“You...”

A bodyguard in black heard the commotion and came over. “What’s the matter?”

The guard replied, “This fella is making a fuss on purpose.” Helios remained calm throughout the whole conversation. “I’m not trying to make a fuss. But Ms. Chase is indeed having heartburn now

Are you telling me that Mr. Grant isn’t even willing to provide her with medication?” The bodyguard took a glance at Helios, took his cell phone out, and made a call at the side. He then said to the guard, “Go to a nearby pharmacy and get medicine for heartburn. Just satisfy them first whenever they need anything.”

The guard was dumbfounded.

Quincy knocked on the door of the office. He then opened the door and walked in after obtaining permission. “Mr. Goldmann, we got him.” Nolan closed the documents in his hands.” Have him handed over to Mr. Boucher after we’ve completed the matter.”

Quincy nodded.

When he was about to leave, he remembered something and reported, "By the way, Mr. Goldmann, Mrs. Goldmann has located Maizie Hannigan. And as expected, she should have gone to find her together with Saydie."

Nolan frowned.

The man in black lowered his head. He crushed the cigarette butt into the ashtray. "I can't wait any longer. Peter just died. Although this can block the distribution of the shipment, Yael Boucher knows it's me. If it weren't because I have his son with me, he would have made a move on me long ago."

The man in black looked at him. "Then let's just kill those two. Anyway, the Bouchers and the Chases won't know about it."

Two to three men stepped forward and pressed her against the floor, and Barbara was trapped under them, crying in despair.

The veins on the back of Helios' clenched fist bulged, and he exhausted all his remaining strength to break free of his captors and rush toward those three men.

He knocked down those men. But before he could adjust his posture and regain balance, he was immediately punched in the cheek by the opponent.

However, as he was falling to the floor, he propped his hands on Barbara's sides and covered her with his body. Even though he was being hit on the back multiple times, he would not budge in order to protect her.

"You're quite a tenacious and stubborn one, aren't you? Do you still want to play the hero?"

The gun was pointed at Barbara's head. She held her breath, and her blood froze while she closed her eyes tight.

Tony was going to give the order when Leon said, "Kill me first."

Christina nodded.

They walked out of the room, and Yael looked at Barbara, I've spoken to your father about your situation. Don't worry." Barbara was surprised but nodded, "Thank you." After they left Maisie nudged Barbara, "Go in." Barbara thought that she should thank Helios, so she walked into the room.

Maisie gently closed the door, and Nolan looked at her and smiled. "What are you up to?"

Maisie looked at him and lowered her voice. "Nothing, I just want them to have a talk."

He chuckled. "Are you sure you're not trying to get them closer?" Maisie opened her mouth but didn't speak.

Maisie looked at Barbara, who was quiet, bowed, and nudged her with her shoulder," What's wrong?".

Barbara was curious. "What do you mean?"

"Aren't you going to say hi?" Maisie squinted. Why did they become distant after being in the hospital together? Barbara's eyes moved around. She had never gone to see Helios again after that day. She appreciated Helios' attempt at saving her while disregarding his own safety. She was definitely moved.

Maizie sent the message to Officer Zaleski and happily looked at her phone screen.

That night...

Barbara went to see the manager and the owner of the Glitz Club but was told that neither of them was there.

She left the club, but it suddenly started pouring. It was a cold, rainy night, and she stood under the roof outside, staring at the cars passing by on the streets.

The red and green lights stood lonely in the rain, and the light was reflected in the puddles on the floor.

A black car parked not far away with the back window rolled halfway down. A bespectacled man was hidden in the shadows.

The driver looked at him. "Sir, isn't that Ms. Chase?"
