

Ex-husband Goes Money Comes Chapter 397

Viola laughed and proudly reached out her right hand, showing her slender fair fingers to Ormand.

“Are you sure about this? There’s no going back on this. If you dare to treat me badly, I’ll never forgive you.”

“Alright, you can punish me in any way you want if I do you wrong.”

Ormand’s words made Viola laugh. Her sadness 15 minutes ago completely disappeared under his gentle comfort.

Viola felt that her entire heart seemed to be immersed in honey, so sweet that she couldn't help but laugh.

Ormand held her hand and put on the ring for her. He imitated her tone and continued, "You wear my diamond ring, and then you are my woman.

"Viola, you won't be able to leave me for the rest of your life."

Ormand held Viola's hand and gently kissed the back of it with his soft lips. Then, he got up and carried her into his arms.

"Wait a minute."

Viola looked at the green roses under the tree. "Such beautiful flowers can't be wasted. Ask the bodyguards to trim them and put them in vases. How about we put a few in each room?"

"As you wish."

Ormand lowered his head, kissed her, and walked into the villa.

Viola was still asking, "Why the green roses?"

Besides, don't you hate green? This is the first time I've seen someone propose with green flowers."

"The green rose is unique, just like you. It stands for evergreen love and everlasting youth."

Ormand leaned close to Viola's ear.

"Actually, it's mainly because you like the color green."

His hoarse voice was extremely tempting.

Viola couldn't help but kiss his thin lips.

Their breaths intertwined as they immersed themselves in the love that they had given each other.

They had left the inheritance rights, the paternity test, the illegitimate daughter, and all sorts of things behind.

That night, Viola had a very sound sleep in Ormand's arms.

Early the next morning.

Viola was awakened by a kiss.

She opened her eyes in a daze and saw that

Ormand's deep and dark eyes were flickering with excitement as he stared at her with a mysterious look.

"What's wrong with you?"

Ormand rubbed the tip of his nose with hers.

“Viola, other than last night’s proposal, I’ve got another small surprise for you.”

“Another one?”

Ormand’s magnetic voice whispered in her ear, “Turn on your phone and check the news.”

Viola was still sleepy and reluctantly grabbed her phone.

But when she saw the news, she immediately sobered up and sat up from the bed.

Ormand had put all his money, houses, and shares under her name.

In just one night, she became the top 1 richest person in the United States, and she was the first woman to be in that position.

And she also received a text telling her that there was a huge transfer from Ormand.

Netizens all over the country were stunned by Ormand's shocking act of spoiling his wife. They two had taken over the Internet trending topic list.

"You... Why..." Viola choked up, and she was once again moved by Ormand.

However, she had more worries than joy. "Do you know what will happen after you give me

all the shares of the Hobson Group?

"Ormand, this is a big deal! You should have discussed this with me first!"

Viola's tone was a bit fierce because she was worried.

Ormand bit his lip, lowered his head as if he had done something wrong, and shrank into Viola's arms, whispering grievance.

"Viola, I have nothing now. I don't even have a single cent on me. Will you still be with me?"

Viola sighed, touched and heartbroken as she caressed his face.

She tried to swallow her tears and said, "I already agreed to marry you. How could I not want to stay with you? But is it really worth it?"

Ormand put his hands around her waist with satisfaction. "It's worth it. You are already the richest woman in the United States. No one will dare to question you even if you are really a prisoner's illegitimate daughter.

"Moreover, my woman is worthy of all the best things in this world."

Viola's eyes were red, and her tears fell uncontrollably.

Words were not enough to express her current feelings.

She had once thought that falling in love with him, who had disguised himself as Orlando.

Caffrey, was the greatest misfortune in her life.

However, she didn't expect that it would turn out to be the only lucky thing that ever happened to her.

Nothing was more romantic than two people being willing to sacrifice everything for each other when they were in their most desperate situations.

Viola hugged Ormand tightly, feeling his steady heartbeat and the sense of security he gave her.

The door was knocked.

The warm atmosphere was finally interrupted by the knocking on the door.

Outside the door was Todd.

“Ormand, the paternity test results are out.” Todd’s voice was heavy, and he seemed to be down.

Ormand immediately turned serious. He got out of bed and opened the door. He took the paternity test result and read it first.

Then his face darkened and asked Todd in a serious tone, “Are you sure that Viola’s and Layne’s hair was personally sent to the hospital by you?”

“Yes, I sent the samples to Lafaye Hospital, the most authoritative hospital in the city. I went under the National Bureau of Investigation’s order and had Miguel do the test.”

Ormand fell silent and pondered for a moment. Then he said to Todd, “Fine, you can go.”

Todd nodded and left.

Viola was still in bed.

“Orin, let me look at it. No matter what the result is, I’ll accept it,” she said, looking at Ormand’s back.

Ormand hesitated but eventually handed her the paternity test result.

Viola took it and flipped to the last page.

The words “father and daughter” deeply burned her eyes.

Moreover, it was Miguel’s fingerprint on the paper.

“Viola, I think it’s still suspicious. Don’t believe in the results first.”

Ormand calmly analyzed the situation for Viola. “You’ve been in the McGraw family for so many years. Willard has never doubted who you are and has always doted on you.

Why would he do the test at this critical juncture? Someone must have told him to.

“And even Willard is not clear about what exactly happened. There’s a person who is obviously younger than you but knows all these past things inside and out. Could she be behind this?

“First, Willard had an accident, and then you were discovered to be not a McGraw, and finally your ‘biological father’ was found to be a prisoner. All of this happened right before the day on which you were going to be given inheritance rights.

“All these accidents seem to make sense, but when I think about them, I feel it’s too

coincidental and too deliberate!

“When all these things are put together, I always feel that someone is pressed for time and consequently has to do this.”

Viola listened quietly and frowned. Her eyes were fixed on the official seal of Lafaye

Hospital on the paper.

Ormand noticed the way Viola was looking at the result and said, "Although the test was made by Miguel, I don't think we can completely believe it. Why don't we call

Bentley over and have him personally

examine once?"