

Chapter 36

Dr. Chen's hand froze in mid-air instantly.

His face darkened. He glowered at William who was standing at the door and roared, "Who are you? How dare you talk nonsense here?"

William pushed the crowd away and walked towards Dr. Chen.

The assistant saw William entering the room and questioned, "Who are you? Why are you here?"

William said, "I'm from the Genuine Care Medical Center."

When the assistant heard the name 'Genuine Care Medical Center', her eyebrows pulled down together. "I see. You guys were the ones who came to promote the beauty products in the afternoon, right? Why are you two doing? Escort him out now."

After receiving the order, the two bodyguards marched towards William right away.

William looked at Dr. Chen and asked, "Dr. Chen, I have a question for you. Will a person's heartbeat increase or decrease when she's having a myocardial infarction?"

Dr. Chen replied as if it was nothing difficult, "Since a CPR is required, of course, the heartbeat will decrease. Or, there will be no heartbeat at all—" He stopped abruptly before he could finish his line.

His sweat, which was as big as beans, coursed down his forehead.

William sniggered and told the assistant, "Can you please check Flavia's heartbeat right now?"

The assistant was confused. However, she could not help but give out a loud scream after looking at Flavia.

Although Flavia was unconscious, her chest raised at a very high frequency. It was obvious that her heartbeat wasn't slow nor absent.

In other words, Dr. Chen was not going to treat her.

He was here to take advantage of her.

D*rn it!

Dr. Chen almost fooled all of them.

If something happened to Flavia, the assistant knew that she wouldn't be forgiven even if she repaid it with her life.

The assistant's face turned ashen. She questioned, "Dr. Chen, explain to me! What on earth is going on?"

Dr. Chen wussed out at once. He was making up a common diagnosis since no one here learned about medicine.

He didn't expect that his lie would be exposed by William.

Dr. Chen stammered, "This, this..."

Anger spread through the assistant at once. She yelled, "Get out! Get out of here!"

Dr. Chen looked at William and asked, "Fine, I admit that I have no idea about Flavia's disease, but how about you? You're just a salesman that comes to promote your products. Don't try to show off in front of me!"

William ignored Dr. Chen and told the assistant, "If you want me to save her, please drive this nutcase out of this room. He's very distracting."

Suddenly, the assistant hesitated.

He was just a guy who came to promote his products.

However, it was obvious that Dr. Chen did not know what to do next...

D*rn it! She had no choice but to trust him.

The assistant glanced at the two bodyguards before they hooked Dr. Chen at his arms and dragged him out.

After that, the assistant said, "Hey you, you'd better cure Flavia. Don't tell me that you are going to give her rescue breath or some other similar sh*t."

William chuckled, "She doesn't have a myocardial infarction at all. Why will I do that? I'm even afraid that her mouth would make mine dirty."

The assistant was enraged. She wanted to give William a good beating but she dared not. "F*ck! Just wait and see! If you can't save Flavia, I will never spare your life!"

William put on a smile and instructed, "Everyone, please leave the room. I don't want anyone to see me doing acupuncture."

The assistant was taken aback. "What if you harm Flavia when we are not in the room?"

William sneered, "If I have any evil intentions, do you think you three can stop me?"

After he finished talking, he then threw a punch at a wooden table beside him.

Bang! The table broke into pieces right away.

The two bodyguards were dumbfounded.

If William were to punch any of them with this fist of his...

The assistant's face turned pale immediately.

As William had said, if he were to take advantage of Flavia, none of them would be able to do any harm on him...

Where on earth did this monster come from?

Did they need to practice martial arts to be a salesman nowadays?

The assistant took for a few seconds weighing the pros and cons while staring at William before she finally agreed to William's request, "We'll go out and wait, but only for five minutes."

William nodded. "Five minutes are more than enough."

The assistant turned around and walked out of the room. She closed the door but guarded outside the room door vigilantly.

William helped Flavia up.

As soon as his hand touched her body, he felt the heat radiating from her body. It was scorching hot.

He couldn't waste any more time.

William took out a few Needles of Ruby Flower that he carried with him and began to prick them on her acupoints.

In less than five minutes, William retracted the needles and put Flavia back on the bed.

"You guys may come in now," said William.

It was obvious that the people were paying close attention to what was going on inside the room all the time. When they heard William's voice, they immediately rushed in.

William put aside the silver needle and explained, "Okay, she should be able to wake up within two hours."

"Is it all?" The assistant did not believe it.

"Look at her face and her breathing. Don't you notice anything different from before?" asked William.

The assistant took a closer look and realized that Flavia was breathing steadily at this moment. Although her face was still flushed, it was not as red as how she looked while ago.

"Well, can you wait here for another couple of hours?" When the assistant saw that William was going to leave, she stopped him immediately.

If something unforeseen happened, at least there was someone who could take the blame for her.

William replied to her with a smile, "I don't have so much time to waste on unrelated people."

The assistant was furious. What an arrogant, egoistic man!

He was here to promote his product, wasn't he?

F*ck! He was just a salesman yet he was acting like a tycoon who was more important than Flavia.

Well, he should be the celebrity then.

William passed his phone number to her after giving it some thought. "Please ask her to give me a call when she wakes up later. But don't call me in the middle of the night though. It will disturb my wife's sleep."

The assistant could hear a buzzing sound in her brain.

She thought, "D*mn it! Let's keep your wife aside first. Please know that Flavia is not a woman who will call a man in the middle of the night!"

William was getting on her nerve.

"How dare you act like a boss, you little salesman? Leave now! Flavia will not look for you, even if you are her lifesaver." The assistant was simmering with anger. She felt that she could only vent her anger by scratching the wall.

William left a few words before he walked out of the room.

"If she wants to be healthy for the rest of her life, I, William Lu, is the only person who can do it."

The assistant had a headache.

She could only pray that Flavia would wake up in a while. Otherwise, it would be a waste of her time to be pissed off by this salesman.

As expected, after an hour, Flavia who was on the bed made a soft moan.

The assistant was still dozing off at that moment. However, Flavia's gentle groan immediately woke her up. "Flavia, you have finally woken up. I'm so worried about you! I have been wanting to send you to the hospital if you do not regain your consciousness..."

The assistant had been on tenterhooks.

For superstars like Flavia, it was a big no-no for them to be spotted or taken a photograph at the hospital.

Any kinds of rumors such as her being pregnant would spread around really quickly.

This was going to tarnish her reputation as a celebrity greatly.

The assistant finally heaved a sigh of relief now that Flavia had woken up.

Flavia slowly opened her eyes as she looked around the room.

She glanced at her assistant and mumbled weakly, "Where's the man who saved me just now?"

She grabbed the assistant's arm and said, "Please take me to him."

Chapter 37

When the assistant heard Flavia's words, she was stunned for a few seconds. "Flavia, how did you know..."

Flavia looked at her assistant with an expression that no one could fathom. She was overwhelmed with all sorts of emotions.

How could Flavia not know that she was sick?

She had always been careful while trying to stay calm so she would not exert herself too much.

However, when she received a phone call from her family a while ago, the sarcastic and harsh words of her brother and sister-in-law hurt her feelings deeply.

She ran on the treadmill, but still, she could not get rid of those hurtful words from her mind.

The more she thought about it, the angrier she became. All of a sudden, she collapsed and blacked out before she could even catch her breath.

Surprisingly, she still had a bit of consciousness left in her after she fainted.

It was just that she could not move her body.

When Dr. Chen wanted to give her the rescue breaths a while ago, she could not help but panic.

She knew that he was making up an excuse to sexually assault her.

She had been staying abstinent sexually for more than twenty years. If she was molested by Dr. Chen, how could she live in this world again?

At this very moment, she heard a soft yet husky voice.

Not only did William expose Dr. Chen's lie, but also saved her life indirectly.

He even used his exceptional acupuncture techniques to pull her back from the edge of death.

At that moment, Flavia was still worried if this person was just another rogue. Since there was no one in the room, would he...

However, Flavia could sense how dexterous and experienced this man was, who helped her up. Besides acting skillfully and professionally, he did not touch her at any inappropriate places.

After saving her, he left a few words for her.

"If she wants to be healthy for the rest of her life, I, William Lu, is the only person who can do it."

These words made Flavia's heartbeat accelerate again.

That man saved her by coincidence?

Or could he know about her illness?

After all, she had consulted so many doctors, but none of them could cure her illness.

How could this righteous yet mysterious man save her?

The most important question was... who was he?

The first thing Flavia thought of was to find this mysterious man when she could finally move her limbs again.

On the one hand, she wanted to thank him for saving her life twice.

On the other hand, she wished to consult him about her illness.

The assistant mumbled with a bitter smile, "Flavia, look at the time now. If you are really conscious, you should have heard that man mentioned not to call him at night before he leaves..."

Flavia hesitated for a second. There was a trace of bitterness in her eyes. "Alright. Please give me his phone number. I'm going to sleep now."

The assistant handed the note written by William to Flavia. After reminding Flavia to take a good rest countless times, she left the room.

At this very moment, William was at home. He inadvertently pulled open one of the drawers.

He was going to tidy up the things on the table. His brows drew together when he opened the drawer.

Someone had touched it.

He checked every single thing in the drawer carefully.

Then he opened Felicity's drawer.

William sneered immediately after giving it a glance.

He took out his phone and called Melissa. "Melissa, help me to investigate a matter in the next few days."

Melissa was in her beauty sleep. When she heard William's voice, she became clear-headed right away and blurted out, "Do you think I'm your personal housekeeper? No, I won't do it!"

As if it was nothing serious, William replied calmly, "Alright, I'll find Lydia then."

A cold chill ran down Melissa's spine.

She couldn't let him go to Lydia!

That little girl was so obsessed with William at this moment.

If William went to find her again, her best friend was definitely going to fall prey to his schemes.

No, she couldn't let this happen!

Melissa could not help feeling moody and curse, "D*mn it! Tell me, what's the matter?"

William explained to her what happened slowly. Melissa became angrier as she was listening to William. "Why on earth do I have to get involved in your family affairs? I must have dug your ancestral graves in my last life. Goodbye!"

Early in the next morning, William was woken up by a series of phone calls.

He picked up the phone and saw it was an unfamiliar number.

"Hello, is this Mr. Lu?" A sweet, silvery voice came from the other end of the phone.

William answered, "Yes, that's me."

"Hi, Mr. Lu. I'm Flavia Li. Are you free to talk now?" said Flavia on the other end of the phone.

When William heard Flavia's name, the corner of his mouth curled up into a smile. He replied, "Yes, I am."

"Then I'll go and pick you up now. I'll treat you to breakfast. By the way, thank you for saving my life," said Flavia gleefully.

"Alright, I stay at..."

Flavia interjected, "I know it. My assistant has already got it for me." Then she hung up the phone hurriedly.

William got up and tidied himself up, only to find that Felicity was not at home. She had left him a note to inform him that she had gone to meet her best friend.

After waiting for a while, William received a call from Flavia again. She told him she was waiting for him at the door.

William hung up the phone and went out of the house.

On his way, he happened to meet Rebecca.

Rebecca glanced at William and then followed behind him secretly.

She was so excited when she saw William getting into a car as the driver was a gorgeous woman who was wearing sunglasses and a mask.

She picked up her cell phone hurriedly and snapped several photos. Then she laughed out loud complacently. "Hahaha! I've never expected this guy has hooked up with a rich woman! I'm still worried that after ten days, I couldn't find any good reason to divorce both of them. Hmph, I've never thought that he will show his own dirty secrets to me. Well, William, you will bid goodbye to us soon!"

When William got in the car, both of them stared at each other right away.

Flavia's joy was replaced with doubt and disappointment as she looked at the man in front of him. William had put on a black mask and a pair of sunglasses.

What was wrong with this man?

Flavia was a celebrity. Wearing a mask and sunglasses was a routine for her.

But, why did he cover his face up more than she did?

Flavia took off her mask and sunglasses, revealing a delicate, beautiful face. Her beauty was nowhere to be found in this country, not to mention this city.

She was trying to show her sincerity.

Nevertheless, William did not show any reaction at all. He said, "Let's go."

Flavia asked cautiously, "Why, why did you cover up..."

William replied calmly, "Oh, I'm afraid that I'll be seen by others. It will be bad if my wife knows about it."

Flavia was speechless.

Despite being a beauty and a famous celebrity, Flavia had already taken off the mask and sunglasses to reveal him her face. She was practically doing this despite the risk of getting photographed by paparazzi. Plus, she did not even look down on him.

Meanwhile, William, who was just an ordinary person, wrapped his face up because of his wife. Was he so scared of his wife?

Throughout the drive, Flavia was at a loss of words.

The two of them came to a private room of a hotel. Only then William took off his mask and sunglasses.

Flavia was surprised when she saw William's face.

It turned out that he was so good-looking. Besides, he was so young...

In spite of his young age, he had such excellent medical skills.

This man was no ordinary man.

Before Flavia could ask him a question, William stared at her and threw her a question. What he asked made Flavia blush.

"I know what you are going to ask. I have a question to ask you first." William flung himself onto a chair.

"In the last few years, have you been feeling hot after carrying out strenuous exercise? And you are embarrassed by how you feel, aren't you?"