Chapter 641

Nora hung up the phone and looked at Cherry.

After a moment's thought, she nevertheless gave her a reminder.

"Don't bully the boy."

Cherry nodded at once, the very picture of a well-behaved girl.

She replied, "Don't worry, Mommy! Xander and I will get along very well!"

For some reason, when she saw how she was behaving, Nora was entirely unconvinced.

But if Cherry was refusing to say it, then she couldn't possibly force her to, right? As such, she let Cherry stay obediently in the room while she went out.

When she did, she happened to bump into Justin, who was coming out of Xander's room.

When the two met, Nora raised her eyebrows and asked, "How did it go?"

Justin looked a little awkward.

"He said that he's getting along very well with Cherry and told me not to worry."

Nora: She had obviously seen the two little fellows being awkward around each other, so how could they possibly be having fun? But both of them were refusing to tell the truth...

"Do you believe him?" She asked.

Justin kept quiet for a while before he suddenly replied, "Whether the children are fated to get along or not is out of our hands. There are siblings who have trouble getting along. Let's not force it"

He was afraid that Nora would tell Cherry to treat Xander better, which might instead make the children rebellious.

Nora had always taken an easy-going and stress-free approach to child-raising.

If Cherry liked playing games, then she would let her play- Of course, this was also because of Cherry's unique character.

It definitely wouldn't do for other children to become as addicted as Cherry was to games.

However, Cherry's IQ was too high. She had to use games and play with Barbie dolls to calm down her hyperactive brain.

Since Justin had put it that way, she nodded and walked out of the Hunt Manor.

When she was going down the stairs, she suddenly turned and looked back, upon which she saw a small head quickly darting backward in Xander's room as though he was afraid of being seen by her.

Nora stared hard at Old Maddy to look at his reaction after she voiced the question.She would never trust a person's words that easily, so she wanted to determine whether he was telling the truth through his reaction.

What she didn't expect, though, was that because of the burns on Old Maddy's face, he couldn't make any facial expressions.

Even his eyes were too small for her to see anything.This made him hard to read.Old Maddy kept quiet for a while.

Suddenly, he asked, "Twins? Triplets? What are you talking about? Didn't you only give birth to a daughter?"

In Old Maddy's impression, the daughter of the lady he served had returned and gave birth to a daughter.

How could it have been twins or triplets instead? Seeing how logical his answer was, Nora frowned.

"Uncle..."

"I'm not worthy of having you call me that."

Old Maddy interrupted her and said, "My name is Jake Reed.I am your mother's subordinate, and you are the young lady whom I now serve."

Seeing that he had brought up her mother again, Nora asked, "What on earth happened back then?"

Old Maddy heaved a sigh.

Chapter 643

Nora narrowed her eyes and looked at Old Maddy intently.

There was silence in the ward.

Lily had left the room when the two started talking, and was standing guard outside the door.

The white-walled ward seemed completely silent.

Apart from tranquility, there was only the smell of pungent disinfectant in the air. But be it Old Maddy or Nora, both of them were very used to such a smell.

The former had stayed there for a very long time by then and had already become accustomed to the smell, while the latter had pretty much grown up being bathed in the smell.

When she was in poor health as a child, she was often hospitalized. Her bedroom at home would also be sanitized with disinfectants.

Nora lowered her eyes slightly.

Then, Old Maddy said, "After you were born, your mother discovered that the mysterious organization was in pursuit of her. In order to ensure your survival, she died before the mysterious organization's eyes, so that they won't continue investigating. But we all knew that they definitely won't stop. Besides, no one could say for sure whether the Grays were trustworthy or not"

Old Maddy looked at her.

"It's only when you become strong enough that you can resist becoming someone else's pawn. Your mother was driven into a corner at that time was because she was not strong enough."

Not strong enough...

Nora was taken aback.

Yvette could stir up the entire New York and throw it into instability back then.

The drugs she developed—even in this age after more than twenty years had gone by—were still relevant. She was multi-talented.

To this day, she was still a legend in New York.

Yet someone like her was not strong enough? Moreover, even now, Nora did not feel that the mysterious organization was that powerful.

In the United States, they had been completely suppressed by the special department.

Trueman had even almost been arrested.

Chapter 644

Old Maddy said, "I don't know why he was chosen, but your mother told us at the time to choose the smartest one. That's because the serum she gave you improved one's genes. Even if it was passed on to the child, their genes wouldn't be modified much if the child was born very smart. This way, if the serum is unable to do what it's supposed to, it will become ineffective. I would think that is likely the reason why."

Nora: "..."

So, Justin had been chosen because of his high 1Q? The corners of Nora's lips spasmed.

But she felt that the answer didn't seem unacceptable either.

After all, Cherry's 1Q was slightly higher than Pete's, probably because half of a female's genes were inherited from the father.

"Then, here's my last question."

Nora stared hard at Old Maddy.

"If I gave birth to more children, would the amount of serum distributed to each child have become smaller, thereby making it safer for them?"

If her theory was correct, then she could conclude that she had indeed given birth to triplets! Her mother must have given her the triplet-making drug in order to let the three children share that bit of gene serum.

If so, Xander would be her son! However, Old Maddy suddenly smiled and answered, "Of course not."

He sighed and said, "Your mother only injected you with a very low dosage of serum in the first place. The number of children you gave birth to didn't affect anything. It can be said that the serum could not bring much harm to the child after passing through your body."

Nora was stunned.

Why was the answer different from what she had imagined?! She frowned, perplexed as to how things had turned out this way.

While she was thinking, Old Maddy spoke up again.

"Besides, your mother once said that the Andersons have genes for having twins, so it all depended on your luck. Whether you have twins or just one child, they are all still your children."

Nora looked closely at Old Maddy for a long while.

In the end, she lowered her eyes.

"I see."

She went out of the room to see Lily standing there and nodding off as she leaned against the wall.

Nora withdrew her hand that was checking Pete's pulse. Pete didn't have any major problems with his health.

They were just some small problems typical of children.

From the looks of it, the gene serum didn't have any effect on him.

Nora was relieved. She narrowed her eyes and then answered the call.

A low and deep male voice came from the other end.

"Hello, who are you?"

Nora frowned and identified herself at once.

"I am Nora Smith. You should know who I am, right?" The call fell silent at once.

Nora slowly said, "Charles, I know you were my mother's subordinate. I have some questions for you."

Perhaps because she had called him by name, Charles replied, "I have nothing to say to you!"

He hung up right away after saying that.

Nora stared at her cell phone and clenched her jaw.

Why wasn't Charles talking? Was he hiding something? She picked up her cell phone and immediately started tracing the call to find out his location.

Half an hour later, Nora paused when she saw Charles' location.

She stood up, rushed out of the house, and drove straight to the hospital.

That's right.

Charles was in the hospital! After Nora rushed to the hospital and got out of the car, she immediately saw a group of nurses and doctors moving about in a hurry and busy at work.

Ambulances arrived at the entrance of the hospital one after another.

A lot of people in white lab coats were anxiously giving first aid to the victims being carried out of the ambulances.

Chapter 646

Charles was stunned.

Then, he said excitedly, "You know me? Young missy, how come you know me? How did you know my name is Charles? Haha, do you know? I was really lucky today. The bus overturned, and everyone in it was injured, but I didn't suffer even a scratch. I must have saved the world in my previous life!"

For the fifty-year-old to say such things, Nora couldn't help but find it rather odd.

Many older people, even if they surfed the Internet a lot, rarely said such things in real life. She frowned.

"Do you know who I am?"

Charles didn't seem surprised at all.

"It doesn't matter who you are. Isn't what matters the fact that I dodged the bullet today? Do you know how dangerous it was? The bus' brakes had suddenly failed and it was rushing straight toward a mountain in front of us, you know! The woman in front of me was screaming the whole time in fear, and even I thought that I was dead meat. But unexpectedly, even though the bus overturned, I turned out fine!"

Nora frowned upon hearing his description of what had happened.

"How are you okay?"

Charles replied, "I don't know. I was just very fortunate. The bus overturned and quite a few people died on the spot. Did you see? You don't even have to try saving a few of those people who were pushed in just now...Sigh, do you know?"

His expression turned a little nostalgic.

"I am actually not a good person. Of course, I am not a bad person either. I just did some bad things back in the day and helped some bad people in the past. Over the years, I have been devoting myself to God. And look! Results are showing! God must have been watching over me this time, that's why I managed to escape..."

The more he talked, the more excited he became. He actually looked a little like he was going to cry bitterly. He said, "After I go back, I must be even more pious. I shall donate all my money to the church! None of the other nurses were paying attention to him. His friend's expression changed.

"What do you mean by that? Who are you looking down on?"

Charles was still babbling.

In fact, he had even started crying, as if the emotions that he had kept suppressed for a long time were finally erupting.

He said, "Stevedores, of course! Not only is the work tiring, but the pay is also so low! You guys may be uncultured, but do you know who I am? I graduated from Hamlin School of Medicine, you know!"

The Hamlin School of Medicine?! Nora narrowed her eyes.

His colleague, however, had never heard of the school.

"What are you going crazy for? You must have hit your head, right? Why are you acting so weird today? Never mind being chatty, but you're even suddenly talking about a medical school? If you were a high-achieving student, would you have been working as a laborer with us?"

Charles waved dismissively and said, "Yeah, I'm different from you people. So you see, God still cares for me. Even when I was in a traffic accident, I didn't get hurt at all..."

Nora's heart suddenly sank as she listened to their conversation.

She took a big step forward and suddenly asked, "Excuse me, is he usually very quiet?"

Charles's colleague nodded.

"Yeah. Ramsey talks very little. It's rare for him to be this excited. It must have gone to his head!"

As soon as he said that, Nora grabbed Charles's hand.

She suddenly shouted at the doctor beside them, "Arrange a CT scan for him immediately!"

The doctor was stunned.

"What?"

Charles clutched her sleeves tightly.

The world was already spinning in his vision.

Nevertheless, he tried his best to calm himself and tried hard to tell her something.

More than twenty years ago, Yvette had told him, Old Maddy, and the other man to go into hiding, and to make Nora give birth to a baby before she turned twenty.

Because this was the only way she could stay alive.

The three of them had fled in three different directions.

Old Maddy had attracted and taken more of the mysterious organization's attacks for the two of them.

Because of that, and because he had not received any news from him since, Charles suspected that he might already be dead.

Old Maddy's name wasn't actually Old Maddy. He was known as that because his way of doing things was simply too outrageous.

Yvette also trusted him the most. He was also someone who could throw his life away for Yvette's sake.

After Old Maddy attracted more firepower from the organization, Charles had left with the other person. He'd thought himself successful, but he didn't expect that the mysterious organization would still catch him.

Charles had become scared at that time. He knew very well just how fearsome the mysterious organization was.

At that time, the mysterious organization had threatened him with his family.

In the end, he chose to give in and told them about Yvette's plans...

After that, the mysterious organization had given him five million dollars.

"That's great!"

Old Maddy heaved a huge sigh of relief when he heard that.

However , she seemed to notice that his reaction was a little inappropriate.

Nora wanted to ask about it, but Old Maddy suddenly avoided the topic and said, "Ms.Nora, to be honest, you shouldn't have saved Charles.I only just found out that he betrayed Ms.Yvette back then.What's the point of saving a man like him?"

After saying that angrily, without waiting for Nora to ask any further, he turned around and walked back to his ward.

He said, "Sigh, I've become old.I've only just recovered, I'm going back to rest"

Nora stared at him from the back.

Old Maddy and Charles must be hiding something from her, and it had something to do with whether she had given birth to twins or triplets.

For some reason, it seemed like Old Maddy was really hoping that she didn't give birth to triplets? She broke into a frown.

At this moment, Lily walked out.

When Nora was operating on Charles, Lily had been her assistant throughout the operation.

Lily, who was very informed about Nora's family affairs, asked, "Boss, should I still continue the DNA restoration?"

Nora was silent for a long while.

After thinking for a while, in the end, she still said, "Yes, continue it."

There was a strange silence in the room all of a sudden.

Seeing that Nora hadn't said anything for a while, Old Maddy thought that she had received a huge mental blow because of what he said, so he sighed and comforted her.

He said, "In any case, one can never compete with an organization just by themselves. Ms. Nora, don't be discouraged. To be honest, you can also establish and build your own forces. If you can't become a top-class hacker like Q and Y, then bring them under you! "

As for the Imperial League, if you can get in touch with the members—even if it's just a bit of contact with one of them—you can slowly try to grow and develop.

"You don't have to think it is that difficult. Although it is certainly hard, we can take it slow. Even though I have already aged, you are still young. Five years, ten years... You still have a long way ahead of you. You will definitely find a chance somewhere!"

The corners of Nora's lips spasmed.

Suddenly, she said, "There is indeed a chance."

Old Maddy: "???"

He was taken aback for a moment.

Then, he heard Nora slowly say, "My hacking skills should be more or less on par with Y's—because I am Q."
