

Ex husband Goes Money Comes Chapter 407

Bobby's face instantly turned pale. He was speechless after hearing Viola's words.

Bobby also did not expect Ormand would disregard the honor and interests of the entire Hobson family and give all of his shares to Viola.

It was indeed ironic and ridiculous.

"Sorry."

Apart from this word, Bobby seemed to not know what else he could say.

Viola wiped away her tears. She was so disappointed in Bobby.

Viola said, "Even if these things were not done by you, it was because of your indulgence that Max could be so unscrupulous. Because you protected her and hid the truth that she harmed me, I ended up in Washington at the age of fifteen and suffered for six years.

"My suffering is not something that can be offset by your single sentence. Making her suffer for half a year is not enough at all!

"On the Crane Bridge in Washington, she joined hands with Krish and found forty killers in the black market to kill me, forcing me to jump into the bone-chilling river!

"In Color World in Washington, she and Aydan bribed Jerry and asked him to steal the strong corrosive agent S40 to hurt me.

“She tried to drive a wedge between Ormand and me. She advised Rebecca and wanted to send me to Stanley’s bed at Rebecca’s birthday banquet!

“She also asked you to get Rebecca and Anaya out of prison in order to keep causing trouble in my life.

“This is the result of you and dad’s indulgence! I will not forgive you. If you want to inherit the McGraw family, I will give it to you. After all, you have loved and educated me for more than 20 years.

“But today, I will cut off all ties with you. From now on, you are no longer my brother!”

After saying these words, Viola turned her head away. She looked determined, and her cold eyes were full of hatred and anger.

Then, she walked past Bobby.

Bobby’s eyes were also red. Bobby called Viola when she was about to open the door.

“Viola, I’m sorry. I didn’t expect to hurt you so much. I won’t ask for your forgiveness. I will keep repenting and try to make up for you. And you can make Max pay, but don't hurt her life."

Hearing this, Viola sneered in her heart. She tightened her grip on the doorknob and said, "You really treat her differently. Even if I have listed her crimes one by one, you still speak up for her."

Bobby lowered his head in guilt. His eyes were red, and he said, "Previously, I was on a military mission. It was her mother who saved my life with her life. Her mother died then.

"I promised to take good care of her and protect her for the rest of her life. Dad is the same. Max is an illegitimate daughter, and dad feels that he owes her. Later, because I made Max lose his mother, dad was even more protective of Max."

Willard was a good father with a gentle temper. He loved his children. But he was a terrible husband. He had fallen in love with three women in his life.

Bobby sighed, and his tone was choked with sobs. "Viola, I beg you. Please let her go."

Viola's heart sank, and her eyes trembled uncontrollably. She froze on the spot.

Ever since Viola was young, Bobby was the existence she was in awe of.

If Viola made a mistake, Bobby would educate and punish her. After the punishment, Bobby would feel very sorry and worried. He doted on Viola and was willing to do anything for her..

Bobby was like a strict and doting mother, while Willard was an approachable, gentle, and modest father.

But today, Bobby seemed to have changed. In order to save Max, who was an illegitimate daughter, Bobby begged Viola for the first time.

Viola's face was full of sarcasm, and she sneered, "Don't call me Viola. From now on, I don't want to hear my name coming out of your mouth. I only have Bentley and Russell as my brothers. The Bobby I once loved died in my heart when I was fifteen."

After finishing her words, Viola opened the door and left without looking back.

Only Bobby was left alone in the room, lost and sad.

When Viola came out of the room, Ormand was waiting for her in the stairwell.

Seeing that Viola's eyes were red and there were tears on her face, Ormand frowned with worry. But he did not say anything. He just stretched his arms and opened his embrace to Viola.

Viola walked over and threw herself into Ormand's arms. She listened to Ormand's steady and powerful heartbeat. In an instant, she felt a sense of belonging. The strange emotions in her heart gradually dissipated.

Ormand hugged Viola tightly and patted her back gently. He said in a magnetic voice, "Are you tired? If you really feel uncomfortable, we can go home."

Viola shook her head and refused.

The matter related to Lily and Max had not been dealt with yet. Viola didn't want to go back this time!

Ormand knew what Viola was thinking, so he stopped persuading her. He grabbed Viola's hand and went downstairs with her.

Lainey was standing in the hall on the first floor, and there were tears in her eyes. She had obviously cried before.

When Lainey saw Viola and Ormand come down, her face changed and was full of guilt. Tears flowed down her face uncontrollably. She cried desperately, "Viola, I'm sorry for what happened to you. I actually didn't know anything..."

Sorry. I'm really sorry!"

Viola had always been clear about her kindness and resentment. Lainey was Viola's sister-in-law, and she had protected Viola many times. She also sincerely treated Viola as a younger sister. Thus, Viola would not implicate Lainey, who was innocent.

"You are innocent because you know nothing. I won't blame you. You don't have to apologize to me for Bobby."

Lainey keenly noticed the change in Viola's tone. She cried even more sadly, unable to stop her tears.

Viola sighed. Things had already happened. It was impossible to say that there was no grudge in her heart.

Viola did not know how to persuade Lainey to calm down. She could only say, "He's up there. He probably isn't in a good mood. Lainey, you should go up and see him."

"Alright." Lainey nodded and quickly went upstairs.

Max and Lily were being watched in the garden. They could only sit in their chairs.

When Viola walked to the entrance of the villa, she saw Lily's nervous and timid appearance from afar.

Thinking of her father in the ward, Viola became furious. She strode into the garden. Without saying a word, Viola directly grabbed Lily's well-maintained hair and pulled her into the villa.

"Ouch! Viola, let go of me! I am your stepmother, your elder! You can't do this to me!" Lily was in so much pain that her face twitched. But she could only roar hysterically when she felt pain.

Viola sneered, "Maybe you were before. But you won't be my stepmother soon!"

The look in Viola's eyes suddenly turned fierce, and she pulled Lily's hair mercilessly.

Lily felt like her scalp was about to be torn off. She had been pampered for so many years in the McGraw family, and she didn't know any fighting skills. She couldn't break free from Viola's hand.

Lily was dragged by Viola all the way into the villa and went upstairs to Willard's room.

Viola opened Willard's bedroom door.

Willard's eyes were closed. He wore a breathing mask on his face, and beside him was a monitoring device. He was already in a vegetative state.

Viola kicked Lily's back knee and pressed her to the side of Willard's bed. Viola's hands were still tightly pulling Lily's hair.

"Lily, take a good look at this man! In order to marry you, this man in bed ignored all the objections of his children!

Because of this man, you have been able to be a rich lady in the McGraw family. All your happiness and wealth were given by this man in front of you!

"How could you push him down the stairs? Do you even have a conscience?"