Chapter 391

Someone was following them? Nora looked at the back through the rearview mirror it was filled with cars.

Quentin lived up to his identity as a man in secret forces.

His senses were sharper and keener than even hers.

She also sensed it after Quentin brought it up.

"Can you throw them off?" Nora asked.

"Of course." Quentin said triumphantly, "Don't you know whose car you're in right now? How dare they tail me. They sure think really highly of themselves!"

He sneered, "I'm the only one who can tail other people in New York. No one can tell me!"

He suddenly turned the steering wheel all the way to the side at the traffic light and drifted straight into a small side road.

Nora looked at the rearview mirror two black cars clearly looked a little confused because they hadn't expected him to suddenly break the traffic rules and go somewhere else.

However, another two cars soon followed after them from the side.

Quentin discovered their presence earlier than she did.

He sneered, "Tsk, it seems like there are a lot of people interested in Big Sister, Nora! Don't worry, I will definitely keep you safe!"

He changed the direction he was going in again.

The car went back and forth in the familiar New York streets.

Quentin was very professional.

Half an hour later, when he turned to another side road, there were no longer any cars following them at the back.

Obviously, Quentin had successfully thrown them all off.

Quentin looked at her.

He looked as if he was asking for praise as he asked, "How was that?"

He lifted his chin.

Nora gave him a thumbs up.

"Fantastic."

Quentin couldn't suppress the smile at the corners of his lips.

His idol was none other than Big Sister.

It simply felt too blissful to be praised by his idol.

Nora would never allow such a thing to happen! Quentin's eyes were red and swollen as he shouted, "Uncle Ian, take care of your daughter yourself! Live and get up.Otherwise, I'll beat her up every day..."

Joel, who had always been a steady person, could not help but say, "Uncle Ian, aren't you afraid that I will be selfish in the future and take over the Smiths without giving Nora anything? Also, Nora is going to marry Justin.Aren't you afraid that she will be bullied if she marries over? She's without her father and even comes from the countryside.Now, the Hunts look down on her! She needs your support!"

Ian muttered in a weak voice with his eyes closed, "Joel, Quentin, you won't..."

"I will! I really will! Uncle Ian, wake up. You can't die!"

"Uncle Ian! Get up.."

Joel and Quentin shouted as their tears fell like rain.

The person lying on the bed had been exceptionally powerful since they were young.

But now, he was weak and had been sick most of the year, he was very dispirited and would not wake up.

It was as if nothing gave him hope for life.

However, the two of them would never forget that when their parents had abandoned them, it was Uncle Ian who came forward to raise them, calling them good children! Especially Joel...

If not for Uncle Ian, he would have been chased out of the Smiths when he was three years old.

He would have become like a stray dog and starved to death on the streets! It was Uncle Ian...

Not only had he given him the honor of being a man of the Smiths, but he had also let him take over the Smiths.

Everything Joel had now was given to him by Uncle Ian.

Joel held Uncle Ian's hand tightly.

"Uncle Ian..."

Just as the two of them were thinking of ways to make him stay, a cold voice suddenly sounded.

"Can I speak to him alone?"

Joel and Quentin looked at the person in a daze.

It was Nora.

She stood at the side.

Perhaps it was because they had not known each other since they were young, but her current expression was a little cold and distant.

The stunned expression in her eyes had disappeared as she stared at the man on the bed.

Even though her voice was emotionless and she appeared too calm, Joel and Quentin looked at each other.

Pete said, "Mommy, if I liked mathematics very much, would you stop me from learning it?"

Nora: "Of course not."

Everyone knew that Cherry liked to play games.

In order to make Cherry happy, she had agreed to let her play.

She only limited the time spent on playing games.

Pete nodded.

"Mia's mother knows she likes to dance, but she doesn't let her learn. Moreover, Mia is very afraid of her mother"

Afraid? No child should be afraid of their mother, right? Nora felt that Pete might have used the wrong word.

"Is it because her mommy is very strict?"

Pete shook his head.

"No," he thought for a moment and said, "The tyrant is very Strict too, but I know that he does it for my own good. Sometimes, I go on a hunger strike to fight against him because I know he will eventually give in"

But Mia's fear of her mommy comes from the fact that she's not sure her mommy would ever give in.

Nora was stunned.

Although Pete's words were messy, she understood them.

Because Justin was his father, even if he was stern every day or even hit Pete, Pete still respected Justin and was not afraid of him.

But Mia's mother was like a stranger and a bad person to Mia.

Mia didn't even feel safe with her.

She frowned.

"Did Mia tell you all this?"

Pete shook his head.

"I observed it myself"

Nora frowned.

If what Pete said was true, Nora would really have to reconsider this matter. However, Pete was only five years old. His conclusion could not be trusted so easily.

Nora said seriously, "Okay, Pete. I understand. I'll take note of this and observe Mia. If it's true, I'll tell your uncle."

Chapter 394

When Nora heard this, she was silent for a moment.She suddenly said, "Do you really want to know?" Quentin nodded. Nora looked away.She was not planning to say these words. After all, her mother's last words were filled with danger. Now, she did not even know who or where the enemy was. She said, "Do you know why I hid my identity as Big Sister? Quentin shook his head. Nora said, "Because my mother said that if I stand out, people might come after me." Quentin narrowed his eyes at these words.

Nora looked at him.

"I told him this' She was referring to Ian.

They had just reunited, but she was not used to calling that person "father."

She could not bring herself to call him "father"

Quentin understood.

Ian felt that Joel and Quentin could protect her well and that she would live well.

Therefore, he had lost the will to live and wanted to reunite with Yvette.

But when he found out that his daughter was in danger, as a father, how could he leave? He had to live and help her get rid of all obstacles' Especially that danger...

Ian subconsciously felt that it had something to do with Yvette leaving him back then! This was Nora's guess.

Yvette had suddenly run away from home and told the public that she had eloped with someone, but she had given birth to her.

In addition to the organization Morris had mentioned...

She felt that Yvette's departure back then might have been to protect Ian.

Ian clearly thought of this as well, and Nora told him, "The first DNA test showed that my genes have mutated. Logically speaking, we could never acknowledge each other. But Mother left my umbilical cord blood behind"

Yvette had preserved Nora's umbilical cord blood because she wanted to have a contingency plan when she was at her wit's end.

Daydreaming...

Tanya looked into the kitchen and felt like she was really dreaming.

When she had left sadly five years ago, she thought that she would never have the chance to be with this man in her life.

This man was going to disappear from her life.

Who would have thought that five years later, he would be cooking food for her? As Tanya was thinking, Hillary's voice was heard again.

"Why aren't you saying anything? Are you really going to degrade yourself to be a third wheel and come between us? Let me tell you, you better return to Switzerland. Joel chose me five years ago, he'll definitely choose me again. When that time comes, how embarrassed would you be?"

As she spoke, Joel had already walked out of the kitchen.

The villa was very quiet, and there were no car horns around.

Joel had heard the voice on the phone from the beginning.

He looked at Tanya.

Tanya was also looking at him.

The slender girl just stood there, her body a little thin from dancing for a long time.

She looked at Joel with her deep eyes and suddenly raised her eyebrows.

"She said I'm the third wheel. May I ask Mr. Smith, what's your relationship with Madam Hillary now?"

As soon as she said this, Hillary's voice stopped.

However, she then sneered.

"What are you doing? Do you think you can scare me like this? Let me tell you, I'm with Joel. If you want to talk to him, I can help you send a message.."

Amidst her chattering, Joel's originally angry eyes froze for a moment when they met the Tanya's.

All his anger seemed to dissipate with an evil smile on her lips.

He took a step forward and said, "I have nothing to do with Madam Hillary. The engagement has been broken off. Madam Tanya, what kind of braised noodles do you want to eat? Tomato eggs or green pepper pork?"

The voice on the phone instantly fell silent!

Joel saw her grave expression and put down his fork. He stared at her.

"What?"

His heart suddenly pounded violently.

He didn't know what Tanya was going to say, much less what she was thinking...

but he suddenly felt that what she was going to say next was very important.

Tanya looked at the man and said impulsively, "We had a..."

The word "child" hovered around her mouth for a moment, but she could not say it.

Joel was stunned.

"What?"

He searched his memory hard.

They had an agreement? An oath? Or what? He was afraid that he would anger the girl in front of him if he did not remember.

Tanya opened her mouth.

She suddenly thought of the parents who had been searching for their children overseas.

Some mothers broke down, and some fathers were very calm.

However, she had seen them turn around and cry secretly in a corner after comforting their wives.

She suddenly asked, "You love Mia very much, right?"

Joel did not know why she had suddenly changed the topic, but he still followed along and said, "Yes, I love her very much."

He suddenly reached out and held her hand.

"I know that I will never let you down in this matter. Her existence is something I cannot control, but her existence makes me feel warm. Tanya, that is a kind of satisfaction from family ties. You understand me, right?"

How could Tanya not understand? After all, she and Joel were both children who lacked love! Even though Joel was born in the Smiths, his parents did not like him.

There was even a time when they thought of abandoning him, making him feel very insecure.

Hillary recalled that when she called Tanya today, Joel was also there.

Later on, he did not pursue the matter, but now, he was here...

Her heart sank, but her face was still filled with smiles as she walked over.

"Joel, you're here..."

When the Joneses heard the servant's words, they hurriedly walked down from the study upstairs to welcome him.

"Mr.Smith, what brings you here? If there's anything you need, you can call us to the Smiths"

Joel was still smiling.

His eyes were curved, and when he did not speak, he looked very gentle, like a smiling tiger.

However, Hillary could see the coldness in his eyes.

She swallowed and jolted.

Joel looked at her and slowly said, "I came personally today because I thought that after my engagement with Miss Hillary was broken off, she seemed to have been dishonest"

As soon as he said this, Hillary's father was stunned. He looked directly at Hillary.

"What? When did you guys break off the engagement?"

Joel lowered his eyes and said indifferently, "Why? Didn't Miss Hillary tell you?"

Hillary had been chased back this time and stayed for a few days now, but she had not mentioned the engagement at all.

Mr. Jones looked at Hillary.

"Hillary, what's going on? " Madam Jones said, "Mr. Smith, did Hillary do something wrong to make you angry? Tell us, we'll get her to change. How can you suddenly call off the engagement?"

Joel looked at Madam Jones.

To be precise, she was also Tanya's mother.

Back then, Tanya's mother had remarried and given birth to Hillary.

Hillary was a year younger than Tanya, but their identities were completely different.

One was a burden who had been brought along into her marriage with a wealthy family, and the other was a daughter of a wealthy family.

Hillary had looked down on Tanya since she was young.

As for Tanya, she had a stubborn personality.

Chapter 398

The reason why Nora knew about the birthday of the children was that on that day every year, Tanya would be in low spirits.

When she was overseas, no matter where Nora was, she would always be by Tanya's side on this day.

The two of them did nothing.

Nora would sleep while Tanya would be in the room, dancing to the birthday gift she had bought long ago.

Usually, when she woke up, Tanya would be covered in sweat, but she would not feel tired.

If she continued like this, she would eventually collapse.

Every year, she would fall seriously ill. It was as if she wanted to use this method to vent her anger for her child for the next year.

Therefore, Nora remembered her child's birthday very clearly. She couldn't help but doubt Mia's identity.

Tanya's child and Mia were both Joel's children.

Furthermore, they were only five days apart...

She narrowed her eyes and began to think about the relationship between Mia and Tanya...

Pete's words interrupted Nora's thoughts.

She looked at him and nodded.

"Alright, I'll ask your uncle when he comes back."

If she took Mia out to play, she would definitely ask Joel. With that, she yawned loudly and turned to walk to the bed. It's already so late. Why isn't he back yet? I'll lie down and wait for him!"

Pete: "..."

As expected, half an hour later, there were uniform breathing sounds on the bed.

Pete sighed helplessly and put down the pen in his hand. He walked to the bed and gently covered Nora with the blanket.

Then, he went out and downstairs to sit on the sofa in the living room.

Joel returned home, this was the scene he saw.

Pete was clearly sleepy and anxious.

His little head was nodding off, but he had still forced himself not to sleep.

Joel looked at the time. It was already 11 PM.

He walked over and asked, "What's wrong?"

Pete woke up suddenly and said excitedly, "Uncle, you're finally back!"

Perhaps it was because she was suspicious, Nora kept looking at Tanya and Mia while she changed.

The more she looked at them, the more they looked alike.

It seemed like the verification of DNA was imminent.

However, how was she going to take DNA samples without alerting them? Thinking that she had a whole day to spend with them today, Nora was not anxious.

She slowly washed her face and brushed her teeth. She changed into casual clothes and prepared to go downstairs.

Tanya immediately grabbed her.

"Justin is downstairs!"

Outsiders called Justin Mr.Hunt or President Hunt, but to Tanya, he was her best friend's boyfriend and only Justin.

Nora raised her eyebrows and asked, "What's wrong?"

Tanya pointed at her hair.

"Aren't you going to wash your hair?"

Nora:"?"

She casually glanced at the time.

"It's already so late.I'm not washing anymore" Tanya said in disdain, "You're on a date, right? Can't you be more exquisite? I woke up an hour early this morning to dress up!"

Nora thought for a moment.

"That's true"

Then, she turned around and picked up her cap.

"That's good."

Tanya:

Watching Nora go downstairs casually, Tanya seriously suspected that she was not a woman.She grimaced and waved at the three children.

"Let's go"

Pete and Cherry nodded.

Following behind Nora, Mia was still staring at the identical twins.

When she saw them today, she was shocked! Pete woke up early in the morning.

When he was playing with her, someone at the door said that Justin had brought the Hunts' youngest son over.

Joel did not understand why she would suddenly ask this, but he still said, "Type A" Tanya was also an A.

Nora narrowed her eyes and asked again, "What about Hillary?"

Hearing her mention Hillary, Joel subconsciously looked at Tanya, who was following behind her.

Seeing that Tanya was indeed frowning and seemed a little unhappy, Joel carefully replied, "Type AB."

"Okay" Nora replied, but she was guessing in her heart.

Joel had Type O blood while Hillary had Type AB blood.

Therefore, there was a chance that Mia had Type A blood.

From this, she could not confirm her guess.

Indeed, she still had to do a DNA test.

With this in mind, she glanced at Tanya.

She did not tell Tanya about this immediately.

After all, over the years, they had been looking for her child together.

She knew that it was devastating for any hope to be destroyed.

When she did the DNA report, if Mia was not Tanya's child, she would not mention it at all.

However, if she was Tanya 's daughter, everything would be fine.

With this thought in mind, she asked, "Shall we set off?"

"There's no rush"

Before Joel could speak, Justin said slowly, "Eat something before you leave. You've slept for so long. You should avoid getting low blood sugar"

Everyone was speechless. Nora casually picked up a piece of chocolate.

"No need. Let's go."

Nora was a little embarrassed to have the three children and three adults wait for her here.
