

Ex-husband Goes Money Comes Chapter 380

This sentence instantly shocked everyone.

They turned to look at the city wall.

A woman with tattered and dirty clothes was standing by the city wall, motionless.

Today, everyone's attention was on the opening ceremony. No one noticed when the woman stepped onto the city tower.

Many media cameras immediately aimed at the scene on the city wall. Everyone's attention was attracted to it.

There were also quite a few staff members who were so anxious that they stomped their feet.

"What should we do? Why would someone try to jump off a building during the opening ceremony? If someone dies, that will be a huge ill omen!”

“Yes, this should be a good day. Does this mean that this drama is going to fail?”

O

“The stock market values of the several entertainment companies that have invested in the drama will drop drastically tonight.”

People discussed it.

Viola quietly listened to people’s discussions. Her facial expression did not change. She just told the staff next to her, “Call the police immediately to install the life-saving cushion.”

“Don’t call the police! Don’t go! No one is allowed to leave here, or I will jump down immediately!”

Just as Viola finished speaking, the woman on the city wall shouted hysterically.

This voice was so familiar.

“Rebecca?” Viola frowned and asked uncertainly.

The woman was surprised. “Viola, I didn’t expect you to remember

Are you surprised to see me here?”

Under her disheveled hair, her bloodshot eyes flashed with a vicious light as she stared at Viola.

Viola narrowed her eyes coldly and said nothing.

Rebecca looked at the group of reporters and shouted fiercely, “I am

Rebecca Falcon. It was because of this woman that I was sentenced and sent to prison!

“But even so, she still didn’t let me go. She sent people to the prison to beat me up day and night. She ruined my life!

“Viola! Remember, even if I die, I will not let you live peacefully!

Today, my blood will splash on your filming cameras. Even if Russell supports you, you will be responsible for my death and cursed by the netizens!”

Then she switched the target. “And you, Sherlyn! You stepped into the relationship between Russell and me. You are a disgusting home wrecker. You should leave the entertainment industry! You should not be supported by fans and appear in films!”

Her words shocked all the people at the scene who didn’t know the truth.

As the biggest investor in the drama, Viola actually sent a person to prison because of personal grudges?

And Sherlyn, who had just won the Best Actress, was actually the other woman?

There was too much information. Any of it would go viral on the Internet.

The people at the scene looked at each other and discussed softly.

The media recorded all of Rebecca's words.

Among everyone's shock, Viola remained calm from the beginning to the end.

She took two steps forward and looked up at Rebecca, who was laughing crazily on the city wall. She said disdainfully, "Rebecca, do you think a few words of slander can affect me?"

Viola crossed her hands, her beautiful eyes still cold and arrogant. She said with ridicule, "Don't you want to commit suicide? Then jump. I'll watch it."

"Viola, you can't..." Sherlyn stepped forward and held her wrist worriedly.

If Rebecca really died there, no matter if what she said just now was true or not, once it was uploaded online, everyone would pity her and sympathize with her.

People thought that when a person was about to die, their words were good.

Her death could cover up the truth.

Because no one would think that someone would crazily use their life to frame others.

Viola lightly patted Sherlyn's hand, indicating for her to relax and not to be afraid.

On the city wall, Rebecca snorted coldly, "Viola, do you think I don't dare to jump? Since I'm here, I have no intention of seeing tomorrow's sun!"

Viola smiled. "Even if you don't jump, you really can't see the sun tomorrow. Rebecca, you haven't been released. You are a fugitive. If you are caught, you will be sentenced to death. So it's the same whether you die now. It's better to take advantage of your death to malign me. Don't you agree?"

Rebecca was stunned, a little confused by her words.

Her attitude made Rebecca even more confused.

"Viola, this is a new drama you invested in. Do you know what it means for me to die here today? You don't have to pretend to be calm."

"Are you going to jump or not?" Viola was getting impatient. "If you want to jump, then hurry up. You deliberately stirred up the situation. You even threatened death. I'm tired of your drama."

"Cancel the filming ceremony for today. We'll discuss the time later," Viola said as she looked at the director.

“Okay, Ms. McGraw.” The director was a smart person. He thought that with today’s situation, things would not go smoothly.

As Viola spoke calmly from beginning to end, the people at the scene had a new opinion of the matter.

Daring to jump and not daring to jump were two different matters.

If the woman didn’t dare, then she was deliberately provoking Viola. The words she said were most likely not the truth.

Rebecca also reacted quickly that Viola had done it on purpose to guide public opinion.

She hysterically roared at the others, “Remember, I am forced to death by her, Viola! She is a devil! Sherlyn is a mistress, a home wrecker! What I said is the truth!”

After she finished shouting, she acted as if she was about to jump.

“Wait a minute!” Viola stopped her in time.

“Rebecca, have you ever thought about it? No matter how hard you are in prison, there will be a day when you are done with your sentence. Your parents are waiting for the day when they can pick up their precious daughter from prison. But if you jump today, their future days will be even more difficult.”

She deliberately persuaded her slowly.

Just now, she had asked Jimmy and the others to leave quietly. At this time, she noticed that Jimmy and the others had returned.

They brought a life-saving air cushion.

At this time, everyone’s attention was on Rebecca who was on the city wall, and Rebecca’s attention was on Viola. No one noticed that Jimmy and the others were under the city wall, quietly placing the air cushion.

Rebecca laughed out loud. When Rebecca heard Viola's tone showing she was giving in, Rebecca felt exceptionally happy.

"Mom and Dad let you bully me. That's their biggest mistake. They didn't help me deal with you. They deserve the pain!

"Viola, after I die, you won't have a good time either. I'll wait for you in Hell."

She opened her hands, closed her eyes, turned around, and fell straight down the wall.

The people at the scene immediately shouted out and were in a panic.

Quite a few people wanted to rush under the city wall to save her.

Viola was being squeezed by the crowd. The people Ormand had arranged to protect her all came out and protected her firmly in the middle.

Not even a strand of her hair had been torn off.

Viola looked at the dozen or so bodyguards who had suddenly appeared. She immediately understood. "Are you sent by Orin?"
