zigzagging, electrocuting the enemies and then kicking their heads whenever possible. Eventually, so many enemies approached that Femradiel was forced to make the creature disappear. She could do that even from far away. It would be better if she could summon her familiars wherever she wants, but that would be a bit too much without relying on Teleport.

"I guess this might be enough to keep the monsters on their toes," Femradiel nodded to herself. "As long as I summon another familiar, Echidna will probably think that more than one enemy is trying to attack her."

If Femradiel had done what Ryan asked dozens of times, things would be a lot simpler: create a tyrant body. A creature like that would be able to take down dozens of Scylla's in a few moments, as long as it has been trained well enough. Still, it was a bit too late to ponder about that right now.

Femradiel summoned the Ice Phoenix and then made the creature fly as high as possible. Once that happened, she gave the order for the phoenix to bombard the monsters below freely. Unfortunately, the Scyllas quite the resistance against ice magic, so they took their time to die. On the other hand, their attacks couldn't reach the Ice Phoenix.

However, it seemed that the flow of the battle would change much sooner than Femradiel had predicted. She heard in the distance the sounds of countless wings flapping, and eventually, she saw an army of Chimeras flying toward the Ice Phoenix.

Chapter 831

Femradiel assumed that those Chimeras were like the others. Still, then she recalled that according to Isis, Echidna could create them as she saw fit when the Chimeras opened their mouths and used Fire Breath. A sea of fire flew toward the Ice Phoenix. Still, Femradiel made her fly upward as fast as possible before dashing downward toward the enemies. At first, the Ice Phoenix suffered quite a bit of damage. Still, when she got close enough, she killed dozens of chimers in a single instant after using Absolute Zero... turning the creatures into ice sculptures that fell in the ground and shattered like glass.

Killing so many enemies made Femradiel receive a huge deal of mana. If only she had enough time, perhaps she would be able to defeat the enemies, steal their mana and then create the Tyrant familiar. Still, once again, she was reminded that things wouldn't proceed so favorably. The Ice Phoenix easily killed hundreds of Chimeras in a few instants. Still, then suddenly, a creature appeared out of nowhere and bit the Ice Phoenix's neck. Femradiel clicked her tongue in annoyance when the creature fell on the ground and then snapped the neck of the Ice Phoenix.

"That is..." Femradiel frowned.

Ryan had mentioned that he almost got killed by one of the underlings of Echidna. Cerberus was back and was way stronger than Ryan had depicted him. It was only obvious, though... Still, considering Echidna's power, he seemed way stronger than one was supposed to be able to summon.

While Femradiel was thinking about that, the Ice Phoenix was revived and used Absolute Zero again. That made Cerberus drop her body, but instead of making her run away, Femradiel made her fly and face the Chimeras. At the same time, Femradiel teleported to where Cerberus was.

"Who are you, woman?" Cerberus asked.

Femradiel ignored the question and summoned Drake to face the Scyllas that were approaching in the distance. Once that happened, she bombarded Cerberus with Ruby Arrows. It wasn't her style to use that kind of skill, but ice magic that was her forte wouldn't let her kill Cerberus as fast as she wanted.

Cerberus grunted in annoyance when he saw his health being sealed. Still, instead of retreating, he charged toward Femradiel like a lightning bolt. Once that happened, Femradiel used her arms to stop Cerberus' mouth and keep it wide open. While she was being pushed backward because of the momentum, she summoned a copy of Thunder Lord Crossbow. She then fired numerous bolts inside his mouth.

Cerberus was caught off guard, but before he could receive any real damage, he made several massive blocks of ice fall. Femradiel created some distance between them with a single jump, but she didn't stop attacking Cerberus with Ruby Arrows.

Cerberus opened his mouth and used Fire Breath to destroy the arrow. Still, the very moment he did that, Femradiel teleported to the right above him and fell on his back. Femradiel grabbed his back in order not to fall while she kept firing Ruby Arrows. However, she didn't imagine that Cerberus would make some massive ice blocks fall over himself just to hit her. Femradiel jumped once again to escape the attack but frowned when the blocks of ice shattered into pieces as soon as they touched Cerberus.

As if Cerberus wanted to avoid dealing with Femradiel on his back again, Cerberus summoned several Fire Spears and made them fly around himself.

“What a troublesome monster... he is not only physically and magically stronger, but he can also think fast,” Femradiel furrowed her eyebrows.

Cerberus attacked again, but this time he fired some Fireballs that could explode even before they touched anything. Femradiel was forced to jump backward several times to escape all the damage she couldn't afford to get wounded against one of Echidna's dog. She was lucky that Echidna didn't decide to join the fight since it was obvious who the invader's real target was. Still, Femradiel had to find a way to finish that as soon as possible.

Femradiel had a certain idea, but it mainly relied on ice magic. Considering that Cerberus had high resistance against it, she imagined that it would be useless, but... she didn't have any other choice but to try. When Cerberus dashed again, Femradiel jumped backward even though just teleporting would be faster, but that had been a part of her plan to attack the mythological beast. Suddenly, when Cerberus passed right above the place Femradiel had been half a second ago, a massive spike of ice rose from the ground and touched Cerberus and then trapped him in a prison of ice. Soon enough, the ice cracked, but before he could move again, several Ice Meteors fell from the sky and hit him. Putting the ice damage aside, the impact surely would cause some. However, Femradiel was only left with disappointment when the attack stopped, and she saw Cerberus, completely unscathed.

“Dear me...” Femradiel said and then sighed.

Cerberus bombarded Femradiel with Fire Spears while he made sure to zigzag around and dodge from her Ruby Arrows. Femradiel couldn't help but clench her teeth in annoyance. The beast had massive health, but its speed was also a problem... Fortunately, she had brought Ryan's entire collection of crossbows...

Chapter 832

Cerberus frowned when Femradiel's presence suddenly changed. Her presence suddenly looked a lot more like the elder gods than before. Since he was a right-handed man of Echidna, he naturally knew that some humans had defeated some of the elder gods. Still, he didn't imagine that made them change so much. As if that wasn't weird enough, Cerberus suddenly saw water bolts appearing right in front of his eyes and then being fired.

He jumped backward to escape those, but even he had hard dodging attacks that could appear too close to him. While he was trying to adjust to that, Cerberus was hit by some other bolts coming from above, and he noticed his speed decreasing.

"So, it is like that..." Cerberus furrowed his eyes.

Cerberus closed his eyes and then decided to trust his instincts. Even if the attacks were aiming for his eyes, he had confidence in his endurance. Cerberus dashed toward Femradiel again, but much to his surprise, she didn't try to dodge. She only punched him in the chin. Cerberus heard the sound of her right fist cracking. Still, Cerberus also saw the world spinning... When he closed his eyes, Femradiel prepared a concentrated punch. Although she didn't look like one, she actually could fight without relying on weapons.

"No wonder you surprised me..." Cerberus said after he recovered from the damage and used Absolute Appraisal.

For Cerberus, he thought that was just another fight against another rat. He had done that dozens of times, so he didn't feel the need to use Femradiel's statuses. However, he finally noticed that this fight wouldn't be like the others when he used it. Femradiel was the first human that he had to fight that had some skills at the max level, after all.

Cerberus increased the output of his magic and began to fire his spells while using Fire Breath as well. The ground of the island was slowly darkening due to the power of his flames, and the vegetation was burning down at a fearsome pace. The beauty of the place was quickly disappearing, but Cerberus couldn't afford to let the invader approach his mother.

Femradiel kept moving backward like there was no tomorrow. The power of the flames was starting to make her sweat like crazy. Even though she had been working to increase his resistance against her weakness, it wasn't something that a monster of the level of Cerberus had to worry about that.

Regardless, while Femradiel dodged the Fire Spears, she kept attacking his eyes. Even when she couldn't see him, she still attacked. Thanks to her magical powers, it didn't take long before she could see Cerberus' face covered in blood. His eyelids had been damaged after getting hit so many times with the power of the Vengeful Sea. This crossbow had a high level of divinity.

For the first time in a long while, Cerberus stopped attacking and then couldn't help but think that maybe, just maybe, he was screwed... even if he keeps attacking like that and keeps relying on his defenses, he eventually will start to suffer critical damage after critical damage when those water bolts hit his eyes. Although he couldn't see Femradiel, he knew that his attacks didn't cause any real damage aside from some small burns, and he was absolutely certain that ice magic wouldn't help either.

"What is wrong, Cerberus?" Echidna's voice echoed through the area. "Are you afraid of losing again?"

Even Femradiel couldn't help but frown after hearing that voice. She looked pretty amused, considering that her best minion was being defeated by a single weapon used by the enemy.

"My apologies, mother," Cerberus said and then sharpened his resolve. "I will definitely kill her and protect your territory."

Echidna didn't say anything. At least she could try to rally a little one of her children, but it seems that she deemed that it wasn't necessary. Cerberus clenched his teeth and focused all his mana into his fangs. His canines began to shine, emitting a purple glow. Once that happened, he dashed toward Femradiel without caring about a counterattack. His speed increased exponentially, and Femradiel only noticed that when she got hit by the first attack. Trying to dodge without relying on Teleport was too dangerous...

Femradiel's arm got hit by the purple claws, and she lost the sense of touch coming from it. Her body rolled on the ground after the impact, but even before she could stop, Cerberus dashed again. A mithril hammer fell over him and hit his head when he was only half a meter away from Femradiel. Cerberus lost control over his charge and then rolled on the ground as well. Fortunately, that gave Femradiel the chance to teleport and escape the impact.

"I have been with Ryan for too long... I am starting to copy his fighting style and even the way he is always getting beaten down," Femradiel shook his head and then said it.

Femradial got up and then grabbed the hammer before Cerberus could recover from the attack. Although she did it only once, the attack stored some energy into it, and she used to attack Cerberus's head again. This time, she felt his skull cracking, but Cerberus still tried to bite her despite that.

Somehow, Femradial reacted on time and then smashed Cerberus' face with the hammer. She was even surprised that he reacted on time, but then she realized that Sloth Aura's problem helped her with that. After getting his jaw and skull damaged like that, Cerberus finally lost consciousness. Still, in the end, Femradial didn't feel any happy with it. She was trying to make her arms move again. Still, after using Purification dozens of times, it didn't improve even a single bit. Not to mention, she wasn't receiving any information from the system informing her of what kind of attack was preventing her from using her right arm.

"This is what Ryan learns in most battles... there is no point in trying to hide your cards only to suffer this much damage," Femradial said after a long sigh.

Chapter 833

Three-headed Crossbow (Heroic)

Effect: It grants you the power to fire three types of bolts that will cause fire damage as well as decrease the enemy's recovery exponentially, that will also cause ice damage and will decrease the enemy's speed exponentially, or that will poison them and cause agonizing pain over a long period of time. Each shot will cost one thousand points of mana.

"Dear me... even on an instinctual level, I am copying Ryan," Femradial furrower her eyebrows. "I am not him, I don't have a fixation on bows and crossbows, so why did I make one without even thinking?"

Putting that aside, Femradial had a job to finish. However, she soon noticed that something wasn't right... her familiars returned to her because the monsters in the area suddenly disappeared. It wasn't like Echidna had a shortage of monsters to summon, so why make all of them retreat?

“I imagined that she would summon other copies of Cerberus once she realized that one wouldn’t be enough, but...” Femradiel furrowed her eyebrows. “I suppose this work well enough for me, still... I don’t like it.”

Femradiel would have more time to do her job, and that would give her allies plenty of time to formulate a better strategy with Echidna’s power. However, that feeling was one of the things that were bothering her the most... Since it still was night, Femradiel decided to move forward slowly in order to avoid traps and ambushes. While she had confidence in her senses to avoid that, the enemy was someone that could make copies of that Cerberus. She certainly wasn’t someone to take lightly.

Although the place was supposed to look like a tropical paradise during the day, the island’s interior looked like a demonic forest at night. Fortunately, Femradiel didn’t fear imaginary things. The only illusions that worked on her were the ones cast by powerful mages or monsters.

If she were in a hurry, Femradiel could have found Echidna’s base in the blink of an eye, but since the movement of her left arm still hadn’t returned. She decided to just walk, and that was beginning to annoy her. She wasn’t exactly patient, after all.

After a couple of hours, Femradiel eventually found a dungeon in the center of the island. However, she couldn’t find any trace of monsters inside or around. It seemed that not only could Echidna summon monsters of many levels of strength, but she also could make them return to her world.

“She probably isn’t confident in her abilities since she didn’t make a base in this world... there is not even a domain here...” Femradiel frowned.

From another point of view, one could think that Echidna was confident enough and didn’t think that she needed one. Femradiel considered that, but she dismissed the idea and considered that kind of thought as just another thing that she had ‘inherited’ from Ryan. He was a little bit paranoid, after all. Not like he didn’t have any reason not to be...

According to Isis, that dungeon spawned Lamias, but Femradiel didn’t find a single sign of them when she entered. Now that she thought about it, aside from a few signs near the coast of the island, there wasn’t a single sign of battles near the dungeon. Most likely, Echidna had the chance to create a massive army during a whole year, and yet... those creatures were nowhere to be seen.

Congratulations! You have cleared the dungeon and obtained its treasure! As a reward for your achievement, you can obtain one of the three following classes: Dark Knight, Trapsmith, and Illusionist.

Please be aware that clearing this dungeon again won't give you the chance to unlock the other remaining classes. If you want to obtain them, you will have to search for those in other dungeons.

Congratulations! You have become a Level one Trapsmith!

You obtained the following skills: Bear Trap, Spear Trap, and Chain Trap.

Your dexterity and stamina will increase by six points. Your health, mana, speed, and control will increase by three points whenever you level up your class.

Congratulations! You have learned the skill: Bear Trap.

Effect: It grants you the power to bend iron and turn it into a bear trap. The damage caused will be equal to your dexterity, and it will cause extra two percent damage per second for three seconds.

Cost: 100 mana

You obtained 01 status points.

Congratulations! You have learned the skill: Spear Trap.

Effect: It grants you the power to bend iron and turn it into a special trap. The damage caused will be equal to your dexterity, and it will cause extra two percent damage per second for three seconds.

Cost: 100 mana

You obtained 01 status points.

Congratulations! You have learned the skill: Chain Trap.

Effect: It grants you the power to bend iron and turn it into a special trap. The trap won't cause damage, but the value of your dexterity will determine the durability of the trap.

Cost: 100 mana

You obtained 01 status points.

“I guess this is better than nothing... AAAAARRRGGGHHHHH!” Femradiel shouted in embarrassment. “I am even copying the kind of thing he would say in this type of situation!”

Femradiel made a mental note to get rid of those mannerisms. Maybe it was fine that she could act like that when she was alone, but it would be really embarrassing if she acts like that in front of others. She wasn't aware that something like that was fine since she tried to play to cold beauty that rarely speaks when she was with Ryan. That was a mannerism that she had since the times she was an ice dragon.

Femradiel stared at the purple crystal for a while before touching it. The reason for that was that she was planning how to deal with Echidna as fast as possible. That being said, she could only think of one way of doing that considering the situation... using her best attack as soon as she finds her.

Chapter 834

When Femradiel touched the crystal, she saw herself in another tropical land. However, it was day... and she saw herself surrounded by thousands of monsters. She could even feel ten presences around that were equally as powerful as Cerberus... in fact, the presences were weirdly similar.

Femradiel used Absolute Zero before any of the monsters could do anything. Still, even though she turned hundreds of monsters into ice sculptures, it didn't change anything. As if the monsters could communicate with one another, they created a fire tornado right where Femradiel was. The combination of the power of so many monsters made Femradiel feel like all the water on her body was evaporating.

Even without looking toward it, Femradiel Teleported to above, only to see himself surrounded by thousands of Steel Eagles. The monster's fire Steel Spears toward Femradiel, and she is forced to create an ice sphere around her.

"I guess this confirms that she was confident in her skills..." Femradiel muttered.

Before the ice sphere could be destroyed, Femradiel created a double-edged spear and then made it spin. She made the sphere disappear, and then he chased the weapon while it was flying toward the eagles.

The monsters were killed so fast that it seemed that it was raining blood, but even so, Femradiel couldn't see an end to the number of monsters. In fact, she couldn't even see the sky. While she was flying and trying to force a way out of the prison made of numerous monsters, Femradiel looked around and saw many kinds of monsters on the ground. She even saw ten copies of Cerberus. No wonder Isis wanted that power on her side.

Femradiel suddenly noticed the presence of the eagles changing. In a moment, she was surrounded by steel eagles, but in the next, she was surrounded by red Falcons ready to burn her alive with Fire Breath. Once the creatures opened their mouths, Femradiel was engulfed by the flames, and she became unable to see anything around her. The world had become a world of red and fire. Even her ice spear melted in the blink of an eye. When Femradiel felt the smell of her own sweat evaporating, she decided that it was time to change her tactics...

Femradiel summoned Poseidon's Trident and then made it spin with her own hands. Once it reached a certain speed, it became able to dissipate the flames, and then Femradiel dashed toward the monsters again. The flames of the monsters were unable to cause any damage to it, and as if it wasn't enough, Femradiel began to recover a massive amount of mana since she was hitting the same enemies several times in a row. Femradiel and Ryan never noticed that before, but it seemed that making the weapon spin by themselves was much more effective.

Femradiel used Soul Eater to store all the extra mana, but even though she did that for quite a while, there was no sign of Echidna doing anything. In fact, Femradiel didn't find any sign of her...

"What is she plotting...." Femradiel thought.

Following simple logic, one would conclude that Echidna was trying to make Femradiel show all of her skills and weapons, but that would take a while. Besides, was the world so big that he would be able to stay away from Femradiel while she moves and kill monsters like that?

"If Ryan were here, he probably would taunt Echidna in order to make her show up," Femradiel muttered. "A simple tactic, but highly effective on muscle heads and people who had too much pride, but this isn't my style..."

Femradiel tried to find Echidna's presence since that was her style. Still, even hundreds of kilometers away, she could only feel the presence of monsters in all directions. While Femradiel was thinking of what to do, the presence of the Red Falcons began to change. Until they turned into Giant Crows... that was a species of monsters she had never seen before.

Femradiel tried to resist, but she couldn't do much since the number of monsters was insane, and they focused on using only that skill. Femradiel began to fall, and then she realized that was only half of the problem. Below her, she saw thousands of giants armed with steel clubs ready to smash her.

"I get it... I get it," Femradiel said and then sighed. "This wouldn't be happening if I had a familiar like a tyrant dragon."

It wouldn't solve the problem, but Femradiel used Teleport and appeared on the ground. Despite that, she still hit the ground and made the entire area tremble as her bones cracked just like the land. However, before the giants could attack her, Femradiel endured the pain and used Absolute Zero three times in a row. The first two attacks turned the monsters into ice statues, but the third killed them for good. However, Femradiel hadn't time to celebrate because she could barely move a finger with the extra gravity, and hundreds of other giants were running toward her.

Chapter 835

Before the giants could get too close, Femradiel summoned the Petrification Crossbow magic copies and attacked them. At first, the enemies managed to protect themselves with their clubs, but the closer they got, they became less able to react on time. Not to mention, even their steel weapons petrified after a while. Some of the enemies dropped their weapons as they turned into statues, and that gave Femradiel another idea.

After grabbing the steel clubs, Femradiel bet them into they became piles of deformed steel and put several of them together. Once Femradiel had enough, she used Rapid Production to turn all that steel into a single weapon... a massive shuriken.

Once that was finished, Femradiel teleported all that to the sky and then made it spin around. The dark crows had powerful magic, but their durability sucked. They were killed in droves and were unable to resist. As for the Giants, the Petrification Crossbows had been more than enough to deal with them.

“Argh... this is so boring,” Echidna’s voice echoed in the area.

Femradiel couldn’t care less about that. She wasn’t fighting to entertain anyone, after all. Still, she began to wonder that perhaps she should have done that. The presence of those ten Cerberus suddenly appeared around, and Femradiel also noticed them getting closer. If they were coming from the same direction, dealing with them would be easy, but that wasn’t the case.

After letting out a long sigh, Femradiel equipped Soul Eater, and then she drained some of the mana stored. When all the Cerberus finally was about to attack her at the same time, Femradiel raised her arms and then pointed toward them. The monsters suddenly stopped moving while they were trembling from head to toe. Their faces turned blue and then purple as they slowly were pulled toward Femradiel. When they were close enough, all the water in their bodies began to leave through her pores... Femradiel never tried that before, but she was glad that theory was correct. The more mana she uses, the more control over the water around her will have. She noticed that when Ryan fought against Poseidon’s kids. They didn’t use the water of the ocean to stop him. They use the water on his body, but stopping his movements was the best they could do.

Regardless, before monsters could actually die, Femradiel used their spirits to upgrade the Three-headed crossbow. That weapon will certainly be more useful for all types of monsters after getting that much improvement. However, before Femradiel could attack the monsters, all of them suddenly disappeared.

“I guess this is enough,” Echidna said and then suddenly appeared in front of Femradiel.

Maybe it was a coincidence, but Echidna looked like Lamia, which was much more humanoid than it should be. Aside from her lower body, which was exactly like a Lamia, and her canines that were pretty sharp and long, she looked like an ordinary redhead woman who used some plants as clothing.

“Hello, I am Echidna,” Echidna smiled before she sat on the ground and then laid on it while holding her head with her left hand. “I am also known as the mother of monsters, who might you be?”

“... Femradiel,” Femradiel replied.

Femradiel trained Absolute Appraisal much more than Ryan, and yet, she received that when she tried to see Echidna status. Although she couldn't see the exact numbers, Femradiel could feel that the woman was in trouble. She wasn't as fearsome as Poseidon and Thanatos, and yet... Femradiel felt like she was much more troublesome.

"What is wrong?" Echidna asked. "I thought that you came to steal my powers... or are you going to ask nicely after making such a scene?"

"I can feel that you are powerful... So why are you here doing nothing?" Femradiel asked. "Many other beings like you are about to fight to obtain control over Earth... if you don't care about that, why did you create a dungeon?"

"Well, how can I say this... I am playing a bigger game," Echidna replied. "While those stupid beings that calls themselves elder gods fight each other and decrease their strength, I am getting stronger and building an army. In fact, my army could take the whole world, don't you agree?"

"Oh yeah, I agree," Femradiel said. "Still, to think that you know about the bigger game..."

"... What? Do you know what I am talking about?" Echidna asked, visibly surprised.

"Let's say that I have a good idea... I just recalled something," Femradiel replied.

"I highly doubt that, if that were the case, you wouldn't waste your time with the small fries," Echidna said.

"Normally, I would do that, but someone I care for doesn't want to see this world being destroyed," Femradiel explained. "So, I decided to take the difficult path. Not to worry, I am preparing myself to return to those four."

Echidna opened her eyes widely. It seemed that Femradiel really knew what she was talking about... and yet, here she was wasting time instead of preparing to fight the true enemies.

“I guess this is going to be more interesting, you will fight to obtain my power and I will fight to see what you know,” Echidna said. “If my guess is right, your knowledge will be truly useful.”

Instead of assuming a fighting position, Echidna just pointed her right hand toward Femradial, and then the whole area around her began to heat up. Femradial tried to free herself by using an Ice sphere, but the heat was even inside it.

Defending wasn't a good idea, so Femradial decided to attack. She charged and tried to punch Echidna, but suddenly her body grew heavier, and she lost all her speed.

“It is a pretty nasty combination, right?” Echidna asked. “This is the power of Gravity and Sunlight Prison level max.”

Chapter 836

Femradial clenched her teeth and tried to muster all her strength. However, she failed in moving a single inch. As crazy as that sounded, Echidna's control over gravity was even stronger compared to thousands of giant crows.

If moving wasn't an option, she decided to finish Echidna with a single attack. Without hesitation, Femradial used a Draconic Bow. Although Echidna was caught off guard when such a massive bow appeared right in front of her and fired an arrow of mana, Femradial immediately noticed that she hadn't killed the target. The explosion made the entire world tremble and even made Femradial fly backward despite the effects of the gravity.

When she stopped moving, Femradial noticed that both spells that had been used against her had been deactivated. It was time to recover her mana as much as possible, but then some lightning bolts fell from the sky and hit her. The first completely paralyzed Femradial, but she recovered enough mana to use Teleport and escape the second.

“Phew... that was a pretty nasty skill as well,” Echidna said while she was touching a mana shield in front of her. “Ah... you destroyed a good part of my world. I really liked this one, you know.”

When the dust dissipated, Femradiel saw that a small portion of land behind Echidna was intact. Still, everything else in a range of thirty kilometers had been completely destroyed. The power behind that attack wasn't something to laugh at...

"Not even that, huh..." Femradiel bit her lips in annoyance.

If not even Draconic Bow was strong enough to destroy that Mana Shield, then perhaps Femradiel will have to put aside and use Soul Eater to cheat. Using that weapon, he would recover his mana pretty fast. However, Femradiel soon noticed that something was weird... Echidna's presence didn't grow weaker, even though she was supposed to have used a lot of mana blocking her attack. Either she used a lot of potions in a way Femradiel couldn't see, or...

"You have a Soul Eater..." Femradiel said.

"Good guess..." Echidna said. "Well, I suppose anyone with half of a brain would discover sooner or later."

Femradiel couldn't agree more. It was only obvious. After all, how else Echidna would be able to summon and make disappear so many enemies at the same time. Not to mention, even if his greatest attribute was mana, Femradiel couldn't imagine using less than a few million mana points to make a copy of Cerberus. While that was a crazy amount of mana, it was impressive. After all, to recreate her previous body, Femradiel would need ten billion mana points.

"If you know about Soul Eater, I can only assume that you have one as well. Still... Do you think you have more mana stored than me?" Echidna smiled from ear to ear. "Also, anyone with half of a brain would realize one or two simple ways to cheat with that weapon and my powers."

Once again, Femradiel was left biting her lips in exasperation. Since the monsters she could summon were pretty strong and real monsters, she could always use them to store mana inside her Soul Eater. So, in the end, the more monsters she has, the more she can summon... No wonder it seemed that Femradiel killed tens of thousands of monsters, but their numbers never decreased.

"Are you ready to give up?" Echidna asked.

“Nope,” Femradiel replied.

“I respect your spirit, but you are wasting your time here,” Echidna said.

It was logical that Femradiel was completely against the wall. However, despite that, she smiled confidently. It seemed that she still had a trick up her sleeve, but Echidna assumed that she was just bluffing. After all, she had to fight against countless enemies, and they had all kinds of strategies against her, but none worked.

Femradiel summoned magic copies of the Spiritualist’s crossbow and then attacked the Mana Shield. At the same time, she began to hit it as well. However, it was clear as the day that her attacks were ineffective.

Femradiel’s attacks seemed weird, but Echidna could see what she was planning. She was trying to recover her mana while she uses that crossbow alongside Magic Vampirism. Even if Echidna let that happen, it would take weeks for Femradiel to steal all his stored mana. However, she wasn’t planning on letting that happen.

Even while behind the Mana Shield, Echidna managed to fire a massive burst of wind toward Femradiel. That made her fly for hundreds of meters. Still, why attack like that when the combination of Gravity and sunlight prison still was good enough? Femradiel ignored that and just recovered from the attack.

“Hmm? Something seems weird...” Echidna said.

Echidna felt that something changed when Femradiel was thrown away, but she couldn’t pinpoint what it was. Regardless, she didn’t have much time to think because Femradiel attacked again. This time she threw the massive shuriken he made a while ago, but even while it was spinning at fearsome speed, the Mana Shield didn’t break.

After letting out a sigh, in the end, Femradiel only bluffed before. She pointed her index finger toward Femradiel and used Thunder Beam. Still, then Femradiel disappeared and reappeared right behind Echidna and with her Soul Eater already in her hands. At first, Echidna didn’t think of anything. Attacking from whatever direction was useless as long as she uses Mana Shield. Still, then she felt the surroundings changing and getting more grayish. Echidna didn’t recognize that magic immediately, but after a while, she noticed that time was passing faster inside that gray sphere if compared to outside.

As soon as she focused her eyes on Femradiel again. She saw her pointing her sword upward, and then a shadow was cast above them. In the next moments, dozens of Ice Meteors fell around the gray sphere, but Echidna couldn't see the meaning of that. Time magic was useless since she also has a certain level of divinity, and ice magic wasn't even hitting her. However, eventually, she noticed all the ice covering the grey sphere... in the end, Femradiel was just preparing the stage of the real fight.

Chapter 837

Echidna used Thunder Beam on Femradiel, but she also used Mana Shield to protect herself while she was working. Eventually, the whole barrier was surrounded by ice, and slowly, the coldness emitted by that massive amount of ice began to spread inside the effect of Chronos' Ring. It took a while, but Echidna eventually noticed what Femradiel was planning. It was a weird tactic. Still, it seemed highly effective against spells like Mana Shield.

"I see... you want to create a space where the effects of your ice magic can massively damage my Mana Shield," Echidna said. "Still, do you think you can do it? I can survive outer space for quite a while and with this type of spell, I can probably stay there for years without running out of mana."

"That is impressive, but you will die in less than one hour here," Femradiel said.

That much confidence was starting to get on Echidna's nerves... It was time to finish off Femradiel. Echidna used Thunder Beam again, and this time, she attacked Femradiel from three directions. Echidna wanted to see for how long she would get confident once her mana reached the bottom line. However, much to her surprise, Femradiel didn't create a Mana Shield. Instead of that, she blocked the attacks by creating some Ice Shields around her.

Echidna increased the output of her magic to destroy those as fast as possible, but in the end, she didn't see any progress. She clicked her tongue in annoyance when she saw the shield repairing itself by absorbing the cold air around. Echidna decided to melt all that ice by using one of her strongest attacks: Sunlight Nova. A spell that could scorch the land and turn any target into a lifeless desert area. Echidna imagined that it would take a few seconds for the ice to melt, but she couldn't help but sweat cold when nothing happened after several minutes, and she could feel her mana being drained while the spell was damaging the outside with the max output.

“How...” Echidna opened her eyes widely and felt shivers when even her breath turned into small particles of ice.

“It wouldn’t be interesting if I explain everything so easily,” Femradiel said. “Try to use your head a little, I am sure you will have a better time understanding this plan as a whole once you do that.”

Instead of trying to understand, Echidna decided to escape. Her Mana Barrier was starting to consume a lot more suddenly, even more than she loses in outer space, even though her skill was at the max level. However, she failed in moving outside... the interior of that field was just like the interior of a domain.

If attacks from outside didn’t work, Echidna decided to explode that thing from inside. However, even her Fire Breath didn’t melt the walls. In fact, the power of her flames was way lower than usual. She quickly understood that it was due to the cold.

“Don’t mess with me...” Echidna increased the output of her magic to the max, and she eventually began to damage the walls. Still, that hadn’t been enough.

At some point, the cold air in that environment had grown so dense that Echidna couldn’t even see Femradiel anymore. It wasn’t like Femradiel was trying to create a version of outer space on that planet. She was trying to create a compressed space where the temperature would keep decreasing since the energy wasn’t dissipating and was freezing everything.

Echidna had a high affinity with fire and a weak one against ice, but no one was supposed to know that. Was it because of that that Femradiel was confident? Regardless, even if Echidna’s powers were limited since she was a summoner, she could increase them by using her monsters. Without hesitation, she summoned ten copies of Cerberus, but those guys died without doing anything. They instantly froze...

“How can this be?” Echidna’s surprise increased.

Before she could notice it, the temperature of the place reached a point where even a monster at the level of Cerberus couldn’t resist for a single second. At that point in time, Echidna panicked, she even summoned Fire Dragons at the max level, but unfortunately, there wasn’t much room in that place for more than one at a time.

Echidna lost thirty percent of the mana she had accumulated for hundreds of years and then finally realized that Femradiel really had come with the best plan to finish her off. However, Echidna still has one more trick up her sleeve... she summoned a cursed ice dragon.

Even Femradiel couldn't be in that space anymore. Still, she quickly recognized the presence of a fellow ice dragon and the level of corruption on that creature. It was weird, though. The presence and the power didn't resemble, or it was even close to Ryan's when he goes berserk.

Femradiel recognized the monster's movement, opening its mouth and preparing to fire Dark Ice Breath. Still, before that could happen, Femradiel used a Draconic Bow. The entire space trembled like the world was ending when that happened. The dragon was sent flying backward. Still, he quickly stopped when it collided against the walls covered in the ice of that space. In the end, not even Draconic Bow or a creature of that size could destroy the space.

Echidna realized that Femradiel's confidence was well-founded. She indeed had the best plan on how to fight her, and that was shocking since she didn't know anything aside from Echidna that she was a summoner and had a massive reservoir of mana thanks to Soul Eater. However, more than anything, she realized why he was going to die... she grew overconfident due to her massive reservoir of mana, and because over the years, she had obtained more skills than anyone else. All thanks to her level of skill while summoning monsters, she basically could learn all of their skills after watching them for a while. Unfortunately, that made her become the best summoner who was just a jack of all trades when it comes to anything else. Even if you are the best at something, you can't just do it without preparation... She learned that too late.

Chapter 838

You obtained 1.569.982 coins.

"Phew... that was close," Femradiel felt shivers when she saw the mana in her Soul Eater reaching the four-digit mark.

After she stopped using her mana and deactivated Chronos' Ring, Femradiel found Echidna's statue a few meters away from there. She was an enemy much more troublesome than Belphegor, but she had more confidence in her skills than Thanatos. She probably would have won against Ryan due to the nature of their skills, but that was one of the reasons as well as to why she was defeated. In any case, right in front of her, Femradiel found a dark crystal that she could hold with a single hand.

Soul Trapper Stone

Effect: it grants you the power to trap the souls of all kinds of creatures in here, and it also gives the power to summon copies of them. The more high-levelled the beast is, the less mana you will have to spend to summon them. This item also gives you the power to combine the skills of different monsters and summon them. Still, the cost of summoning will be higher according to the level of the skills transferred.

Durability: 500/500

“It is a pretty frail item... and there is no statuses bonus,” Femradiel muttered.

That was only obvious since the item was stupidly useful. In any case, Femradiel finished her job, and she did so much faster than anyone had expected. It was quite weird that she pulled that off considering that she wasn’t feeling that confident in the beginning, but gained confidence later after recalling a certain tactic and even more considered the fact that her arm was...

“Ah... my left arm is finally back to normal,” Femradiel realized, a bit surprised. “Hmm... I guess Femradiel gave that power to Cerberus and because her mana still existed, the effect of his fangs didn’t disappear until now.”

Putting those thoughts aside, Femradiel still had another job to do... find the domain crystal.

“She is late...” Ryan furrowed his eyebrows during a pause of his training. “I wonder if something happened.”

Ryan could tell that something was on Femradiel’s mind the last time he saw her, but he more or less knew that it wasn’t due to the next battle. Regardless, he was only taking a break because Belphegor never stops complaining. Another reason Ryan was missing Femradiel was because he wanted another training partner. As if she had been waiting for the perfect moment to show up, Femradiel appeared. However, Ryan changed his mind and that was the case since he looked pretty exhausted.

“Hey... it seems you already got tired of Belphegor,” Femradial forced a smile.

“Yes, and you, who caused you so much trouble?” Ryan asked.

“I bumped into some old friends of yours,” Femradial said and then decided to rest her back against the grass of the island. “Cerberus and Echidna.”

“Bumped?” Ryan frowned.

“Not now, Ryan, I want to rest for a while,” Femradial said and then closed her eyes.

“Hmm... why don't you turn around? I will give you a massage,” Ryan said.

“Why are you being nice all of a sudden?” Femradial frowned. “Or is that an excuse just to look at my ass?”

“Yes, that is just an excuse,” Ryan replied. “I can't say any other things without causing a lot of damage to your confidence. Anyway, my mom taught me how to apply a massage that relieves some stress. If you don't do that, then it is fine.”

“I guess I will ask for one,” Femradial said and then turned around while trying to hide a smile.

Although that was expected since he was an archer, Ryan was pretty good with his hands. He made the tension escape from Femradial's muscles in the blink of an eye. After that, he put some pressure on her bones, and that hurt a little.

“Ouch, that hurts!” Femradial said.

“Relax, it will only hurt in the beginning... what the hell am I saying?” Ryan frowned.

In the end, what Ryan said was true, it only hurt in the beginning, and then Femradiel suddenly felt a lot more relaxed. One of those messages every day would be like a heavenly reward for her.

“Now, spit it out what happened,” Ryan said.

“I guess it is fine...” Femradiel said and then sighed. “We figured out that we would need another card up our sleeve, and Echidna had that card, so I attacked her base and defeated her.”

“You are skipping a few steps there,” Ryan said.

“Not really, it wasn’t that hard to defeat her, I just had to use a lot of mana to create a sure-fire way to kill her,” Femradiel said. “That is kind of weird considering how much trouble Cerberus caused at first, but then I was able to defeat ten of them at the same time. Speaking of which, I created another crossbow and upgraded.”

“Again, you are skipping a few steps there,” Ryan said and then sighed.

After that, Femradiel gave more details of the fight. While she had to use a lot more mana than expected, she indeed defeated a troublesome enemy that had one heck of a useful power. Ryan could also imagine himself struggling against that kind of enemy. Knowing himself, Ryan would try to kill as many monsters as possible before fighting Echidna, just to level up his skills and gain coins.

While Ryan was thinking about that, Femradiel fell asleep. It seemed that he didn’t lose those skills even though he didn’t use them for a long while. In the end, Ryan also laid on the grass and decided to relax a little. The sound of Femradiel’s breathing made him feel quite relaxed and made him wonder why he just didn’t choose to take the next step in their relationship. It wasn’t like he had an aversion due to the fact that she was a dragon before. It was just because Ryan couldn’t see a reason to take the next step. After Mia, deep down, Ryan decided to only love someone if he had a good reason to do so, but was that actually necessary? Besides, he already had a reason. He trusted Femradiel more than anyone else.

“Can I go back now?” Belphegor asked.

“... Just shut up,” Ryan replied after a long sigh.

Chapter 839

Now that Femradial could summon all kinds of monsters, Ryan could take his training to the next step, but then when they tried that, they discovered that all the souls trapped inside the sphere disappeared when Echidna was defeated. It seems that once the owner of the item changes, they have to collect new souls.

“I will return later, once I capture a good number of monsters,” Femradial said.

She left before changing Belphegor for another one, but then Belphegor disappeared, and Poseidon showed up. As if he had gained the chance that he had been looked for, Poseidon began to laugh maniacally.

“Finally, finally!” Poseidon said.

“Finally what?” Ryan asked. “Can you do anything without your trident?”

“You will see!” Poseidon said and then dashed toward Ryan.

Poseidon was still faster than Ryan. When he kicked him, Poseidon felt the bones of his right leg cracking. As if that wasn't weird enough, Ryan only moved away a few meters.

“I guess that speed still is a problem...” Ryan muttered.

To solve that problem, Ryan summoned his Immobilizing Crossbow and fired at Poseidon. The Greek god tried to dodge those, but their speed was higher than he had anticipated. He got hit by several of them, and every time he got hit, a wound appeared in his body, and his speed decreased.

“What?” Poseidon asked in shock.

“It seems that Femradiel decreased the level of your divinity,” Ryan said. “That will make things a little more boring, but that is acceptable.”

Poseidon used his magic and tried to drown Ryan with the ocean, but while the attack made him move away quite a bit, Ryan still could move against it... which was unexpected. Poseidon knew that Ryan gained a huge deal of power in the dragon’s world, but he didn’t think it was that much. Essentially, now he could fight and cause more damage than the time he defeated him in his draconic form.

“Can you attack using more ice magic? I kind of want to train my resistances right now,” Ryan said. “Belphegor already helped with the skills related to pain, after all.”

Poseidon clenched his teeth in anger... to think that the enemy would see him just as a tool to make himself stronger... that was so humiliating that he wished to kill Ryan in the most painful way possible while ignoring everyone else.

Instead of listening to him, Poseidon tried to attack with his fists and kicks. While the damage was piling up and his wasn’t increasing all that much. It was only because Ryan only wanted to keep their speeds equal.

“This is a pain... you are causing even more trouble than Belphegor,” Ryan said and then sighed.

Ryan considered giving the trident back to Poseidon. He won’t be able to escape unless he defeats Femradiel, after all, and she basically could do anything to him in that world. The chances of him winning were basically null... However, Ryan decided not to do that. Instead of being nice, he will make Poseidon cooperate by using brute strength.

Since their speeds were equal now, Ryan could see his movements. When Poseidon charged in a straight line and tried to punch him with his right fist, Ryan raised his left elbow and blocked the attack. Ryan suffered quite a bit of damage, but Poseidon’s expression changed quite a bit. A few bones of his hand broke since he punched the elbow, but he quickly recovered from the damage by using magic.

“I guess this isn’t so bad either,” Ryan said.

It wasn't his style to fight like that, but Ryan decided to attack Poseidon only when he was about to attack him, and he also only aimed at his legs and fists. At first, he got hit several times, even when he kept his guard up, but eventually, he got used to Poseidon's patterns. After all, he was a spear user, not a bare-handed fighter.

After asking Isis the best monsters to train one's elemental resistances and the locations of their dungeons, Femradiel went on another trip. She had already imagined that training with the elder gods wouldn't be easy, even without letting them use their divinity. Regardless, Femradiel wished that she could have trapped Cerberus' soul. It was hard to find a monster that wasn't a dragon but was that powerful.

While the monsters Femradiel wanted were under the enemies' control, she still found some good ones in other parts of the world. While she was doing that, she even found that it granted her a class they didn't see before.

Congratulations! You have cleared the dungeon and obtained its treasure! As a reward for your achievement, you can obtain one of the three following classes: Celestial Knight, Celestial Archer, and Celestial Priest.

Please be aware that clearing this dungeon again won't give you the chance to unlock the other remaining classes. If you want to obtain them, you will have to search for those in other dungeons.

Congratulations! You have become a Level one Celestial Archer!

The Celestial Archer class allows you to rain down fiery death from above from a mighty distance. Effects provide an enhanced burning effect with a holy slight impact.

You obtained the following skills: Amber Arrow, Sun's Wrath, and Ricochet.

Your dexterity and stamina will increase by six points, your health, mana, speed, and control will increase by three points whenever you level up your class.

Congratulations! You have learned the skill: Amber Arrow.

Effect: Summons an arrow made from pure amber. This arrow cannot be enchanted but contains a moderate amount of divinity.

Cost: 1000 mana

You obtained 01 status points.

Congratulations! You have learned the skill: Sun's Wrath.

Effect: Summons a rain of fire from the sky covering a massive area. Damage will be equal to your intelligence + 50 % per level

Cost: 5000 mana per second.

You obtained 01 status points.

Congratulations! You have learned the skill: Ricochet.

Effect: Upon a projectile striking a target, there will be a 0.5% chance that the arrow will bounce off to target another nearby enemy. The activation chance will increase by 0.5% per level.

Cost: 500 mana.

You obtained 01 status points.

“Another Celestial class... I need to talk with Isis about this,” Femradiel frowned.

Chapter 840

Femradial had planned to let Ryan fight the copies of the monsters she had captured first, but she changed the order of things when she saw Ryan and Poseidon punching each other. While that was weird in many eyes, she decided not to think about why they weren't using any weapons. Poseidon sure could create a trident out of ice, after all.

When Femradial found Isis, she was having another meeting with Athena and Loki. As usual, the women looked worried, and Loki was relaxed as ever. Perhaps not even the world would make him feel uncomfortable. Maybe, he would even laugh if the solar system is destroyed due to a supernova.

"What is wrong, Femradial?" Isis asked. "Did something happen?"

"I could ask the same thing... but I came to ask if you know anything about those Celestial classes," Femradial replied. "They still are at the level of the tier three classes, but the skills they granted are way above that level."

"We heard of that some dungeons have been granting those skills," Isis said. "I can't find any explanation, though. I heard that some classes even grant skills that have divine energy. That doesn't make any sense considering what we know... all that we know is the fact that they have been appearing in the last month."

"Is it a coincidence? Or is the system preparing normal people to fight other beings that have divine energy?" Femradial asked.

"I don't know," Isis shook her head.

Femradial looked toward Athena and Loki, and they looked like they didn't have any clue either. That was unexpected in many ways, but it wasn't like she expected that they would have all the answers.

"Now about the reason for this meeting... it seems that the word about Echidna's defeat spread and our enemies decided to hurry up before he can use that power," Isis said. "The demons will probably attack us tomorrow. They will attack from the East and South."

"The Norse gods are pretty close as well, in two days they might join the party," Loki said.

“Athena won’t be able to move since she and the other Greek gods are supposed to wait for the enemies in East and North,” Isis said. “So, we will have to face the demons by ourselves.”

“What about the other Egyptian deities, can’t you count on them?” Femradiel asked.

“No. Aside from Seth and me, the others can’t face so many enemies,” Isis replied. “In fact, most of them don’t see any reason to find their places back on Earth. They are pretty comfortable in their new worlds.”

“Well, then... we will just have to defeat them with what we have,” Femradiel said.

“What about Ryan’s condition?” Loki asked.

“It has improved... if he keeps growing spiritually stronger, perhaps in three days he will be able to fight without any issues,” Femradiel replied.

“Three days... I guess he will miss all the fun,” Loki said and then scratched the back of his head. “Well, I am still confident in this plan, but what are the next steps once we manage to defeat the demons and some of the Norse gods? Are you going to stab Zeus in the back, Athena?”

“Don’t spout nonsense, Loki,” Isis said. “We agreed to work together, but that doesn’t mean that she has to do that. I will face Zeus when the time comes.”

“That will be quite something to see... still, he has many allies, how are you going to do that?” Loki asked.

“I can do some of the dirty work too...” Athena said. “I can deal with Ares and Hades.”

“At the same time? Wow, your confidence always inspires me, Athena.” Loki smiled. “Anyway, if you guys are going to do that, then do it fast because aside from me, everyone else in Asgard are pretty much hot-blooded idiots. Once they see their armies not making any progress. They will come to fight. Naturally, I will deal with Thor, but as for the others..."

Loki really had a big mouth... with just a few words. He made everyone have terrible headaches. A large escape battle was about to take place, they had to deal with dozens of deities and several demons, and they had to do it as fast as possible. It wouldn't be an exaggeration to win and avoid problems down the road. They had to defeat close to twenty elder gods in just three or four days.

"You should focus on getting several types of monsters that might be useful tactically speaking, Femradiel. Since they will be important to decrease the enemies' numbers." Isis said. "You can leave the other things to us. Here are the places where you can find some interesting monsters."

"All right, thanks," Femradiel said.

Femradiel left in a hurry, but she checked things with Ryan again. Although one week was supposed to have passed in the Void World, those two were still trying to kill each other vigorously. While that was a good method of training, what Ryan really needed was to increase his resistance. So, Femradiel made Poseidon disappear and then summoned several copies of Thunder Birds, King Trolls, Red T-rexes, and Mechanical giants.

"Hey... what the hell..." Ryan frowned since he didn't recognize those monsters.

"Sorry, Ryan," Femradiel suddenly appeared. "We don't have much time left, so you will have to train all of your elemental resistances at the same time. Ah, before I forget, here are the skills of the classes I gained recently."

Femradiel used Skill Bestowal and then disappeared. Ryan had many things to say, but it looked like he won't have time to do so. The monsters began to attack him with their elemental attacks, and probably because Femradiel increased their intelligence, the attacks began to make him sweat cold.

"Whatever, I just have to endure this for a few days," Ryan said and then activated Regeneration.

Soon enough, Ryan learned that it wouldn't be enough. Even in the Void World, his clothes and hair began to burn and turned into charcoal in the blink of an eye. Ryan used Full-Heal many times in just a few moments, but he only found some peace when the monsters ran out of mana.
