

Chapter 109

"How dare you lecture me! It's just a contract. What's so cool about having the exclusive dealership? Bullsh*t! I, Nathan Zhao, can survive just well without this!" Nathan cursed at Felicity furiously.

William stood in front of Nathan and shook his head in disapproval.

Nathan was definitely crazy. Nothing could save him from his madness.

Seeing William shaking his head, Nathan got provoked even more. He grabbed onto William's clothes and yowled with bloodshot eyes, "How dare you look down on me! You're a gigolo! What rights do you have to show me that expression of yours? Believe it or not, I'll do you over!"

William's lips curled up and he ignored Nathan's provocation completely.

Because William knew that...

As a boss, he did not have to take action as his subordinate would stand up for him.

Melissa saw William getting assaulted by Nathan. For the first time, fury crept up on her face.

"If you are not going to show William respect, don't you know that you're disrespecting me too?"

Melissa roared.

"Nathan, do you have any idea who you are about to beat up?"

Nathan had already gone bonkers. "Just a good-for-nothing! What should I be afraid of?"

"Listen up! William is from the Genuine Care Medical Center." Melissa landed a slap across Nathan's face mercilessly.

Nathan was mind blown!

William was from Genuine Care Medical Center?

How could this be?

Nathan should have checked William's identity before he laid his finger on William.

Not only did he lose the contract, but at this moment, he also offended the Genuine Care Medical Center...

A chill ran up his spine!

If he had offended them, how would his family business sustain the damage?

A strong sense of unwillingness and powerlessness washed over him.

He slowly let go of William's collar and stared at the three people standing before him.

"I'll keep today's catastrophe in mind. Just you guys wait," Nathan threatened.

After throwing these words, Nathan strode away through the side door.

He was too ashamed to walk out through the main entrance.

"Although there seems to have quite a number of commotions today, I'm glad to announce that the signing ceremony has completed. That is all. Everyone, let's dismiss," Melissa told everyone.

However, the crowd rushed forward and handed their business cards to Felicity humbly.

"Director Bai, we'll be counting on you in the future," one of the representatives muttered.

"I've offended you on several occasions before. I'm so sorry about that," another apologized.

Felicity thanked and bid farewell one by one with a friendly attitude.

Melissa patted Felicity's shoulder and left through the side door.

Felicity's aggressiveness faded away. She asked William with a wry smile, "William, did I go a little overboard?"

However, William stroked her hair. "As long as I'm here, it's fine even if you are going to take other more extreme means."

Felicity stuck out her tongue, but there was a hint of excitement in her heart.

She had controlled the whole scene that others could not.

She even chased out the evil villain, Nathan, like a heroine in a movie.

She patted herself on the back inwardly.

"Let's go." William held Felicity's hand and stormed out from the main entrance.

But as soon as they went out, they saw Felicity's ex-classmates pacing near the entrance.

When those people saw William and Felicity coming out, they were taken aback.

They poked their heads into the room and found no one else in there.

Felicity didn't bother to pay attention to these babbitts and walked straight ahead.

Rachel rang Nathan immediately, but she was greeted with Nathan's ice-cold voice. "I'm leaving. Don't bother me! Tell that b*tch and b*stard, I will never let them off the hook!"

Rachel stared at the phone in confusion.

Everyone was startled. Was the ceremony over?

Then what was the purpose of them staying here?

Everyone glanced at each other strangely and then trod out of the hall together.

But at this time, an attendant rushed over with a bill in her hand. "Hey! Hey! Please wait. You have yet to pay your bill."

The bill was not paid?

Everyone looked at each other and replied, "Isn't Nathan going to pay? He promised to treat us."

"But it seems like he had fled. What the f*ck!" One of them exclaimed.

The attendant handed the bill to Rachel and said, "You have booked the whole resort, including 30 small villas and 20 superior suites. In addition to the dinner and drinks this evening, you have to pay a total of 450,000 yuan."

After hearing the price, everyone's faces turned ghastly.

They were all ordinary people. Even if they split the bill, it would cost them more than a few thousand yuan each.

This place was no gold castle; they did not eat white truffles too! How could it be so expensive?

Everyone made a fuss instantly. "We came here because someone promised to pay the bill for us. If we know we have to pay for it, we wouldn't have come!"

"That's right. We are all white-collars. How can we afford it? I don't care. It has nothing to do with me. I didn't bring any money with me," one of them shouted.

"I still have to take care of my parents and raise my kids. I have to pay for the house and car loan every month. I got no money. I'm sorry that I can't help." Another lady refused to pay as well.

The attendant's face stiffened instantly. She called Director Zhao promptly. After all, Nathan was Director Zhao's nephew and he was the one who booked the resort. Since he did not pay the bill, she definitely had to report to Director Zhao.

Rachel, on the other hand, was distressed as she heard the shameless refusals from the people around her.

She came up with an idea and shouted to the front, "You two, stop! Are you going to skip out on the bill? Don't you feel ashamed of yourselves?"

Rachel was pointing at William and Felicity, who were about to leave the scene.

The two of them stopped in their tracks.

Rachel led the enraged crowd and surrounded them without further hesitation.

"Don't let them go. They have to pay too," Rachel bellowed.

"What a shame! You can afford to live in the Cavesky Villa that costs tens of thousands of yuan a night, but now you want to skip out on the bill. You should know your boundaries!"

"Yes. They have to chip in the bill no matter what," the others echoed.

At this time, Rachel was reminded of what Nathan had just said on the phone. She called out loudly, "Everyone, calm down. Listen to me."

The crowd quieted down immediately.

Rachel scowled at William and Felicity. "You all have heard what Nathan told on the phone just now. He said he'll never let you two off. They must be the ones who have pissed Nathan off!"

Rachel continued, "If Nathan didn't leave, the bill would have been settled. Thus, they should pay for the bill! Doesn't everyone agree with me?"

Upon listening to Rachel's words, everyone burst into an uproar at once!

"Yes, Rachel is right! These two didn't know their place. They've been provoking Nathan again and again!"

"Now that Nathan has left, the two of them are trying to dodge the responsibility! They must pay the bill!" A man gnashed at Felicia and William.

"Pay the bill! We're not going to do it. We're innocent!" The others continued to pressure the two of them.

Felicity's face turned red as she was smoldering with rage.

She had never seen such shameless people before!

It cost 450,000 yuan, but there were almost ninety people present.

Each of them only had to pay a few thousand yuan if they split the bill.

It was as clear as day that these people wanted to have a free meal. That was why they were blaming William and herself.

While they were fussing, Director Zhao strutted over. "Why the ruckus? What's going on?"

Rachel strode over and told him how William and Felicity drove Nathan away, without forgetting to exaggerate the details.

Director Zhao never liked William and Felicity. When he came to know that they had bullied his nephew, he was surged by fury.

He stopped the crowd from making noise and ordered William and Felicity, "What else do you have to say? You must pay for the bill today, or I will take action on you. For your information, you're stepping on the land that belongs to the Li family."

Everyone supported Director Zhao promptly and demanded William and Felicity to pay the bill to make up for their losses.

Felicity was burning in a rage that she almost swore on the spot.

But at this moment, William held Felicity back and gazed at Director Zhao. "This is the property of the Li family, you say? Thank you for reminding me.

Alright, I'll pay for this."

He then drawled, "As long as you dare to accept it."

After that, he took out a card from his pocket and threw it to Director Zhao.

It was a Peaplum Precious Card!
