

Ex-husband Goes Money Comes Chapter 339

The girl lowered her head sadly, looking like she did not know how to explain it.

“Forget it. Let’s go back,” Ormand said in a deep voice.

The girl was scolded, and her little boyfriend was unhappy. “Come out. Are all rich people like you so arrogant? We have said that we didn’t mean to hurt you. Why are you so mean?”

At the end of his speech, when Bentley and Russell weren’t paying attention to him, the boy quickly threw the snowball in his hand at Ormand.

The snowball fell apart in front of Ormand’s feet. His black leather shoes were stained with snow.

Ormand didn’t respond. He was supported by Russell and looked straight ahead. Ormand didn’t look at the side from beginning to end.

Russell, however, was really annoyed. After letting Bentley support Ormand, he let the security guards at the entrance of the laboratory come out to catch the couple.

The couple wanted to run. But soon, they were caught by the security guards.

Russell looked at them coldly and ordered, "Send them to the police station. Tell the police that they maliciously and deliberately assaulted people!"

"Yes, Mr. Russell."

Russell turned around and left after giving the order. He quickly got into Ormand's car. They drove quickly back to Viorin on a snowy night.

However, when the young couple had just been sent to the police station, they were taken away by the people of the National Bureau of Investigation.

The man who had just smashed a snowball in front of Ormand was standing in Ronian's office respectfully.

"Mr. Felton, Mr. Hobson seemed to be blind."

"Are you sure?" Ronian instantly put down his long legs from the desk and sat up in a serious manner.

"Yes. Mr. Hobson needed someone to help him walk the whole time. He was wearing sunglasses. But when I threw the snowball, he should look down. Normal people would do that. But Mr. Hobson didn't respond at all."

Ronian rested his hand on the table and rested his chin on his fist. He was pleasantly surprised. "How could a blind guy continue to lead the National Bureau of Investigation? It is time for him to retire."

The more Ronian thought about it, the more amused he felt.

“The good news must be shared. Tell Gregory about it. As for what he wants to do, it is none of my business.”

Bentley and Russell were about to return to their rooms to rest after returning to Viorin. But Ormand called them into his bedroom.

Ormand said with a serious face, “The two people at the entrance of the laboratory tonight were either arranged by Gregory or Ronian. The problem with my eyes is probably exposed.”

Bentley and Russell did not refute it. They were all smart people, so they could easily know the truth when they came back and thought about it.

Ormand continued, “No matter who it is, once they know this news, they will be eager to cause trouble for me. I am afraid that tomorrow, the operation will not go well.”

Bentley and Russell had grim expressions. After looking at each other, they simultaneously looked up at Ormand.

Russell asked, “Since you said so, you already have a plan, don’t you?”

Ormand lowered his eyes, curling his thin lips into a slight smile.

It was late at night in the United States, but it was the middle of the day in Portugal, and it was close to noon.

Viola sat in front of the bedroom window, bored as she looked at the wide and pleasant scenery outside.

Viola carefully calculated the time difference in her mind and wondered if Ormand had slept or had a dream about her.

There was a knock on the door, and it was Todd, who brought lunch for Viola.

“Ms. Zumthor, it’s time for lunch.”

Because of the listening device on the top of the lamp, Todd flattered Jerry with a few words.

“Mr. Martinez said that you don’t like the sweet and salty food here and that your appetite has been bad, so we especially found an American restaurant here to cook a few dishes for you.”

Hearing that it was American food, Viola got up and walked to the table to take a look, which was rare.

There was steak, roasted lobster, and an omelet.

The food looked good. But when Viola smelled it, she felt it was very greasy and wanted to throw up.

She endured. Her face turned pale. But in the end, Viola couldn’t hold it in and ran to the washroom.

She hadn't eaten much in the morning, and now she was vomiting. The gastric acid came up and made her throat burn.

Todd looked in the direction of the washroom, frowned, and seemed to realize something.

When Viola finished vomiting, cleaned up, and came out of the washroom, Todd had already turned off the listening device.

The door and windows were locked.

Todd looked serious and hesitated for a moment. But he still asked firmly, "Ms. Zumthor, have you noticed that your body condition is different from before?"

Viola stroked her chest as she thought about Todd's question. "Yeah. I always feel like I'm losing my appetite. The smell of greasy food makes me want to throw up. And I always feel sleepy."

At first, Viola thought that when she came to a strange place, she would not be able to sleep at night and would miss Ormand every day.

However, she did not. Every time she lay on the bed, Viola would quickly fall asleep.

Todd shifted his gaze to Viola's belly quietly. "Is it possible that ... you are pregnant?"

"Pregnant?"

Viola was slightly stunned. She almost didn't consider the possibility. "How is it possible? Orin and I have done it so many times before, and I didn't get pregnant. How can I be pregnant now?"

At the end of her sentence, Viola froze.

Thinking about it carefully, she realized that her period seemed to have been delayed by half a month.

And her symptoms recently seemed to be the symptoms of pregnancy.

Viola moved her hands down and touched her belly. Her gaze also fell on her belly.

If it was true, then this little baby came at a bad time.

Fate really loved to joke with Viola. She could not get a baby when she wanted it.

When Viola didn't want a baby the most, the baby came.

The smell of the food made Viola nauseous again. There was nothing left in her stomach that she could vomit. Viola could only lean in front of the sink and retch.

Todd reacted. He immediately covered the dishes on the table with plates and opened the air purifier in the room.

Viola felt so uncomfortable, but she had nothing to throw up.

Viola suppressed her discomfort and said expectantly, "We don't know yet. Perhaps I'm feeling unwell because I can't get used to the weather here and I am depressed. Maybe I am not pregnant."

Viola was having a bad time, but there was nothing Todd could do. Todd sighed, "Then should we find a way to verify it? We should know whether you are sick or pregnant."

Viola sat by the bed and thought about it, but she did not answer.

Viola and Todd lost their freedom. They were under house arrest and did not even have a phone. They were completely disconnected from the outside world. They couldn't even get pregnancy test stick.

Currently, it was so hard for Viola and Todd to deceive Jerry and let Viola have a pregnancy test.

Todd knew that too. "If you are really pregnant, I'm afraid Jerry will know very quickly. He's planning to marry you. What will he do if he finds out that you are pregnant now?"

Jerry was sick. He would know it at any time if Viola was really pregnant. It was dangerous.

No one knew if Jerry would go crazy and make some extreme decision after he found out about it.

"If you want to hide this, it's impossible. Let me think about it." Viola's hands hung on both sides of her body as she unconsciously gripped the quilt.

Todd brought a chair over and sat quietly beside her, staring at Viola.

He really felt sorry for her.

A girl, for his boss, went to a foreign country from afar.

In order to deal with Jerry, she couldn't relax at all.

Viola was the beloved daughter of the McGraw family. If she was really pregnant, she should have been taken care of by everyone.

But now, because of this matter, Viola had to do her best to face Jerry, that pervert.

While Todd stared intently at Viola, Viola lowered her eyes to look at the floor and pondered.

After thinking for a moment, she narrowed her beautiful eyes and said firmly, "Since I can't hide it anyway, I'll ask him to help me verify my pregnancy and let him accept the fact."
