Chapter 601

The look in his eyes gave Ruth a shock.

When she thought of what had happened before, she swallowed hard and said, "Mr.Hunt, you can't kill me! If you kill me, that child will die too!"

Because Justin had strangled her just now, thereby injuring her wind- pipe, her voice was hoarse.

Additionally, the more she spoke, the more she ended up straining her throat, causing searing pain.

Ruth clutched her neck.

In this instant, she became very sure of something—Justin really had wanted to kill her just now! While she was thinking, Justin suddenly took out a small chip.

"Is this how you keep Trueman Yale informed of your situation at all times?" Ruth's pupils shrank.

That was a tracker-cum-monitoring device that had been implanted in her.It allowed Trueman to check on her situation at any time.It was only with this communicator and the child that Ruth could ensure her safety.

Yet even the communicator had been discovered?! Justin threw the chip he was holding between his fingers onto the floor.

Nora had reminded him of it before she left.

After that, he had instructed Lawrence to bring him the relevant apparatus before he finally found it in Ruth's stomach.

He crushed the chip with his foot.

After breaking it, he scoffed, "Do you think my men won't be able to find the child just because you're dead?"

Blood drained from Ruth's face.

"I...I am the child's mother!"

"So?" Justin countered dispassionately.

His voice was low and rich, making him sound just like a demon in the dim basement.

"It's okay, though.I also have another ten rabbits, fifteen cats, and more than twenty stray dogs.It'll be No.3 and No.4's turns next.But I'm wondering if I should gouge out No.4's eyes and put them in No.3, or should I cut off No.3's ears and put them on No.4?"

"Say, if I plant wheat in a cow, will beef-flavored grains of wheat grow from it? Also, can a dog's head be installed on a cow's belly?"

Just the sound of the several questions he asked in succession was frightening enough.

The trio looked at one another.

Nora suddenly asked, "Cherry, what is your friend's name?"

Cherry was taken aback for a moment, seemingly only just realizing that she hadn't asked the boy for his name yet.

She asked, "Hey, what's your name?"

"My name?"

The boy sounded terribly cheeky.

He said, "My name is made up of two syllables.The first is 'grand' and the second is 'dad'"

Cherry was taken aback.

"Granddad?"

"Yeah, I'm here!" The boy responded very quickly.

"Hello, my granddaughter!"

Xander scoffed and said indifferently, "I'm not going! Whoever wants to go there can go instead!"

After her meal, Nora looked at her cell phone and found that Justin had sent her a few messages. She gave him a call.

Justin answered very quickly.

The man's voice was low and a little raspy as he asked, "You're up?"

"Yeah." Nora responded.

She stretched and asked, "What's the matter?"

"Do you remember who delivered the children for you back then?" Nora frowned at the question.

Back then, Henry had thought of her pregnancy as a scandal, so she'd never had any maternity checkups done.

Even until she gave birth, she had never had any checkups. She replied, "It's a small clinic, I don't quite remember anymore. Why Justin was silent for a moment. He'd initially wanted to hide it from her, but when he suddenly thought of Nora's abilities and her identity, he came to terms with it.

Thus, he voiced his guess.

"Nora, is there a chance that you actually gave birth to triplets back then?"

Triplets? Nora subconsciously wanted to retort, "Do I look like an animal to you?"

But when she was about to do so, she suddenly remembered that due to obstructed labor, she had actually passed out at one point during childbirth.

From her perspective, she had only fainted for a short while at the time. She had regained consciousness after just a brief blackout.

The doctor had then told her to continue pushing. Then, she gave birth to a child, who was taken away by Henry.

When she got down from the delivery bed to take her child back, her belly acted up again, after which she gave birth to Cherry.

She found Justin's supposition too strange, so she couldn't help but reply, "It's not impossible, but the chances are very low."

Even she hadn't noticed three different heartbeats in her belly during her pregnancy.

Justin's voice was full of joy.

Sean then paused and said, "During my investigation, I discovered that Ms. Smith had already sent someone to look for him when she was living abroad. After returning to the country, she had searched for him again. She was probably searching for the little mister at that time, but she couldn't find the doctor."

Nora had told him all that on the phone just now.

Nora would definitely tackle the problem from a few different angles when she was searching for her child.

Yet despite her abilities, she still hadn't managed to find the man.

This showed that the man had hidden himself very well.

Justin's long slender fingers tapped against the sofa.

Lawrence became anxious.

"What are you doing? You can't even find a doctor from some small clinic?"

Sean glanced at him silently and said nothing.

Lawrence lifted his chin, looked at Justin, and asked, "Boss, what should we do?"

Justin suddenly said, "We can't find him, but surely there is someone else we can ask?"

Lawrence asked, "Who?"

Sean seemed to understand something. He nodded and said, "You're right. I will send some men to look for him right away."

Lawrence: "?"

After saying that, Sean went out.

Lawrence immediately looked at Justin.

"Boss, who are you looking for?"

Justin glanced at him indifferently. Then, he answered, "Henry Smith."

When Lawrence heard this, he suddenly realized something.

"You're right! Henry Smith watched Ms. Smith's entire childbirth, so he must know how many children she gave birth to! Why didn't I think of that? After his wife and daughter betrayed him, he didn't even have money to buy a plane ticket home.

Elsewhere.

Lawrence was eavesdropping on their conversation with a listening device. He heard clearly everything that Ruth said.

However, he could only hear static noise coming from the other side.

Obviously, the other party also had a very powerful hacker who could block his signal, so only Ruth could hear the voice.

Lawrence frowned and put down the listening device altogether. He went up to Ruth and turned on the speaker mode on the cell phone.

Ruth had already known this when she made the call, of course.

That was why she had called Xander with peace of mind and hadn't been afraid that he might let something slip.

After all, Xander's phone had been modified, so no one could listen in on his voice.

But with Lawrence switching on the speaker mode so blatantly, she immediately said, "Xander, behave. Hurry up and come to America to look for me. I promise I won't touch your rabbits anymore when I go back!"

When Xander heard this, his voice suddenly rose.

"Really?"

Xander, who grew up in the basement, had never been allowed to go out. His father was the only one who had accompanied him and taught him everything. He was also able to teach himself a lot of things through online classes. His father was very busy sometimes, so he could only stay in the basement by himself.

The little rabbits, cats, and dogs had accompanied him for many years.

They were his closest friends, but those friends of his were instead the adults' tools for experiments.

Xander was very unhappy about this.

But he didn't know how to fight back.

Having grown up there, he didn't even know that he could fight back. He just wanted to save the rabbits and keep his little friends alive.

Therefore, if an organ transplant was possible, then he was willing to do it! In his world, there was only life and death.

There was no right or wrong! Even if sewing a dog's head onto a cat's body was a serious violation of natural science and went against humanity's moral compass, for him, as long as it could keep Dog No. 6 alive, nothing else mattered.

Ruth nodded.

"Yes!" Xander hesitated for a moment.

Yet despite knowing the truth, he still didn't want to let go- He walked rather quickly.

Soon, he came to the parking lot.He put his hand on the car door handle.

Just as he was about to open the door and enter, a delicate arm reached over and held the door down.

Surprised, Justin's head turned to the side abruptly to see Nora looking at him.His heart suddenly started to pound.

Nora chased after him.

Was she going to say something? Justin looked at the woman expectantly.

Then, she said, "You're leaving now?"

The woman's voice was lazy and filled with confusion.

Justin:".."

He knew that this woman did not know how to be flirtatious.He lowered his eyes and sighed.

"Yes, I have something to do at the company."

He suppressed the unhappiness in his heart and said in a fit of pique , "Is there anything else?"

"Yes, there is."

Nora said word by word, "When I first interacted with you, it was indeed because of the children.And I actually had no plans to get married in this life."

Justin's heart slowly sank.

The woman leaned against his car and raised her chin slightly.Her almond-shaped eyes were staring into the distance.

"You also know that I was very fat when I was young.I was humiliated and scolded by others.At that time, I wanted to live alone in the future.Later on, when I had a child, although I was very curious about how she came to be, I took things as they came.I slowly understood that I could live with the child and I did not need a man to rely on."

She had her own hands and feet.

If she was capable, what man did she need to rely on? Justin's heart sank.He sighed.

Indeed, many women looked for men to rely on, but this kind of love was wrong in itself.

Marriage should be for both parties to rely on each other, not purely on men.

If a woman looked for a man only to find someone to rely on, then in such a relationship, the woman would naturally be at a disadvantage He had never planned to get married before.

He even felt that life would be better if he only had Pete.

But later...

When Lawrence heard this, he said angrily, "How did he die? Your people are too useless.What should we do now?"

Sean did not speak.

Justin suddenly lowered his eyes.

"His death only proves our suspicions" Everyone shut their mouths at this.

Sean nodded.

"Yes."

He and Justin looked at each other.Lawrence thought carefully and came to a realization.

"Yes, this is too coincidental! The organization ignored Henry till now, but when the child's existence was revealed, they suddenly killed him! If it were in the past, we would have wondered if the doctor who delivered the child had been sent overseas by Henry or by the mysterious organization. But now, it seems obvious that it was the mysterious organization! There's indeed a problem with Xander's identity!"

Seeing that he was finally being smart, Sean gave him a thumbs up.

Lawrence was speechless.

Justin did not say anything and went upstairs.

The two of them followed behind him. Justin asked, "Have you asked Ruth when that child will get here?"

Lawrence said, "Yes, our people call her every hour. Besides, she's very hungry. She doesn't need us to rush her now. She's already taking the initiative to call"

"Yes."

When they went upstairs, Justin sat on the sofa. His long fingers tapped the table as if he was waiting for something.

At this moment, his phone rang.

Justin looked down and realized that it was an unknown number. He picked it up and a sharp voice came from the other end.

"Mr. Hunt, the mysterious organization has never thought of you as our enemy."

Justin paused and suddenly asked, "Trueman?"

"Mrs.Hunt, something big has happened! Someone who looks identical to Mr.Hunt has come to our door and he claims to be Mr.Hunt's son!"

Mrs.Hunt was drinking afternoon tea when her personal butler rushed over and told her what had happened at the door.

The old lady was shocked and stood up suddenly.

"What?" She swallowed.

"Who gave birth to that child? What's wrong with Justin? How many children does he have out there?!"

The butler: Yes, he had become a father once five years ago. Now, he was going to be a father again!
Mrs. Hunt held the butler's hand.

"Let's go and take a look!"

On the way, she could not help but say to the butler, "You have to keep this matter a secret! Don't let the Smiths hear about it!"

The butler was stunned.

"Didn't you disagree to this marriage with the Smiths?"

"What nonsense are you talking about? In all of New York, the only person worthy of being pampered is the eldest daughter of the Smiths. Yvonne is gone, and now, only Nora is left. Furthermore, she's Pete's mother! What I'm worried about now is that if the Smiths find out about this child, they will call off the engagement!"

Mrs. Hunt frowned.

When she thought of her maiden family's matters...she lowered her voice even more.

"Besides, we have a request for her now!"

The butler immediately understood and nodded.

When the two of them arrived at Justin's villa, they happened to hear a low cry coming from inside! She rushed in and saw a little boy carrying a black backpack.

He was holding a bodyguard's hand and biting it.

The bodyguard wanted to snatch his finger back, but he was afraid that it would hurt his teeth. If he did not use force, his fingers could not be retracted.

This little brat was using all his strength to bite him! The steward beside him was Justin's trusted aide and was loyal to him.

When he saw this, he shouted anxiously from the side, "Xander, let go of his hand! His fingers will break off if you keep biting!"

Lily took the bag and walked out.

After taking two steps, she looked at Nora again.

Justin's heart beat wildly. He did not expect Nora's answer to be 'Yes', but he still said, "Okay, I'll bring him to see you."

"No, I'll come to you."

After Nora finished speaking, she hung up the phone.

Justin did not know whether to laugh or cry.

At the same time, he inexplicably began to feel uneasy.

He, who was always calm and collected, actually had a scary thought at this moment.

What if this child was not his and Nora's but really belonged to him and another woman? Why didn't Nora say a few more words earlier to let him know? As he was in thought, he turned around and saw Xander looking at him curiously.

The child's eyes were pure like a sheet of paper.

However, when he looked over, Xander deliberately put on a calm and composed expression.

The little man had his own pride, but the innocence that occasionally leaked out made Justin purse his lips.

Justin admitted that the way Xander had secretly looked at him earlier had pierced his heart.

It made him unable to hate or detest this child for a moment. He sighed silently and walked to Xander. He touched his head and was about to speak when Xander said, "Did you get a call from a Tigress?"

Justin: "?"

Xander rolled his eyes.

"Look at how scared you are!"

The hand Justin had used to touch Xander's head suddenly felt very itchy. He really wanted to give him a good beating on his butt. He said, "I haven't beaten a child before."

Xander was stunned. He was about to speak when he said in a deep voice, "I hope you won't give me a first time for it."

Xander was frightened! Justin pointed at the porridge on the table.

"Eat."

Xander looked down at the food on the table and picked up a spoon to eat.
