Chapter 125

Lucifer could feel his distant past returning to him. Memories he once lost now back in their correct place. His eyes looked upon Uriel with a gentle gaze. He remembered the lazy days spent beside her as she made him skip his tasks.

'She was always super cute, it seems.'

Uriel tilted her head as the silver hair draped onto the floor. She sat across the chair, almost lying down. Her delicate hand gently patted the small space beside her butt. This cute girl nodded and peered at him with her red eyes.

A distant memory of Uriel surfaced in his mind. They were lying on the grass of a strange planet. Her plump body sprawled out and sleeping on top of him. He gently stroked her hair as she made cat like noises before she drifted into a deep sleep.

She was always lazy even before he gave her the seed of sloth. That's part of her charm and most of their time together was sleeping in the sun or eating tasty treats.

'I can understand her each gesture perfectly!'

The other girls felt Uriel had stolen their chance. Her fluffy self didn't take useless actions and soon closed her eyes to sleep.

"Oi! Uriel you cheating bitch!" Belial said with an angry voice as an orange crystal shot through the air with a boom. It almost seemed like it would penetrate his chest and kill him.

Lucifer covered his chest with his arms in a cross shape. The crystal stopped in the air and fell into his left hand, despite his defensive posture. He gave a sigh and felt stupid.

He felt another shock inside his mind. This time he saw dark, broken worlds filled with death and war. He stood on a battlefield covered in blood.

This memory was strange as he looked forward with bloody hands, on the opposite side leading the enemy troops made up of strange deformed beast's and monsters with twisted bodies more disturbing than people's worst nightmares.

Belial stood opposite him. She held an enormous axe that pointed towards him. Her eyes watched him. He could sense her delight and lust for battle as her lips curved into a disturbing smile.

'She always showed her affection in strange ways. My cute little Belial!'

"I'm next!" Said Lenara with a cheerful voice.

A green crystal floated in the air as she tossed it gently. It floated in a slow arc and landed in his right palm.

The moment it fused with him, the memories of Lenara revived in his mind. She wanted to buy something but lacked money. Then made him fight in dark tournaments against other mythical beings. His only reward after suffering was a soft kiss on the cheek and her delighted smile.

Lucifer's face twitched at her innocent smile. He felt this girl was the most black-hearted.

"Yo! Brother, take my crystal of love!"

Lucifera kissed the red stone and tossed it towards him. Her gem landed on his right thigh and merged with his leg. The memories with her were different that one would expect.

A cute girl with red hair and eyes sat on the lap of a teenage male with eight pure white wings. The girl seemed upset because she didn't have any wings, despite being his sister. Angel Lucifer stroked her cute, fluffy and kissed her forehead.

His memories with her were always similar. She would follow behind him and take rides on his shoulders when he flew around the various celestial words.

"As cute as always, Zafera." He said with a gentle voice that softly followed the wind to reach her ears.

Lucifera blushed deeply and sat down on her throne. She looked very flustered as she turned away, leaning on one of her palms and covered her face with the other hand.

Sariel stood up and threw her white gem towards him, her head glued to Uriel with a pout as she saw her now in her old form when she slept.

'I miss my old body...'

Her white gem entered inside his left leg and lifted the fog on several memories of his memories with this girl.

"Lucifer! Hey, listen to me. The rules exist for a reason. Do not doubt father's judgement!"

Lucifer was at a desk with countless documents. His face looked extremely frustrated and tired. They assigned him paperwork related to the prison that kept the most deadly beings locked away. His eyes glanced over at the beautiful angel with silky black hair and amber eyes.

Although she looked and sounded strict, he saw her grab pieces of paper from his desk and pulled a chair. She then spent several days to help him finish the work. She only asked for the small reward of flying together afterwards.

"Haha... My sisters all used to be so cute and innocent."

The last girl was Lilim, who sat quietly and never interrupted her other sisters. She was the most well behaved since the distant past. Lucifer didn't make her throw the crystal and got up from his seat and walked towards her with a slow stride.

He stretched out his hand and wrapped it around her back and under her legs. Lucifer lifted her in a princess carry and looked flustered as Lucifer walked back to his own throne and sat down with a thump.

Lilim opened her mouth in a wide circle and moved around on his lap. Her little purple gem fell from her tightly clenched hand and slotted into his chest. The last piece that was missing entered his body and shattered the two chains that bound him to Eruvia's laws and rules.

His memories of this girl were quite vague still. She was a girl he met as a child, abandoned by her demon parents because she was defective. Lucifer saw this cute little girl with her small horns and blue skin and couldn't help take her with him.

Many years passed, yet she remained a very shy yet masculine girl. He used to joke about her being a stubborn tomboy. She seemed to like that thought and spent her time copying how he acted and followed him around.

Lilim got along with Uriel as they were both quiet and well-behaved girls.

Until the day she awakened as a demon and became an adult woman. After that day she became distant from him because she lusted for her perfect brother and feared his hatred.

Lucifer, who saw all these memories and feelings, just stroked her cute hair to help her relaxed. He suddenly felt something shatter and a feeling of ease and relief filled his body.

"Finally! We can start the process. Those damn gods cannot interfere now he is free! Haha Fuck you all!"

Nobody expected Lanza to use such a foul language. The sister's only knew her as a useless Angel that knew how to follow their brother's ass and beg for his love. She seemed to have changed a lot since they last met, so they felt a culture shock.

Lucifer looked to the side where this angel stood like a proud knight. He stated her words again in his mind.

'This was not the ritual?'

'Then what was this for?'

Lanza looked at him with her all knowing smirk. She raised her hand, which held a strange black ball. It screamed bad news, and Lucifer wanted her to put that thing back.

Whatever it is he didn't want it!

"Master, this was a simple reunion! How could it be the actual ritual? Your cute sisters just needed to return the gifts you have them long ago to break the last two chains. Haha! Prepare your body. You are about to feel something far more painful than giving birth!"

"Lanza... We can speak about this, right? How about I take you to eat some ice cream? Maybe a cheeseburger?"

All the sisters smirked at this interaction. No longer embarrassed and enjoyed the sight of their brother, who rarely showed his nervous reactions. This was a pleasant and new feeling.

"No, no, it's okay! It will be over in a moment! Just look at the ceiling and count the clouds! You will be a new man afterwards!"

Lucifer tried to stand up, but Lilim held him down on the throne. He felt his heart break from her cruel betrayal. How could his cute Lilim do this! These evil witches have forced her!

"Uriel, save your brother! I will let you nap for 100 years!"

"R-really!? Ah!... Sorry... Cannot."

Her eyes glowed at his words, but the daggers from her twin sister, Sariel, caused her to recoil. She gave a whimper and shuddered. She curled up and pulled a quilt out of nowhere and hid inside.

Lucifer felt sweat pour out all over his body as the traitorous Angela Lanza shifted ever closer. The pulsating black gem seemed far more deadly and treacherous than Chaos! At least she was a cute woman in the end.

"Ahhhh! You bastards, I will punish you all when I find you again!"

His yells rang out in the white world as her delicate fingers inserted the black gem directly into his forehead. Lilim looked down, hiding her face under her bangs with a sweaty face.

'Forgive me brother... They told me you will die otherwise...'

A huge black light burst out and sealed him in a giant box as it pushed Lilim away, forcing her wings to flutter and float back to her own seat.

"Say Lanza... What exactly did you just use?" Lenara asked in a curious tone.

Lanza turned around to his 6 sisters and shrugged her shoulders with a wry smile. She actually did not know what it was and just mixed the various items like the thesis said.

"I don't know! It said this should work in the book. There was no name!"
