

Ex-husband Goes Money Comes Chapter 271

Since he had no choice, Ormand just ignored her.

He looked out of the window again, and his eyes returned to indifference.

The red lipstick marks on his handsome face were so conspicuous that he looked like a wife who had just been “bullied”.

The arrogant and domineering CEO’s image disappeared in front of Viola.

Seeing that he didn’t say anything, Viola didn’t intend to force him anymore.

“Okay, I’ll give you some time to calm down. But you can’t cancel the engagement or break up with me. You wanted to mess with me before, but now you want to quit halfway. No way! Ormand, you can only be mine for the rest of your life!

“And I’m sorry. I’m such a woman. It’s too late for you to see through me now. You’d better regret it in the future!”

She snorted arrogantly, stood up, and left.

She knew Ormand too well. He was stubborn.

Besides, he liked to hide his pain and bear it silently.

As for the reason why he became like this, Viola had guessed it.

Last time at dinner, Javon got angry. He even said that he wanted to punish Ormand in front of her.

Ormand's parents died in a car accident when he was very young. He had been raised by Javon.

Javon was an old and stern man. Ormand probably had been beaten and punished a lot. Even if he was hurt, no one would feel sorry for him. He could only bear it by himself.

He had always cherished his loved ones. The more he loved someone, the more he had to hide it from them.

So Viola had an intuition.

This time, he was either injured or sick!

Moreover, judging from his abnormality, his problem this time was not simple.

Although Ormand didn't want to tell her, it didn't mean that she couldn't investigate it herself!

She walked out of the office while thinking.

Todd was standing not far away.

She walked over and whispered, "I have something to tell you. Come with me secretly."

"What?"

Looking at her serious face, Todd felt a little uneasy, but he couldn't refuse her. He could only follow her awkwardly to an empty safe passage.

"Ms. Zumthor, what can I do for you?"

Viola asked seriously, "How many years have you been with Ormand?"

Todd thought for a while and said, "At least ten years."

She nodded thoughtfully and continued to ask tentatively, "Did Ormand get hurt when you went to the border?"

"No. We were with him. He won't get hurt easily. Don't worry."

Todd answered quickly.

Viola had a general idea in her mind. "Then he must be sick."

Appointment from an Old Friend

Todd lowered his head and said nothing.

"You have been with him for so long, so you must know his physical condition best. Is he seriously ill?"

Todd scratched his head and said bitterly, "Why do you think so? Mr. Hobson has always been in good health and is not sick."

"You don't want to tell me the truth even if he hides it from me?"

"Last night, I kicked him off the bed with a little strength. It can be seen that he is very weak. When I saw him just now, his face was very pale. Even if you deny it, I won't believe it. So tell me, what happened to him?"

With a sad look on his face, Todd endured the urge to tell the truth several times and sighed. "Don't push me anymore. I really don't know anything. I ... I have some work to deal with, so I'm leaving now."

Looking at his retreating figure, Viola thought for a while and took out her phone to call Dark Bell's subordinate.

"Check Ormand's schedule in the past few months. Check which hospital he goes to frequently. Hurry up."

"Okay, boss."

When Todd went back to the door of the CEO's office, Ormand just called him in.

He opened the door and saw Ormand sitting at his desk, looking in the mirror and wiping his face with a wet tissue.

The pair of leather gloves he had worn at work in the morning was lying quietly in the trash can.

Annointment from an old friend

“Mr. Hobson, what can I do for you?”

The lipstick mark on Ormand’s face was almost wiped off. “Where did you go just now?”

Todd reported honestly, “Just now, Ms. Zumthor came to me. She suspected that you were sick, so slie asked me for confirmation.”

“Did you tell her everything?”

Todd hurriedly waved his hand and said, “No, no, no. I don’t dare. I didn’t say anything!”

Ormand’s gloomy face softened a little.

Todd didn’t understand, so he tried to persuade Ormand cautiously, “But Mr. Hobson, you know Ms. Zumthor well. Since she has begun to suspect, she won’t stop until the truth is found out. Don’t you plan to tell her?”

“I tell her, and there will be one more person in pain.” Ormand lowered his eyes, dejected. “I’ll think about it again. You can confirm the modification of the file of Super 404 again.”

Todd sighed and said, “Yes.”

At noon.

As soon as Viola returned to the Angle Group, she received a call.

“Boss, Mr. Hobson hasn’t had any records of hospital visits in the past few months. The most frequently visited places are the Hobson Group, the National Bureau of Investigation, and, oh, War Lab.”

Viola thought about it carefully. “I remember that there are medical doctors in the lab. How often did Ormand go there?”

“Once every seven days. He goes there every sive days later. Recently, he went there three days ago at night.” Chapter 271 An Appointment from an Old Friend

Three days ago?

Viola frowned. Wasn’t Ormand at the border three days ago?

He went back to Salt Lake City ahead of time and didn’t go back to the Hobson’s house to look for her at night. It was so strange that he went to the lab.

Viola’s intuition told her that there must be something wrong.

“Can you hack the network of the laboratory and check Ormand’s records in the laboratory?”

There was a moment of silence on the other end of the phone. “I’m sorry, boss. These are national network technology. We can’t or don’t dare to hack them. If we hack them, we will be found immediately.”

“Okay, I see.”

After hanging up the phone, she was lost in thought again.

Ormand was the leader of the National Bureau of Investigation, and his status was on par with that of Bobby. If he wanted to hide one thing from her, perhaps even if she asked Bobby to get the information, the content would have been changed long ago.

She couldn't find it out at all. It was all her guess.

When Viola's investigation was interrupted and she was at a loss, Joseph suddenly called.

“Ms. McGraw, Salt Lake City prison called the McGraw family today and said that Mr. Felton wanted to see you.”

“Jerry?”

Viola was confused. Jerry had been in prison for more than half a year. Why did he suddenly want to see her? Chapter 271 Appointment from an Old Friend

Joseph continued, “Jerry said that he had a very important secret. He's sure that Ms. McGraw wanted to know because it's about your ex-husband.”

Hearing the last few words, Viola frowned, and her expression became more and more serious.

“I see.”

She quickly hung up the phone and drove to a high-level prison. She wanted to see what Jerry knew!

Viola sat in the visiting room, waiting quietly behind two soundproof windows.

Five minutes later, Jerry was brought here.
